GILLETT TO RETIRE TO PRIVATE LIFE.

Governor Will Not Seek Re-election and Does Not Want Senatorship.

Favors Return of Flint to Upper House of Congress—Thinks His Successor Will Come from North. Most Prominently Mentioned Are Curry, Stanton and Mott—State's Chief Executive Writes Committee.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In a letter to P. S. Teller, chairman of the Republican State Committee, today, Gov. Gillett announced that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself.

In an interview later he declared that Southern California should have the Senatorship, and he favors the return of Frank P. Flint. He believes the Republican nomination for Governor will go to a northerner, but he favors no special candidate.

"I am not going to run for Governor," he said to The Times' correspondent, "for I am not in a position to run, and cannot afford to keep myself in the Governor's chair for another four years.

"I am not a candidate to succeed Senator Flint in the United States Senate, nor will I be. I am for Flint. I've said that before, and I meant it, and if he will not accept the office, if he is not to be the man, then I am for some other man from the southern part of the State.

"The South has interests which must be looked after by a man fully in touch with the situation. It has its harbors and its citrus fruit interests to look out for, and only a man from the South can do this to the satisfaction of the people."

NORTHERNER FOR GOVERNOR.

"Then if the Senatorship goes to the South, it is probable that the candidate for Governor will come from the northern part of the State?" was suggested.

"Yes, I think the candidates for Governor will come from right up here in the North," he replied.

But here the Governor paused. He declined to discuss the chances of any candidates or prospective candidates, but, continuing along other lines, he said:

"I have been practicing law for thirty-five years. I am a lawyer. I must depend upon the law for my living. I must see to it that my children are educated, and I do not feel that I can give all of my time for another four years.

"The question of finance, however, does not enter into my decision not to run again. Probably I could make a campaign easier than any other man. The man in office usually has an easier time than the man out, but I simply am not in position to run again.

"Regarding the Senatorship and the South, I voted for Senator Judah and for Senator Bard. I favor Flint and I hope he will accept the office again, I think he has made good, and I am sure that he stands in a very excellent position as far as the leaders in the State and the party are concerned. What will my attitude regarding a seat in the United States Senate be in the future? Well, I am perfectly willing to let the future take care of itself. Just say for me that I have decided not to run again."

GREAT PRESSURE TO RUN.

The Governor's announcement will serve to clear the political atmosphere considerably. Although Mr. Curry entered the race months ago, others have hesitated to declare their intentions until they were sure what Gillet would do, and for months the Governor has been saying that it was too early to decide.

In fact, he has been uncertain. His own inclination has been to return to the practice of his profession. And it has been the desire of Mrs. Gillett that he should do so. But great pressure has been brought to bear upon him to run again. That he has made a splendid Governor is recognized by the people, and the party leaders have insisted that it was his duty to make the race. No Governor of California has ever been reëlected, with the exception of John Bigler, half a century ago, and then the term was only two years.

The honor of being the only Governor to serve eight years was held out to G~v. Gillett as an inducement. But he has been unable to convince himself that he should disregard the wishes of his family, and their material interests by continuing to hold public office.

It is understood that it was originally the Governor's intention to make a decision one way or the other the first of the year. But with the approach of that time, the importunities made to him were redoubled. The Union Labor element, under the leadership of Mayor McCarthy of San Francisco, has been particularly insistent. Mayor McCarthy has declared several times that Gillett was their choice, and the State labor convention at Monterey a short time ago indorsed him.

STANTON AND MOTT.

The Monterey convention declared for Mr. Curry as second choice, however, and he will undoubtedly receive the support now that Gillett is out of the way. Mr. Curry has had the laborites with him heretofore in his campaigns for office, and many local unions have already given him their indorsement for Governor.

It is likely that other candidates for Governor will appear within the next few days. The Democrats are sure to name Theodore Bell when their nominating convention meets in Los Angeles. Senator Miller of Visalia, regarded by many as a much stronger man than Bell, was loth to run against Gillett, with whom he is on the friendliest terms, and whom he regards most highly. And it is not probable that Miller will permit his name to be used now, the party leaders having virtually agreed to name Bell. They are not very hopeful of success, anyhow, and as long as Bell is anxious to run, no one seems desirous of stopping him.

Two more Republican candidates will probably appear shortly, and there is not much doubt about their names. Mayor Mott of Oakland will be chosen by the Lincoln-Roosevelt League and former Speaker P. A. Stanton of Los Angeles will go in as the southern candidate. Neither Mott nor Stanton was inclined to make the contest against Gillett. Stanton made up his mind several weeks ago to run if Gillett got out.

The situation as to Mott is not entirely clear. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the league, but has not been active in its counsels. Recently the league leaders declared that they had fixed upon ex-Mayor Davis of Oakland, if he would accept, but Davis has said all along that he would not, and it is understood that the league's nomination is at the service of Mayor Mott.

LEAGUE'S TROUBLES.

Senator Belshaw of Contra Costa county would like the league indorsement, and it has been recently reported that he was confident of getting it. But other advices are not so favorable to Belshaw. J. O. Hayes of San José has been mentioned frequently, but the committee named by Chester H. Rowell wants Davis or Mott. The Southern California leaguers still talk of Heney, but it is safe to say that Mott will be the league candidate if he will accept. Mott may prefer to run like Curry without any entanglements. If he does, it is a question whether or not the league will decide to name another man.

Admittedly, Mr. Curry's chances have been improved very much by the retirement of Gillett. The latter is the only possible candidate that Curry has really feared very much. He will fall heir to the labor vote, and also to the support of a large section of the party whose first choice was the present Governor. On the other hand, not much of Gillett's strength is likely to go to the league nominee, unless, perchance, it should be Mott, who has many friends in the regular organization. Curry's campaign is far advanced, while the others have not yet started. This is regarded as a considerable advantage, despite the fact that more than six months remain before the primary election.

The Senatorial situation is also clarified by the Gillett letter. Gillett's frank indorsement of Senator Flint for reëlection will be taken to mean that Flint will run again, although there have been rumors to the contrary. Anyhow, the Governor is sure that the Senatorship should go to the South. The league will put up Lee C.

GRAND CANYON OF COLORADO TO BE BIG NATIONAL PARK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Senator Flint will introduce a bill Monday setting aside the Grand Canyon of the Colorado in its entirety as a national park. It is understood that President Taft, with whom Senator Flint has discussed his bill, is in entire accord with its provisions. Part of the Grand Canyon was reserved February 20, 1903, as a portion of the Grand Canyon Forest Reserve. By proclamation January 11, 1908, part of the canyon was set aside as a national monument. Another portion was set aside June 2, 1908, as the Coconino National Forest. On June 3, 1909, a national monument was included in the Grand Canyon national game preserve. Senator Flint would set aside the entire canyon as a national park. He fees that thereby all the purposes intended by other proclamations would be subserved and that in addition buildings could be erected and other accommodations provided for the benefit of visitors.

STORK HOVERS NIGH.

AGAIN HOPES FOR A ROYAL HEIR.

WILHELMINA MAY YET DELIGHT THE DUTCH.

Little Queen Is Center of Interest to Every Patriotic Hollander, as It Is of Utmost Importance That a Male Shall Succeed to Throne. Madly Loves Her Husband.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Queen Wilhelmina promises to make her subjects the happiest people in the world. There is again hope of an heir to the throne of Holland, as the stork is said to be hovering near the Dutch royal mansion.

There has been much gossip concerning the [illegible] life of this royal pair. The [illegible] Queen always has been desperately in love with her big husband. She married him for love and she has never ceased to love him, despite gossip and court scandal. Indeed, it was through her devotion to him that she came to lose her first two children. She insisted on following him everywhere he went, especially on horseback, at time when she should have remained quietly at rest. The Prince, too, in a rough German fashion, has shown himself to be a man of heart.

The faithful people of Holland are devotedly attached to the little Princess Juliana, but it is of the most vital importance that the Queen should give them a Prince who will one day be their King. They have only to be patient, for Wilhelmina is only 34 and in robust health, so that there may be a whole nursery of little Princes to delight their hearts and further their hopes for a King.

BELLE GUNNESS "FOUND" AGAIN.

THIS TIME MURDERESS IS LOCATED IN MINNESOTA.

Enthusiastic Amateur Sleuth So Sure He Has Discovered Famous Mistress of "Murder Farm" That He Sends Expense Money for Marshal to Come After Her.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Belle Gunness, wholesale murderess, has been "found" again—this time in Minnesota.

The woman whose bones were believed to have been discovered in the ashes of her house on the murder-farm near La Porte, Ind., is working as a housekeeper for a farmer in the immediate vicinity of Willmar, Minn., according to the enthusiastic belief expressed in a telegram received today by Marshal Clinton Cochrane of La Porte.

The "discoverer" was the brother of the woman's employer, Samuel Kirby, of Mankato, Minn., who for the last month has enacted the role of amateur detective.

For a week Kirby has been in communication with Cochrane, who received various eloquent messages telling of the imminent peril Kirby was braving in order to "get to the bottom of the mystery."

After the Marshal had sent a photograph of Mrs. Gunness to Kirby, a telegram was delivered to Cochrane saying: "This is the woman. Come at once. I will pay expenses."

It was signed by Kirby. The round-trip transportation to the Minnesota town is about $45. This amount was received today and Cochrane has left for Minnesota.

TAFT VISITS AUTO SHOW.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—That this is an automobile administration succeeding the Roosevelt administration which acclaimed the horse, was shown today when President Taft paid homage to the automobile by a visit to the automobile show here. The President spent nearly an hour at the Exposition building, carefully inspecting cars on exhibition.

BREATHING EASIER.

SWIRLING TORRENT OF THE SEINE SUBSIDING.

Desolated Paris Feels a Sense of Relief, Although the Situation Is Still Critical and Fears Are Felt for the Dreaded After-Results.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Slowly the swollen waters of the Seine, which reached a [illegible] high mark at 2 o'clock this morning, are subsiding, and at midnight the fall measured four and a half inches—enough to bring a sense of relief to the desolated and distracted city.

The danger of some great calamity, such as has been predicted, now seems over, although the situation continues critical, particularly near the St. Lazare station, where entire streets and solid blocks of buildings threaten to sink through the crust into the water beneath.

The effect of the removal of the water pressure has been to weaken foundations generally, and this causes the greatest anxiety. Besides, there will be thousands of acres to be cleared or repaired when the water has receded, and there is also the possibility of an epidemic.

The breaking of the dam at Gennevillieres has hastened the climax by releasing an immense amount of water, but the consequences below are appalling.

Gennevillieres and Colombes have 80,000 inhabitants. They are completely submerged, the water reaching tops of houses in the lower sections, while the flood is backing up into the center of Asnieres.

Certainly 40,000 persons have been driven from their homes in the valley of the Seine to hospitals, and other buildings placed at the disposal of refugees.

Dispatches from the provinces indicate a general improvement, except in the lower valley of the Seine.

Premier Briand today denied reports that the government contemplated proclaiming a state of siege in the city. He said there would have been no hesitation to do this if the necessity had arisen, but that the public had manifested complete confidence in the government, and was cooperating in such splendid fashion that France might well be proud before the world.

The French Red Cross, the Societe des Dames Francaises and the Societe des Femmes de France, are rendering immediate assistance to the authorities in relief work. Sixty relief stations have been established in Paris as well as camps for the free distribution of soup, food and clothing in the outskirts of inundated towns and villages along the river.

Nevertheless, conditions, especially in the country districts, are pitiful. It is estimated that the Seine, which under normal conditions, moves through Paris at the sluggish rate of less than a mile an hour, is now carrying thirty times the ordinary volume at twenty miles an hour.

MANY DEPLORABLE INCIDENTS.

A number of deplorable incidents have been reported. Several shopkeepers who attempted to charge quadruple prices, have been mobbed, while a grocery man who was driven to the upper story of his house by an angry crowd, fired a revolver, wounding a woman. Rowdies have attempted to pillage many houses, and at several towns they have been driven off by the militia.

LONG-STANDING ANIMUS SHOWN.

GLAVIS AIRS BITTER FEELING IN INQUIRY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Louis R. Glavis concluded his testimony before the Ballinger-Pinchot Congressional Investigation Committee late tonight. He will be recalled at the resumption of the hearing Monday afternoon for cross-examination by any persons against whom he has made charges.

Glavis's last day on the stand was full of interest. It developed the animus which long has existed between the Land Office and the Forestry Bureau, and the resentment the Land Office people felt when Glavis called in "the forestry" as they termed it.

The witness also declared Representatives McLachlan of California and Kinkaid of Nebraska were interested in Alaskan claims and that Mr. Ballinger, after being commissioner of the Land Office, had acted as attorney for Mr. Kinkaid.

Glavis asserted that Mr. Ballinger had suggested to him not to pursue an investigation against Congressman McLachlan, saying there had been too much of that sort of thing in the past.

CENTERS ON DENNETT.

When Glavis was asked the direct question if he thought Secretary Ballinger and Commissioner Dennett were in league to do wrong in the Alaska cases, he replied:

"Well, I thought the cases would be better protected with them out of the way."

Glavis's attack seemed to center more today upon Commissioner Dennett. He said he became convinced in the summer of 1909 that Dennett was "crooked" and took steps to get carbon copies of letters Dennett was writing back to Washington. Several of these letters were introduced in evidence.

One was from Commissioner Dennett to H. H. Schwartz, chief of the field service. It was dated July 20, 1909, at Seattle, and said, among other things:

"My Dear Schwartz: The worst situation on the line in the field here. Our friend Glavis regarded me with suspicion and, after talking awhile, showed me your telegram assigning the coal cases to Sheridan. Now, I figure that Glavis is preparing to make a cushion for himself to fall back on, and also putting himself in shape to have a great story in case Sheridan does not make good and succeed in canceling the Cunningham cases.

"LOOKS INNOCENTLY."

"While he looks innocently at me yet I can see that his heart is bad, though why it should be, I cannot tell, except that he wanted to drag the case out. He may be sincere, of course, in his idea that he has not been given time and opportunity. He asserts that he will help Sheridan all he can, but it is not human nature, or at least, his human nature. The atmosphere is not good at all.

"That he is playing the forestry there is no question; the innocent look he gave me when I told him he was dragging in Shaw, etc., when there was no necessity, was beautiful. . . . He also talked conservation very strongly. Glavis talking conservation! All round he is ugly and he is preparing to be as unpleasant as he can—at least that is my solution of the situation.

"Glavis professes the greatest friendship to you and I think you know him better than any one else and this is certainly the worst situation we have. He will make about forty favorable and about five hundred unfavorable reports; the way things will commence to drop will be amusing."

"COAL ON THE BRAIN."

GOES BEGGING.

IN FEAR OF HIS LIFE.

Minto Wants to Quit Viceregal Job.

No Briton of Importance Is Willing to Rule Turbulent India.

Earl of Dudley Says Wife Objects to His Again Leaving England.

Fears Slogan of "India for Indians" May Be Taken Up Any Day.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is now an open secret that the British government is at its wits end as to the appointment of a new Viceroy to India. The situation there is causing the Ministers the deepest concern. Sedition continues to spread. At any moment the cry of "India for the Indians" may be raised, it is feared. At such a moment the government here is finding the utmost difficulty in getting the right kind of man to send out as Viceroy.

Every one in authority here is now beginning to recognize that the oriental "Terrorist" organization is not amenable to occidental repressive measures and also that occidental wisdom is incapable of combating oriental secrecy and tracking to its fountain source the heads of the inspirers of the movement. The position is most serious.

The series of murders of officials that have taken place is believed to have been decreed by the Chief Brahmins. But the cleverest detectives are helpless when they attempt to discover the prime mover. All that can be discovered is the decidedly unpleasant certainty that any of the head Brahmins has only to call for volunteers to have hundreds of offers from Indians, ready to commit the most dastardly murder of a British official and do it with feelings of exultation and glory.

CRIME IS KEY TO HEAVEN.

To these men to kill an obnoxious British official is not a crime; it is a service to their race. It is far more to them than storming some deadly breach in the heat of battle is to the British soldier. For the Indian readily gives up his own life to accomplish his end. He believes that such a death takes him straight to heaven.

No organization could be more perfect than that of these Brahmins. It is widespread. It is thorough. At the same time it is impalpable.

Compelled to make examples, the Indian government has not been able to reach any of the real conspirators, but only the comparatively harmless agitators who are only too willing to give up their lives to shield those above them.

Their system of news carrying is amazing. It is all done now by word of mouth. Signals are no longer trusted. Yet no event happens anywhere but it is known everywhere in almost no time.

BLAMES LORD CURZON.

Much of the present trouble is but the harvest of the rule of Lord Curzon. Much, however, is also due to the "Asia for the Asiatics" movement, which has been going on quietly but surely for some few years and which is not overwhelmingly strong simply because of its magnitude.

Lord Minto, whose life has now been attempted several times despite the strong guard that always surrounds him, wants to retire. The government has had to appeal to him to remain yet a while longer at his dangerous post because it cannot get a successor.

The Earl of Dudley, who was the first Governor-General of the Commonwealth of Australia, which difficult position he carried through with success, and who was extremely popular with the Irish when the Viceroy of Ireland, previously had been offered the Indian post, but he refused it on the ground that his wife is bitterly opposed to his further absence from England.

DOESN'T WANT ART CUTICLE.

New York Woman Refuses to Have Fantastic Pictures Grafted on Her Body.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Not wishing to be a walking art gallery, though she is sadly in need of some sixty-four square inches of skin, Mrs. Fannie Gottlieb, thirty years old, has refused the kind offer of her husband to contribute his own cuticle. Gustave Gottlieb, the husband, is tattooed from his neck down to the soles of his feet with fantastic pictures. The doctors also thought that Mrs. Gottlieb would be better off with some plain white undecorated skin to replace that which was burned off, and they are looking about for other volunteers.

CORNERED.

KEENE AT LAST SUBPOENAED.

"Gray Wolf of Wall Street" Accepts Service.

Will Be Witness in Hocking Pool Cases.

Pleads Ill Health and Gets Week's Delay.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Cornered in his suite in the Waldorf-Astoria, James R. Keene, "The Gray Wolf of Wall Street," accepted service of two subpoenas in the Hocking Coal and Iron pool cases today. This is the first time within the memory of Wall street that this ever happened, and Wall street will be amazed even now if Keene actually mounts the witness stand to tell of whatever connection he may have had with the pool that collapsed ten days ago, bringing a loss of millions, sending three firms into bankruptcy and being primarily responsible for an abrupt fall of the entire stock list.

Keene never has testified in the other cases in which he has figured as a party, although, to be sure, he was never subpoenaed before. He is commanded to appear next Monday before United States Commissioner Alexander in the receivership proceedings of J. M. Fiske & Company, one of the houses which collapsed in the Hocking smash.

The surrender of the veteran operator came after strenuous efforts to serve him. He remained closely guarded in his Waldorf-Astoria suite. According to Ralph Wolf of the law firm of Hayes, Herschfield and Wolf, attorneys for Receiver Ernst, Mr. Keene capitulated when stories declaring that he was seeking to evade the inquiry were circulated.

When Mr. Wolf reached his office today he learned that Mr. Keene had called him three times on the telephone. He called up the Waldorf and asked for Mr. Keene.

"I am not trying to evade a Federal service," emphatically declared the spokesman who said he was Mr. Keene. "On the contrary, I will accept any Federal papers offered me. I will be glad to appear and give what testimony I may have on any subject the government wishes."

Mr. Wolf then said he desired to have personal service made of a subpoena for Mr. Keene's appearance before Commissioner Alexander next Monday. Mr. Keene replied that he would consult his lawyer, Solomon Hanford and further communicate with Mr. Wolf.

"Later I received a telephone call from Mr. Hanford saying that Mr. Keene was not in the best of health and desired to go away for a week," said Mr. Wolf. "He said his client would gladly accept service if I would submit to that condition. I agreed and Mr. Keene received my process server in his apartment.

"When the subpoena was put in Mr. Keene's hands he turned to the process man and asked innocently: 'What is this paper for?' The server said it had to do with the Hocking pool's collapse. 'Well, well, what do you think of that? I don't know much about it, but I will be glad to give these gentlemen any information I can,' replied Mr. Keene.

"When the case comes up Monday I will ask for a postponement for a week, as Mr. Keene asked. I hope that his health is better a week from that time, for on that day we intend to question him about the entire matter."

WEALTH DINES WITHOUT MEAT.

Wholesalers Agitating for Repeal of Duty on Canadian, Argentine and Mexican Beef.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Six hundred representative manufacturers, mostly men of wealth, ate a dinner today at the Machinery Club, of nothing but vegetables and fruit. There were no speeches, but an informal discussion of advanced cost of living indicated that the universal protest of the nation has the support of business men as well as of laboring men.

There were further slight recessions in price today in butchershops, but quotations on the whole seem to indicate that demand and supply are beginning to approach an adjustment. Wholesalers are agitating for a repeal of the duty on Canadian, Argentine and Mexican beef.

"Look at the London market," said one wholesaler. "Free competition with beef from Canada, the Argentine and even from Russia, rules there with the result that an Englishman can eat Canadian beef, grown just across the border from us, cheaper than Americans can eat their own Western steers."

"Eat No Meat" in large letters was pasted all over the West Side today on shop windows and in many private houses.

GOVERNMENT IS LOSER.

Publisher Declares Postal Deficit Will Increase Until Department Goes After Business.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—That the government is handling long hauls of mail at a low rate, and consequently, at little or no profit, or with an actual loss, while express companies and railroads are making short hauls and reaping good financial results, was the general opinion expressed today at the inquiry into second-class mail rates, by the House Committee on postoffices and post roads.

Don. C. Seitz, publisher of the New York World and chairman of the postal committee of the Newspaper Publishers association, told the committee that the postal deficit would be $40,000,000 instead of $17,000,000, as at present, if the department, backed by Congress, did not go out after business as an up-to-date business house would do.

He believed railroads were not so much overpaid by the government, as they were underworked by the government. He thought the government should establish a parcels post.

Representative Cox of Indiana, introduced a measure requiring railroads to submit to the postmaster-general monthly reports as to the number of government postal employés carried free over their lines and the mileage traveled by each, and also requiring postal employés to make similar reports.

ACTOR GOES SHOOTING.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Charles Barnes, an actor, today shot his wife and her mother, Mrs. M. Serviss, at a hotel here. Mrs. Barnes was shot in the mouth and through the left wrist and Mrs. Serviss was wounded in the chest. Neither is thought to be fatally hurt. Barnes escaped. The shooting was the outcome of the separation of Barnes and his wife.

Gates of Los Angeles for the Senatorship. The Democrats have no candidate as yet. With Bell as their choice for Governor, they are likely to pick a southern man for Senator.

GOV. GILLETT GIVES REASONS FOR RETIRING.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29.—In the Sacramento Union tomorrow will appear an announcement from Gov. Gillett that he is not a candidate for reëlection.

Nor is he a candidate for the Senate to succeed Mr. Flint.

The Governor has written a letter to P. S. Teller, chairman of the Republican State Committee, in which he sets forth his reasons for declining to enter the race.

The Governor's letter to Chairman Teller follows:

"SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29, 1910.—Mr. P. S. Teller, Chairman Republican State Central Committee, San Francisco.

"Dear Sir: I have promised to inform the committee, through you, of any decision that I might reach in reference to being a candidate for reëlection.

FOR FAMILY'S INTERESTS.

"After carefully weighing the matter for some time, I have finally decided not to be a candidate. It is for the best interest of myself and family that I should again resume the practice of my profession, and I cannot well afford to continue in the office of Governor for another period of four years.

"I feel very grateful to my party for the high honors conferred upon me, and to my friends for their loyal support and the kindly advice which they have at all times given me, and it is exceedingly hard at this time to decline their request to become a candidate again.

"Many things which I have desired to accomplish have become laws, notably the banking act, insurance laws, pure-food bill, railroad rate bill, reciprocal demurrage act, employers' liability act, a training school for orphan children, etc.

"Three other improvements which are of great concern to our State and in which I shall have been and am intensely interested, viz.:

WISHES THREE THINGS DONE.

"The improvement of the navigation of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, and the reclamation of thousands of acres of most fertile lands along their banks; a system of State highways connecting our several counties and the centers of population and the making of San Francisco harbor one of the best and cheapest in the world, to take care of the great commerce which will come to our State, are well under way. The last two will be submitted to the electors of our State at the fall election, and will receive my most earnest support, and I trust our party will indorse the work, and use its best efforts to secure from the people a favorable decision.

"As I have already said, I have a deep feeling of gratitude for the high honors which the people of California have conferred upon me. I shall at all times be ready and willing to help advance every interest of our State, and to advocate those measures which will tend to develop and make it greater, and whomsoever my party shall decide upon to be my successor will receive my earnest support and any assistance I may be able to give him. Yours truly,

"JAMES N. GILLETT."

CABLE AGREEMENTS BURNED.

Official of Big Company Says That There Is no Agreement in Effect Now.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The various cable companies burned up their rate agreements when the Sherman anti-trust law went into effect in 1890, and no copy of the document is known to be extant, according to General Manager Ward of the Commercial Cable Company, who testified today before the Davis Legislative Committee.

There is no formal agreement as to cable tolls between the cable companies at the present time, Mr. Ward testified. Identical rates are maintained, however, he said.

MAX FIGMAN MARRIES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Max Figman, the well-known theatrical star, was married quietly this afternoon here to Lolita Robertson, who was his leading lady last season in the production of "The Substitute."

LABOR.

MEN FROM PICKS GIVEN HEARING.

MINE WORKERS' HEAD FROWNS ON THE OFFICERS.

As Usual the Convention Continues to Wrangle and Call Names, But President Lewis's Report Is Adopted and the Threatened Strike in Pittsburgh District Is Declared Off.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) Jan. 29.—"In order to facilitate the work of this convention, I have decided to recognise the men from the picks and not the district officers," said President Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, at the opening of today's session of the convention. At this there was a lusty cheer, and several delegates in the anti-Lewis faction that said they were "from the picks," demanded a reconsideration of the vote by which President Lewis's report was declared adopted, whereupon the uproar in which the convention adjourned yesterday broke out anew. From the rear of the hall were cries of "Gag Rule," when Lewis asked if the convention wanted a roll call.

"It is a disgrace that certain district officers should be permitted to retard this convention," said T. J. Gibson, president of the Montana-Wyoming district.

"President Lewis, I ask you to appoint more sergeants-at-arms, and throw the disturbers out." Turning to the delegation, he said:

"You have elected this man president—respect him."

Lewis at last entertained a motion for a reconsideration of the vote. A majority in favor of the adoption of his report resulted, and his opponents were satisfied not to demand a roll call.

The convention thus approved Lewis's policy in calling off a strike instituted by the officials of the Pittsburgh district against the Pittsburgh Coal Company. Lewis had been charged with assisting the coal company to a 10 per cent reduction in the wages of 10,000 miners of Western Pennsylvania.

DRESSMAKER IS HEIRESS.

Stockton Workwoman Notified She Will Get $50,000 of Estate Left by Uncle.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. L. F. Oser, a dressmaker, has just been notified that she is one of the heirs to an estate of $300,000 left by her uncle, John W. Moe, who died in Galveston, Tex., on the 15th inst. Her brother in Portland, Or., informed her she will secure at least $50,000.

Mr. Moe lost his wife and daughter in the Galveston disaster, having moved to that city from Nevada, where he accumulated a fortune in mining. The loss of his family caused him to become a hermit and he all but shunned every one for years. When he made his will he made a special effort to give each of his relatives a portion of his estate. The other heirs are: William Moe, Richard Moe and Chester Moe, all of Portland, and Mrs. Mell Moe, wife of a deceased brother, who lives with her family at Woodland.

TELLS OF SORDID IMMORALITY.

Girl Is Sold by Parents to Jap for $15, Then Forced by Mother to Wed Filipino.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Married at 15, later sold by her parents to a Jap for $15, divorced from him, then married by her mother's direction to a Filipino, whom she now loathes, is the story told the police by Mrs. May Semper, an attractive woman of 24. Abused by Semper, her Filipino husband, she left him at Bellingham and has been living with another Filipino at Old Tacoma.

Living with still another Filipino in the same house was Sadie Walthron, her sister, who came recently from Bellingham, where she has been working in a restaurant. Disgusted with the squalor of her parents' two-room home, Sadie would not live with them and went to her sister for protection.

The police today arrested both girls and their Filipino consorts. The police believe the story of the girls, much of which has already been proved, and will earnestly assist them to raise their standard of life.

FAVORS DEVELOPMENT.

CONSERVING RESOURCES DOES NOT MEAN BOTTLING THEM UP.

Secretary Ballinger Says It Is Proper to Place Reasonable Restraint Upon the Use of Nature's Gifts and Suggests That Water Power Be Employed by Private Enterprises Under Government Supervision.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) Jan. 29.—Alaska is a prize package, the full value of which no man can estimate now, said Secretary Ballinger before the Conservation Club of Rhode Island, and the Economic Club of Providence tonight.

In declaring the natural wealth of the land should be conserved, the Secretary made no reference to the controversy with Gifford Pinchot. He announced his willingness to answer any questions after he had concluded his address, but no queries were put to him.

Mr. Ballinger said that while he believed in conservation he did not believe conservation meant bottling up natural resources.

The Secretary said he did not believe that conservation, which merely preserved the resources of the nation interests the public, but that he did believe the public is interested in conservation, which, through development, saves them from waste and improper use.

"Some people, I fear," declared the Secretary, "have a notion that to conserve our natural resources we must pickle them, or bottle them up. All kinds of extreme notions are likely to be advanced by those who take an impractical view of this subject.

"I was confronted recently by the suggestion that the government build homes on the remaining lands, stock them, and rent them to applicants, and become the landlord of the public domain.

REASONABLE RESTRAINT.

"It is all right to place reasonable restraints upon the use of our natural resources to prevent the mischiefs which result from monopoly and greed and extortion, but when you attempt to regulate a man's private business or declare how he shall use his property, so that he can no longer exercise a reasonable independence over it, he may as well surrender his business and his property to the State and let the State operate it.

"Individuality and incentive for industry will certainly disappear under any system of public regulation and control that imposes a strictly governmental guardianship over the citizen. The American system of government contemplates the freest possible exercise of individual liberty, consistent with the public good, and in discussing the conservation of our natural resources and the supervision, regulation and control that is proper to be exercised by Federal or State authority this principle should be constantly recognized.

"After all the question of conservation is a question of practicing frugality and economy. Wanton waste of our inheritance in this particular, of course, is to be restrained whenever and wherever the power exists and particularly when the loss affects the future happiness of mankind.

NATION'S FUTURE INVOLVED.

"Our nation's future in the highest degree is involved in the perpetuation of our wealth and the ability of our people to live in happiness and prosperity in all generations to come.

"Therefore, we can justly say that no man can gratify his lust for wealth or his ambition for power by destroying the opportunities of others to live and enjoy their share of the bounties of nature."

Secretary Ballinger referred to President Taft's recent message to Congress which declared that the soils of the country that produce foodstuffs are also worthy of conservation, and the Secretary declared that the soils should be included in conservation with the forest, mine and water resources.

"Waterpowers should be developed under government control," insisted the Secretary, "to save the coal and forests from being consumed for fuel."

Mr. Ballinger declared that such development should be through private enterprise under government supervision, and control, and that Congress should give to the executive branch of the government the authority to obtain those results.

"In view of the national interest in these resources," concluded the Secretary, "it is incumbent upon Congress to give to the executive branch of the government sufficient power and authority to protect against the continued waste and destruction of the public domain. And it is the earnest determination of this administration that it may be clothed with sufficient authority and equipped with the necessary machinery to accomplish all that is possible through Federal agencies in this particular."

CLOSE CALL.

LIBERALS IN BETTER HEART AS CABINET HARMONY NEARS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The week closes with the Liberals in better heart, as a result of their gradually swelling total. They emphasize the fact that, with the Laborites, the government's purely British majority will be forty.

The fact that Premier Asquith and Chancellor Lloyd George are taking a brief holiday after a short conference today, is further reassuring to the ministerialists, who see in this an evidence of harmony in the Cabinet.

It is notable also that the Opinion, which a few days ago echoed the Conservative suggestions of a conference on the subject of the House of Lords, has now come into line, and even the extremists are declaring it is the government's first duty to pass the budget at once and then take up the matter of the Lords.

There is no question that the introduction of legislation would likely be barren of results. At the same time, it is hinted the second budget, due to be presented immediately after the first is passed, will contain concessions to the Irish in the reduction of spirit taxes, and to the Imperialists by an increase in the navy, for which probably $25,000,000 will be voted.

The Unionists are confident that the government will be plunged into difficulties from the outside by the Laborites, who are certain to re-introduce their "right to work" bill, rejected by the government in the last Parliament.

Moreover, the debate on the address is likely to be animated. A host of amendments is foreshadowed, including the home rule and fiscal questions. The latter, however, is likely to be in the background as far as Parliament is concerned, although an active propaganda will be continued in the constituencies.

WANTS PROOFS, NOT CHARGES.

SECRETARY OF WAR DECLINES TO PUNISH MAJ. RICHARDSON.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Secretary Dickinson today informed Alaska Delegate Wickersham, in a letter, that he could not accede to his request that Maj. W. P. Richardson, U.S.A., be relieved from duty in Washington, as his services were required here in connection with the work of the road commissioners of Alaska, of which he is president.

Mr. Wickersham based his request for the removal of Maj. Richardson on the ground that he was lobbying before the committee of Congress "for his special work in Alaska."

The Secretary, explaining Maj. Richardson's presence in Washington, says that each year he has been ordered by the Secretary of War to come to this city to report personally upon work of the road commission in Alaska. In this connection, the letter adds:

"He has been, and is now, in Washington with the full consent and authority of the Secretary of War."

He further states if the Delegate will support his statement with respect to lobbying with evidence justifying, in the Secretary's judgment, an investigation, he will order one.

POISON IN SWOPES' ORGANS.

Chemists Who Are Examining Bodies of Dead Men Make Only Partial Report.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 29.—Poison has been found in the organs of Col. Thomas Swope and his nephew, Chrisman, and upon this finding the heirs of the dead millionaire will demand an investigation by the State to ascertain the cause of the death of these two men last fall.

This definite statement was made today by a representative of the Swope estate, following the receipt of a partial report of the chemists in Chicago.

The poison, it is stated, was found in the livers and not in the stomachs of the dead men. Whether it was in sufficient quantity to have caused death and was administered for that purpose, must be determined by a coroner's inquest. The inquest probably will be begun next Tuesday. Upon the verdict returned by this body will depend the action of the county prosecutor.

The exact conclusions reached so far by the Chicago chemists are guarded closely. It is expected the chemists are still pursuing their investigations.

John G. Paxton, executor of the Swope estate, who received a message yesterday from Dr. Hekteon requesting him to go to Chicago for a conference with them, announced today that he would leave for that city tonight. Mr. Paxton declined to talk regarding the chemists' report, or to go into the case.

German Girl Comes to Childhood Lover, Now a Prosperous Portland Builder.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When Emma Schade, flaxen-haired and demure, twenty-six and pretty, arrived here today, after a journey alone from the fatherland, that event marked a great triumph for Cupid.

After a separation of eighteen years Miss Schade had rejoined the sweetheart of her childhood, Alfred Eywas, building superintendent at the Louvre.

Eighteen years ago Eywas, only eleven years old, left Blenheusee on the Elbe as apprentice on an American-bound sailing vessel. On his own resources from the time he landed, the boy nevertheless made his way and as he attained years began to prosper. Finding himself in comfortable circumstances, his memory hearkened back to Emma Schade, his childhood playmate in Germany.

Eywas wrote to Emma and a correspondence ensued which resulted in the girl's packing her trunk, bidding her own people good-by and setting out for the farthest side of the Pacific Coast. Today she arrived. Tomorrow the wedding bells will ring.

Reception Is Given in Portland to Baptist Preacher Who Comes to Los Angeles.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At an elaborate reception given at the White Temple last night the members of the congregation formally said good-by to their pastor and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. J. Whitcomb Brougher, who will take up their new work at the Temple Baptist Church at Los Angeles next month. The affair served also as a reception in honor of the Rev. John Bentzien and his wife. Mr. Bentzein will fill the pulpit made vacant by Dr. Brougher until a permanent pastor is selected.

The reception lasted from 8 until 9:30 o'clock and this was followed by a programme of speeches and music. The pastors of several churches were there and each gave a speech congratulating Dr. Brougher on his work in the six years he has been in Portland and expressing their hopes for his success in his new field of effort.

The church was tastefully decorated for the occasion. The lower floor was filled to its capacity with the big audience and the gallery contained a large crowd, also. Dr. Brougher will preach his farewell sermon Sunday.

AGAINST LOS ANGELES.

State Regent Decides State Conference of Daughters of Revolution Shall Go to Fresno.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Regarding the protest of Southern chapters of the California Daughters of the American Revolution against changing the meeting place of the annual State conference from Los Angeles to Fresno, Mrs. Frederick Jewell Laird, State regent whose reëlection may be contested by the South, made the following formal statement yesterday:

"The State regent has been petitioned by a majority of the chapters to change the meeting place from Los Angeles to Fresno. The State advisory board has recommended that the State regent accede to the request of this majority. The voice of the majority of the chapters is greater than the conference, the advisory board of the State regent. As yet the regent has taken no action."

Mrs. Laird said, unofficially, at her home in Oakand, that in her opinion, the Southern California chapters would not go to court, and that in any case, the laws of the order were defined on the subject.

TALBOT TRIAL NEARS END.

Woman Defendant's Stories of Beatings by Husband Corroborated by Several Witnesses.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

RENO (Nev.) Jan. 29.—The defense having closed its case in chief and with the State nearly through with its evidence in rebuttal, it looks as though the Talbot murder case would be placed in the hands of the jury by Tuesday.

Mrs. Talbot was on the witness stand the greater part of today, undergoing a searching cross-examination.

Her evidence in regard to beatings at the hand of her husband was substantiated by that of Mrs. Stevenson, who for a long time, was with her as maid, and by different lodging-house keepers.

Dr. Johnstone, bacteriologist and pathologist at the University of Nevada, testified that he did not believe Talbot was affected with pneumonia and that at the time of death there was no evidence of a bullet wound in Talbot's lung.

CONTROLLER NOT LIABLE.

MRS. LUKENS LOSES SUIT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29.—State Controller A. B. Nye need not pay Mrs. G. R. Lukens, wife of former State Senator Lukens, about $3000 claimed to be due as interest on a claim of $22,500 withheld by Nye until the courts order him to draw the warrant in favor of Mrs. Lukens, as the remaining half of money due her father, the late Capt. John Mullens, for his fight at Washington to have California war claims recognized by Congress. The order was made today by Judge Shields denying Mrs. Lukens's motion to supplement the former judgment by holding the Controller personally responsible for interest at 7 per cent. since he was first ordered to draw the warrant.

FIVE CASES OF HOOKWORM.

WASHINGTON REPORTS 'EM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OLYMPIA (Wash.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Several cases of hookworm have been found in Washington, according to a report made to the State Board of Health at its annual meeting today by Secretary Elmer E. Heg. There have been no cases of pellagra, but consumption is increasing, typhoid has been worse on the west side and less in Eastern Washington. "At least five cases of hookworm now exist in Washington," says Heg in his report. "There probably are others, but these five have been carefully diagnosed and there can be no doubt as to their identity. All are under observation and treatment."

ABANDON MANY CATTLE.

ANIMALS TOO WEAK TO TRAVEL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO (Nev.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A bunch of cattle comprising 700 head were turned loose in the Chalk Mountain district this week after a start had been made from the eastern part of the country, with Winnemucca as an objective point, where the cattle could be fed. The inability of the cattle already weakened by the extreme cold and the lack of forage on the range, made the action necessary, according to the owners, who after goading the leg-weary animals to within two day's traveling distance of the place, were forced to turn them aside to rustle for themselves.

Under the present conditions there is little hope that any of the cattle will live until the new grass sprouts and the loss will be recorded as Churchill county's heaviest stock loss of this season.

ON TOP.

A good newspaper, like a good man, gets on top and stays there. So the Los Angeles Times, with a record of always printing more paid advertising than any newspaper in America, continues AT THE TOP, making evident its newspaper goodness, its popularity, its steadiness, its reliability, and its wholesomeness. At the same time, by its unparalleled advertising record, it demonstrates its ability to bring profitable results to its advertising patrons. The following figures show the aggregate amount of paid matter printed by different newspapers for the month of December, 1909, the paper named in each instance being the largest in the city in which it is published:

FORCEFUL OBJECTION.

THRASHES HUBBY FOR GLUTTONY.

WIFE PUNISHES HIM FOR EATING TOO MANY PRUNES.

Strapping Spouse Chooses Friends' Dinner Table for Scene of Matrimonial Discipline—Thought Warning Was Joke Until Fight Began. Now Husband Seeks Divorce.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Because his strapping wife thrashed him at the dinner table of some friends with whom they were dining, when he insisted on eating more prunes than she thought were good for him, C. T. Harrington is suing his wife, Ella, for divorce. Harrington told the episode of the prunes to Judge Cleland today.

All went well at their host's dinner table until the dessert was brought to the table. It was prunes. Mr. Harrington is partial to this delicacy, and proceeded to eat his fill. His wife offered sundry warnings in the shape of winks and kicks under the table, but the prunes continued to disappear.

"I think you've eaten enough of those prunes, hubby," she volunteered. No response was forthcoming from the industrious hubby.

"Mr. Harrington, if you eat another prune, I'll thrash you."

A smile went around the table at what all considered a little joke between husband and wife. Another prune disappeared into Mr. Harrington's mouth, then like an Amazon of old, Mrs. Harrington arose in her wrath and proceeded to "wade into" her husband in a manner that transformed the quiet dining-room into a prize-fight ring.

"She certainly did keep her word that time," admitted Harrington, "and I was terribly hurt and mortified."

The case was taken under advisement.

LIONS LACERATE STAGE MEN.

Panic in Vaudeville Theater Follows Cries of Mauled Victims of Performing Animals.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—A panic was created in a local vaudeville theater during a performance this afternoon when four performing lions, through the bars of their cage behind the scenes, attacked F. L. Thurmond, a scene painter.

The cries of Thurmond and Charles Dohrang, a property man, who went to the painter's assistance, and the roaring of the lions, frightened those in the audience and a rush for the doors was made. None of the audience was injured, however.

Thurmond had passed too close to the cage and one of the animals sank its claws in his leg. When Dohrang ran to aid him, another of the lions seized Dohrang and dragged him close to the bars. House Policeman Goetjen rescued the two men and dragged them to the stage entrance. Thurmond's right arm, leg and body were badly lacerated. Dohrang's left leg was torn and his body badly bruised. The policeman escaped injury.

"POKER IS LEGAL GAME."

Mayor "Pinhead" McCarthy So Declares and Says Chinese May "Gamble Their Heads Off."

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—"The Chinese may gamble their heads off as long as they don't break the law and keep to themselves," declared the new labor Mayor of San Francisco, P. H. McCarthy, head of the State Building Trades Council, yesterday. He continued:

"Poker is a perfectly legal game, as I understand it, except where the house takes a percentage. The authorities have been keeping policemen in Chinatown to pry into private houses at the expense of the taxpayers. I will not stand for that sort of thing."

Mayor McCarthy's declaration was made in an interval of a busy day in the new labor administration. Besides the installation of a new Police Chief, a former police commissioner, who had been deposed by the Mayor, questioned the legality of such deposition, and members of the Health Board showed signs of making a legal battle to prevent their being ousted.

WILL TEST AERIAL CRAFT.

PLAN OF JOINT MANEUVERS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Joint military maneuvers will be held this year at Camp Atascadero by the United States regulars in the Department of California and the National Guard of California and Arizona, according to advices received today from the War Department. Unusual interest attaches to the maneuvers this year on account of the efforts that will be made to determine the efficiency of aëroplanes, balloons and dirigibles in time of war. The Signal Corps, of which Lieut. Paul W. Beck is in command at the Presidio, will endeavor to get the War Department to authorize such experiments. Lieut. Beck made a number of tests from an aëroplane, valuable from a military standpoint, at the recent aviation meet at Los Angeles.

Jewels Missing from Trunk.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—The trunk reported to have been lost, with its reputed contents of $10,000 worth of jewelry, by Harry Adams, a salesman for a Los Angeles firm, has been found by the Southern Pacific Railway Company. It was located in San José by Special Agent Kelly of the company, who reported today that $3000 worth of gems had been removed from the trunk, which was roped but not locked.

Man Dies by Woman's Hand.

STOCKTON, Jan. 29.—Walter Reese, who was stabbed near the heart by Sadie Collins a few days ago during a row in her apartments in a tenderloin rooming-house, died this morning and the girl will be charged with murder. Both are colored.

Burns Trying to Save Horse.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29.—Angelo Fevia, a scavenger, was burned to death this morning, in a fire that destroyed a barn in the rear of his home. Fevia rushed into the barn in an effort to save one of his horses, and was overcome by the smoke, and before he could be rescued, he was burned to a crisp.

JOHNSONS TO PATCH UP MARITAL TROUBLES.

Wife of Elgin Milk Magnate, Now Residing Here, Has Begun Reno Divorce Suit—Husband Coming to Try and Effect Reconciliation—Both Formerly Angelenos.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ELGIN (Ill.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With the departure for the West today of Dr. Waldo P. Johnson, defendant in divorce proceedings instituted at Reno, Nev., by Mary B. Johnson, Elgin friends believe that he will join his wife at Los Angeles, and that their marital troubles will be ended, at least for a time.

Dr. Johnson left Elgin this morning for Chicago, and leaves that city tonight for Los Angeles. He will be accompanied by his son, Colin L. Johnson.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Johnson and son, Borden, left Elgin for the West and it was announced that their destination was Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson lived at Los Angeles ten years ago, prior to their residence in Elgin. Mr. Johnson is a cousin of Gail Borden, the wealthy milk magnate, head of the Borden Condensed Milk Company.

While friends are not certain that a complete reconciliation has been effected, it is believed that they will make their home together, and with their two oldest sons, in Los Angeles.

There has been no report that Mrs. Johnson's suit for divorce at Reno has been dismissed. It is said to have been filed, with the intention of having a hearing in the February term of the Nevada District Court.

Dr. and Mrs. Johnson's two sons, who are at Phillips Exeter Academy at Exeter, N. H., expect to join their parents in California this summer.

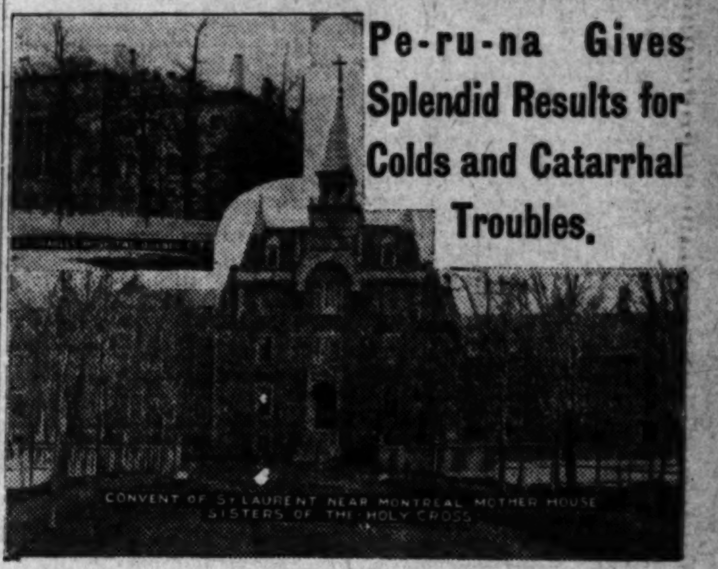
CANADIAN HOSPITALS SAY



Pe-ru-na Gives Splendid Results for Colds and Catarrhal Troubles,

CONVENT OF ST LAURENT NEAR MONTREAL MOTHER HOUSE SISTERS OF THE HOLY CROSS

ST. CHARLES Hospital, Quebec City. One of our sisters who commenced to take Peruna, has improved and will continue to take it. Some others are trying it also. Sr. Ste. Marie, Superior.

CONVENT of St. Laurent, near Montreal, Mother House Sisters of the Holy Cross.

After using Peruna for two or three months several members of the community have experienced such good effects that they can recommend its use to others.

Sisters of Holy Cross.

HAVING used Peruna for the past few months, for our sick and poor, we are happy to say that it has given us great satisfaction. The Sisters of the Good Shepherd, Montreal.

After a continued use of the remedy, this institution has found no reason to change its good opinion of the remedy and expresses its satisfaction in the following terms:

WE found Peruna a relief in several cases.

We can say it is a good tonic and we are very thankful. Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

One of the many hospitals which have found Peruna of value in treating old and obstinate cases of catarrh is the Hospital St. John, who write as follows:

WE are happy to tell you that your Peruna has given us satisfaction. Three patients have tried it, one 68 years old. Renoul Dupuis, afflicted with catarrh, is much relieved, more than he has been for a number of years.

A YOUNG girl, fifteen years old, had an obstinate cough, which half a bottle of Peruna caused to disappear.

As to myself, two bottles have convinced me that Peruna is magnificent as a tonic.

Before the treatment I could not walk for a quarter of an hour without experiencing much fatigue. Now I can walk a mile easily.

Through these three cases we desire to make known to the public the efficiency of your remedy.

Hospital St. John, of St. Johns, Province of Quebec.

A later letter received from the same institution reads as follows:

THREE weeks ago I wrote to tell you how satisfactory we found Peruna. We recommend it highly for colds, coughs, catarrh and neuralgia.

I have used it myself as a tonic with the best results, taken as directed, half a teaspoonful every half hour.

PERUNA not only promptly relieves coughs and colds in their first stages, but is equally prompt and efficient for catarrhal diseases in the chronic stage. It is only reasonable to suppose that less medicine will be necessary to cure a slight attack than after it has been allowed to become chronic.

Catarrh of the respiratory organs is a common ailment in Canada. Therefore, when Peruna was discovered by Canadian people to be a reliable remedy for these catarrhal diseases, it at once became a popular medicine.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

REASONS FOR HIGH PRICES.

Bureau of Labor Will Give Congress Data.

The Cost of Living Raises Throughout World.

Commissioner Has Figures for Many Years.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Aroused by the propaganda against the high cost of living and responsive to the fears in administration circles of a displeasing political aftermath if permitted to run unrestrained, the Bureau of Labor is preparing a report to Congress which it is expected will show that the economic unpleasantness of the present day is more or less world-wide in scope. That Great Britain, Germany, Italy and other European countries, as well as America, are having their fights against the high prices of the necessities of life is declared. The report will be made in reply to the request of the Senate, inspired by Senator Crawford of South Dakota, for information as to high prices. The bulk of the report will be ready to go to Congress before the middle of the week.

Commissioner Neil will inform Congress that the figures which he sends, although covering nearly two decades of wholesale and retail prices of many articles of food or farm products and scores of other important commodities of every day life, do not cover the actual conditions as they exist at present as the work will extend only to 1908.

Here are two discoveries: Retail prices of food were higher in 1907 than in any other twelve months for eighteen years.

INCREASE IN 1908.

The average wholesale price of food increased in 1908, notwithstanding the fact that every other principal staple commodity sold lower than in the previous year.

In discussing the inquiry which his bureau has made into the conditions here, Mr. Neill says:

"The aim has been to give the prices as they actually prevailed in the market. The causes are too complex, the relative influence of each too uncertain, in some cases involving too many economic questions to permit their discussion in connection with the present article. It will be sufficient to enumerate some of the influences that cause changes in prices. Such influences include:

"Variations in harvest, which not only contract or expand the supply and consequently tend to increase or decrease the price of a commodity but also to decrease or increase, to a greater or less degree, the purchasing power of such communities as are dependent wholly or in part on such commodity.

"Changes in demand due to changes in fashions, seasons, etc.

"Legislation altering internal revenue taxes, import duties or bounties.

"Inspection as to purity or adulteration.

USING SUBSTITUTE ARTICLES.

"Use of other articles as substitutes. As for instance, an advance in the price of beef will cause an increased consumption of pork and mutton and it may be added, a probable increase in the price of both.

"Improvements in methods of production which will tend to give either a better article for the same price or an equal article for a lower price.

"Cheapening of transportation or handling.

"Speculative manipulation of the supply or the raw product.

"Commercial panic or depression.

"Expanding or contracting credit.

"Overproduction.

"Unusual demand owing to steady employment of consumers.

"Short supply due to disputes between labor and capital in industries of limited producing capacity.

"Organization or combination of mills or producers."

PACKING FIRMS NOT WORRYING.

OFFICIALS DEPRECATE IMPORTANCE OF INVESTIGATION.

Declare There Has Been no Conference Yet, Nor Will There Be Until Grand Jury Finishes Labors. Inquiry Goes Over Until Monday. Trust's Books Will Be Gone Into.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The grand jury investigation of the fresh-meat industry in Chicago was halted today, the inquisitors having adjourned their sessions Friday afternoon until Monday morning. Next week's programme, it is understood, will be a quiet one, the time being taken up chiefly with examining documentary evidence, assisted from time to time by such witnesses as are needed to certify to the identity of the books and papers, and explain such parts as the grand jury may require.

Much of this documentary evidence is of books and records of the National Packing Company, the $15,000,000 corporation controlling twenty-two others and suspected by the government of being a trust. The remainder was of similar records of Armour and Company, all such as might show whether or not an understanding exists between the companies.

Officials of the packing firms today declared they had held no conferences as yet, nor would they hold any until they learned where the inquiry was headed for.

Five men are now believed to be aimed at by the government. These men are:

Edward Tilden, president of the National Packing Company.

J. Ogden Armour, head of Armour and Company and heavy owner of the National Packing Company.

Edward Morris, head of Morris and Company and heavy owner of the National Packing Company.

Edward F. Swift, vice-president of Swift and Company and heavy owner of the National Packing Company.

Louis F. Swift, president of Swift and Company.

DRIVES CHILDREN TO TOIL.

MUST HELP TO BUY FOOD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] High prices for food in Chicago are driving children to work. In the last three months 1000 more permits have been asked of the State factory inspector's office than in the corresponding three months a year ago.

This is an increase of more than 33 per cent. It is attributed not to any sudden demand of employers for the services of minors, but to the necessities of workingmen's families, which have compelled the children to work to help buy food.

Factory Inspector Davies had the figures compiled for purposes of comparison. He was astonished at the result that showed. In November and December, 1908, and January, 1909, 2726 permits were taken out for child workers. In the same months a year later the figures, brought up to date, show that 3719 permits were granted.

It is said at the office which the factory inspector maintains to issue permits, that for the last two days there has been a record-breaking business. The office was thronged morning and night.

MIGHT GET WAGNERS MIXED.

Chicago Board of Education Finds Complication in Naming Schools After Famous Musicians.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Chicago Board of Education is about to change its methods of naming school buildings. It is proposed to name the schools after famous composers. This plan, however, is meeting with considerable opposition among the members of the board.

The Liszt school would be nice, they admit, also the Brahms, the Beethoven and the Verdi. One faction believes that the Richard Wagner school, named after the famous musician also would be nice. But here comes the rub.

Some far-sighted members of the board think the name would suggest the "Only Honus," that squat stoop-shouldered, bow-legged demon, who, alone and unaided, wrested the championship pennant from Chicago and New York during the 1909 baseball season.

CHURCH WORKERS VISIT LEVEE.

Chicago's Tenderloin Section Is Traversed by Ministers and Congregations Who Seek Information.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Pastors of several of the most influential churches in Chicago, some of them accompanied by their wives and members of their congregations, marched through the South Side levee last night gathering first hand facts regarding the dives and resorts there.

Among the ministers taking a leading part in the parade were the Rev. Melbourne P. Boynton of the Lexington Avenue Baptist Church and the Rev. John Balcom Shaw of the Second Presbyterian Church. There were about 100 men and women in the parade. They sang gospel hymns as they marched through the levee streets and at corners they halted with bowed head while the ministers prayed.

The fruits of another march were manifest to the police in the levee. This march was by the W.C.T.U. women and church workers to Mayor Busse's office to urge the abolition of the redlight district. As a result new and more strict police regulations were enforced.

Among the houses pointed out was "Vic" Shaw's place at No. 2014 Dearborn avenue, where "Nat" Moore was found dead several weeks ago. The bright lights and the noise of an unmusical piano inside told the story that it was open again despite the statement of the Shaw woman made to the police that she was through and would close her place.

SAY PEONAGE IS PRACTICED.

Federal Grand Jury Is Investigating Conditions in Texas and One Planter Is Arrested.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Federal grand jury in session here is investigating alleged peonage that is said to exist upon a cotton plantation in Burleston county. Many negro laborers have been brought to testify as to their knowledge of the unlawful practice.

The first arrest was that of J. W. Woods of Somerville, Burleston county, on the charge of being in a conspiracy with others to hold in peonage Ward M. Fuller, made today.

He was released on $3000 bond. Other indictments and arrests are expected.

SUSPECTS BABY FARM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Detectives Gard and Abbey of the Chicago Avenue Police were assigned today to question Dr. Charles S. Wood, 1530 Carroll avenue, following a story told by Mrs. Susan O'Connell, an officer of the Juvenile Protective Association, to the effect that an offer was made to sell a number of babies to Mrs. Pearl Price, 124 West Huron street. Mrs. O'Connell asked the police to make a thorough investigation. She said that she had visited the home of Mrs. Price and found an infant which Mrs. Price told her she had obtained from a man "for nothing," after he had offered to sell her two older babies at $1 each.

CURBS YOUTHFUL CROOK.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—The checkered career of a 15-year-old youth, formerly a messenger boy and more recently an "Imperial Russian Dancer" by night and said to be a miniature "confidence man" by day, came to an abrupt end today when Edward K. Malinowski was arrested. He is alleged to have collected $60 from one firm by continued use of bogus collect telegrams. After posing as a messenger boy in the day time, Malinowski would appear as "Edward Malinoff, the Imperial Russian Dancer," on the nickel theater circuit at night. According to the police he is one of the youngest confidence operators ever arrested.

THREE INJURED IN COLLISION.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

ASHTABULA (O.) Jan. 29.—One passenger, Mrs. M. Hartzberg of Providence, R. I., and two trainmen were injured here today when the Lake Shore Limited was struck from the rear by the Boston and St. Louis Express while standing over the Lake-street subway east of the station. The limited had stopped to take on a dining car. The locomotive of the express plowed into the observation car, which was unoccupied, almost demolishing it. The shock derailed four Pullmans on the limited. Mrs. Hartzberg was thrown against a mirror and her face was badly cut.

ROBBER ROBS ONLY RICH.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Jan. 29.—A modern Robin Hood is plying his trade in Kansas City. When last seen he was disappearing with his band of two into the woods on the east outskirts of the city, after having robbed J. F. Landen, a trusted collector of a prominent coal and grain company, of $318 of the firm's money, and refusing to take $5 belonging to Landen personally. The robbery occurred yesterday afternoon, in a sparsely-settled district. Landen, while driving along the road, was held up by three men, who, after relieving him of a wallet containing the firm's money, emphasized their demands for more booty by shoving a revolver in his face and ordering him to shell out some more. Landen produced a single $5 bill, protesting that it was his own property, and was all the money he had.

"Well, we don't want it, then," was the surprising declaration of the spokesman. "We rob only the rich. Keep it for your wife and kids." The robbers then bound Landen to a tree and escaped. He managed to free himself and gave the alarm. A squad of mounted police scoured the woods until darkness, but no traces of the highwaymen were found.

IRISH STORY-TELLER TAKEN ILL.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

ANN ARBOR (Mich.) Jan. 29.—Seumas McManus, Irish story-teller, who appeared here last night in a lecture to the students at Michigan University, was unable to finish his address, owing to illness. He was taken to a hospital, where physicians diagnosed his case an incipient pneumonia.

BOY LAWYER WINS CASE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Every boy is his own lawyer, is the ideal of Charles Willis, 12 years old, who appeared in the Juvenile Court yesterday to resist efforts to place him in the Parental School for Truancy. He won the support of the prosecutor, W. L. Bodine of the compulsory education department, and won his case before Judge Pinckney. "I have come down to face the music alone," he said, when asked where his parents were. "No, I don't want no parent, no officer, nor nobody to show me the way to this court, jurge. If I am sent to the parental school, I'll go and give myself up there, and won't run away, either." The lad's case had been continued to see what record he would make at the Mt. Carmel School. "And I made good," said Charley, drawing from his pocket the credentials signed by the authorities of the Mt. Carmel School.

RIANS FIGHT MILK TRUST.

Vienna Is Considering the Or- ization of a Municipal Dairy to Serve Public.

WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NA (Austria) Jan. 29.—[Exclu- patch.] Because the milk trust ed prices the city authorities dering the organization of a pal dairy to supply the public milk at a fixed moderate price milk trust's rapacity already has the effect of materially reducing sumption. Every day immense quantities of unsold milk must be con- verted into butter or sour cream.

Meanwhile the struggle between pro- ducers and consumers has been grow- ing. The trust has or- ganized a "war chest" for the purpose of keeping up the prices no matter what happens. The fund has been raised by levying one-fiftieth part of a cent on every quart of milk sold. This, it is estimated, will yield $20,- a year. Public indignation is keenly aroused and the fight between the agrarians and the people promises to be long and bitter.

REICHSTAG RESENTS REMINDER OF KAISER'S POWER OVER IT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—The Reichstag was the scene of an angry demonstration today when, in the course of a speech Herr Von Oldenburg, a Conservative agrarian, declared that "the German Emperor, as King of Prussia, must have the right at any moment to order a Prussian lieutenant to come here and with ten men close the Reichstag."

The members on the left side rose to their feet, protesting with shouts of "Monstrous!" "Scandal!" "Impudence!" and "Breach of the Constitution!"

The spectators joined in the uproar, which lasted for several minutes.

Finally Herr Schrader, Liberal, made a formal protest against Oldenburg's remarks, which, he said, constituted a grave insult to the Reichstag, and to the Emperor and army.

The Conservatives greeted Oldenburg's words with thundering applause.

Herr Singer, Socialist, speaking to a point of order, said that he assumed that the president had not heard Oldenburg's declaration, otherwise he would have vindicated the honor of the Reichstag.

Prince Von Hohenlohe, who was presiding, "admitted that he had heard the words objected to, but said he understood the speaker as meaning only to indicate the degree to which military discipline must be carried."

Oldenburg immediately confirmed this interpretation of his statement.

PLACES BAN ON MUSHROOM HAT.

EXPRESS COMPANIES BALK AT "BIG LID" FAD.

President Declares They Will Go Out of Business Before They Will Stand for Pound Rates on Fluffy Affairs That Wont Go Through Double Car Doors.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—While a terrified group of man milliners shudded yesterday afternoon, the express companies directed a telling blow at the mushroom hat industry.

It happened at the Interstate Commerce Commission inquiry into the rates for transportation of millinery which has been going on before Commissioner James S. Harlan. It was evident that the express companies had thrown off for all time the tyranny of the "big lid." Through their representatives they declared they would rather go out of business than stand it any longer.

During the last two years the express companies have been putting up the rates on hats until they are now nearly twice what they were in 1906, and the makers were before the commission to find out why.

President C. W. Stockton who did most of the talking for the express companies, said:

"When we first began making rates on women's hats, the hats were small, neat, compact affairs that looked like a pat of butter and were fastened to the wearers' head with a little string. We charged by the pound at that time. Since then the hats have been growing steadily in width, length, height and the fourth dimension, but they have not grown an ounce in weight.

"Why, five years ago you could get from 500 to 1000 women's hats into an ordinary express car. Now you have to take the double doors out to get one in.

"Another thing, these hat people have been coming to us demanding damages for dents which our expressmen make in these hats occasionally. Why, everybody knows that the more dents a hat has in it the better the hat is."

SLAUGHTER WOLVES.

Illinois Farmers Organize Hunt to Rid Country of Ravenous Stock Slayers.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MONMOUTH (Ill.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Twenty-five great, gray timber wolves, who do not hesitate to attack a horse or cattle, or even men, were slain today in a general roundup in the timber lands north of this city. Owing to the severe winter and general housing of live stock, the wolves have been desperately hungry, and this has driven them near towns, after they had practically devastated the country of rabbits and other small animals.

Many calves and hogs were slain and devoured by the wolves, and a number of foolhardy dogs were found ripped to shreds.

A general hunt was organized, beginning yesterday and winding up today, in which everybody who could carry a gun took part. The wolves were chased into the deep snows of the river bottoms and slaughtered.

CIRCUMVENTS WOMEN.

Department Store Seals Tag on Fine Clothes to Prevent Wearing While "on Approval."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] No more buying of opera cloaks and party dresses "on approval," to wear them once or twice and then return them as "unsatisfactory"—not if the department stores can help it. A general campaign against abuses of "goods on approval" was launched today, following an announcement that one department store has adopted a patent device intended to reduce these abuses.

The device, which is intended to reduce the "on approval" abuses, is a glaring red tag, about two inches wide and four inches long. On it is printed in large black letters the statement: "This article will not be accepted if this ticket is detached."

But instead of the tag being tied to the article, it is attached in a conspicuous place by a lead seal, similar to those used to close mail bags and money bags. The only way to get the tag off is to cut the string first.

DECLARES STOCK DIVIDEND.

Harvester Trust Distributes 33 1-3 Per Cent. to Shareholders; Cash "Melon" to Follow Later.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Directors of the International Harvester Company today declared a stock dividend of 33 1-3 per cent. on the stock to holders of record of February 3. This came as the result of the recent increase in the amount of common stock from $60,000,000 to $80,000,000. The latter issue was not placed on the cash dividend basis. This action, it is said, will not be taken until April.

The regular dividend of 1¾ per cent. was declared on the preferred stock, payable March 1.

SERVING FOURTH TERM.

Tacoma Church Worker, Convicted of Forgery, Has Been Behind Prison Bars Before.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It now develops that J. M. Bennington, the Ritzville churchman and merchant taken to Walla Walla prison Sunday, on a long term for forgery, is serving his second term there, and his fourth term in a penitentiary. His previous convictions have been had in Iowa and Oregon.

Bennington was first sent up from Tacoma, about nineteen years ago, for forgery. He has not yet been assigned to any particular duties about the prison, but has been spending his time reading and getting familiar with the rules of the institution. A large number of his friends have written asking that he be given some clerical work.

An odd fact in connection with his present predicament is that last summer he went to Walla Walla as a delegate to the Christian Endeavor Convention. As a member of Christian workers he inspected the penitentiary, manifesting great interest in what he saw, and not indicating that he had previously done time behind the bars.

TEMPTATION TO JAPAN.

Former Korean Minister Declares That Uncle Sam's Unpreparedness Is Invitation for War.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 29.—That the United States, in its unpreparedness for war, is unwittingly tempting Japan to attack her, was the declaration of Horace Newton Allen of Toledo, O., former Minister of Korea, in an address before the Knife and Fork Club here last night.

"Prior to the Japanese-Chinese War," declared Mr. Allen, "Japan had spies all through China, so that she knew the latter's weaknesses better than did the Chinese themselves. The same is true of the Russian conflict. In both cases it was the weakness of her antagonists that led Japan to war.

"Shall we offer another such temptation? It looks as if we were bent on doing so. When Japan has taken Hawaii, as military authorities say she could do over night, as it were, she could land a quarter million men on the Pacific Coast in twenty days, while we could not get 100,000 there in three months. But if Japan did make war on us it would be the end of Japan, for we could sacrifice every son and spend every dollar, if necessary, in reconquering our country."

Mr. Allen believes that should Japan decide to make war on the United States, she will do so within the next five years, before the completion of the Panama Canal and the expiration of the Japanese-English treaty.

EXPECTS MERGER.

NEWHOUSE QUITS MINING IN UTAH.

MILLIONAIRE WITHDRAWS WHEN COMPANIES MERGE.

Former President of the Boston Consolidated Authorizes the Transfer of All Business to the Utah Copper Company and Will Devote His Attention to Salt Lake City.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 29.—"With the consolidation of the Boston Consolidated and Utah Copper companies, and declining to take an active part in the affairs of the South Utah mines and smelters, my official connections are abolished. It is my intention to devote my attention to the plans I have laid out for future things in Salt Lake City."

In authorizing the foregoing statement for publication, Samuel Newhouse, who returned to the city today after a visit to his brother in Paris, allows the inference to be drawn that he has practically prepared for his withdrawal from the field of mining operations in Utah.

Mr. Newhouse, as president of the Boston Consolidated Company, sent to the eastern offices today a telegram authorizing the transfer of all business there to the Utah Copper Company on February 1. On that date also the offices of the Boston Consolidated in this city will be turned over and the company will be a thing of the past.

Mr. Newhouse expressed his complete satisfaction with the consolidation, declaring that it was something that he thought had long been needed.

"I believe that a copper merger will ultimately be accomplished," Mr. Newhouse declared.

Kidney Poisons in the Blood

THE CAUSE OF WIDESPREAD ILL-HEALTH.

How to tell whether your blood is impregnated.

OF ALL the ills humanity is heir to nothing is more to be feared than those caused by kidney poisoning, because such ailments invariably come on so stealthily that you are seldom aware of their presence until they have actually spread dangerous disease throughout the body.

There are, however, certain signs by which you can tell whether your kidneys are properly filtering your blood, or whether, through some hereditary weakness, chill or strain, they are failing in their duty and allowing these irritant poisons to pass unrestrained into the system.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO.

Unmistakable Symptoms.

If you rise in the morning with dull, aching pains at the bottom of your back, and feeling as though your night's rest had not refreshed you; if you are weak, depressed, nervous or irritable; if your head aches, spots appear before your eyes or noises ring in your ears; if your appetite is poor, your thirst excessive, your urine scanty and your complexion sallow; if you have indigestion, bilious bouts, rheumatic pains, and have lost flesh rapidly—if you have one or any of these symptoms you may be sure kidney poison exists in your blood and you cannot possibly get well until they are removed.

The Essential Remedy.

Nothing else can do you so much good, nothing can cure you half so quick. Warner's Safe Cure has a steady yet persistent restoring action on the kidneys and brings perceptible relief almost immediately.

Bladder and Kidney Troubles.

"About two years ago I had kidney and bladder trouble. My case seemed hopeless until I commenced the use of Warner's Safe Cure. The results were marvelous, the medicine effecting a complete cure. I am so grateful that I recommend it to every one I meet whom I know to be suffering as I had been."

"I have seen wonderful results obtained from its use among my friends and acquaintances, and I consider it one of the best and most reliable medicines I have ever used. It has saved me many a doctor's bill and has proven a blessing to myself and family."—Mrs. L. B. Walker, 85 Little St., Atlanta, Ga.

Backache, Sick Headache.

"I have found Warner's Safe Cure a sure cure for kidney trouble, from which I have suffered for years. My back ached so much, I was dizzy and had sick headache, and although I tried many remedies, I did not find relief until I tried Warner's Safe Cure. I have been feeling so well for months that I feel the cure is permanent." Mrs. L. B. Arnold, 2427 W. 43d Avenue, Denver, Col.

Kidney and Liver Ills.

"Last Spring I was in poor health, my system was run down and debilitated. Cause, liver and kidney trouble. I lacked energy or ambition to do my work and felt that I must have a change and rest. I was advised to give Warner's Safe Cure a trial. I found it so effective that in two months I was a well man. I cannot praise it too highly for the people who suffer from kidney and liver troubles."—Lysander C. Figg, Wychmere Hotel, Chicago, Ill.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

FLOODS IN PARIS.

by French scientists are of especial interest. Etienne Stanislaus Meunier, an eminent geologist, considers the phenomenon to be more of a geological than a meteorological nature. He declares the soil of the entire basin of the Seine had become imperceptibly filled to the point of complete saturation in the preceding three months of general rains with moderate temperatures, which retarded evaporation. When the heavy rains came last week, the ground was absolutely impermeable and the water ran off as if from a cement floor.

M. Meunier concludes the power given to an area of country to take care of the water, outside of considerations as to natural soil, is measured by the evaporation per acre. As the trees draw the moisture from the soil, permitting evaporation, this energy is proportional to the number of leaves. Consequently, reforestation is the only natural remedy.

AMERICA OFFERS HELP.

The American Chamber of Commerce, presided over by Ambassador Bacon, today adopted resolutions of sympathy. The American Ambassador said he and Consul-General Mason were receiving cablegrams offering assistance, if agreeable to the French government.

"The offering of aid from abroad," said the Ambassador, "is a matter of great delicacy upon such occasions, but I am sure that contributions from Americans in all parts of the world or from anybody else will be gratefully received."

Ambassador Bacon subscribed $2000 and the amount through this agency tonight reached $35,000. Newspaper subscriptions exceed $400,000.

The delay in telegraphic communication throughout France and to Italy and Switzerland continues today. Despite the fact that the waters subsided during the forenoon, the situation within the city was not improved. On the contrary the surface water further invaded the streets while the pressure from the choking torrents underground opened new crevices in some places and at other points forced up the pavements into great obstructing hummocks, tilting and sometimes tearing up trees and lamp posts. This was especially noticeable in the Place de La Concorde, the Rue Royale and the Place de L'Opera. The greatest damage has been at the Place de L'Opera and at the St. Lazare station.

STREET CAVES IN.

At the former four bad cave-ins have occurred, one in front of the new building of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, where the water has poured into the basement. Workmen have succeeded in erecting temporary walls to protect the furnaces.

The situation, however, is not as critical in the Place d L'Opera as in the region in front of the St. Lazare station, where the waters racing through the Rue de la Grange-Retailore subway, joining the flood of overflowed sewers, has turned the Place du Havre into a lake and some sections of the Rue de L'Arcade and the Boulevard Haussmann, in front of the Expitori chapel, erected to the memory of the decapitated Bourbons, into veritable rivers. All of the buildings within this square have been evacuated and are surrounded by a cordon of soldiers.

The big department stores, including the Printemps and the Galleries La Fayette have been closed. Firemen and soldiers were engaged in constructing dams in this vicinity. There was great danger in the streets, as some of the buildings appeared likely to collapse.

There have been a dozen instances where persons have disappeared in crevices suddenly opened under their feet, or been swept away in the sewer flood.

MANY PITIFUL STORIES.

Many pitiful stories are told of the rescue of starved children who had been imprisoned in their houses. Two families with nine children who had been drifting about on a raft all night were discovered in the Javel district at daylight and rescued.

A number of persons have become insane through fear and suffering. One sailor, who had engaged in the work of rescue until he had reached the limit of physical and mental endurance, became crazed, plunged into the Seine and was drowned.

Two hundred additional canvas boats with crews arrived at points on the water front above and below the city this morning. The government has requisitioned every boat obtainable and posted notices everywhere warning flood sufferers not to pay the boatmen anything for their services.

Many private individuals, including the Rothschilds, have placed their automobiles and carriages at the disposal of the authorities.

Extensive preparations are made for the thorough cleansing and disinfection of the city as soon as the water subsides. Much apprehension is felt regarding the effect of the weakened foundations of the streets and houses when the pressure is withdrawn.

Premier Briand has arranged for flour mills and oil reservoirs in the West and North to send flour and oil to Paris by special trains, so the danger of a bread and oil famine is practically over.

Learning that speculators were planning to corner the potato market and send prices up, the government issued an edict that if this is carried out, speculators will be sternly prosecuted.

The foot bridge erected at the Esplanade des Invalides collapsed tonight, precipitating scores of people into the water. All were rescued by soldiers.

AMERICAN RED CROSS SENDS RELIEF FUNDS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The American National Red Cross today apportioned from its contingent funds $5000, which was sent to Paris. The amount will be augmented later.

In answer to inquiries the State Department has received a dispatch from Ambassador Bacon in Paris, stating that all Americans in that city were safe.

Many of them, however, have been compelled to vacate their houses because of flood conditions.

ROYALTY CONTRIBUTES TO ENGLISH FUND.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LONDON, Jan. 29.—King Edward and Queen Alexandria each contributed $5000 today to the Mansion House fund for the relief of the flood sufferers in France. The fund now amounts to $25,000.

FRESH FLOODS NOW THREATENING ITALY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

ROME, Jan. 29.—Bad weather returned today. Rain is falling, and the rivers have begun to rise once more. Fresh floods are feared.

King Victor Emmanuel has telegraphed an expression of his sympathy for the flood sufferers.

LOS ANGELES FRENCH CLUB RAISING FUNDS.

Over one hundred members of the French colony in Los Angeles attended a meeting called for last evening by the Cercle Francais at the French Club's headquarters, No. 108 South Spring street, to consider raising funds here for the relief of flood sufferers in Paris. Much interest was aroused in the movement and a subscription list was started at once. Over $500 was subscribed at the meeting, the paper being headed by four pledges for $100 each, made by Bishop Conaty, Marc Durand, the Ville de Paris and the International Savings and Exchange Bank.

A working committee was appointed to solicit further subscriptions, of which L. J. Christopher was chosen chairman, F. Charbonnier, secretary, and J. Viole of No. 427 Main street, secretary. Subscriptions may be made personally to Mr. Viole or to the International Savings and Exchange Bank.

About twenty members of the French colony, besides those mentioned, were named on the committee, and will be empowered to solicit and give receipts for subscriptions.

THE TOPOGRAPHY OF THE CITY OF PARIS.

BY G. W. BURTON.

Paris, with a population of about 2,600,000, lies well to the northwestern part of France along both banks of the River Seine. This stream enters the city near Vincennes. Its general course is northwesterly, but from Charenton just up the river from the boundaries of the city it enters the city almost in a direction from south to north.

The Seine is one of the three great rivers that flow northwesterly through France into the Atlantic Ocean and its tributaries. The Garonne is in the extreme south, emptying into the Atlantic at Bordeaux. The Loire cuts the country almost in two and reaches the Atlantic at St. Lazare, while the Seine and its branches rise away in the eastern part of France, the Seine coming up from the well-known city of Dijon through Troyes and Melun into the city, whence it flows northwesterly and reaches the Strait of Dover at Havre. The headwaters of the Seine are in quite elevated mountains.

Entering the city just below Vincennes, the Seine describes an irregular horseshoe, leaving the city below St. Cloud near Versailles.

The length of the city lying generally along the river from Porte Maillot to the Cours de Vincennes is about twenty-one miles. The average width of the city is about seven miles. Along the frontier northerly and southerly the ground rises to considerable heights, but the populous and business part of the city lies generally along the river, which one would say from an inspection of the map must be nearly if not quite twenty miles from the point of entering the barriers on one side to leaving them on the other.

Ordinarily the Seine runs from fifteen to thirty feet below the parapet of the wall of solid masonry which protects the city from the stream on both sides throughout the whole length of its course through Paris.

There are thirty-five bridges spanning the river from its entrance at the easterly edge of Paris to its departure from the city limits westerly. The unexpected extent of the flood is easily comprehended by one who has stood upon the roadway of the Alexander bridge and looked down upon the stream perhaps twenty-five feet below, which is now almost up if not quite running over the parapet.

The underground railroad, known as the Metropolitain in Paris, traverses the city in straight lines and in curves, making a network of underground road almost as close as the surface lines that run through Los Angeles. Under the city, too, lies a network of sewers, as may well be imagined, for any city of its size. The Paris sewers are a curiosity to tourists from all parts of the world. The main sewers are so large that with a sidewalk on each side of them the tallest man can walk along the side of the stream without stooping at scarcely a single point, and a large boat can be operated down these streams, taking away the offal from the city for many miles. On the left bank of the Seine toward the western section of the city, there are ancient quarries which were worked by the Romans over 2000 years ago and are known as the catacombs of Paris. The stone which is used in the Cluny museum, formerly baths built by the Romans, was cut from these quarries.

The main arteries of the Metropolitain and of the sewers, as well as these artificial catacombs, all lie close to the banks of the Seine, and these are all inundated. In many places the canals for different purposes have broken, and the river water and the sewage both pour in floods over many portions of the city, especially the left bank.

One of the thirty-five bridges that span the river, and one of the most curious of them is near the point of the island known as La Cité, the ancient nucleus from which Paris has grown, and the camp of the Gauls which Caesar stormed and took. This bridge was begun by Henry IV, famous as Henry of Navarre, with his white plume, in the year 1578. One of the latest bridges, and the handsomest over the river, is that known as Alexander III, the foundation stone of which was laid by the late Czar Nicholas II, in 1896, and which was finished in 1900. It is a bridge so beautiful that it would be difficult to match it in the world.

I have said above that the populous and business center of the city lies along the banks of the Seine, from its entrance to its exit. Many of the most ancient and interesting buildings are along close to the bank of the river. On the isle, La Cité, is the famous cathedral of Notre Dame, begun by Charlemagne, in the eighth century. A little farther down the river is the Louvre. A very little bit farther down is the Palais Royal, begun by the famous Minister, Richelieu. Going still down the stream we reach the remains of the Tuileries, and just beyond is the Place de la Concorde.

From La Cité to the Place de la Concorde is by far the most interesting part of Paris, lying on both sides of the river. The City Hall lies not far from the Louvre. The old Bastille stood farther up stream and a little farther away from the river.

WASHINGTON.

STATEHOOD IS DRAWING NEAR.

Bill for Arizona and Mexico Completed.

Separate Vote on Constitution and Officers.

Safeguards Thrown About Public Lands.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Arizona and New Mexico Statehood bills are now practically complete and Senator Beveridge, chairman of the Senate Committee on Territories, spent an hour today with the President going over the drafts.

The Senator has had the assistance of four experts from various executive departments for several weeks in the preparation of the bills which have received the President's approval and which will be introduced in the Senate.

A new feature in both bills is the separation of the popular vote on the Constitution from the elections of the officers. The Constitution being adopted by the people must then be submitted for the approval of the President and Congress. If this approval is had, the election of State officers will take place one year after the adoption of the Constitution. If the approval is withheld, another instrument must be prepared and voted on. It is also provided that the schools of the new States shall be conducted in the English language.

Particular attention has been given to the disposition of public lands and every safeguard has been thrown about them to make sure that they will not fall into the hands of improper persons or corporations.

Senator Beveridge said that the bill will be referred at once to the Committee on Territories, reported back immediately and pushed as rapidly as possible in the Senate.

Postmaster General Hitchcock participated in the conference. For the last six summers he has spent some time in the two territories and is taking a particular interest in the subject of statehood for them.

ISSUES PROCLAMATION.

President Designates More Nations Entitled to Minimum Rates Under Payne Tariff Law.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The President today issued a proclamation in which it is stated that inasmuch as Denmark, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, Egypt, Persia and Portugal do not unduly discriminate in their tariffs against goods imported from the United States, these countries are entitled to the minimum rate established by the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

In the case of Denmark, the rate applies to all her colonies, Pharaoh Islands, Iceland, Greenland and the West Indian Islands, St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John. In the case of The Netherlands, the Island of Curacao and of Dutch Guinea, but not the Dutch East Indian Islands.

In the case of Belgium, only the mother country and not the Congo is included.

Portugal includes the neighboring Islands of Madeira and the Azores, but not her other colonies.

In the case of Norway, Sweden, Egypt and Persia, there is no question of colonies involved.

In all other respects the proclamation is identical to that issued some days ago in the case of Italy.

"JACK'S" EXPENSES PAID.

BALLINGER HAD QUIT JOB.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The investigation of charges made against Secretary Ballinger and officials of the General Land Office by Representative Hitchcock of Nebraska was resumed today before the House Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department.

Representative Page of North Carolina introduced a newspaper account of a farewell banquet given to "Jack" Ballinger, a relative of the Secretary, when he left for the West. It included a statement that young Ballinger was leaving the government service to begin law practice in Seattle with the present Secretary Ballinger.

Commissioner Dennett of the General Land Office, who was being interrogated upon the payment of young Ballinger's expenses from Washington to Seattle, was asked if a publication of such an account would warrant the reference to an employé who was about to sever his connection with the government.

Mr. Dennett replied he knew nothing of the banquet, and that he did not know young Ballinger was to resign.

INVOLVES MILLION DOLLARS.

TRYING TO SAVE COAL LANDS.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Official figures made today are that more than $1,000,000 is the estimated value of the coal lands in the Lander, Wyo., district, which the Interior Department is trying to have cancelled on the ground, as it alleges, that the entries were entered pursuant to a conspiracy whereby title was to inure to a corporation.

In addition, 800 tons of coal a day, it is asserted, will be saved if a temporary injunction restraining the [illegible] Creek Coal Company, transferee of the various entrymen, from operating its mine upon certain lands involved in the case, is made permanent.

Hearing was set for February 1. All defendants in these cases live in New York, while the principal movers in the alleged conspiracy have been indicted by the grand jury in Wyoming. The criminal cases, if convictions are obtained, will check similar operations, department officials say.

TO FIGHT BOLL WEEVIL.

SOUTH WANTS MORE MONEY.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—An effort by Southern members to increase from [illegible] to $500,000 the appropriation in the Agricultural Bill for a [illegible] and demonstration of methods for destroying the boll weevil, furnished the chief feature of interest in the House today.

Representative Sims of Tennessee, referring to a newspaper criticism of members on account of their alleged abuse of franking privilege, defended his colleagues.

GLAVIS.

Schwartz dated Seattle, July 22, 1909, occurs this paragraph:

"Glavis has these coal cases on the brain and cannot see anything but just one thing. I have told him how it looks to us and have reminded him of everything that we have done for him, and that it looks as if he were returning our favors by not standing by us as he ought to. He has not acted as you or I would act under similar circumstances. It looks a little treacherous to me, this calling in the forestry."

There was also introduced in this connection this telegram from Schwartz to Dennett, dated Washington, July 21:

"Department has letter from Secretary of Agriculture originating in forest service, asking postponement of the Cunningham hearings until November. Shaw says Glavis wrote or wired him recently in matter. Require Glavis to show you copy his letter to Shaw, it being necessary to determine motive behind Agriculture's request for such long delay."

Glavis explained he had asked Shaw by telegram to come to Seattle to coöperate with him on the Cunningham claims, as several were in forest reserves. This was how the Forestry Bureau first came into the controversy officially.

BALLINGER TO SCHWARTZ.

Another letter was from Secretary Ballinger to Mr. Schwartz, dated Boise, Idaho, July 25, 1909, in which the Secretary of the Interior said, among other things:

"I am just advised by Commissioner Dennett of your telegram in reference to the increase in the number of special agents in the excepted class. I desire that you, in making any of these appointments, in addition to the President being consulted, Postmaster-General Hitchcock be also consulted, provided the appointees are not directly suggested by the President."

The last document read while Glavis was on the stand called out a great deal of laughter. It was a telegram from Mr. Schwartz, dated Washington, August 12, 1909, at the time attacks were being made upon Secretary Ballinger and others, and was addressed to M. J. McEniry, special agent at Denver. It read:

"Get into scareheads tonight and Associated Press, if possible, that Secretary and commission have secured evidence showing unlawful combinations of several hundred coal entries; that General Land Office is assigning its best coal engineers and lawyers to Seattle to assist in the coming trials. That Commissioner General Land Office, while in Denver, had expressed confidence that several hundred entries would be canceled; that government is making every effort to secure speedy action on these cases, as all coal entries in Alaska have now been suspended for over four years; that government is anxious to clear these lands of bad entries, and that it may get coal for its coaling stations in the Pacific; that special agents say coming hearings will reach some of largest interests yet uncovered, and that Ballinger has made it plain that he will stand behind them to the finish; that several of the railroad corporations owned by eastern capital are making indirect efforts to delay the hearings, hoping that next Congress will pass further remedial legislation or permit greater consolidation, but it is the position of the commissioner that such entries as are fraudulent as the law stands should be canceled at once and criminal liability developed before statute bars action.

WISH TO FORESTALL.

"Follow somewhat above ideas. I understand newspaper attacks about to be made on Commissioner of General Land Office, Secretary of Interior and Assistant Secretary of Interior Pierce in Alaska coal. I wish to forestall.

"Treat the source of your information secret as I have consulted no one. After putting this out, until advised further avoid interviews in this matter. (Signed) Schwartz."

Glavis today gave some more details as to how he came into possession of the Cunningham journal, which he declared contained proof that fraud was contemplated in this group of coal lands entries in Alaska.

The morning session had not proceeded very far when Senator Nelson clashed with the witness, who had intimated that attempts had been made to hinder him in the investigation of the Alaskan case during the period from October, 1908, to March, 1909.

"In any of your talks with Land Commissioner Dennett or others was there any attempt to hinder you in your work?" asked the chairman.

"Well, I would have——"

"Answer yes or no," commanded the Senator.

"Well I will have to explain the various interviews——"

"Oh, answer it directly, yes or no."

"Yes, they did."

PINCHOT'S NAME COMES UP.

Senator Nelson, during the morning session also cautioned Attorney Brandeis against asking leading questions of the witness.

For the first time since the inquiry started Gifford Pinchot was not in the first row of spectators. Mr. Pinchot's name, oddly enough, was drawn into the hearing on the first day of his absence. Glavis had got to that point in his story of the Cunningham claims where the Land Office placed Special Agent Sheridan in charge of the case to conduct the hearings.

"Sheridan was a lawyer and had wide experience?" asked Senator Nelson.

"Yes, sir," replied Glavis.

"Was the government's interest placed in jeopardy by his assignment?"

"No, sir, not by that action. He took the same view of the case that I did."

"Wasn't it the fact that Sheridan superseded you that made you think it necessary to apply to Pinchot to introduce you to the President and so alarmed you as to the status of these cases?"

"A great many things alarmed me besides that; that did not alarm me very much. I applied to Mr. Pinchot after I had protested against the cases going to hearing in July. I wanted first to make a field examination."

Representative Madison had some little difficulty in getting a direct answer from the witness as to whether it was absolutely essential that a field examination should be made before hearings were held.

"Now, Mr. Glavis," he said, "I am trying in a perfectly kindly and sympathetic way to ascertain your position in the matter."

Glavis declared a field examination was necessary to establish a prima facie case.

"Well, what so alarmed you about these cases?" again asked Senator Nelson.

"All I have been testifying to alarmed me," said Glavis, "and a lot of testimony I have not given yet."

Glavis testified as to a visit he had made to the land office on one occasion.

"What brought you to Washington at that time?" asked Senator Nelson.

"I came to interview a Congressman who had a claim in the Green group," replied the witness amid laughter.

"Who was the Congressman?" asked Representative Madison.

"Mr. McLachlan of California."

"Did you see him or get an affidavit from him?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"Well," said Glavis, "Mr. Ballinger said to me that there had been too much of that sort of thing in the past. 'I wouldn't see him if I were you,' Mr Ballinger said."

"And you didn't see him?"

"No."

One of the letters put in evidence today was addressed by Chief of Field Division Schwartz to G. W. Woodruff, Assistant Attorney-General for the Interior Department. Mr. Brandeis then read a letter, which, after making certain inquiries as to the interpretation of the Alaskan coal lands act of May 28, 1908, said:

"I submit this inquiry in no spirit of criticism of the regulations, except that I feel we need every ounce of power to prevent Alaska frauds, which will by comparison make previous frauds appear as petit larceny.

'We have pending about 500 coal entries; every man on the Coast who knows anything, knows the Guggenheims do and will control the coal situation unless at once forestalled; the act of May 28, 1908, limits its consolidation benefits to entries already made (Guggenheim and two or three other corporations,) and so shuts out future competition.

MILLIONS IN ROYALTY.

"Exhibits show deposits in from twenty to eighty feet width blankets of clear coal. The 500 entries have, say, 80,000 acres.

"At 10 cents a ton on twenty-foot veins, the royalty alone is $160,000,000.

"Suppose, in five or ten years, Guggenheim shall have acquired control of these lands. Will it be charged to Secretary Garfield and Commissioner Dennett?"

Senator Nelson said he was chairman of the Public Lands Committee when the act of May 28 referred to was passed.

Secretary Garfield recommended that act," he said. "Secretary Ballinger had nothing whatever to do with it."

"We have no fault to find with the act," said Attorney Brandeis.

"I don't want you to convey the impression that it was passed for the benefit of the Guggenheims or anybody else," remarked Senator Nelson.

"As to the act itself and as to why it was pased we find no fault," said Brandeis, "but it was a construction given the law which, but for the intervention of Mr. Glavis, would have benefited those people. Mr. Glavis contested the construction of Assistant Secretary Pierce and had it overruled by Atty.-Gen. Wickersham."

Glavis declared he was so disheartened by the ruling given by Assistant Secretary Pierce which he regarded as favoring the claimants in the coal cases that he thought of resigning from the service and giving all the facts in the case to the press. He went to Henry M. Hoyt, now the Attorney-General of Porto Rico, and a cousin of Councilor Henry M. Hoyt of the Department of State. He told him that the Pierce decision rendered futile any further attempt to invalidate the Cunningham and other Alaska claims. He told Mr. Hoyt also that Mr. Ballinger had declined to act in the matter, turning the entire subject over to Mr. Pierce.

THREATEN SCANDAL.

"I told Mr. Hoyt my purpose to resign, and give out the facts," said Glavis. "He said he thought it would make an awful scandal on Mr. Taft's administration, which had hardly begun, and he did not think it the best way. We discussed the best method of bringing about a change in the opinion of Mr. Pierce, which we thought was a bad one.

"Hoyt said he was a personal friend of Horace Taft, a brother of the President, and he thought he would see him and get him to tell the President about it. After further talking on the matter, however, he decided not to do that, Mr. Hoyt thinking that the best way was to go to the Department of Justice.

"Several days later, about May 25, I saw Atty.-Gen. Wickersham, who was on his way to a Cabinet meeting, and he said he had considered the matter as it had been presented to him by Mr. Hoyt, and he intended to speak to Mr. Ballinger about it at the Cabinet meeting. He would ask Mr. Ballinger to refer the matter to him.

"Two days later, Mr. Ballinger sent for me and showed me a number of letters he was writing, one of them being in response to a letter to Miles C. Moore, who had complained of his disappointment that the Secretary had not brought the Cunningham claims to patent as a matter of justice.

WITHDRAWS REPORT.

"Mr. Ballinger told me he was sending the papers over to Mr. Wickersham, with a request for a new opinion on the act of May 28, 1908. He asked me in the meantime not to submit my report under the Pierce decision.

"I told him I had already done so. He told me to withdraw it, and I did so. In that report I said it would be futile to continue the investigation further under Mr. Pierce's ruling.

The witness then told about having obtained in July, 1909, an affidavit from Harry White, of Los Angeles, former mayor of Seattle, and of White telling him that, in addition to representing people in the Cunningham group, Mr. Ballinger had represented a Congressman in the Green group.

"Was that he same Congressman you mentioned this morning?'

"No."

"Who was it?"

"Representative Kinkaid, of Nebraska."

"Did Mr. Ballinger act as attorney?"

"He attended to the work to secure a coal claim for Mr. Kinkaid and to bring it into a company. He examined the papers in a claim Mr. Kinkaid was to buy and to consolidate with others."

"Was there anything wrong in that?" asked Representative Madison.

"Not unless there had been some previous arrangement."

"There was nothing wrong that you know of?"

The law prohibiting any former officer of the government from helping to prosecute a claim against the government within two years after leaving the service was read into the evidence with a decision by former Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith, holding that a claim meant "a money claim."

Representative James asked that the decision of former Secretary Lamar, holding to the contrary, be introduced also.

Glavis now came to the conclusion of his testimony. He said it was in Spokane, Wash., in the conservation congress there, that he met former Gov. Pardee of California, and Gifford Pinchot. He told them all his troubles, in connection with the coal-land cases, and Mr. Pinchot advised him to go to the President.

SHREWD-EYED OFFICERS.

Recognize from Description Man Wanted on Two Charges in Kansas.

J. B. Powell, wanted in Great Bend, Kan., on a charge of highway robbery, and also for jailbreaking, was arrested here yesterday evening by Under Sheriff Brain and Deputy Sheriff Heister. Powell was walking along Fourth street, near Spring, when the officers saw and recognized him from the description sent out.

At the County Jail, Powell admitted his identity, but declared his intention of fighting extradition. He formerly lived in Los Angeles, and returned here about two weeks ago, as had been anticipated by the Great Bend officials.

The prisoner said that when he escaped from jail by boring a hole through the wall of the building, he had not yet been tried for highway robbery, the charge under which he was arrested. His mother and sister, he said, had offered to put up bail for him, but he preferred to take a chance on breaking jail.

The Great Bend authorities will be notified today of the arrest.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

Bright's Disease, Dropsy, Bladder Complaints Cured by Liquocide.

ONLY THREE DAYS TO LIVE.

"It is with the greatest pleasure I write these few words of praise for what Liquocide did for me. I will try to tell you my condition when I began with your product. It was one year ago today, on June 14, 1904, when I took to my bed with 'Bright's Disease.' I could not turn in the bed. I sent for the doctor, and he told my brother that I would not live longer than three days. I got worse. Then I began to take Liquocide, and stayed with it until I had taken seven bottles, and now I have taken 11 bottles. I am a living testimony of one that has been cured of 'Bright's Disease.' I thank you very much for what it has done for me." H. R. Griffin, 15th St., 26 House, San Angelo, Tex., June 14, 1905.

THREE YEARS LATER. CURE CONFIRMED.

Mr. Griffin confirms this November 1, 1909. He has experienced no return of his trouble. He used altogether 18 bottles of Liquocide.

This letter is merely a specimen of many thousands we receive unsolicited from grateful patients. Many more telling about remarkable cures of these, as well as other germ diseases will be sent anywhere on request.

Liquocide

cures kidney trouble because of its power to kill germs. Some forms of kidney troubles are due to germs in the kidneys. Some are due to poisons created by germs elsewhere. And the disease never can end until these germs are destroyed. Liquocide is not like other germicides, which are poisons when taken internally, but a harmless germicide which acts as a tonic.

Liquocide is not a mixture of drugs. It is a scientific product, and the formula is printed on the label of every bottle. The treatment is both local and internal. Countless cured ones know from experience that it does what nothing else can do. Its effects are so certain and so immediate that we issue a certificate of guarantee which covers a two months' test at our financial risk.

Don't treat kidney trouble in harmful and ineffective ways.

If you are a sufferer, please send your name and address and ask for Book No. 84. We will send it and also our liberal guarantee certificate, which is free from technicalities and restrictions. Please send today; our offer places you under no obligation whatever.

Liquocide costs 50c and $1.00.

LIMIT IS GIVEN BLACKHANDERS

Ohio Band of Extortioners Get Long Terms.

All But Two Conspirators Go to Prison.

Officials Believe Gang's Back Is Broken.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

TOLEDO (O.) Jan. 29.—Heavy penalties were imposed by Judge R. W. Taylor, in the Federal Court today, on the prominent members of the Ohio band of Blackhanders found guilty of conspiracy to use the mails to extort money from Italians living in Ohio and Indiana. The jury reported this morning.

Salvatore Lima of Marion, the chief of the band, was sentenced to sixteen years' imprisonment. Sebastian Lima, his brother, and Giuseppe Ignoffo, his brother-in-law, were sentenced to ten years' imprisonment each. All of these lived in Marion, where the headquarters for the operations were maintained.

All of the nineteen defendants were found guilty, but the court granted new trials to Agostini Marfisi of Dennison, Vincenzo Arrigo of Cincinnati, both fruit dealers, and Salvatore Rizzo, a section hand, living in Marion.

The others were sentenced as follows:

Sevario Ventola, Columbus, two years.

Salvatore Demma, Belle Fontaine, two years.

Antonio Vicario, Dennison, Tex., two years.

Cologaro Vicario, Belle Fontaine, two years.

Orazio Runfola, Pittsburgh, six years.

Pippino Galbo, Meadville, Pa., four years.

Salvatore Arrigo, Cincinnati, four years.

Francesco Sbadara, Cincinnati, two years.

All of the sentenced prisoners, except Antonio Vicario, started early this afternoon for Leavenworth prison in charge of eight deputies. Vicario will be taken to Elmyra.

The government officials had prepared for a demonstration in case of a conviction, but none occurred. The defendants received their conviction and sentences calmly. The force of deputy marshals who have guarded the courtroom throughout the trial had been strengthened and the courtroom was not allowed to become crowded.

In sentencing Lima, Judge Taylor said:

"You seem to have been the moving spirit in this nefarious business. Sebastian Lima seems to have borne a somewhat less part than his brother, and Ignotfo has been a part of the heart and center."

The jury to which the case was given last night returned its verdict at 10:20 this morning, finding all of the defendants guilty as charged. The case is regarded by government officials as the most important criminal prosecution in Federal courts in recent years. They believe that the conviction and penalties imposed will break the backbone of the system.

"There has not been a sign of Black Hand operations in this section of this country since these men were arrested," said Postal Inspector Oldfield.

The investigation began a year ago, when letters turned over to the postal officials by John and Charles Amicon, wealthy commission merchants of Columbus, O., gave them the first tangible information of the use of the mails by the Black Hand.

ENTHUSIASTIC.

LASTING GOOD THE RESULT OF EXCURSION TO NORTH.

MEMBERS of the Chamber of Commerce excursion to San Francisco, returned here last evening, enthusiastic over the cordial reception accorded them by the northerners. Several stated that Joseph Scott, president-elect of the local chamber, made one of the best speeches ever heard in San Francisco. He maintained the dignity of Los Angeles and said that her citizens were as good as those of any other municipality in the country. He put forth some good-natured thrusts at San Francisco, declaring that her men must stand upon their own merits and not depend upon the work of those who achieved in the past.

"Scott's address took the banqueters by storm," said Secretary Wiggins. "Few could have spoken as he did without giving offense, but those San Franciscans crowded around him at the close of the banquet to tell him he had done them good. He asserted that Los Angeles is just as good and great as her northern rival, and insisted that while friendly competition was always healthy, that the business men of the two communities should stand shoulder to shoulder in upbuilding the State. That speech was worth the fare up there."

Wiggins said that George H. Stewart, former president of the chamber, and Willis H. Booth, its present head, also made a very favorable impression upon their auditors.

"In fact we should all be proud of our Los Angeles men," said he. "We have heavy-caliber men in this city and I like to see their worth recognized outside."

Gov. Gillett received much praise from the returning pleasure-seekers. They said he spoke in warmest terms of Southern California and referred specially to the Imperial Valley as typical of what man can do in a semi-arid country.

Political questions were not discussed during the stay in San Francisco. The subject of the Panama exposition was also tacitly laid aside, in order that the visitors might not feel that their hosts wanted to take advanage of the situation. One San Diego man in the party expressed much surprise at the cordiality of the San Franciscans and intimated that their hospitable treatment had made a deep impression.

Secretary Wiggins feels sure that the trip will be productive of lasting good. He says it is evident that a closer bond of fellowship is being created and that past differences are fast disappearing.

"We will have to plan a grand reception for those 'boys,'" he said, "when they return our visit. There is nothing like getting together. There is plenty of room for two great cities in this State, and I think the men of San Francisco take a far different view of Los Angeles than they used to. I am confident that they entertain the friendliest feelings for us. They have accomplished wonders since the fire and have a city to be proud of. Knowing the old city as I did, I took peculiar interest in noting the skyscrapers that are going up on every hand and the many improvements that are being made."

The Angeleños left here Tuesday night on a luxurious special train, in charge of T. A. Graham, assistant general passenger agent of the Southern Pacific. Stops were made at Bakersfield and Fresno on the way North.

A committee of San Francisco people met the excursionists Thursday morning at the Ferry building and escorted them to the Palace Hotel. In the afternoon the party was conveyed in automobiles to the Cliff House, Golden Gate Park and other places of interest. In the evening, there was a banquet at the St. Francis, which was attended by several hundred business men.

On the way home, yesterday, the excursionists were given a little surprise at Santa Barbara. The Mayor and a number of city officials met them at the railroad station, where a brief stop was made. A brass band played and there were informal speeches.

CHILDREN'S AUTHOR HAS COME HERE TO LIVE.

Creator of "The Wizard of Oz" Who Has Spent Many Winters in Southern California, Will Now Reside in Los Angeles Permanently—Letters from Child Critics.

L. Frank Baum, creator of "The Wizard of Oz," and one of the greatest friends of children in the country, because of his many beautiful fairy stories, has come to Los Angeles to make his permanent home.

During the past nine years he has been traveling across country to California, spending most of the winters in Coronado. Since his son, F. J. Baum, has come to Los Angeles and established his home here, some two years ago, the lure of the Southwest has increased to such an extent that Mr. Baum could no longer withstand it.

"Travels through Sicily, Italy, or a winter on the Upper Nile, all have their attractions, but from what I have learned by actual experience, none of these countries compares with Southern California. There is a charm in the very atmosphere, an indefinable something which attracts and holds," said Mr. Baum.

"The equability of the climate to a man who has passed the youthful stage, is one to be considered, and I have, after much thought, decided that I shall spend my declining years in Los Angeles. Leslie Carter cannot be blamed for deciding on this as her permanent home."

Mr. Baum believes implicitly in the country now. It was not always thus, according to his story. Some six or seven years ago, on one of his trips, he was inveigled into purchasing two lots in the southwestern part of the city in a section which has grown very rapidly.

"The two lots cost me $500," he said, "at the time I made the purchase, more to please friends than for an investment. The following year, on my trip to California, I was telling an acquaintance of my purchase, assuring him that the lots were not worth very much as far as I could see. I mentioned the price which I had paid for them and said that I would willingly part with them for $100 less than they cost me.

"The acquaintance right then and there drew up an agreement purchasing the lots. He said he didn't know just where they were, but that he would take a chance at that figure. Within the last two months, the two lots sold for more than $10,000 and I realized when I heard of the deal that I most assuredly had made a mistake. This time I am here to remain."

At the present time, Mr. Baum is resting. He has been engaged on the last book of the "Oz series" which began with the "Wizard of Oz." "It will be some time before I finish the book," he said, "probably the only book I will complete this year, although I have several others under way."

To realize what a hold the modern fairy stories of Mr. Baum have taken, it is only necessary to see a bit of the mail which comes flooding in from all parts of the United States. Most of this mail is written by the children themselves, who have read his stories. Suggestions offered by them, according to the author, have furnished him with some of the best incidents incorporated in his work.

"The children have very curious ideas, oftentimes grotesque, but they show what the child mind wants and it is not a very difficult matter to transpose this into the fairy tales."

While speaking, Mr. Baum showed letters and pictures of children from Honolulu, from Maine and Florida, Washington and even from England and Mexico. The letters, some of them, at least, came from the most remote villages and towns of the country, places which are not even to be found on the maps. He considers them the best criticisms of his work.

Baum and his wife have taken apartments for a short time on Park Grove avenue, where they will remain until the arrival of their household goods from Chicago.

NO SHOOTING IRONS.

Rural Mail Carriers Instructed to Leave Firearms at Home While They're on Duty.

While the postal department is not averse to having its rural carriers expert markamen, the carriers have been instructed to leave their shooting irons at home while going their rounds in the country. In the last bulletin issued by Postmaster Flint, he states that rural carriers must curb their hunting proclivities while on duty. In this connection the Postmaster says: "Numerous complaints having been received that rural carriers, while serving their routes, hunt and shoot game, thus delaying the delivery and collection of mail, postmasters are directed to notify the carriers under their supervision that the department will not countenance shooting and hunting, and that they must not carry guns for that purpose."

Presumably the notice is not intended for Los Angeles carriers, as their routes take them through suburban districts. Probably the department at Washington has in mind Missouri carriers, who traverse excellent bird grounds in their daily rounds. The rule might apply in Northern California, but, as far as known, the local carriers do not see any game.

ROAD TO THE MALIBU.

The Board of Supervisors has declared a strip of roadway extending from the Santa Monica city limits to the boundary of the Malibu ranch, a public highway. Work has been begun improving the road. The County Surveyor stated yesterday that the strip to be improved has no bearing upon the controversy in regard to entering the Malibu ranch property. One of the attorneys for the Frederick H. Rindge estate said that the road was not opposed by the executrix and that it had nothing to do with the litigation still pending in the United States Circuit Court. This case was brought by the United States, because of the alleged obstruction of roads leading across the ranch to government land. It has been referred to a special master. There is also litigation in the Superior Court over similar differences.

PRIZES GIVEN FOR NAMES.

The Young Men's Christian Association will begin a name contest on Monday morning, to continue for one week, the purpose being to secure the names of a large number of men and boys eligible to membership in the association. They offer prizes aggregating $100, to be given to either men, boys or girls, who produce the greatest number of names and addresses, no prize to be given for less than 250 names. All persons wishing to enter the contest must register at the office of the association and sign the rules and regulations governing the contest. The capital prize for a boy is a $25 suit of clothes; for a girl, a $15 ostrich plume. There are seven other prizes.

HE'S WANTED IN KANSAS.

Under Sheriff Brain arrested J. B. Powell yesterday afternoon, on a warrant issued by the authorities of Great Bend, Kan. Powell is said to have escaped from jail, where he was awaiting trial on a charge of highway robbery. When locked up in the County Jail, the man refused to discuss his case, but stated he would resist extradition. The Great Bend officers have been notified to send a man here with the necessary paper.

DEATH OF OLD RESIDENT.

End Comes to Mrs. Pendleton, Pioneer of Southern California, and Widow of an Early-Day Clergyman.

Mrs. Margaret A. Pendleton, widow of Rev. Dr. William H. Pendleton, died yesterday in this city at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. G. Scarborough, aged 70 years, the immediate cause of her death being a general decline. She leaves five children—C. W., J. M., and Charles H. Pendleton; Mrs. Belle P. Haralson, Mrs. James G. Scarborough and Mrs. Albert C. Jones, all residing in this city, except J. M. Pendleton, who is a hotel man in one of the large western cities.

Mrs. Pendleton was an old and well known resident of Southern California. She was born in Carthage, Ill., in 1840, and was brought across the plains by her grandparents to Petaluma, where when quite a young girl she was married to Rev. Dr. Pendleton, a lawyer and Baptist minister. Shortly after her marriage she came south, with her husband, who took charge of the Baptist church at El Monte. After remaining there one year Dr. Pendleton returned to New York and later built the Fifty-third Street Baptist Church, of which he was pastor for twenty-six years.

The Pendletons returned to California in 1882 and located in San Francisco. In 1886 they came to Los Angeles and Dr. Pendleton organized the old Central Baptist Church that stood for many years at Third and Hill streets. He was pastor of that and other Baptist churches in this city until his death, in 1897. Mrs. Pendleton had lived, since that time, at the old home at Tenth and Flower streets, until a few months ago, when failing health necessitated her removal to the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. G. Scarborough. She was widely known for her fine character, and years ago was noted as one of the sweetest singers in Southern California.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Scarborough residence, the interment to be at Rosedale Cemetery, where her husband lies buried.

NEW WELSH MINISTER.

Rev. E. Edwin Jones, new pastor of the Welsh Presbyterian Church, on Crocker street near Fifth, will be installed this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Dr. Hugh K. Walker, of Immanuel Presbyterian Church, will preach the installation sermon; Rev. A. B. Prichard will deliver the charge to the minister, and Rev. J. R. Compton to the congregation. Mr. Jones comes here from a successful pastorate at Idaho Springs, Colo. Most of the service will be in English and there will be a special programme of music. All Welsh people are urged to attend the service.

FOREST RANGERS' PAY.

Supervisor Charlton of the Angeles Forest Reserve has received notification from Washington that the minimum salary of forest rangers has been increased from $900 to $1100 a year, the change becoming effective at once.

The Way to Cure All Skin Diseases

THE PRESCRIPTION IS SIMPLE: PURIFY THE BLOOD BY USING STUART'S CALCIUM.

A Trial Package Sent Free.

If people only realized the utter absurdity of attempting to cure a pimply, blotchy, unsightly complexion by means of the many irrational and illogical methods employed in "beauty parlors," and also in the boudoir, thousands of dollars which are wasted every year—literally thrown away—would be saved, and the complexion rendered clear and free from blemishes through constitutional treatment, at about one-tenth of one per cent. of the cost of the "fancy" and exceedingly expensive local "treatments."

The idea of massaging the cheeks, and attempting to rub in a so-called "skin-food," is the height of nonsense. Nature never intended the skin to be fed from the outside, but from the inside exclusively, and it is the blood which really feeds the skin, builds it up, and supplies it with nutriment absorbed from the digestive system. There is really no such thing as a "skin-food," any more than there is a "heart-food," or "lung-food," or a "brain-food."

The skin is a water-proof, air-proof envelope over the muscular system, and it has no power to absorb cold creams, or any other medicaments when rubbed over its surface. While, of course, steaming the face, or massaging with electricity, or by hand, will draw the blood temporarily to the surface and produce an artificial glow, which may last half an hour or so, such treatment brings no lasting benefit, and will never cure wrinkles, pimples, pustules, blackheads, or other facial blemishes.

Besides, the frequent treatment of the skin in the way which "beauty doctors" have—those kneading, rubbing, "cooking" methods, making the face for the time being as red as a boiled lobster, also have the very undesirable effect of increasing and strengthening the hair-growth on the cheek.

The only logical treatment in acquiring and maintaining a perfect complexion, devoid of all blemishes, such as blotches, pimples, roughness, chapping, scaly patches, etc., is to go after these troubles from the inside—to strike at the foundation, the origin of the complaints—and that means, in other words, to thoroughly purify the blood, by using STUART'S CALCIUM WAFERS.

These powerful little wafers as soon as taken into the system, exert their wonderful, blood-purifying effects, and they never let up for a moment, until every atom of impurity in the blood is eliminated, and, in addition to that, they also build up the blood, and strengthen the circulation through the skin's surface, and thus render wrinkles and skin blemishes impossible of existence.

BUY CALIFORNIA OIL STOCKS.

California oil stocks are very active. The public is investing eagerly and the prices of stocks are soaring upward. With a greater demand for oil at higher prices and an increasing production, greater will be the profits for stockholders. In view of these favorable conditions, and realizing that we have an unusual oil proposition with an acreage of ground sufficiently large to pay enormous dividends, we advise the immediate purchase of CROWN OIL stock.

CROWN OIL CO. HAS A SPLENDID PROPERTY.

The Crown Oil Company has a 40-year lease at ⅛ royalty on 320 acres of oil land in the producing district of the Big and Little Sespe creeks in Ventura county. Here is the home of light oil, shallow drilling and high prices for the oil. Here for 35 years there has been a steady production of high quality oil; here, also, was recorded the birth of the Union Oil Company, which to date has paid nearly 6 MILLION DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS. The day we produce the oil we can market it. Four transportation pipe lines pass the property, and there is an abundance of flowing water for camp and drilling purposes.

CROWN OIL CO. WORKING—RIG MATERIAL ON GROUND.

The Crown Oil Company was organized two months ago and since the day of organization all the matters pertaining to the success of the company have been rushed with all possible speed. We have ample funds promised for the drilling of our first well. The popularity of our stock is established and financial success is therefore assured. We have erected two substantial buildings for the drillers and their families and a carload of rig material is being delivered. The road work will be completed next week. We will then construct our derricks, install our machinery and soon begin to send the drill downward INTO OIL AND DIVIDENDS FOR OUR STOCKHOLDERS.

Only a Few Thousand Shares, Non-Assessable Crown Oil Stock Remaining Unsold at . . . .

A CLOSING OPPORTUNITY.

It is impossible for you to share in the wealth already produced by California oil companies, but you may share in the millions, yes, perhaps, billions yet to be produced. However, you cannot expect to share in the profits from the sale of California oil unless you invest your money in stock in some good, legitimate oil company and allow your money to work in the oil fields. Be advised by men who are in the oil business to make money out of it by the production and marketing of the oil itself. This advice is: INVEST EVERY DOLLAR YOU CAN REASONABLY AFFORD TO TAKE FROM YOUR BUSINESS OR SURPLUS FUND AND PUT IT INTO CROWN OIL STOCKS. Don't allow this one, big, money-making investment to pass unheeded. Send cash with order or fill out the reserve blank and mail it. Ask all the questions you want. Big St. Louis Cloak House Cancels Spring Suit Order After Garments Are Made Up—Jacoby's Secure the Cream of the Lot

ANOTHER great Jacoby spot cash purchase and another marvelous opportunity for suit buyers Monday. The merchant who ordered these suits, suffered a severe fire loss just before they were delivered, so was forced to cancel thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of New Spring Garments. The prominence of this merchant and the high standing he enjoys in the garment world, practically guarantees every one of these suits to be absolutely correct in every style, fabric and tailoring particular.

We consider ourselves extremely fortunate in getting our hands on these suits at the price we paid for them. It enables us to offer the women of Los Angeles the very choicest New Spring Fashions at a price that is less than what the maker billed them to his customer for.

From the very nature of this remarkable offering, it being such a thoroughly unusual thing for Brand New Suits to be offered at the beginning of a season at such a low figure, there will doubtless be a very large attendance at the Sale, so we urge all intending purchasers to come early.

Giving An Idea of the Desirability of the Suits

IN THE first place the coat length is correct in every suit, being 32 inches. Secondly, we can fit all comers, misses included. Thirdly, the tailoring is of the highest order. Materials are novelty worsteds and imported fabrics; also black striped white mohairs. The color line is simply splendid, showing besides staple colors, tans, old rose and the new checks and grays. Also broadcloth suits and a swell assortment of elegant suits taken from our regular stock; values up to $37.50. Choice Monday, $15.00.

Gigantic Sale Warehouse Stock
Cotton Goods

Over $75,000 Worth of Highest Grades of Wanted Staples at Non-Trust Prices Monday in Basement

ENORMOUS, underprice purchases of cotton goods, contracted for over 12 months ago, when the market price of the raw product was at the lowest mark in years, are crowding our three-story warehouse to bursting. At the same time, need of room for incoming spring stocks is imperative, and to make sure of it, we take over $75,000 worth of wanted staples and offer them at prices that manufacturers cannot quote, owing to the almost prohibitive price of cotton at the present time. An unmatchable opportunity for hotel keepers and all those with whom LOWEST PRICES COUNT. Every woman should be here Monday.

Sky Pilot Harmon Presented With Loving Cup.

Man Afraid of Banks Gives Up to Burglar.

Office of The Times, No 26 S. Raymond Ave.

PASADENA, Jan. 30.—Clifford B. Harmon, aëronaut, was presented with a beautiful silver loving cup, last night, by the directors of the Tournament of Roses Association, following a banquet given by the Hotel Maryland. President George P. Cary said the token was bestowed for Mr. Harmon's kindness in assisting in making the sporting events of the Tournament of Roses a success, and doing so without any charge. Mr. Harmon was elected an honorary member of the Board of Directory.

In accepting the cup he said he hoped to be able to spend much time here.

Following the meeting the Aëro Club of Pasadena was organized and these directors elected; Col. W. G. Hogan, Clifford B. Harmon, George P. Cary, J. H. Holmes, W. F. Knight, Walter Raymond, Frank V. Rider, D. M. Linnard, Kingsley Stevens, Prof. Charles T. Holder, Dr. Mallaby, J. B. Coulston, Frank G. Hogan, E. T. Off and Prof. T. S. C. Lowe. The board chose Col. W. G. Hogan, president; D. M. Linnard, vice-president; Walter Raymond, vice-president; Kingsley Stevens, secretary; Frank V. Rider, treasurer; Clifford B. Harmon, honorary president.

Harmon believes Southern California, within the next year or so, will be considered the home of aërial navigation of the whole country. Climate and atmospheric conditions all are more favorable here than anywhere else. He said: "Next fall we should have an aëro meet here which will be heralded to all points of the world, just the same as the great Tournament of Roses has been." Harmon is soon to be elected a member of the executive board of the Aëro Club of America, at New York.

GETS RICH HAUL.

A burglar entered the house of William James, No. 854 Stevenson avenue, early yesterday morning and stole $500 in gold from a bureau drawer. James is a barber and preferred to keep his money in the house instead of depositing it in a bank for safekeeping. The burglar entered by cutting a screen on the back porch. Mrs. James heard him and aroused her husband, who jumped out of bed in time to see a man running down the street.

KIND ATTENTIONS.

The Central W.C.T.U. has called the attention of the Board of Education to the resolutions recently adopted by the executive board against dancing at functions given or attended by pupils; also asking that teachers be prohibited from dancing or attending dances, and that the use of tobacco by either pupils or teachers, be stopped. The attention of the Board of Education has also been called to the law regarding the prohibition of children under 14 years of age attending moving picture shows and other amusement resorts. The Executive Committee is contemplating starting a crusade in Pasadena.

The first municipal band concert will be given this afternoon in Library Park.

Mrs. Clare Slade, wife of Police Officer Slade, who was killed some time ago by a Santa Fé train, has been given $500 by the railroad company.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

W. M. Eason was yesterday elected president of the North Pasadena Land and Water Company; A. J. Toolen, vice-president; P. W. Cartwright, secretary; R. E. L. Peters, treasurer, and S. S. Smith, superintendent. The directors talked over the advisability of consolidating with the other two water companies of Pasadena. The plan was looked upon favorably.

AFTERNOON RECEPTIONS.

The function which is to be given at the Valley Hunt Club House, Tuesday afternoon, February 8, by Mrs. William Richardson Staats in honor of Mrs. Charles Sumner Eaton will be a reception from 4 to 6 o'clock and not a bridge party.

Mrs. Elias Allen Ford and daughter, Mrs. Henry Vilas of Markham street, will give one of the largest receptions of the year, Thursday afternoon, at the Valley Hunt Club, for Mrs. DeWitt Chauncey LeFevere and Miss Clara LeFevere of Olean, N. Y., from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Charles Cornnell Hudson has issued invitations for a card party at the San Gabriel Country Club, Friday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. Adelbert Hudson and Mrs. Edward T. Youmans.

Y.M.C.A. MEETING.

Following the meeting of the Men's Club of the Y.M.C.A. in the First Baptist Church this afternoon, at which Dr. Matt S. Hughes will make an address on the subject, "The Paralysis of Doubt," a branch of the Layman's Missionary Society will be organized.

Rev. Daniel F. Fox, pastor of the First Congregational Church, will preach a sermon tonight to young men on the subject, "The Dreamer."

Rev. Dr. T. B. Hughes, father of Dr. Matt S. Hughes, will preach the morning sermon at the First Methodist Church today.

The recital given yesterday afternoon by Henry Taylor Staats at his studio on East Colorado street was enjoyed by a large number of guests.

The Junior class of Throop Institute gave a dance at the Shakespeare Club-house last night in honor of the senior class.

Miss Florence Thompson gave an informal tea yesterday afternoon at her home, No. 451 South Orange Grove avenue, in honor of Miss Taylor of Germantown, Pa., Miss McRes of Detroit, and Miss Carlton. Mrs. Marshall Wotkyns presided over the tea table.

The Maskers' Club, recently organized among the younger set, will give "Why Smith Left Home" at the Shakespeare Clubhouse on February 4 and 5. The proceeds will go toward supporting a children's ward in the Pasadena Hospital.

GOLF AT ANNANDALE.

The golf clubs of the Annandale Country Club and the Los Angeles Country Club met in a match game on the Annandale links yesterday afternoon. The game is one of a series of games which will be played this season. The Annandale golfers were winners yesterday in a score of 12½ to 5½.

The players and their scores were:

Hogo Johnson, Annandale, 2½; against Judge Fredrickson, Los Angeles, ½.

J. V. Elliott, Annandale, 2; against Mr. Jevne, Los Angeles, -1.

Dr. Spraule, Annandale, 2; against Winson Walters, Los Angeles, 1.

E. B. Williams, Annandale, 3; against Mr. Butler, Los Angeles, 0.

H. B. Lamb, Annandale, ½; against Walter Cosley, Los Angeles, 2½.

C. S. Eaton, Annandale, 2½; against N. F. Wilshire, Los Angeles, ½.

The regular Saturday club cup handicap match was played yesterday afternoon on the Annandale links. The honors for first place was tied between W. H. Cornett with a gross score of 84, handicap 7, net 77, and Guy Eddy, with a gross of 100, handicap 25, net 77. Other scores were E. N. Wright, gross 86, handicap 8, net 78; H. J. Fish, gross 100, handicap 22, net 78; L. L. Snow, gross 104, handicap 26, net 78.

There were over 150 players on the links yesterday afternoon.

ADVERSE VOTE AT MIRAMONTE.

DISTRICT DECLINES TO JOIN HUNTINGTON PARK.

By Over Two to One the Section Decides to Remain as It Is—This Defeat Interferes With Plans to Become a Part of Greater Los Angeles.

HUNTINGTON PARK, Jan. 29.—By an adverse vote of over two to one Miramonte decided against consolidation with Huntington Park today. The territory proposed to be annexed to the latter is composed of the Miramonte precinct and the north 350 feet of Florence precinct. The vote there was: For consolidation, 66; against, 141; majority against, 75. In Huntington Park the vote was: For, 129; against, 57; majority for, 72. A majority of the votes cast in Miramonte was necessary.

This defeat interferes with Huntington Park's plans to consolidate with Los Angeles. This place is separated from the city by a strip of land including Miramonte and the section of Florence mentioned.

NOT LARGE ENOUGH.

Two-thirds Vote Is Not Given at Sierra Madre for Municipal Water Proposition.

SIERRA MADRE, Jan. 29.—At the meeting held last night to consider the sale of the water system to the city the majority voted in the affirmative but the requisite two-thirds vote was not in favor of the sale. W. S. Andrews, president of the company, presided.

There was a representation of 6607 and 40-100 shares. Messrs. Pierce, Osgood and Rice spoke against the plan. Mayor Jones, N. H. Hosmer, J. G. Blumer, former president of the company, and Messrs. Bridle, Stone and Ivor H. Thomas favored municipal ownership. The question was put to a vote and President Andrews announced that 4845 and 72-100 shares were in favor of selling to the city, and 1761 and 68-100 shares against. The majority of those present voted in the affirmative. According to the bylaws of the company it requires a two-thirds vote of all the shareholders to pass a resolution of this nature. This means 5841 shares, as some of the stock is held in the treasury.

REFUSES TO ACCEPT.

FORMER RESIDENTS OF KANSAS MEET AT LONG BEACH.

Fifteen Hundred from Los Angeles Swell the Local Crowd—Man Accused of Deserting Wife and Twins Is Arraigned in Justice Court—Four Boys in Trouble.

LONG BEACH, Jan. 29.—The fifth annual picnic of the Kansas State Society of Long Beach was held here today. Five hundred badges were provided but proved not half enough. The Pacific Electric Railway sold over 1500 tickets to Kansans now resident in Los Angeles. Jayhawker yarns, a picnic dinner and a programme of speeches and music were features of the day.

Visitors were met at the depot by a Reception Committee who saw that they registered. During the morning many of the Kansans fished, but refused offers to sell them grasshoppers, for bait, saying they forgot what the things were even before they came to California. A good deal of amusement was caused by the display of a giant rock cod's head on the pier, labeled, "head of a Kansas grasshopper."

Dinner was served in the sun parlor at noon, coffee being furnished by the Chamber of Commerce. The municipal band gave a concert. Following, President George Hamlin, called the Kansans to order and Mayor Windham extended a welcome to the visitors. The response was by Col. O. H. Coulter of Santa Ana. Short talks were made by Secretary Camp of the Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. H. E. Long and Mrs. Lena Brady, after which Senator Thomas Potter of Peabody, Kan., delivered the address of the day.

SHIELDS ARRAIGNED.

Harry Shields, the young man brought from Omaha by Chief Williams and accused of deserting his wife and twin babies, was arraigned before Justice Brayton this morning. His hearing was set for February 4. Bond was fixed [illegible], which was furnished by relatives.

McKinley Day was observed by many today and carnations were much in evidence.

Donovan Miles, Rannie Custer, Harlan Filer and Willie Davis, four boys were certified to the Juvenile court today by Justice Brayton. They are charged with disturbing Bridge Tender Fulton at the Salt Lake draw, by throwing rocks at him and taking his boat to the other side of the channel.

Commissioner and Mrs. Estill, territorial leaders of the Salvation Army, who lately returned from Japan, will be guests of the local corps, February 16.

The annual picnic of former residents of Fulton county, Ill., will be held here on Washington's birthday, February 22. The picknickers will come from all over Southern California.

HIGH SCHOOL ENROLLMENT.

Enrollment of High School students for the spring term, which opens Monday, began this morning and seventy-two signed, most of them graduates from the grammar schools.

Ray Morgan, a graduate of the local High School, has been appointed as assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church of Chicago.

The basketball champions of the High School today slaughtered the Santa Monica six by a score of 62 to 1. The visitors were lacking in team work and defense and the locals scored until they were tired.

OPPOSITION SWEPT AWAY.

No Objection Now in Santa Monica to Opening Fremont Avenue from Sea to City Limits.

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 29.—Opposition to the proposed opening, widening and paving of Fremont avenue from the sea to the city limits on the east was swept away at a meeting of the property owners of that street held last night in Irwin Heights. This may be accepted as the second step in the direction of an air line boulevard connecting Los Angeles and the beach. The first step came with the acceptance of the commissioners named to assess the benefits and damages to accrue by reason of the creation of the road. Their report carries with it the creation of an assessment district from which will be collected the $15,000 required for rights of way and to meet the payment of damages.

It is now up to the property owners to petition the City Council for the required improvement, after the boulevard shall have been formally opened. It remains to be decided if the road shall be oiled and graveled for a width of sixty or forty feet, and whether there shall be curb and gutter for the entire distance on both sides. The preliminary estimate of $1.30 for each front foot on either side has been found, by the proposals of contractors, to be somewhat higher than the cost will be. For the purpose of investigating these matters before the circulation of the petition for the paving a committee was appointed to secure estimates and make recommendations relative to the kind of improvement that would be best. That committee consists of Messrs. W. I. Hull, G. W. Young, L. A. Briggs, Bell and Towner. When their report is ready, this committee will call another mass meeting for the purpose of formulating the petition for the improvement.

This is the one boulevard that will place the automobile fraternity of Los Angeles in close touch with the ocean by a direct route. Sawtelle, as a city, will carry improvement through that town from the east end to the west, and the county highway and Wilshire boulevard will make direct connection with Los Angeles.

GLENDALE.

GLENDALE, Jan. 29.—The loan art exhibition, held in the High School building under the auspices of the Parents-Teachers' Association, closed tonight. The generous patronage furnished a fund sufficient to provide several pictures for each school in the federation, which includes the three grammar establishments here, and that of Tropico.

The High School baseball team defeated Harvard School here this afternoon, 14 to 9.

Extermination of Catarrh Germs Now an Easy Task

Death to all tyrants! Immediate death to the most stupendous army of tyrants that America has to deal with.

The catarrh microbe must go; the people have decided. The pernicious, persistent and relentless destroyer of health and life must be conquered and nothing but a campaign of absolute extermination will be tolerated.

If you have mucous in your throat or nose in the morning; if you hawk and blow and spit for some minutes before you are able to do anything; if you have a bad taste in the mouth, crusts in the nose, breath that won't make friends, then the microbes of catarrh are devouring the membrane that lines your nose and throat and it is high time you destroyed every one of them.

The way to destroy these microbes is to breathe air that is filled with an antiseptic strong enough to kill them and yet mild enough not to irritate or inflame the tender membrane.

Stomach dosing won't do it; sprays, ointments and douches cannot penetrate the folds and crevices where microbes thrive and flourish.

There is only one way to kill catarrh germs and cure catarrh, and that is by breathing Hyomei (High-o-me.)

This healing, soothing antiseptic, which enters your lungs in the form of vaporized air, comes from the eucalyptus trees of inland Australia and will reach the infested parts and kill the germs in a short time.

Breathe Hyomei; it will clean out your miserable, stuffed up head in two minutes; it will stop that hawking, snuffling and spitting in a few days.

Breathe Hyomei and kill the germs that are undermining your health and making your life miserable.

Breathe pleasant Hyomei; it is guaranteed to cure catarrh, coughs, colds, sore throat, croup and bronchitis or money back.

A complete outfit, including hard rubber pocket inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei and full instructions for use, costs $1.00 at druggists everywhere.

If you now own an inhaler you can get a bottle of Hyomei (liquid) for only 50 cents. Mail orders filled by Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

City Directory Shows Gratifying Increase in Population—Many Cottages Erected.

COLTON, Jan. 29.—That this city is growing well is evident from the new directory, which gives an increase of over 150 residents within the year. It is estimated the population now is between 4500 and 5000. A large number of new cottages are being constructed in all sections of town, and some large business enterprises are planned.

The Foresters held installation of officers last evening in Society Hall. Following the work a banquet was served.

WARM WEATHER BRINGS AFFECTED FRUIT FROM TREES.

Cold Proves Advantage in Disguise as It Prevents Already Too Large Oranges Getting Any Bigger. Disgusted Burglar Operates at Redlands—High School Show.

REDLANDS, Jan. 29.—The warm weather has served to show how many oranges were frozen, as the affected fruit is dropping rapidly. In some groves 15 per cent. suffered. During the week ending yesterday ninety cars were sent forward, while during the corresponding period last year 135 cars were shipped. The total to date is 626 cars. Three cars of lemons have gone forward this year.

The cold stopped the growth of much fruit, thus proving an advantage in disguise. Many oranges were already much over size in some sections, and if allowed to expand would have proven unprofitable to the grower. Although the fruit retails for high prices if it is large, the price per box received is at least 50 cents less for "off" sizes. Some California fruit has sold for as low as 85 cents a box this week in eastern markets; on the other hand, some brought top prices, the good fruit being in demand at high figures.

POLO PLAYERS READY.

Tournament for Mackey Cup Will Be Held at Riverside the Middle of Next Month.

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 29.—At a meeting called by President Robert Lee Bettner yesterday, it was decided that the big tournament of the polo clubs of the Southern California Polo and Pony Racing Association, will open February 16.

The trophy is the Frank J. Mackey Cup, which has been competed for annually on the grounds of the Riverside Polo Club for the past four years. Games will be held every day, with the exception of Sunday, until Washington's birthday, when the grand finals will be played.

In the tournament will be a Coronado team, two Riverside teams, the Southwest four, one from Hermosillo, Mex., and possibly a Burlingame team and one from the Twentieth Hussars.

The cup has twice been won by Riverside and twice by English teams. As it becomes the permanent possession of the club which wins it three times, the local players are especially desirous of making a strong showing.

Next week Riverside players and the Southwest team will compete for a cup.

Death came suddenly yesterday to Mrs. Catherine Caldwell, one of the early settlers of Riverside. Up to within a few moments of her death she seemed in her usual health. She spoke of a slight indisposition and went to her couch to rest. When her daughter, Mrs. E. J. Bryan, went in to see her shortly after, it was found that she had passed away. She was 70 years of age.

The children are George N. Reynolds of Riverside, now on a tour around the world; Mrs. Maggie Robinson of Kingston, Ont.; Mrs. Kate Pottinger of Monrovia; Mrs. Sarah Pettit of Redlands; Mrs. E. J. Bryan of Riverside and Thomas S. Caldwell of Oakland.

Mrs. D. C. Twogood, the second white woman to settle in Riverside, died at her home on Prospect avenue last evening as the result of an attack of heart trouble. She came here from Belle Plaine, Iowa, in 1870, with her husband and two daughters, and took an active interest in the life of the community. She leaves a widower, the daughters having died several years ago. She was 74 years old.

The body of John D. North, the prominent attorney who died in London on the 9th inst., arrived today. The funeral service will be held Tuesday at the house.

COURT TAKES TO TASK A MAN SWIFT TO SEEK DIVORCE.

San Diego Judge Follows Up Lecture by Refusing Absolute Decree and Ordering Him to Pay Thirty Dollars Monthly to Wife—Mexican Accused of Kidnaping.

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Judge Guy of the Superior Court today refused to grant B. C. Fricke an absolute divorce from Nellie Evans Fricke, following a sensational trial which lasted two weeks. The court ordered Fricke to pay his wife $30 a month, the court costs and $50 for his wife's attorney fee. Fricke was taken to task by the court for his haste in instituting divorce proceedings six weeks after their marriage. While the wife was not held wholly blameless for their troubles, the court said the husband showed lack of judgment in his conduct toward her. Fricke sues on the ground that he suffered severe indignities while with his wife in public places and that she was addicted to strong drink. The couple were wed in Los Angeles after an elopement from this city. They were pursued by a sister of the young woman, and a local police officer, who arrived too late to spoil wedding plans. Both Fricke and his wife are now in Los Angeles. They were represented in court today by counsel.

STEALS CHILD?

Kidnaping his fourteen-year-old step-daughter and keeping her in the brush across the border for three days, is the charge against Juan Alderez, arrested late last night and arraigned this morning in justice court.

Alderez was betrayed by his wife, mother of the girl, who sent a decoy letter to her husband telling him all would be forgiven if he would return. According to the story of the girl when she returned home her stepfather caused her to get up from bed late at night and forced her to walk with him to Tia Juana, where he made a rude camp in a thicket and kept her there three nights. She suffered severe indignities and was without clothing. The girl says Alderez finally secured an old suit of boy's clothes and forced her to don it so her identity could not be easily ascertained. He then started with her to one of the railroad camps near Otay and while they were begging for something to eat at a house a woman recognized the supposed boy as a girl. Believing that something was wrong she immediately locked the girl in her house and telephoned to the San Diego police. Alderez then fled back into Mexico. The girl was taken to her home.

MIX-UP OVER ROADS.

Whether the Highway Commission or the Supervisors have the right to spend money for good roads is a subject investigated by the grand jury as indicated in its report made public yesterday. That body upholds and commends Dist.-Atty. Utley for the stand he takes in advising the Supervisors that the money expended under the bond issue must pass through their hands before it can be paid out by the Highway Commission. Members of the latter body accused Utley of meddling with the affairs of the commission.

CASHIER MUST ANSWER.

Official of Japanese Bank Sent Up to Superior Court at Santa Ana. Marriage Licenses.

SANTA ANA, Jan. 29.—Justice of the Peace Smithwick today held M. Takekawa, cashier of the Japanese-American Bank of Los Angeles, to answer in the Superior Court on a charge of perjury. Takekawa gave a $5000 bond. His attorney may take habeas corpus proceedings on the ground that there was not a sufficiency of evidence to hold the man. Takekawa is accused of having testified falsely in the trial of a civil case last September in which he was plaintiff and W. J. Hole defendant.

GOO-GOO TICKET.

It was stated at a meeting of the Good Government League last night that the league expects to have a county ticket in the field this year. Marshal Stimson of Los Angeles addressed the meeting.

Pomona High School debaters defeated the Santa Ana High School last night by 192 points against 188.

Marriage licenses: Andrew Strathearn, 26, and Electa L. Alldridge, 36, both of Los Angeles; Leslie G. Bunker, 35, and Anna B. Nelius, 35, both of Los Angeles; George W. Moore, 60, and Isabella B. Huber, 60, both of Los Angeles.

SURVEYOR AT WORK.

Will Define Corporate Limits of Chino Preparatory to Incorporation of That Place.

ONTARIO, Jan. 29.—H. L. Cook, County Surveyor, was in Ontario last evening on his way to define the boundary lines of Chino, which is preparing to incorporate as a city of the sixth class. With a force of six helpers he will be engaged in the work for a week or ten days.

He will also do some surveying for the Chino Land and Water Company to make more definite the boundaries of some of the subdivisions of the old Spanish land grant known as the Chino ranch, which has become the property of the company.

As organized at the lecture rooms of the science hall of the Ontario High School, the Y.M.C.A. night class for the study of electricity has an enrollment of thirty-six members.

Big Limoneira Ranch in Ventura County Pays Dividend of One Hundred Thousand Dollars.

VENTURA, Jan. 29.—The Limoneira lemon and walnut ranch of this county, one of the largest agricultural corporations in the country, makes a favorable report for the past season. It shipped 114,767 boxes of lemons, besides 267 tons of English walnuts. The Limoneira claims the largest bearing lemon orchard in the country in one piece—500 acres. The resources of the concern foot up $1,045,043.42, and cash received from all sources during the year was $577,152.65. The corporation paid in dividends to stockholders $100,000. The average price received per car for lemons the past year was $930, which was a little more than that obtained the previous year, but much lower than 1906-07. The ranch employs 230 men, and sells large quantities of hay, wood, olives, beans and beets. C. C. Teague is the general manager.

Petitions have been filed with the County Superintendent of Schools for the establishment of a new district, to be known as Aliso. It is proposed to cut it off Briggs and Saticoy. The heads of fifteen families have signed the petitions. Under present conditions children in Aliso Cañon have to travel over five miles to school. A portion of the big Limoneira ranch is included in the boundaries of the new district.

Forest Supervisor Slosson announces that tree planting on the reservation in Thacher Cañon in the Ojai Valley is completed. Over 25,000 young trees were put out on ground which was burned over last season.

Flock Master Reports Average Fleece of Seven Pounds from Ewes in Imperial Valley.

EL CENTRO, Jan. 29.—A four-horse team hauled in a ton of wool from the Ferris Ranch Company's ranch, south of Silsbee, this week. It was shipped from El Centro to a Los Angeles firm. This represents the clip from 500 sheep, a growth of four months. The ewes of this flock averaged seven pounds to the fleece this clipping. Within the last few months the sheep interests of Imperial Valley have largely expanded, many hundred head having been brought in from the ranges of Arizona.

BEET EXPERIMENTS.

H. Egge, who has been carrying on experimental work with sugar beets on plats of land near El Centro and Holtville, reports that the beet growths have been much retarded by the cold weather of this winter. He will resume planting within a few days, but has become satisfied that late spring plantings in Imperial Valley are useless.

Thousands of eucalyptus trees are being set out on the ranches of Imperial Valley this spring, and this planting will continue until late in the spring. It is estimated by the nurserymen that last spring more than 1,000,000 trees were set out in this valley.

GETS TITLE.

The board of trustees of the Central Union High School has received from R. H. Balcom, a certificate of title to the ten-acre tract of land which Mr. Balcom has donated to the district as a site for the new High School. He has also donated to the Supervisors of Imperial county a tract of ten acres, five acres of which lie on the south and five on the north of Main street, as a site for the permanent courthouse.

TO BUILD TRESTLES.

The Pacific Electric Company has been given authority by the War Department to erect two trestles over Cerritos Slough, northeast of Long Beach harbor. One of the provisions of the permit is that the trestles must be removed or altered within thirty days after notice by the department. The bridges will be twelve feet above mean low water, with sixteen feet between the bents. This will allow the passage of small craft. If the time comes when navigation demands the dredging of the slough, drawbridges will replace the trestle bridges.

WHEN DINNER COMES

One Ought to Have a Good Appetite.

A good appetite is the best sauce. It goes a long way toward helping in the digestive process, and that is absolutely essential to health and strength.

Many persons have found that Grape-Nuts food is not only nourishing but is a great appetizer. Even children like the taste of it and grow strong and rosy from its use.

It is especially the food to make a weak stomach strong and create an appetite for dinner.

"I am 57 years old," writes a Tenn. grandmother, "and have had a weak stomach from childhood. By great care as to my diet I enjoyed a reasonable degree of health, but never found anything to equal Grape-Nuts as a standby.

"When I have no appetite for breakfast and just eat to keep up my strength, I take four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with good rich milk, and when dinner comes I am hungry. While if I go without any breakfast I never feel like eating dinner. Grape-Nuts for breakfast seems to make a healthy appetite for dinner.

"My little 13-months-old grandson had been very sick with stomach trouble during the past summer, and finally we put him on Grape-Nuts. Now he is growing plump and well. When asked if he wants his nurse or Grape-Nuts, he brightens up and points to the cupboard. He was no trouble to wean at all—thanks to Grape-Nuts."

SUNFLOWERS BLOOM.

Kansas Day Club Celebrates With Banquet at Hotel Hayward. Happy Affair Enjoyed.

The "Rose Garden" dining-room at the Hotel Hayward resembled "Grandmother's Garden" last night. Among its green palms and red candelabra, blazed a hundred plus yellow sunflowers, on the breast of the breezy banqueters of the Kansas Day Club.

It was a happy gathering of folks that sat at the tables, chatting over old times in the "Sunflower State," and laughing over the recollections of the days back in the old home, where the January sun shone not with midsummer fervency.

H. H. Huntsberger, president of the club, was master of ceremonies, and at the close of the feast, delivered a cordial address of welcome to the guests, closing with the introduction of Prof. L. A. Handley as toastmaster.

Prof. Handley happily presented each speaker, and the following responses were made: "A Message from the Old State," Senator Thomas M. Potter of Kansas; "Our Adopted State," Charles A. Fellows; "Kansas, the Home of the Soldier," Col. O. H. Coulter, Santa Ana; "The Young Manhood of Kansas," P. P. Plumb; "The Realms Above," George B. Harrison, aëronaut; "The Land of the Sunflower," Lee C. Gates. A violin solo by Carlton Wood made a break in the middle of the oratorical feast.

ARE YOU GETTING WHAT'S COMING TO YOU?

Food That Is Eaten and Undigested Is A Waste of Time and Vital Energy

A Trial Package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Sent Free

It is a true saying, and one that has never been refuted, that, "It is not alone what you eat that builds you up and supplies heat, energy and strength, and rebuilds the tissues and cells of the body, but what you digest of the food eaten."

The great importance of the digestive and nutritional processes and their relation to the proper maintenance of good health has long been recognized by physicians.

The person whose digestive and nutritive functions are adequately performed generates within himself a power of resistance against which disease or disease germs will battle in vain.

Every normal person possesses a certain amount of resisting power, and when the functions of digestion are up to the highest point of activity and capability they create conditions which are very unfavorable to the growth or development of disease germs, while on the other hand, should the nutritional and digestive powers fall below the average, germs develop rapidly and the system falls an easy victim to disease.

The importance of the stomach in the maintenance of the general health, and the power to resist disease or bacterial invasion, cannot be overestimated, and if this organ is weak and inefficient you are simply not getting what should be coming to your general system from the food ingested, and the constitution is being partially starved.

It is always an easy matter to get all that is coming to your system from the food eaten when you use STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS after meals. In no other anti-dyspepsia remedy can you get so much digestive power as is embodied in these tablets, a single grain of which will quickly digest 3000 grains of all kinds of food.

When you use these tablets, you have the absolute assurance that all of the nutritious food eaten will be digested and assimilated, and will go to build up new tissue and new cells; and when the building-up processes of the body are equal to, or in excess of the tearing-down processes, then the good health and integrity of the entire general system will continue indefinitely unimpaired.

Purchase a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets from your druggist for 50c, and use them regularly in order to make sure that your body and all its organs are receiving from the food all the nutriment necessary to keep it built up and enable it to resist disease. A postal card mailed to the F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich., will bring a free sample of this great remedy for dyspepsia and indigestion by return mail.

"All My Life a Sufferer from Chronic Catarrh. I Now Feel Like a New Man."

S. FLECK, 428 N. Grand ave., Los Angeles, says: "I have had Chronic Catarrh all my life. It affected my throat, stomach and head. My nose was always stopped up so that at night I could not breathe through it, interfering with my rest. I would also hawk and spit a great deal, especially in the morning. I had asthma. My stomach also became affected. I could not digest my food. I would bloat up and suffer with bilious attacks. This kept me run down all my life. I NEVER EXPECTED TO BE WELL. This was my condition when I began Drs. Shores & Shores' wonderful treatment four (4) months ago. They helped me from the first day, and I have gained right along. I feel like a new man. I weigh eight (8) pounds more and feel fine in every way. My catarrhal troubles are practically all cured, thanks to Drs. Shores' skill. I feel that sufferers ought to know of Drs. Shores' wonderful treatment, for they have made a new man out of me. Anyone doubting this statement is at perfect liberty to call on me and I will gladly verify this testimonial.

(Signed) "S. FLECK."

TODAY and TOMORROW

ALL DISEASES FREE

Consultation and Examination

Hundreds of people are doctoring themselves—hundreds of others are being treated for the wrong disease by doctors who do not make a specialty of chronic diseases. Under such treatment cures are very rare; in fact, you are lucky if you don't get worse. Disease cannot be trifled with. You may become a permanent invalid through experimenting. The ONLY SAFE WAY is to be treated by doctors who know how to properly treat and permanently cure disease. Doctors Shores & Shores can and do cure thousands of people—No matter what the disease is—and their fees are the lowest ever charged by reliable specialists; for Drs. Shores know that every dollar counts to people who are sick—and the wage-earning public know that in these skilled doctors they have true friends—and that if their disease is curable the cost will be low, for there is no better treatment at any price.

THE WEIGHT OF EVIDENCE.

For seventeen (17) years Drs. Shores & Shores have been piling up as evidence testimonials from cured patients. People who know that Drs. Shores' treatment cures; people who have tested the treatment in their own case and speak from personal experience. Do you doubt their word? What better evidence could we offer than the statements from the lips of cured patients all testifying to one fact, that Drs. Shores & Shores' treatment cures.

Cotton Rancho

From $35 to $60 Per Acre With Water Rights

The Cotton Rancho, which borders along the Colorado River for more than twenty-five miles, opposite the City of Needles, California, is now open for settlement and represents the best opportunity for increased land values and for homemaking now offered the Los Angeles public.

INEXHAUSTIBLE SOIL

The tract contains 24,000 acres of rich river silt washed down from the canyons of the Colorado River through countless centuries. It is irrigated by the water of the river which produced it and its soil cannot be exhausted because Colorado River water carries with it a fertilizing strength equal, according to Prof. Forbes of the Arizona Experimental Station, to $8.50 per acre of commercial fertilizer, per annum.

WATER

The Rancho has an unfailing water supply—unlimited in quantity, insured for all time to come by early water filings on the Colorado River and a splendid irrigation system. You have no water to develop at Cotton Rancho—it is there ready to be turned on the land.

Our First Excursion

Will leave Los Angeles on Wednesday evening, February 2nd, 1910, at eight o'clock, arriving at Needles about six o'clock the following morning. Round trip $14.50 in parties of three or over.

Persons wishing to avail themselves of this initial opportunity may obtain additional information either in person or by 'phone at the office of the MEETING OF LOYAL LEGION.

A meeting of Southern California Commandery, Companions of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, was held last night at the residence of Maj. E. F. C. Klokke, Figueroa and Twenty-first streets, and was attended by ninety-five of the veteran officers of the Civil War. A luncheon was served, a number of brief speeches were made, and the time passed in pleasant fellowship, in the recounting of incidents in the war experience of many of the participants.

TWELVE THOUSAND GAIN.

The number of parcels registered at the local postoffice and branches during the month of December was 84,763, a net gain of 12,668 over December, 1908. While the increase is largely due to the growth of the general business of the postoffice, it is also taken to mean that more persons register Christmas packages than was formerly the case.

Tailormade Suits—such as are show at the "UNIQUE"

are shown nowhere else in Los Angeles

THERE is no other ready-to-wear garment house in Los Angeles that carries the class of garments to which the "Unique" confines its selections. And for this reason—women who desire the most exclusive garments it is possible to procure, and the highest class tailoring that is available, invariably rely on the "Unique."

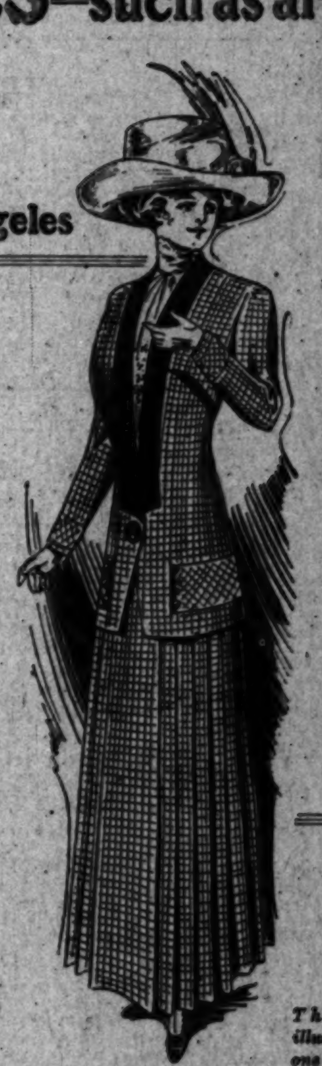
There is only one "Unique" in Los Angeles and only one place where "Unique" garments may be had.

Designers and makers who are competent to produce garments of the character shown at the "Unique," are decidedly limited—and therefore the garments of this character are limited—they cannot be secured in the average store.

And yet—these exclusive "Unique" styles cost no more than is often paid for ordinary garments of entirely inferior character and quality.

Now—before you buy your new garments—is the time to acquaint yourself with these facts.

There are hundreds of new suits and gowns here that will interest you. We invite you to come and get your hints of the styles that will prevail throughout this season.



The garment illustrated is one of our classy shepherd plaid tailored suits, sketched from life.

A PRESCRIPTION SERVICE YOU CAN RELY ON

The fact that the Boswell and Noyes prescription department enjoys the confidence, the patronage and recommendation of the leading physicians of Los Angeles is significant of the reliability and accuracy of the prescription service we render. This department is entirely apart from the rest of our store, and the pharmacists who fill your prescriptions here do nothing else—their attention is absolutely undivided.

It is worth a good deal to have such a prescription service—to be able to confidently know that your prescriptions are accurately and carefully filled—and yet, at Boswell & Noyes—such a service costs no more than you would pay for ordinary service any place else.

REMEMBER, YOUR LIFE IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT. YOU FAIL BECAUSE YOU ARE WORKING ALONG WRONG LINES. YOU SUCCEED WHEN RIGHTLY DIRECTED. THOUSANDS IN CALIFORNIA OWE THEIR SUCCESS TO ME. WHY NOT GET ADVICE THAT HELPS RATHER THAN TO SEEK ADVICE FROM THOSE WHO VANISH AWAY IN A NIGHT, BEFORE THEIR PREDICTIONS CAN BE PROVEN? STABILITY COUNTS.

SEE THE BEST.

YOU RUN NO RISK IN CONSULTING MILBURN. HIS WORK IS TOO WELL KNOWN; A RESIDENT OF THIS CITY FOR TWENTY-THREE YEARS, A PROPERTY OWNER. YOU DO NOT FIND HIM CONFINED IN A SMALL PLACE, BUT IN A LARGE AND COMMODIOUS BUILDING COMPOSED OF TWELVE ROOMS DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO THE STUDY OF THE OCCULT. TO GET RESULTS YOU MUST HAVE PROPER CONDITIONS. HE ALSO AFFORDS YOU THE STRICTEST PRIVACY.

HIS QUALIFICATIONS.

BORN IN INDIA, UNDER THE SHADOW OF THE GREAT TEMPLES, EDUCATED IN A PSYCHIC ATMOSPHERE, A GRADUATE PALMIST AND ASTROLOGER, WHO HAS BEEN BEFORE THE PUBLIC AS A READER AND LECTURER FOR THE PAST FORTY YEARS. IN THAT TIME HE HAS VISITED MOST OF THE LARGE CITIES, BOTH IN EUROPE AND AMERICA. IT WILL PAY YOU TO SEE HIM. HE WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT NO MATTER WHAT YOUR EXPERIENCE WITH OTHERS HAS BEEN, HE IS A PSYCHIC.

MY GUARANTEE.

If you do not get what you want and find my reading superior to any you have ever had, it will cost you nothing. Do not go through life in darkness and despair when you may have light, if you will but seek after it. I will give you names, facts and figures that will convince you.

DON'T LOOK OLD—

IT IS JUST AS NECESSARY TO FILL A HOLLOW IN THE FACE AS A CAVITY IN A TOOTH, JUST AS SAFE, SANE AND SCIENTIFIC.

MME. M. REMA, THE WORLD'S GREATEST COMPLEXION SPECIALIST AND LADY DERMATOLOGIST, WHO HAS CREATED SO MUCH EXCITEMENT IN NEW YORK WITH HER ORIGINAL IMMEDIATE PROCESS OF REMOVING DEEP WRINKLES AND ROUNDING OUT THE FACE AND FORM INTO HEALTHFUL LOVELINESS, IS PERMANENTLY LOCATED AT 517 S. BROADWAY, WHERE SHE WILL BE PLEASED TO MEET HER FRIENDS AND FORMER PATRONS OF THIS AND OTHER CITIES. HER MARVELOUS SKILL IN REMOVING WRINKLES, FROWNS, MOUTH AND DIMPLE LINES, CROWFEET AND ROUNDING OUT HOLLOW CHEEKS, TEMPLE, NECK, ARMS, SHOULDERS, BUST, ETC., HAS MADE HER FAMOUS THIS WORLD OVER, AND HER SIMPLE AND SCIENTIFIC METHOD HAS RECEIVED THE HIGHEST INDORSEMENTS FROM PHYSICIANS, SURGEONS AND OTHERS FAMILIAR WITH ITS MERITS. Mme. M. Rema has had 23 years' experience along these lines. She will be in her Los Angeles parlors and give expert consultation and advice free. No matter how saggy or hollow the cheeks, how baggy or puffy the eyelids, how scrawny the neck, or how deep the wrinkles, Mme. M. Rema's Original Scientific Treatment will RESTORE THE FACIAL CONTOUR OF YOUTH PERMANENTLY AND HARMLESSLY in one or two visits, something which no other process or specialist can do. No paraffine, Cracking or Lumping, but a most natural and healthful process. Paraffine removed, Pittings, Birthmarks, Scars, Moles, Warts, Superfluous Hair, Moth patches, Freckles, Shine, excessive redness, oiliness removed and the skin made fine-grained, soft and beautiful. Registered physicians in attendance. All branches of Beauty Culture taught. Call or address MME. M. REMA, Parlors 300-302 Remick Bldg., 517 S. Broadway, Los Angeles. 30

PERSONAL—

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store,) by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND-READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines, that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT INFORMATION.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions, and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill-luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL. MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED. (Daily and evenings; Sundays, 9 to 5.) x

PERSONAL—MME. LE PIERRO, BORN LIFE READER AND PALMIST. Tells you all she sees for you, without asking any questions; consult a reliable life reader. She can and will do all she advertises.

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,

305½ S. SPRING, NEAR THIRD ST. EXPERT ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST.

A resident of Los Angeles 26 years.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The HOROSCOPE—calculated from the PLANETS at your birth, will show what a powerful influence they have in all affairs of life. It shows diseases, deaths, domestic affairs, financial affairs; your talents; your environments; tells about children; when and where to travel; what to seek and what to avoid; when in danger of illness, accidents, death, losses, troubles, etc., also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES OF THESE EVENTS FOR THE FUTURE. In fact, the HOROSCOPE gives ACCURATE AND RELIABLE information on ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE. He read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Maxine Elliott, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, Senator Clark, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Lillian Russell, Calve, Sembrich, Julia Marlowe, H. E. Huntington, Admiral Evans, Jefferson, Anna Held, Annie Besant, Joaquin Miller, Baron Rothschild, Fritzi Scheff, Capt. Hobson, M. Paulhan, Fritz Kreisler, Aphie James, etc. These are a few of the many NOTED PUBLIC persons—and for this reason only are they here mentioned—all positively read by Prof. Althouse, besides hundreds of the best people of Los Angeles, with whom all his readings are STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S skilled work must in no wise be classed with that of other readers; therefore beware of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychics, clairvoyants, etc.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an expert PALMIST, and WITH EACH PALM READING GIVES ALSO AN ASTROLOGICAL READING.

PROF. ALTHOUSE, in September, 1908, PUBLICLY predicted—by the PLANETS—the election of TAFT, and the defeat of BRYAN.

DR. J. A. LARSON writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory thing I have ever had in my life. I know a great deal about these sciences and I consider your work as the most thorough and reliable of any reader in the United States."

LOUIS JAMES says: "I wish to say that your reading was entirely SATISFACTORY."

FREDERICK WARDE says: "Your reading was most SATISFACTORY. Your knowledge and skill is REMARKABLE."

PAPINTA, actress, writes and says: "Everything has turned out just as you predicted, when reading my hand and Horoscope. YOU ARE WONDERFUL, and I cannot express myself of what I think about your WONDERFUL TRUE READINGS."

MME. BALDWIN writes: "The Horoscope you wrote for me is absolutely CORRECT. My friend, MME. NORDICA, the singer, first showed me her Horoscope, and recommended your work to me. Inclosed find check for four more Horoscopes—all friends of mine."

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK says: "I was greatly surprised to find how many of your warnings were well founded. YOUR READING WAS MOST MARVELOUS."

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of horoscopes and hand reading has brought him a large and successful practice. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances.

HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and experience can produce; therefore, HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

Daily and evening. Sunday, 10 to 2. STUDIO PARLORS, 305½ S. SPRING ST. x30

WANTED—

If you don't like your job; if your future isn't bright; if you have a burning ambition to win increased pay, promotion and success, read this advertisement clear through.

A bluejacket of U. S. battleship Missouri has this to say of his experience in the Navy:

"I have been in the Navy about a year and a half and I have seen more sights and foreign ports than many rich people who have traveled a good many more years and spent a great deal of money.

"We have just completed a cruise around the 'Horn' of fourteen thousand miles, and we are now on the eve of another cruise of twenty-eight thousand miles, completing the trip around the world.

"Our work in the Navy is comparatively light; we only have to work about four hours a day. We have splendid things to eat and lots of it. The treatment in the Navy is as near like home as it can be made to be.

"We have many entertainments on board, such as moving pictures, minstrel shows, up-to-date boxing and many other interesting things.

"We also have baseball teams, football teams, basket teams and track teams. The athletic sports are greatly encouraged by the officials.

"I think the Navy is the place for a young fellow. The Navy is healthy in every way, morally, mentally and physically. One keeps good habits and see some very educational things.

"There is also an opportunity for a young man to make a start in life. You have no expenses to speak of and it is not long before a bright and energetic fellow can increase his pay to $40 or $50 a month.

"He can easily put away $25 a month in our ship's bank, which pays 4 per cent. interest.

"When my enlistment is up I shall do four more years. I do not want anything better than this."

Nearly every man in the Navy will write a letter like this. Ask some of them how they like their jobs.

The Navy Department wants men, but doesn't urge any young man to join the Navy. It only urges you to find out what the Navy can do for you. Then you must decide as to joining.

Will you refuse to investigate or will you talk it over with a recruiting officer today? You'll find him obliging and glad to tell you everything. Should you decide not to enlist you will have done no harm. Nearest Recruiting Office to you is San Fernando Bldg., 4th and Main sts., Los Angeles, Cal.

If you prefer to know more about the Navy before going to Recruiting Office, send for an interesting illustrated booklet. Tells you everything you want to know about a bluejacket's life; also how to join the Navy.

Get your pen or pencil and post card and send for this book before you forget it. You'll be glad you did.

FOR SALE—THE WEST COAST MILL CO. have just completed another addition to their Poultry Feed Mill and Warehouse, corner Griffin and Alhambra aves. This is the second time they have had to enlarge since they moved into their new plant, about 18 months ago. Their trade is growing rapidly, good goods and right prices tell the story. Send for free booklet, describing their products, with what many others say about them.

$2.50 FREE. If you will send us the addresses of ten persons who have any fowls, we will send you, postpaid, an article worth 50 cents, which many say no household should be without. If you will send us 25 addresses, we will also send you The Poultry Manual, profusely illustrated, by those high authorities, F. L. Sewell and Ida E. Tilson, a reliable work worth 50 cents, but free to you. For 100 addresses, we will also send free, and expressage prepaid, another most useful article which sells in the East at $2. We merely want to send to them, by mail, some advertising matter, but your name will not be mentioned in connection with it in any way.

Automobiles.

PACIFIC AUTOMOBILE COMPANY,

1150-1156 South Main.

President, Wm. Grundy. Vice-President, J. R. Grundy.
C. Fred Grundy, Manager.

We have experienced another great week's business, having delivered a large number of cars running in price from $325 to $2900.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

We purchased for spot cash six (6) new automobiles which list at $1800 each and they arrived yesterday. We sold two during the day and we predict the other four will be gone by Monday night. Our price $1400.

By reason of our contract with the manufacturer we are not permitted to advertise the name, but come and see.

We will show you the swellest light touring car you have ever seen; speed from 3 miles to 55 miles on the high. Bosch high tension magneto; every bearing in the car a genuine imported Hess Bright. Rides like a Pullman palace car and only weighs 1850 lbs.

BETTER HURRY. THEY WON'T LAST.

A FEW OTHER

BARGAINS.

Cadillac "30," new; fine top and wind shield. $1500.

COLUMBIA

TOY TONNEAU.

Truly a gem. If you are willing to invest $2000 in a car see this, and do it quickly.

STODDARD-DAYTON.

We have three of these cars from $975 to $1600.

TWO BUICK WHITE STREAKS.

Both practically new. $750 and $950. You can't beat them.

THOMAS 6-CYL., 40 H.P.

A beauty. Toy tonneau. The swellest little car in town.

CHALMERS DETROIT.

5 pass., fully equipped. Looks and works like new. Some one is going to get a great snap in this car.

OLDSMOBILE.

A standard car in A1 shape. 1-4 of its original price.

PEERLESS

at only $1250. Have us demonstrate this car for you. It's a bargain.

PIERCE ARROW.

A great 7-pass. car; magnificent equipment; like new. Only $2750.

ROYAL TOURIST.

A fine car, at only $1650.

TWO WHITE STEAMERS.

They are right in quality and price. 1909 model.

DOZENS OF OTHER CARS.

Investigate our methods; they are unique. We are the ONLY house handling used automobiles who give a real guarantee, and we are the ONLY house that can give you unquestioned financial references.

If you have a good car you want to sell, bring it around. We are the only dealers who pay spot cash for automobiles.

We can satisfy you.

WRITE TO THIS WOMAN

If You Want to Stop a Man From Drink.

She cured her husband, her brother and several of her neighbors, and now she generously offers to tell you of the simple, inexpensive remedy that she so successfully used. The remedy can be given to the patient unnoticed so there is no publicity of your private affairs. She is anxious to help others so we earnestly advise every one of our readers who has a dear one who drinks to drop her a line today. She makes no charge for this help, she has nothing to sell (she asks for no money and accepts none) so there is no reason why you should not write her at once. Of course, she expects that you are yourself personally interested in curing one who drinks, and are not writing out of mere curiosity. Send your letter in confidence to her home. Simply write your name and full address plainly in the coupon below and send it to her.

MRS. MARGARET ANDERSON,

CLASSY PLANT FOR WHITE SOX.

NEW PARK TO BE AMONG BEST IN THE COUNTRY.

Grand Stand and Bleachers Will Have All Good Features of Forbes Field and Then Some Innovations Not Seen in Other Parks—Formal Opening to Be in July.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—The new home of the American League Club at Thirty-fifth street and Wentworth avenue, will be formally opened on July 1, according to announcement made yesterday by President Comiskey.

"Without exception, the new park will be among the finest in the land" said Comiskey, "and we will profit by experiments of other magnates. The new stand and bleachers will have embodied in them all the features that have made both Forbes field, at Pittsburgh, and Shibe Park, at Philadelphia, stand out as the most magnificent plants in the country. In addition to this a great number of innovations will be installed that no other park can boast of."

Work on the new grounds will be started as soon as the frost leaves the ground.

Mr. Comiskey said it is his plan to have every State in the union represented by a delegate who will be here as his guest on the opening day.

PITCHERS' BATTLE.

MONROVIA TOO STRONG.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

MONROVIA, Jan. 29.—With the result doubtful to the last moment of the game, the Monrovia High School baseball team defeated Pasadena High this afternoon by a score of 2 to 1. Renaker made both runs for Monrovia and McLean saved the Crown City boys from a goose egg by knocking out a home run. Both pitchers had fine control. Monrovia is credited with but four hits and Pasadena with but two. Errors—Monrovia, four; Pasadena, six.

The line-up:

Monrovia.		Pasadena.
Glenny	catcher	Kent
Dismukes	pitcher	Baker
Booth	first base	Harris
Boyd	second base	Henderson
Renaker	third base	McLean
Shepherd	shortstop	Menning
Roy	left field	Welch
Whitcomb	center field	Newell
Cornes	right field	Holcomb

STANFORD NINE WINS.

MITCHELL BOYS STARS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Stanford 'varsity baseball team opened its season today by defeating St. Mary's College, 6 to 3. The Mitchell brothers of Los Angeles formed the Cardinal battery during the first six innings and the visitors failed to get a hit or run. Stanford suffered the same fate during the same period. Coach Presley used about twenty men. The showing made by the 'varsity was satisfactory for this time in the season.

The teams lined up as follows:

Stanford.		St. Mary's.
S. Mitchell	catcher	Simpson
M. Mitchell	pitcher	Leonard, Wilcox
Ganong	first base	Finnigan
McFadden	second base	Wilkinson
Tannant	shortstop	Fitzsimmons
Soper	third base	Wallace
Jordan	left field	Ross
Reed	center field	Leonhardt
Obear	right field	Bonnett

M'KINLEY CHAMPIONS.

The McKinley School five won the boys' senior basketball championship of the city grammar schools yesterday morning on the Thirtieth-street court by defeating the Twentieth-street team, 18 to 9, and the Grand-avenue quintette, 14 to 5.

The intermediate championship was also won by McKinley School by the count of 10 to 6. The girls' championship was won by the Twentieth-street five by default, Washington-street team being the principal contender in the senior section. The line-ups were:

Senior section:

McKinley.		Twentieth.
Koch	forward	C. Dudley
Ballard		Smith
Rees	center	Mills
Burbach	guard	Bennett
Payne		G. Dudley

Intermediate section:

McKinley.		Twentieth.
Ballard	forward	Reed
Grote		Smith
E. Dyer	center	Collins
R. Dyer	guard	Brown
Robinson		R. Smith

MASONIC PICTURE BANQUET.

Commemorating the successful work of Fred E. Vincent, outgoing Master of the Highland Park Masonic Lodge, many members of the fraternity met last night at the Union League and enjoyed a banquet tendered by W. N. Blood. Every one of the guests was called upon for a speech, and all showed forensic prowess. The star orators of the evening were Prof. James A. Foshay, Past Grand Master of Masonry in California; E. B. Spencer, J. H. Bean and Dr. S. E. Burke. Other rivals of Lord Chesterfield and Daniel Webster were Arthur D. Bond, Clark H. Shaw, W. N. Blood, C. S. Anderson, E. D. Jenks, Arthur H. Patterson, Charles McKenzie, E. W. Hopkins, John H. Frain, Harold Miller, R. W. Gray, Albert F. Grof, M.D.; Robert H. Morse, Fred E. Vincent, Herbert D. Alfonso, N. T. Piper, Jr., W. R. Morehouse, E. L. Koster, Edward Difaul, G. M. Duntly, Charles D. Lewis and T. R. Coles. The bill of fare or menu card was prepared in photographic language because of the fact that the guest of honor conducts a photographic establishment. Decorations in pictures were used, and some of the guests assert that they tried to make "every move a picture."

UNDELIVERED TELEGRAMS.

Undelivered messages are at the Western Union office, First and Spring streets, for J. P. Saunders, Mrs. Ben Whiteman, Miss Blanche Dorgan, Glenn H. Curtiss, R. L. Turner, McNally & Naugan, T. Lewis, Mrs. Caroline Jackson, Miss Zetta Carson, J. W. Miller, R. A. Dean, Walter H. Prier.

LIP CUT IN ACCIDENT.

William Sellenschidt, a German contractor living at No. 118 Winston street, was sent into the Receiving Hospital yesterday evening with a badly cut lip. He said he could not remember whether he had fallen off a street car or had been knocked down by one. His cut lip was sewed and he was sent home.

ENTERTAINMENT POSTPONED.

The entertainment under the auspices of the Catholic Federation of Societies, announced for tomorrow evening in Lincoln Hall, has been postponed until a later time.

INVEST YOUR MONEY IN HIGH GRAVITY OIL

Buy the stock of an oil company operating in a district where high gravity oil is produced.

Remember the higher the gravity of oil, the higher the price paid for it. The Ventura district is noted for its production of high gravity oil, and the Ventura Oil Development Company is operating on 640 acres of choice high gravity oil land in Ventura, almost surrounded by high gravity oil producing properties.

Six reasons why you should buy stock in the Ventura Oil Development Company at the present low price of 11 cents per share:

Reason No. One—Because:

The property consists of 640 acres, an entire section of land, all of which is oil bearing territory and capable of producing oil in very large quantities—there is easily room for 250 to 300 wells. Oil seepages are found in numerous places.

Reason No. Two—Because:

The oil here is of high gravity, running from 25 to 35 degrees, exceptionally adapted for refining purposes, and therefore in heavy demand at a high price. The market is unlimited.

Reason No. Three—Because:

The cost of drilling wells is much less than in most oil fields, as it is not necessary to use the expensive, heavy casing that is used in other parts of the State.

Reason No. Four—Because:

The property is located within a few minutes' walk of the railroad, and a mile of pipe will bring the oil to tank cars by gravity, thus eliminating the cost of pumping through the pipe line.

Reason No. Five—Because:

Oil for fuel and water for all purposes is right at hand—oil from our own immediate neighbors, water on the property. Water costs many companies thousands and thousands of dollars a year.

Reason No. Six—Because:

The company makes a report on the first of each month to every stockholder of record. This report covers not only the actual physical condition of the property, but includes a financial statement as well.

Development

Since Superintendent W. C. Daniel took hold of the work on the vast holdings of the Ventura property, very rapid progress has been made. We are just informed by wire that Well No. 2 has penetrated the first oil sand, and it is thought that this well can be completed within the next thirty days. His report is as follows:

LINCOLN MORTGAGE AND LOAN CO.,

Citizens' National Bank Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

Gentlemen: Since my last report to you regarding progress on property of the Ventura Oil Development Company, I beg to advise you that we have made considerable headway. We are down 450 feet with Well No. 1 with practically all the material for this well on the ground; have an abundance of wood cut for fuel, enough I think to last until we complete No. 2, at which time we will have oil. The bunk house is completed. We have one of the best camps in the country. Our whole rig, without exception, is one of the most complete in the State.

Well No. 2 is down 130 feet. Have installed a gasoline pumping plant which will make the cost of water for No. 2 very small and will enable us to sell water to our neighbors. In fact, I have just closed a contract with Mr. Dunn to furnish him with water. We expect to get oil here at a depth of six or seven hundred feet. With conditions in our favor, we should complete a well every six or seven weeks, even though we run but one shift. I would advise running two shifts as soon as possible as the work can be carried on more economically. The formation here is of such a nature that the holes stand up well with very little water encountered, which makes the cost of drilling far less than in other fields. Yours very truly,

(Signed) W. C. DANIEL, Supt.

This well No. 2 is being drilled on what is known as the shallow portion of the territory. Expert oil men inform us that we can sink on this portion of the territory a great quantity of wells that will be good producers, and be very easy and quite inexpensive to drill. Just as soon as No. 2 is completed, work will be commenced upon No. 3.

In the meantime, work is being pushed day in and day out on well No. 1, which is located on that part of the ground where it is thought the biggest wells will be brought in. This is in what is known as the deep territory. You see the property holdings of the Ventura Oil Development Company amount to 640 acres, or one square mile. The topography of the country is very rugged, and while part of the territory is shallow, other parts are deep. We doubt very much if all our clients really appreciate the wonderful possibilities offered in this immense tract of land. Just think of a company earning three or four thousand dollars per month, on 10 acres of land—and there are several companies doing this—and then consider that the Ventura Company has 640 acres of land. Also bear in mind that the Ventura Oil Development Company has a fifty-year lease on this property, and that it also has an option to buy the land outright.

This company is incorporated under the strict laws of the State of California, with a capital stock of three million shares, each of a par value of $1.00. It is all common stock; there is no preferred stock, and there is no bonded indebtedness. Every stockholder is on an absolutely equal basis, and in the returns in proportion to the number of shares of stock owned. Quite a number of the stockholders have visited the property and made a personal examination. They are all most enthusiastic, and in almost every instance have increased their holdings after seeing for themselves just what the property represented. Many of these stockholders have warmly commended the careful, workmanlike manner in which the development is being carried on, and almost every day we are in receipt of letters from stockholders, assuring us of their appreciation of the economical manner in which the affairs of the corporation are handled.

Free Trip of Inspection

If you are skeptical let us take you to the property at our own expense. You don't have to buy a share of stock until you have seen with your own eyes and are convinced that as an investment proposition the stock of the Ventura Oil Development Company is the best on the market today. Many people have already gone as our guests, and we should like to take you. Write us at once for further particulars regarding this free trip.

Why You Should Act at Once

The following extract from the San Francisco Chronicle of January 24, 1910, will be of interest:

Probably every reader of this paper can figure out to his or her own satisfaction that they could easily have been wealthy today had they done so and so, says Securities. Had they taken advantage of this or that opportunity; had they not been pessimistic at some certain time and failed to grasp some opportunity offered them. We often look back and think to ourselves, had our foresight been as good as our hindsight we would have done very differently.

This looking back to opportunities that have been passed is particularly interesting in connection with California oil stocks. Here is a list of "ifs" that should open investors' eyes to the possibility of California oil stocks.

If you had invested $100 in Monte Cristo at ground-floor price, you could have made $1120; if you had invested $100 in the W. K. O. Co. at ground-floor price, you could have made $1000; if you had invested $100 in Sauer Dough at ground-floor price, you could have made $4166; if you had invested $100 in Sterling O. & D. at ground-floor price, you could have made $1000; if you had invested $100 in Record at ground-floor price, you could have made $2000; if you had invested $100 in S. F. & McK. at ground-floor price, you could have made $2400; if you had invested $100 in Peerless at ground-floor price, you could have made $6350; if you had invested $100 in San Joaquin at ground-floor price, you could have made $5700; if you had invested $100 in Kern River at ground-floor price, you could have made $9500; if you had invested $100 in Central Oil at ground-floor price, you could have made $15,000.

There are many more such opportunities, plenty of them, and some of the best of them are being continually outlined in this publication. If you can't think, reason and analyze a proposition for yourself, you can't hope to acquire your share of the world's wealth if you haven't the courage of your convictions and dare not maintain them under all conditions, you are badly handicapped in the battle of life. At some time in life see that you don't have to look back and say, "If you had acted Act today.

Therefore, if you wish to secure a block of stock at 11c per share, we advise you to act promptly, otherwise you will be forced to pay an advanced price.

You can buy the stock both for cash or on the installment plan. Our terms 20 per cent. down and 20 per cent. per month on the installment plan, and a of 5 per cent. is allowed for cash.

Be sure and place your order at the present low price. Make a reservation pending your further investigation. Buy as much or as little as you can afford buy at once.

Call at the office tomorrow, if possible. See the maps, read the expert oil report, and get full information.

If you cannot call immediately, fill out and mail one of the coupons below delay, and you will promptly receive literature which will supply you with full mation.

We will also mail you the "Oil Book," which tells all about California oil How stocks earn 12 per cent. to 30 per cent. dividends. How you can invest idle to best advantage. How you can invest on the monthly payment plan. The Book" is published twice every month.

'WAY UP.

HEAVIER THAN AIR DINNER.

Aviation Committee Honored by the Citizens.

Festive Night the Climax of Flying Here.

Medals for the Men Who Brought Wings.

Resembling in some respects a Chinese New Year's and in others one of Caesar's triumphal entries into Rome, the Aviation dinner last night was an event unique in the history of public ovations to private citizens. It served to commemorate in fitting manner one of the greatest triumphs of the far-famed Los Angeles spirit. And it was a get-together night, a rollicking, convivial, good-fellowship occasion.

The seven members of the Executive Committee who financed and made successful the first aviation meet in America know a little better in what esteem they are held by their fellow citizens. Every guest who attended the banquet and the Orpheum entertainment has a little better appreciation of what pleasant experiences life holds for those who call Los Angeles home.

The public witnessed a spectacle that could belong only to a city of summer skies, romantic history and roseate future. A double file of silk-hatted, frock-coated gentlemen, the pick and flower of the city's business and professional life, moved down Broadway headed by a brass band, balloons bobbing riotously above the hats, baskets of flowers, airships, ribbons and an atmosphere of festivity trailing recklessly in the wake. Tourists stopped to gaze in wonder. Then they applauded, recognizing that here was the holiday land of which they had come in quest.

AT THE THEATER.

No theater audience ever plunged itself into a more complimentary spirit of enjoyment. The stage was too small to contain the performance. Saucy little Mae Melville led them all in singing "Put On the Soft, Soft Pedal," despite the fact that the soft pedal was broken early in the evening. She also convulsed the house by shying a coy glance at the Mayor in a box when she sang, "He Tickled Me With His Little Goatee."

PRESENTING MEDALS.

The only serious feature was the presentation of gold medals to the members of the Executive Committee, during the intermission. The Rev. Baker P. Lee made an eloquent presentation speech. He referred to the renown which had been brought to the name of Los Angeles by the work of the seven men.

"They have called upon me, a sky pilot," he said, "thinking that my calling might lead toward aviation. I find that the Los Angeles preacher has little influence along these lines. When we preach about the pearly gates and the joys of Heaven we find Los Angeles people pretty well satisfied where they are.

"These medals are presented to the members of the Aviation Committee not because of their intrinsic worth but because they are treasures to be worn as marks of honor. Like the Victoria Cross they are a badge of distinction to be handed down by the possessors to future generations."

ELOQUENT REPLY.

D. A. Hamburger made an eloquent reply. He thanked the citizens of Los Angeles for the tribute they had paid to the efforts and ambitious of the men who had represented them, and awarded to them a large share in the honors, for having stood together as a unit in promoting the success of the enterprise.

The evening started vivaciously. The banquet-room at the Alexandria presented, in elaborate miniature, the scenes on Aviation Field. The air was full of balloons. Over the speaker's table monoplanes, biplanes, dirigibles and hitherto unheard-of craft of the air, were tugging at anchor. Now and then a balloon would burst, and these minor explosions, together with the popping of corks, kept up a cross fire of merry musketry.

The viands came in airships or on the wing. There was not a hitch in this part of the performance. The bivalves gave far less trouble than the valves of a Curtiss engine. The Dick Ferris spring lambs from the Dominguez sheep camp met as active a demand as aviation passes. The ice cream came in balloons, which, after the rip cords were pulled, gave evidence of having ascended to some very frigid altitude. There was Pacific Electric coffee, strong enough to carry the crowds home.

THIS ONE DIFFERENT.

Chairman Max Meyberg announced that the banquet was to be as different from others as the aviation meet had been from all other events—there was to be no speech-making. The rule was broken long enough to hear from F. W. Blanchard on the significance of the occasion. A toast was drunk to the President of the United States. Mr. Huntington was also remembered as the man who put up the first $10,000.

The guests were not satisfied until they had heard from some of the men in whose honor the affair had been arranged. Mr. Hamburger, Perry Weidner, Fred Baker, William M. Garland, F. J. Zeehandelaar and Dick Ferris, all succeeded in getting off the ground, but, owing to the condition of the atmosphere, none of them went out after the altitude or cross-country prizes. They all displayed excellent skill and judgment by starting and stopping within the twenty-foot square.

The cards were works of art. The cover was a hand-painted sketch of Aviation Field—mountains, green fields, tents, grand stand, every form of air-craft against the sky. The menu was printed on the gas bag of a big balloon and airships tore their way recklessly through the Orpheum programme.

The dinner over, the guests hitched balloons to their button-holes, took up the immense baskets of flowers that decorated the tables, and formed in marching order in the rotunda of the hotel. When this strange procession emerged into the street, crowds were lined up along the curbs as for a circus parade.

NEW JOKES.

The Orpheum comedians all brought out new aviation jokes for the occasion and succeeded in starting a breeze. Herman Meyer, "the man at the piano," had his grand opera duke arrive in an airship. The Brothers Permane brought out a heavier-than-air balloon, played battledore and shuttlecock with their own heads for awhile, and then sent it out into the audience. This caused a lively scrimmage in the parquet—something between basketball and water polo. All the artists received baskets of flowers sent over the footlights attached to toy balloons.

After the aviation honors had been awarded, Max Meyberg, who suggested the dinner, came in for the biggest bouquet of the evening. As a celebration of one of the big public events in the history of Los Angeles, those who were in attendance last night felt that the proper note had been struck. The pleasant memories of the great event were marshaled into line and brought forth in one concluding pageant of good cheer.

CELEBRATE SUCCESS.

Architects Give Banquet to Co-operatives in Exhibit Plans—Silver Set Presented to Manager.

The Los Angeles Architectural Club last night celebrated the success of the exhibition held under its auspices, beginning on the 23rd inst. and ending this afternoon, by entertaining the patrons who coöperated at a banquet in the café of the Hamburger building. About 150 plates were laid. The banquet is the first of what it is proposed shall be annual affairs.

A. F. Rosenheim, president of the local club and of the Architectural Club of the Pacific Coast, was toastmaster. Before introducing other speakers, he talked enthusiastically of the benefits the exhibit had supplied to the city at large and to architects and draftsmen.

Visiting speakers included C. J. McDonald of Kansas City, W. C. Kingston of Portland, J. C. Allison of Pittsburgh, Frank Baxter of Detroit and Douglas Perkins of Cleveland, who all expressed their admiration for a city that found the creators of all her majestic buildings within her own limits. Local architects who spoke were Octavius Morgan, J. C. Austin, A. R. Kelly, Elmer Gray and A. R. Walker.

Entertainment was furnished by a male quartette and an orchestra.

At the close of the programme, M. A. Vinson, manager of the exhibit, was presented with a silver set by the local architects.

FALL BREAKS HIS LEG.

Edwin Pfaffe, No. 603½ East Seventh street, a driver for the Union Ice Company, was thrown from his seat to the pavement at Seventh and San Pedro, when one of the wheels of his wagon fell into a hole yesterday evening. Pfaffe was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where he was found to have sustained a compound fracture of the right leg.

I Cure PILES
FISTULA AND HERNIA WITHOUT AN OPERATION
BY MY PAINLESS DISSOLVENT METHOD.
Without Cutting, Cauterizing or Injecting.
Without detention from business or loss of time.
The most obstinate and long standing cases of Piles I can cure without an operation, injection, and without pain.
FISTULA, heretofore, curable only by an operation, I cure absolutely without the knife and without pain or loss of time.
HERNIA or Rupture, I also cure. If you are a sufferer I invite you to investigate my method most thoroughly by talking or writing to any of my cured patients, a list of whom I will gladly furnish.
My method is not secret, but is open to all, and I advertise this cure that you may know there is a Specialist who really cures without an operation. My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment," but is a rational, sensible application of skilled treatments, administered at my office. Any case I examine and decide I can cure I WILL GUARANTEE A CURE or accept no pay. SEND FOR MY FREE BOOK.

MORALS IN LITERATURE.

The new school of criticism contends that morals and art have no natural connection. The contention is not new. Artists of all kinds have been like other people. Some have been moral after the standards of their time and some have been immoral judged by the same standard. A clean-minded person will be clean in his speech; the unclean will be "filthy still." The moral artist will occupy his imagination and hands with moral themes and subjects; the other kind will not. Then the public will divide; those who hold to the moral standards of their age will read books, attend plays and admire pictures that are according to the standards, and will eschew those that violate them. Those who are contemptuous of moral standards will decry decent art as tame and not worth while.

Some critics tell us there is no moral standard because no two persons agree as to the standard. They may not agree perfectly, but their differences of view are matters of detail. The standards of the moral portion of us agree as nearly as those who sneer at morality. There are degrees of moral purity, but there are just as wide divergences as to moral impurity. The limitations are as narrow downward as upward. One man can endure a depth of pruriency which turns the stomach of another, yet both will say they know of no moral standard. In this as in much else where taste is concerned it is difficult to reason satisfactorily.

Another argument thought to prove that there is no moral standard is found in the fact that the morals of one age, of one people, differ so much from those of another. This dispute centers mostly around moral purity, decency of expression either in words or colors. Ages and peoples differ scarcely more widely as to the extent of application for the seventh commandment than as to that of the eighth.

The divergence of view is not to be denied. The best men of other ages would be considered vile of speech in our time. We will confess, too, that nicety of expression does not prove decency of thought nor propriety of conduct. Plato was regarded as one of the best men of his time. He uses language which if found in a work of this age would condemn it in the minds of all decent persons and in the eyes of the law. Socrates, the great Athenian philosopher, is described as sitting in the shade by the fountain discoursing with Phaedrus in terms so broad that they disgust us. Here again, we must not forget the changes that come in words as well as in standards of decency. In French today are words of the most refined politeness while the same words in English, spelled with the same letters, are heard only from the mouths of those whose indecency is gross. But still more in our own as in other tongues the most delicate terms of the last century become the most indecent of the next. The fact is, there are things and acts in life which are so connected with the baser portion of our lives that they give an offensive flavor to any terms used to express them. We are continually changing the terms in an effort to keep our language clean.

But after making all such allowances, it must be confessed that there are wide differences of view as to what in art is clean and what is not. Let us confine these remarks to literary art. A modern audience would be shocked if the "Merry Wives of Windsor" were played as written. "Romeo and Juliet" in the phraseology of Shakespeare would empty a playhouse any higher in tone than a "dive." But Shakespeare is delicate compared with the comic dramatists of the days of Charles II: Again, Vanbrugh, Congreve, Wicherly and even Aphra Behn are fastidious by the side of Catullus.

Plato was a better man than the average courtier of the reign of the "Gay Monarch" of England. Socrates was a much better man than Ben Jonson from the standpoint of personal morals. Catullus was a sorry "rake," but not worse than many shining lights of society in London just after the Restoration.

But these are all mere special incidents. There are not enough facts in all this subject to generalize on. When the most has been made of them, the moral standards of our time in the life of the people as a whole are higher than those in Athens in the days of Plato and Socrates, or in Rome in the time of Horace and Juvenal, or in London in the days of King Charles II. It is our unshaken conviction that the trend of the human mind has been to a plane of higher morals, or more decency of language as well as of purity of thought, through all the ages. There may have been eddies in the stream, but the main current has flowed in one general course. Algernon Swinburne's verses have been received with much disapprobation by more than half the people of his time. Yet his artistic skill, the brilliancy of his genius, are not questioned. Had Swinburne attempted to live openly in defiance of the moral standards of our age as Byron and Robert Burns did in the last generation, he would have found few readers. Oscar Wilde has some vein of genius in his soul, but he is not named much today, and his works are not among the best sellers. Burns is read because of the sweetness of the greater part of his verses, but in spite of those which violate our present moral standards. Byron is not read by a great number among us.

Morals may be aside from the sphere of the artist. It may be true that the painter or author may be at liberty to select his themes from the most vulgar acts of our lives and from the lowest objects shown by the light of the sun. There may be as much art displayed in the painting of some object of indecency as in a portrait of the most beautiful face. But for all that, Byron would find less favor if he lived today, and Shakespeare would not have written quite as he did. It is our conviction that the artists of the future will find it necessary to count with the moral tone of society in the next generation more than in this.

A Song of Doubt.

Why do the shadows darkly fall?
  Why do they ever come at all?
Can we not have one throb of joy,
  Untainted by some base alloy?

Must every pleasure and every gain
  Be followed close by torturing pain?
And must each turn in life's sad way
  Be hard beset by foes at bay?

Before we e'er a crown can win,
  Must we be tempted oft by sin?
In anguish must the soul be bowed
  To see the lining to every cloud?

If hungry we, earth gives a stone;
  Oh! can we live by faith alone?
Do care and sorrow only tend
  To safely lead to Thy great end?

Must ev'ry victory be sore-pressed,
  That we may hear: "Beloved, rest?"
And must we wade through waters deep
  Before our eyes can close in sleep?

And when we reach the heav'nly shore,
  Will earth's sad troubles come no more?
Will grief and care and sore dismay
  Like Christian's burden fall away?

Sermons in Song..

A Handful of Dust

By Wilbur D. Nesbit

Then shalt the dust return to the earth as it was.—[Ecclesiastes xii, 7.

A handful of dust—it is blown, on the wind
That is sporting with whatever stuff it may find;
It is swirling and whirling and scattering on Till it puffs into nothing, and then it is gone—
    A handful of dust.

It may be a king who of old held his rule
In a country forgotten; it may be his fool
Who had smiles on his lips and had sighs in his heart—
But the king or the fool, who may know them apart
    In a handful of dust?

It may be a rose that once burst into flame
And was kissed by a maiden who whispered a name
To its ruby-red heart—and her lips were as red—
But no echo remains of the word that she said,
    In the handful of dust.

It may be the singer who wrought into song
The dreams of his soul for the joy of the throng,
Or it may be the one of them all who could know
What was meant by the song—but they both have come low
    In a handful of dust.

It may be some one who was mighty and proud
And it may be a beggar who whispered and bowed,
Or a woman who laughed, or a woman who wept,
Or a child—but for centuries long they have slept
    In a handful of dust.

A handful of dust—it is death, it is birth,
It is naught, it is all since the first day of earth;
It is fame, it is fortune, and laughter and tears,
And it holds all the mystery lost in the years—
    A handful of dust.

Ye College "Joiner."

Modern university life certainly is growing complex. In the old, simple days the college boasted of its two literary societies: a fellow was either an Athenian or a Philomathean. But what may a fellow be today?

He may be a member, first, of a literary society, regular.

He may be a member of Greek Letter fraternity upon the brotherhood and social order.

He may also be a member of a Sophomore Greek society like Theta Nu Epsilon.

He may be a member of a military cadet fraternity like the Scabbard and Blade.

He may also be a member of a Greek Letter athletic fraternity.

He may be a member of the Senior society, one or another.

He may be a member of Phi Beta Kappa or Sigma XI—scholarship fraternities.

He may be a member of the Forensic fraternity, Greek.

He may be a member of a Law fraternity, or Dental fraternity, or such, according to his professional course.

All of these pins he may wear, and more not mentioned. He also may be a member of an eating club, of the Dramatic Club, of the Glee Club, of the Scientific Club, of shooting and tramping clubs, of the Writers' Club, of a Cercle Francais or of the Deutschesbund or other language clique, of a Philosophical Society; and his athletics last from early fall until into July.

And some youths, strenuous and very popular, spread themselves this thin and affiliate with a best girl, besides!—[Edwin L. Sabin, in Lippincott's.

BIG MILLS AT SHANGHAI.

BOYS WORK IN THEM AT WAGES OF FOUR CENTS PER DAY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SHANGHAI.—The growth of Shanghai beats that of the gourd of Jonah, which sprang up in a night. It is now a modern European city. It has business blocks which might be dropped down in New York or London and not be out of place, and residences which would be fine in Washington or Paris. Along the Bund, the wide road which faces the river, are a dozen or more banks whose capital runs into the tens of millions and whose managers are so trusted that they can dip into the pockets of the nations and draw out at pleasure. On the same street are clubhouses, some of which have cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to build. There are big hotels where you can live as well as at home, and shops, with plate-glass windows, containing European goods of every description. Shanghai is the Paris of the Far East. It is one of the richest cities of Asia, and it takes the best of all that is going.

Chinese child labor.

In a Shanghai mill.

Unloading cotton.

In the Big Cotton Mills.

Shanghai is preparing to manufacture for the new China. It is putting up factories and foundries and starting all sorts of new industries. It has silk filitures which are producing bales of raw silk for our American weavers, modern flour mills equipped with Milwaukee machinery, and a cigarette factory owned by the American tobacco trust, which employs more than 1000 hands. It has eight great cotton mills with several hundred thousand spindles, and some which have 80,000 or 90,000 spindles in a single establishment. In these mills over 30,000 Chinese men, women and children are employed, and they are spinning and weaving cotton quite as well as in any of our American factories. The most of them are managed by Chinese foremen, and they give some idea of how the Celestials expect to make their own cloth in the future.

During my stay here, I have visited some of the biggest of the cotton factories. I went through the establishment of the Soy Chee Cotton Spinning Company today. It lies on the Whampoa River, the branch of the Yangtse which gives Shanghai access to the sea, and it is so situated that the bales can be landed right at the mills and the goods shipped thousands of miles into the interior by means of the rivers, or to Japan or the United States. The suburb connected with it is known as Hongkew. This is a great factory center, and its smokestacks dot the stream, running along its banks almost to the Yangtse.

Child Labor at Four Cents Per Day.

The buildings of the Soy Chee Company cover several acres. They are of gray brick and are shadowed by a smokestack which rises to the height of a twelve-story flat. Entering them, I found over a thousand men, women and children at work. I went through room after room filled with girls who were weaving and spinning, and I saw 200 children tending the machines. Some of them were little tots not higher than my waist, and many did not reach to my shoulders. The smaller children were pulling baskets filled with bobbins here and there about the rooms. The larger ones were tending the spinning mules, and all were working so hard that they scarcely looked up as I entered.

I asked as to their wages, and found that they were about 4 of our cents per day, and that the pay of the older hands ranged from that to 20 cents. Think of working ten hours for 4 cents, and that in the dust of a spinning mill! I photographed some of the children, frightening the little ones almost to death as I did so. The manager tells me that he has many whole families employed in his factory—father, mother and children all working. There are no laws against child labor, and the babies aid in keeping the wolf from the door.

Speaking of babies, there were several of these in the mill. Some were still at the breast, and their mothers had brought them along that they might not lose work. I remember one girl of 18 spinning away with an almond-eyed infant on her knees, and another had a baby in a basket beside her. The child was quiet. As I chucked it under the chin, two yellow dimples broke out in its cheeks, and it smiled. In another place I saw a three-months-old baby lying in a pile of white cotton waste on the floor of the mill.

Cotton Yarn for Hand Looms.

This factory works day and night, and there are quite as many children employed in the night shift as in the daytime. One thousand hands are always busy, Sunday and week days, all the year through. Its chief product is cotton yarn for the domestic weavers. This is made up into bundles, which are then packed into bales of 400 pounds each, and shipped all over the country. The yarn is woven into cloth on hand looms, and it supplies a large part of the clothing of the common people. It comes into competition with the mills of India and Japan, and also with those which are now starting up in the other parts of China. I am told that there are something like 300,000 spindles now working upon such yarn at Shanghai, and also a large number at Ningpo and Soochow. There is one big mill at Hangchow, one at Canton, and some at Hongkong, Wuchang and Hankow. The labor is abundant and people easily learn to handle the modern machinery.

New Milling Machinery.

The Chinese are rapidly introducing the better class of machines, and their mills are already about as well equipped as our own. A great part of their machinery is imported from England, and only certain specialties come from the United States. In one factory I found an American light plant with 6000 electric lamps burning, and in another there were modern fire machines, and the employers had a fire drill every week. In nearly every place the wages were as low or lower than those I have quoted, the highest price paid the men being something like 30 cents per day, while a goo age wage was 8 or 10 cents. I found girls at w all of the factories, and I know of none which d employ children.

At present a considerable portion of the cotto in China is imported from abroad. We have the the Manchurian trade, although Japan is doing h to compete. The English sell the greater part o goods brought in to the Yangtse Valley and China, and the Germans are pushing their cloths where. Within the past year or so, however, th nese officials have been starting small factories i hand looms are used. I saw some in Tients other parts of Chihli, and I am told that there a than 15,000 such looms now at work in that prov

A Nation in Cotton.

Our cotton factories should send their agents here to study the market. These people dress in cotton instead of silk, and the most of the cloth used is spun and reeled by hand and woven at home. With the new civilization wages will rise and the Chinese will wear more cotton than ever before. At present, it is safe to say that there are at least 400,000,000 of them who dress in such goods all the year round. They wear only one or two thin garments in the summer, but in winter they have several suits well wadded to keep themselves warm, and in the northern provinces they put on suit after suit as the weather grows colder. Indeed, some fleshy Chinese in full winter dress have trouble in getting through their own doorways. But even at one suit of twenty yards to each person per year the amount of cotton used is so great that at least 8,000,000,000 yards are required. This amount is beyond comprehension. It would carpet a pathway sixty feet wide from the earth to the moon, or cover one more than twenty miles wide from New York to Chicago. Our total shipment of cotton goods to other countries is less than $33,000,900 a year, and all we send to Asia sells for less than $13,000,000. That which goes to China would hardly patch the knees of the Celestials, let alone make their clothes.

How American Oil Lights China.

If our cotton interests could handle this market as the Standard Oil does, the exports from our Southern States might run into the hundreds of millions a year. The Standard Oil Company has its own agents in all the provinces, and it is pushing its business in every city. Twenty years ago, the oil was shipped here in tin cans. It is now brought in tank steamers which carry 10,000 tons at a load. The vessels start from San Francisco and land at half a dozen different ports, where the oil is pumped out into great storage tanks. I found such tanks at Hankow, 600 miles up the Yangtse-Kiang, and saw the steamers unloaded by means of a pump. The tanks there hold tens of thousands of barrels. They have factories connected with them, where the tin plate is made into five-gallon cans. These are filled with oil and are distributed by the Yangtse and its tributaries. The stuff is economically handled, being sold in smaller and smaller packages as it gets farther away from the ports, and in some places almost by the spoonful. The Standard Oil Company has tanks at Tientsin and Hongkong. It does by far the biggest oil business in China, although the Burmese, Russian and Sumatra companies compete.

Within the past year, one of these latter companies has opened up a new oil territory about 200 miles north of Peking. The oil is carried in cans on wheelbarrows over 100 miles to a canal and thence floated down to the capital. The wheelbarrow men go in caravans of fifty barrows each. They are paid something like 4 cents gold a day, and other labor is proportionately cheap.

Our Tobacco Trust.

Another American institution which is doing a big business in China is the tobacco trust. It has its agents in all of the cities, and has established several big factories. There is one at Shanghai which employs 200 girls in making and packing cigarettes. There is another at Mukden, and a third at Hankow. Indeed, the Americans are changing the Chinese from pipe smokers to cigarette smokers, and machine-made cigarettes are now to be bought as far west as Thibet. The business is done under the name of the British-American Tobacco Company, and it has in its employ both British and American officers. The chief manager is an American, who lives here at Shanghai. He tells me the Chinese are a nation of tobacco smokers, and they have been raising and using tobacco for over years. The weed was introduced from Manila less than fifty years after Columbus discovered America, and it has been in use ever since, although many of the Chinese emperors have repeatedly tried to wipe it out. Much tobacco is still smoked in pipes, two kinds of which are in use everywhere. One of these is a dry pipe, which may be of bamboo or clay or wood. Its bowl is small and seldom holds more than a pinch of tobacco. The other pipe is a metal box filled with water, through which the smoke is drawn before it enters the mouth. It has a tube about a foot long, and this bends over at the mouthpiece. This pipe is usually made of copper and silver, or an alloy of copper, zinc, nickel and iron. It is used by both men and women.

The natives make cigarettes of corn husks and bamboo leaves. They also roll tobacco in brown paper. Of late years, however, the rice-paper cigarette has come into vogue, and it is used more and more every day by both men, women and children.

Strike of Tobacco Girls.

One of the Americans employed in the tobacco factory at Shanghai tells me they had a big strike the other day. A thousand-odd girls left the establishment and refused to return until their grievance was settled. The trouble, strange to say, came from a coffin.

The girls were in the habit of changing from one department to another without asking the manager, and they looked so much alike that the foreign officials could not tell if they were in their right places. Thereupon, a system of badges was instituted, giving to each girl a pin labeled with characters indicating the name of the department to which she belonged. Every girl had to have her own badge and wear it. The badges were round, square or shaped like a keystone according to the rooms in which the girls worked. It was the last badge which caused the trouble. The day after the order went forth the girls with the keystone pins struck, and the next noon the others went out. It was afterward found that the objection lay in a superstition that the keystone badges would bring bad luck to their wearers, because they were shaped like the head of a coffin. It was some time before this could be remedied and the employés brought into line.

Boycotting the British.

And this brings me to the new boycott which was recently instituted against the British steamers on the Yangtse-Kiang. I am told that some of the companies are losing a thousand dollars a day, and that the Chinese are refusing to ship by them because a certain deck passenger died from a kick given by one of the steamship ticket collectors. The British are much alarmed about the matter, and are doing all they can to appease the Chinese.

The first great boycott against foreigners was that imposed upon the Americans, two or three years ago. The merchants of the largest cities then bound themselves not to buy American goods, and imposed a penalty of $40,000 upon any member of their organization who did so. After this boycott was raised, the trouble with the Japanese caused by the importation of arms on the Tatsu Maru was instituted, and it was continued until it cost Japan many millions of dollars. About six months ago a Chinese official told me that the damages to Japanese trade had already aggregated more than forty millions, and that the guilds of Canton had sworn to make them one hundred and fifty millions before they got through. That boycott was most powerful at Canton. The people there would use nothing Japanese. The women had anti-Japan clubs and the merchants refused to ship in Japanese steamers. The loss of trade created financial distress all over Japan, and the government officials at Tokio were at a loss as to how to handle the situation. Said one of them to me:

"We cannot fight the Chinese because they will not trade with us. The powers would not stand for a war of that kind, and we are practically helpless. This is so because the United States knuckled down and permitted the first boycott. Had she acted otherwise she might have stopped Chinese boycotting forever."

"But how could she do that?"

"Easy enough then, although not at all now with the precedent established. I was in Peking at the time the boycott was started, and I told your minister, Mr. Rockhill, how he could stop it. Said I:

"What your government should do is to make a firm stand against the boycott, and at the same time send a gunboat or so along the coast under pretense of surveying the waters. The ships should stop at the islands, and now and then make an expedition off through the country. The Chinese will become alarmed, but the naval officers can tell them that they are merely surveying for science, adding at the end of each reply a significant question as to what China intends to do as to the boycott. The government will fear that the United States is about to retaliate, and an edict will be sent forth that the boycott must be stopped.'"

"And what did Mr. Rockhill say to that?" I asked.

"Oh, replied the Tokio statesman, "he had not enough backbone to try it. He said he had no doubt but that the plan would work, but that he did not dare to suggest it. When I asked why not, he significantly said: 'I don't dare to do it. I don't dare. Our Teddy would jump at it in a minute.'

"And," concluded this man, "I have no doubt but that President Roosevelt would have jumped at it; and had he done so there would have been no further trouble as to American goods and none as to other foreign goods in the future. As it is now the psychological moment has passed, and not you only, but also we and all others must get on our knees to these boycotting Celestials."

Ridding the Opal Superstition.

The tendency of late to rid the opal of the foolish superstition that has clung to it for so many years is the result of a reform movement begun by the jewelers and art workers who appreciate its great beauty. At first the opal was not considered to be in any way connected with misfortune, but was supposed to embody all the virtues of the other stones, as it contained all their colors. It was also believed to share with the turquoise the sympathetic power of revealing the owner's state of health. If it turned pale the owner was ill, and if it brightened up perceptibly he was on the road to recovery.

The opal's reputation for misfortune dates back about six or seven centuries, when it was used in the crown of a reigning prince. Through some chemical process the stones began to contract and finally dwindled away and fell out of their setting. This bad omen, followed by the destruction of the principality, resulted in the condemnation of the opal.—[New York Tribune.

Prince Ito and the Actress.

A correspondent of the Figaro states that when Mme. Sada Yacco, the famous Japanese actress, received the news of the assassination of Prince Ito at Mito, where she was playing with her troupe, she burst into tears.

"In my frequent quarrels with my husband," said the actress, "we sometimes asked Prince Ito to judge between us. One day, when we had a more than usually violent dispute at Chigasaki, the Prince came in unexpectedly, and I asked him to decide on the question. But he declined, while proposing the following solution: 'Go down into the garden, both of you, and fight it out like wrestlers. The one that wins will naturally be the one who is in the right.'

"No sooner said than done! In a trice Kawakami and I were in wrestling trim. My husband was just recovering from a serious illness, and, being very weak, I soon threw him to the ground. This amused the Prince enormously."—[London Express.

HUNTING THE RORQUAL.

WHALE OFF NEWFOUNDLAND COAST—WHALERS' EQUIPMENT AND WEAPON.

[New York Sun:] The fluctuations of the whaling industry in Newfoundland are most amazing. A little over ten years ago, on June 25, 1898 the first whale was killed by modern methods in these waters, and yet within five years the flotilla grew from one steamer to eighteen, and the annual kill from forty-three to 1478. The result was a slump, after conditions akin to those of the "South Sea Bubble" or the "Dutch Bulb mania" being created in a mild form. The industry went to pieces in a single year or two, nearly all the steamers were sold off, and $1,500,000 was hopelessly lost.

One concern had expended $70,000 in the purchase of a steamer, the building of a "whale factory," and the operation of these for two years, and never killed a whale at all, says P. J. Magrath in Canada. Another lost a similar amount and had a catch of but four fish; a third caught only eight, when it required at least sixty to make the venture pay, and it had paid so well a year or two before that dividends of 35 to 50 per cent. were realized. Now the industry is recovering again, and the few concerns that have survived stand to make a substantial profit.

Scientists tell us that the whale is not a fish, but an aquatic mammal that can remain below water only a brief period, as it must relieve its respiratory organs. It suckles its young as do the beasts of the field; it is warm-blooded, and its flesh is like meat. The whole family consists of two groups—the toothed whales and the bone whales. Of the former are the cachalot or sperm whale, famed for its spermaceti or cetaceum, and the orca or killer while, which, like the other, yields a liberal supply of oil as well from its blubber-coated carcass. Of the bone whales there are the bowhead or right whale, the monster of the north, and the rorqual or racer whale of the temperate regions.

The bowhead inhabits the arctics and the cachalot the tropics. The cachalot and bowhead in these torrid and frigid waters of the globe have been hunted remorselessly by whalemen for centuries, but the rorquals, which are much speedier, have enjoyed a comparative immunity. Some thirty years ago the Norwegians utilized steam vessels for hunting them, and finding that the old style of putting out rowboats to harpoon them was not feasible devised a harpoon gun, fired from the bow of the vessel and carrying an explosive charge, which made the chase and slaughter of these leviathans much easier.

For the hunting of the rorqual a steamer of about 100 tons is used, a stanch steel boat, making twelve to fourteen knots, and equipped with powerful machinery for "playing" the fish. She employs a crew of ten men, and has a mortar-like gun working on a swivel on her bow. Into this is fitted a harpoon, attached to a light but strong rope and "carrying" for about 100 feet.

The rorquals, unlike the bowheads or the cachalots, are not easily frightened, and the steamer when she sights one or a herd steals slowly up on her quarry, and when within firing range lets fly this projectile, which usually pierces its way into the mighty carcass, the harpoon head being hollow and filled with gunpowder, exploded by a time fuse. This ordinarily bursts in the body of the huge fish, inflicting injuries so serious that the victim speedily dies. But occasionally the harpoon fails to strike a vital part, or it passes through the whale's body near the tail and bursts in the water on the other side. In such cases, the wounded whale will speed away at an amazing rate, towing the steamer behind as if only a cockboat.

There is one instance recorded of a huge blueback towing a whaler in this fashion for twenty-six hours and covering some 200 miles before being weakened sufficiently to enable the vessel to approach and put another shot into the creature, which ended its activities. Instances are more common of steamers being towed for ten or twelve hours, and there is one case where a whaleship was for several hours wrestling with two wounded whales in this way and being so seriously damaged that she had to go into dock and effect substantial and costly repairs.

The whaleman's harpoon is a terrible one. Behind the explosive head are four flukes, which are fixed against the sides of the shank when the harpoon is being fired, but which after it has entered the whale and the huge fish jerks on the holding rope when struck start out grapnelwise and prevent the whale from tearing itself away from the deadly contrivance in its furious movements after being struck.

At other times it lasts for an hour or so, sounding the ocean's depths or bounding high out of the water in its agony. The whales are to be seen in hundreds on the Grand Banks all the summer through, where they play among the fishing schooners, utterly indifferent to the presence of vessels or skiffs. A single ship has killed as many as six whales in a day, and in the present season the best record (twenty-four fish for a week) was made.

Cheap Fares in Belgium.

Passenger tariffs on Belgian railways are very low, and the passenger service is generally very good. It is not as rapid as the French service, but it is cheaper. These rates show the influence of the politicians.

For instance, tickets are on sale which for a small price give the right to ride anywhere as often as you like for five days on any of the State lines. A third-class ticket of that sort, good anywhere any time for five days, costs only 11 francs 5 centimes, which is just a fraction under $2.20 in American money.

Eighty-eight per cent. of all the passenger tickets issued are sold at one sort or another of reduced rates. Among other curious instances showing the fine hand of the small politician we find that tickets are sold to electors to go to their voting places at less than half price.—[Moody's Magazine.

Uncle Sam's Star Gazers.

SCIENTISTS IN WASHINGTON WHO KEEP TAB ON THE UNIVERSE.

THEY MAKE A SPECIALTY OF MOONS—PUTTING THE FIXED STARS IN THEIR PLACES—PHOTOGRAPHING SUN-SPOTS EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, AND SETTING CLOCKS FOR THE WHOLE COUNTRY.

By a Special Contributor.

MR. TAFT says that the head of the Naval Observatory at Washington ought to be a great astronomer—an eminent scientific man, who should attract attention to the institution now and then by putting salt on the tail of a new comet, or giving an extra twist to one of the spiral nebulae. The present chief of the establishment, Capt T. E. De Witt Veeder, who is a very able officer of the navy, cannot reasonably be expected to do such spectacular "stunts" as those.

Even as now organized, however, the observatory is doing a deal of valuable work. It has a staff of expert star-gazers who hold rank as naval officers, though they never go to sea. They are called "Professor," and not by an ordinary service title. Thus, for example, Prof. Milton Updegraff ranks as a commander in the navy, and his business at the present time is to keep tab on the fixed stars.

The observatory is mainly occupied in studying the structure of the universe. It is a somewhat considerable task, and work of the kind is not undertaken anywhere else in this country, largely because it is very laborious, and for the reason that there is literally no end to it. For this purpose the chief instrument used is a "meridian circle," consisting most importantly of a telescope, through which the stars are watched as they pass across the Washington meridian with the revolution of the earth. Knowledge of the exact positions of the stars is of great practical usefulness to navigators and surveyors.

Prof. W. S. Eichelberger, who is engaged in the same work, is likewise a commander in the navy; and another star-gazer who takes part in this branch of the business is Prof. Frank B. Littell, who holds the lesser rank of lieutenant-commander. In charge of the great equatorial telescope is Prof. Asaph Hall (a lieutenant,) whose attention is devoted mainly to our moon, other satellites, and comets.

The Naval Observatory specializes to some extent in moons. It was through this same equatorial telescope that Prof. Hall's father, Asaph, Sr., discovered the two moons of Mars more than twenty years ago. These moons, by the way, are each about sixty miles in diameter, and they seem to revolve around the planet in opposite directions. But this is only apparent, and not actual, the effect, as telescopically viewed, being due to the fact that one of them circles three times as fast as Mars itself turns, while the other moves at a comparatively slow rate.

Knowledge of the diameters of the orbits of moons enables the astronomers to figure out the masses of the planets about which they revolve, thus yielding important data in relation to our solar system. It is a big job, this keeping track of satellites, because there are so many of them, and they exhibit such curious eccentricities. True, Mercury and Venus possess no moons at all, but Jupiter has eight, Saturn nine, Uranus four, and Neptune one. The biggest of all of them is Titan, belonging to Saturn, which has a diameter of 3500 miles. This is enormously bigger than our own moon, whose diameter is only 2160 miles.

Presumably all these moons are dead, like ours. It is a pity we have not some more of our own, inasmuch as they are so interesting. Jupiter enjoys the view of eclipses every day. Its sky is always full of moons—so that, one might imagine, an inebriated gentleman on that planet, going home at night, would find things very confusing.

It is part of Prof. Hall's work to follow comets with the great "equatorial." This is always interesting—though, up to the present time, nobody has found out with certainty just what a comet is. A comet is believed, however, to be in assemblage of particles of star dust, between which and the sun there is some sort of electrical action. This action it is that drives off into space the "tail" of the comet, which always points away from the sun. In the course of time the celestial tramp becomes disintegrated, losing so much of its material as to be no longer recognizable. But whether or not it was originally a "busted" planet, is a question as yet in dispute.

In some of the ancient Pyramids of Egypt there are tunnels, pointing skyward, which were unquestionably designed for astronomical purposes—that is to say, for studying the positions of the stars. It is believed that the obelisks were constructed with a like end in view. Thus it might be considered that Prof. Updegraff and his fellow-workers at the Naval Observatory are engaged merely in continuing the observations which star-gazers in the land of Pharaohs carried on centuries ago.

The famous observatory at Greenwich, in was originally started for the purpose of observations, for the benefit of navigators. present time, our Naval Observatory is work in coöperation with Greenwich, and with vatories maintained by the governments of tries—the idea in view being to find out as possible about the structure of the universe. sired not only to determine the positions of but to ascertain their distances from us, the in which they are moving, and the make-up groups, or families, to which they belong. des, for example, might be described as a stars.

One of the assistant astronomers at the G. A. Hill, devotes his attention to watching cording the apparent shifting of the stars as moves around the sun. Another, G. H. With another instrument he photograph of the sun every day in the year, ing a record of sun spots, their appearan changes. This is a matter of no small asmuch as the sun practically controls the earth. A sun spot means an outburs tivity on the surface of the solar orb, which have its effects upon temperature and logic conditions on the terrestrial planets.

times as much as all the known minor planets put gether. It seems not unlikely that the solar system, which we belong, picks them up now and then as it ceeds on its tremendous journey in the direction of constellation Hercules. By observing the extent to which they are pulled out of their orbits by the earth, Venus, and other major planets, it is possible to weigh the latter with greater accuracy than in any other way.

Speaking of major planets, however, it seems con- on our part to regard ourselves as in the same with those huge orbs, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune. Uranus, for instance, is sixty times as as the earth, and its year is as long as eighty-four our years. The sun, as viewed from Uranus, rises in west and sets in the east, as do likewise its four moons. But we have the advantage of it when sunshine considered, by reason of its enormously greater dis- from the solar luminary. Beheld from Uranus, sun looks only one four-hundredth as large as it to us—though it has about the brightness of 1500 our moons, and so gives light enough to see by very comfortably. As for warmth, it matters not, because Uranus is red-hot.

By no means the least important functionary of the val Observatory is Everett Hayden, who is not a fessor, but a plain commander in the navy. It is who has charge of the naval chronometers and the service, by which, at exactly noon every day, a is sent out over the telegraph wires to all parts the country, setting the electric clocks in every city, dropping time balls at the principal seaports. Five before 12 o'clock, the telegraph companies stop business, and throw open every circuit, so that the tric impulse is instantaneously transmitted to every in the United States and by wireless to vessels along the coast.

In Old Carrickbeg.

MARY O'BRIEN AND HER HEROIC ACHIEVEMENT.

By Seumas MacManus.

CARRICKBEG, which lies close by the waters of the Suir, has all the rambling characteristics of an Irish village of ancient date. It is in large part composed of straggling bits of streets whose houses are cabins, one-storied, and thatched. Half a dozen such houses, joined to one another, suddenly springing up, run a little way up a steep hill—and then suddenly stop. At another spot three or four neat, little, whitewashed, small-windowed cots cross the hill face, looking calmly down upon part of the village that lies below, and on the sleepy waters that scarcely flow, down the Suir.

A box of matches, a few pipes crossed, and a bottle of sweets in an occasional window indicate that within is a shop. Along the little streets, where range these cottages, is none of the noise, and little of the stir, which commonly indicates the marts of trade. Yet probably when the market day comes round, and blue-coated farmers pour in, and hooded women, and rosy-cheeked girls driving asses and carts, this village has a bustle that it is proud of, and the little shops drive a roaring trade, disposing of many a shilling's worth before night. When the road which came along the Suir's waters from the east and lost itself among the little streets, found itself and emerged again on the western side, many little cottages, loth to leave the village, and yet loth to be in it, straggled onward, accompanying on its way the west-going road. In one of these cottages, which, unlike its fellows, was slated and inclosed by a diminutive wall and overshadowed by two big sycamore trees, I found Mary O'Brien, a fine old lady who, in her eighty-ninth year, loved to dwell upon the happenings of three-quarters of a century ago. More dearly, however, did she love to dwell upon Irish happenings of sixty years ago—of the brave men and stirring events of Young Ireland of the Forties—a part of which she was. Mary had been a weaver in her day, but now she wove no more, for though age has not yet made decrepit this healthy, hardy woman, her eyesight has nigh deserted her. Yet did the dimming eyes light up when I spoke to her of patriotic events in which, as a young woman, she had been an actor.

When I mentioned the name of John Mitchell, she let the floodgates of her memory fly open, pouring forth a rich and teeming tide of reminiscences. The house of Mary's mother in Coolnamuck had been the rallying-place of all the active spirits of the Young Ireland movement in this portion of Ireland—and to it from time to time came one or another of the brave men whose names are now proudly enshrined in Erin's story. It was this particular portion of the country that was chosen for striking the first blow in the '48 rising; and accordingly to her mother's house John Mitchell sent the green silk flag that, being unfurled, was to have proclaimed Ireland a nation again. The flag was, alas! never unfurled. Folded and laid away at the bottom of her chest of drawers Mary O'Brien still carefully keeps this precious treasure. As a special favor to me, she had a friend search for it and bring it out and give it into my hands to hold—Mrs. O'Brein expressing the hope that though it was not unfurled over free men when first intended, it would yet, please God, be so. To which prayer I sincerely prayed Amen.

In these Young Ireland days Mary was one of the most stirring rebels of them all, and the Young Ireland poet John Savage, the author of "Shaun's Head" and many another fine piece, wrote in honor of her mother's house his poem "The Rebel Cot," one stanza of which was devoted to the singing of the rebel Mary's praises. With pride she recounted this, and with pleasure; in a firm, clear voice she repeated the lines.

"Ah!" said Mary O'Brien with a sigh half-sad, half-proud, "they were the days! And they were the men! I wish to God we had, this day, 10,000 like them!"

When the flag was carefully folded and put away again, Mary told how that her poor mother, before she died, had often expressed the desire that Mitchell's flag, so dear to her heart, might be laid in the coffin with her—a desire which, for the sake of those who remained behind, she at the last consented to deny herself the gratification of. Its weight in gold could not now purchase that flag from Mary. In her mother's house, the conspirators, plotting the rising, used to assemble. Mary acted as scout and messenger, and helped to put into practice for them many a plan. When the men were "out" in the Comeraghs, and it was found that they were short of caps among their ammunition, Mary had journeyed from her home to the far mountain fastnesses, carrying with her enough to supply the deficiency.

But the feat of which she was proudest was her race against the soldiers to Clonmel. On a certain day on which some of the southern leaders, and some of the Dublin men were at conference in a room in Clonmel, the soldiers came through Carrick hurrying to the town to surround and arrest the rebels. Mary, hearing of this, immediately pulled a shawl about her head and set her face for Clonmel—twelve miles away. The soldiers hastened by the road on the northern bank of the river; Mary ran by the southern bank, where was her road. She tore along breathlessly, through bush and bramble, over ditch and dyke, running as she never ran before—and the brave girl got into Clonmel ahead of the soldiers, gave the alarm, and got the rebels away to places of safety before their would-be captors trotted into town to find, to their blank disappointment, that they were just too late.

With pride and pleasure, and with a smile of joy playing over her countenance, Mary relates this achievement. She quoted for me patriotic pieces from the Young Ireland poets, many of whom she knew personally, some of whom had stayed at her mother's house, and again and again she wished that we had such men, and such poets, now. She recalled the passing of Thomas Francis Meagher, and the roaring, cheering crowds that rolled along the roads with him, before and behind, and on each side, men shouting, and girls wildly waving shawls and neckerchiefs, and women holding their babes aloft that they might see and tell their children's children in after days of the people's hero and idol. Yet, though the spirit of the days which Mary loved to recall be not now much in evidence in Carrickbeg, it only sleeps; it is not dead. The flames are smouldering, and its gleam is to be caught here and there by the earnest searcher who would warm his hands by the glow of old patriotism.

Even in this sleepy old town I found the green wood catching sparks from the dying embers of the old. In the moulded, broken-down house that still retained more than a hint of former stateliness, I found a little band of the young men and women gathered by lamplight in a bare room whose walls were grotesquely disfigured by the damp stains—seated around a deal table, planning, in low solemn voices, how Erin, desolate and downtrodden, was to be comforted and lifted up and made once more a proud nation among earth's proudest. They were a little band of Gaelic Leaguers who, most of them working boys and girls, came together here after their day's hard toil, and studied the language of their country, and learned its songs, and its dances, and taught these to others, and devoted much time to the fostering and furthering the industries of Ireland—by which means were to be preserved to Ireland the brawn and the brain and the young blood, of which our sorrow-stricken nation was being fast deprived.

Just over the way from the broken house in which this little patriot band devoted their spare hours to work for their country, I saw a splendid house, the property of a social club whose object was pleasure and luxury, and whose members had means and money, and some of them rank, and all of them power, and I thought of the contrast—sorrowfully, and yet proudly—for the little patriot band whose hearts were filled with enthusiasm, and a faith that must move mountains. Their more moneyed fellows over the way might indecently revel and carouse by their country's bier, but here was a band of God's chosen who, having full faith that God could raise again the dead to life, devoted their thoughts, their days, and their nights to the holy cause of their fallen country. Such heroic devotion cannot go unrepaid of God. In a thousand of Ireland's villages such little hero bands as these are to be found, and a risen nation will yet bless the memory of the boys and girls who bravely form these bands. The bands are small, and to the unthinking, to the frivolous-minded, they may seem insignificant—not deserving of serious thought—because the frivolous-minded cannot look deeper than the surface. From just such small but heroic beginnings spring great revelations; and:

"'You'll read it yet in history,' said Rory of the Hills."

Let it not be forgotten that from the Child which lay upon the straw in an ass's crib in the Judean village 1900 years ago came the doctrine that shook the pillars of the world.

The effect of the quiet, determined work of these young people is indeed already apparent, for when, on the day after I visited this patriot band in the broken-down building, I went to see the schools, the language which, some years ago, was in all our schools neglected and despised, was now being honored and taught with pride to the school-going youth of both sexes. And with marked pride the good Sisters who conducted these schools got the children to salute me in Irish, to sing for me Irish songs, and dance for me Irish dances. The faith, the perseverance, the patriotism of the little band in the bare, damp room was winning out, and their labor of love was, under God, being crowned with success. I knew from experience what was happening here was only typical of the happenings in many hundreds of places scattered over the face of the land, and that the like, rich harvest was being reaped in all corners of the country.

So, Mary O'Brien, your heartfelt wish is coming true, and your dimming eyes may not yet have looked their last on the face of this fair country till God's smile has illuminated a land that is Irish again in soul, heart and tongue!

Last of Massachusetts Iron Mining.

Before the days when tidewater transportation and the nearness of furnaces to natural gas and coal mines entered into the profitable production of pig iron there was a string of iron mines along the Hoosac and Housatonic River valleys and across the Taghconic hills in the towns of Richmond and West Stockbridge.

As early as 1820, iron of high grade had been smelted from "strikes" in the Berkshires. At Richmond, with a great wooden water wheel to furnish power, the furnace which has lasted the longest was established in 1829.

Today, after continuous operation for eighty years, the Richmond mine is still being worked, and enough brown hematite ore is taken from the earth to smelt about 200 tons of pig iron weekly.

There is a reason for the operation of this Richmond mine, the only iron mine now being worked in Massachusetts, where only 42 per cent. of the ore is metallic iron, while the ores taken from the great mines operated along Lake Superior average from 60 to 65 per cent. Of course like Berkshire papers and other wares made in the westernmost part of Massachusetts, it is the superior quality of output which makes Richmond mining profitable.—[Boston Globe.

The American Type.

CHILDREN OF IMMIGRANTS TAKE IT AND ELIMINATE OLD TYPES.

By a Special Contributor.

ENTER now a learned savant to tickle our ears with the very best news that has been heralded from the temples of our wise doctors for many a month of Sundays. Just as we are becoming reconciled to the oft-repeated verdict of science and art that we must indefinitely remain a nondescript, mongrel race, this investigator comes to assure us that there is, wrought of our clay, a distinctive mold which is steadily and persistently shaping a definite and characteristic American type for the world's eyes to feast upon.

An investigation of the changes in the bodily form of the descendants of the aliens coming to our shores was lately confided by the immigration commission to the distinguished German-American anthropologist, Dr. Franz Boas, professor of anthropology at Columbia University, and curator of anthropology at the American Museum of Natural History. Prof. Boas recruited a corps of observers who began a house-to-house canvass of the foreign quarters of New York City, where they measured and scrutinized immigrants, with the latter's consent. Three such observers were also sent to each of the schools selected, because of their large contingents of children of foreign parents. Considerable opposition to the measurements was met with from parents, who did not understand the purpose of the investigation, but the Italian, Jewish and Bohemian newspapers reduced this feeling by urging the people of their nationalities to submit to measurement.

The Instruments Used.

Each observer went armed with a scale and cross-arm for measuring stature, steel calipers for measuring the dimensions of the head and face, a dynamometer for testing the hand grip and a "standard of hair colors" with all shades and hues, to be placed against tresses that must be precisely classified. The condition of the teeth and color of eyes and skin of each subject were also carefully observed; and then there were genealogical blanks calling for data of parents and grandparents. Then people of the same foreign blood were divided into two classes—those born and reared abroad and those born and reared in America—and when these two classes were compared some surprising results—far more important than Prof. Boas anticipated—at once became apparent, and according to Senator Dillingham, chairman of the immigration commission, Dr. Boas has made "a discovery in anthropological science that is fundamental in importance." The results of the investigation, as it has progressed so far, will be reported by the commission in the course of a month.

First Generation Entirely Remodeled.

"Children born even a few years after the arrival of the immigrant parents in America develop in such a way that they differ in type, essentially, from their foreign-born parents," said Dr. Boas. "These differences seem to develop during earliest childhood and persist throughout life. It seems that every part of the body is influenced in this way, and even the form of the head, which has always been considered as one of the most permanent heredity features, undergoes considerable changes."

The two nationalities which have been flocking to our shores in by far the greatest numbers were the first studied by the anthropologist. These are the east European Jews and the southern Italians.

Now a remarkable change is found to take place in these two types as soon as new generations are bred on American soil. The Jew of eastern Europe arrives here with a head as typically round as that of the immigrant from south Italy is characteristicaly long. Although each marries his own blood and has children born in America, the offspring of the round-headed Jewish parents become longer-headed and those of the long-headed Italian parents become rounder-headed. In other words, each cranium approaches an American type of skull—one required by our environment—which is neither as round as that of the eastern Jew or as long as the south Italian's. Here are the figures. The south Italian comes here with a head whose width is 78 per cent. of its length, while that of the east European Jew is 84 per cent. of its length; yet their children born in America have heads whose widths are respectively 80 and 81 per cent. of their lengths, or practically uniform.

Jews' Faces Grow Narrower.

The faces of the Jews are pressed narrower when the diameters of their heads are shortened in thi terious American mold. And at the same ti faces of the Italians become broader when their are rounded out.

How the Jew thrives here, in spite of all ob is well illustrated by the statistics collected by th thropologist. They show that even in the co parts of New York's ghetto the American envir stimulates him to a favorable development sho the increased stature and weight of his children. Italian children, on the other hand, show a smal of vigor, indicating that their race suffers under th fluence of American city life.

Mature Earlier Here.

That American-born boys mature earlier than fo born boys is another interesting condition sho the statistics collected.

The stamp of the American mold becomes with the length of time that the immigrant spend here before the birth of their children. Th fessor proves this by comparing the features classes—those born abroad, those born here less than ten years after the arrival of the mother and those born here after more than te following her coming.

Thus it is seen, for example, that Jewish born soon after their mother's arrival in Ameri longer heads than those of Jewish children born but not so long as those of children born a after their mother's coming to our shores.

Effect Almost Immediate.

Yet the general effect of the American envir found to take place almost immediately after val of the parents, and the later effects are sligh pared with the earlier.

In the case of stature and weight, however, is unusually continuous.

Finally by comparing parents with their own Prof. Boas shows that the difference between and his child born abroad are not the same ferences between a parent and his child born ica. Thus he establishes beyond doubt that " change of type, due to environment takes immigration."

That environment stamps deeper than here soil counts more than blood—is shown also happens to these people in Europe before they here. Anthropological investigations show people inhabiting various parts of Europe according to geographic locality than accordi tionality. Thus the people of the Alps, no language they speak, show considerable type.

How Panics Change the Body.

Economic conditions of our country after of our immigrants, the professor finds, after statistics covering a long period of years. panic of 1893 a sudden decrease in general velopment of immigrants occurred and several years, and a similar change appea taken place after the panic of 1907. Thus new burden of blame to be laid on the political agitator or frenzied financier who financial depression. He reduces the avera and weight of the "American by adoption."

Race Suicide Improves.

A further deduction of Prof. Boas' is of the size of family tends toward improve immigrant.

"It has been observed," he said, "that grants have large families, the size of very materially reduced in the second inquiry into our material has shown that of the size of the family goes hand in improvement of the physical development vidual. This is demonstrated by the fact belonging to small families are considerably children belonging to large families. Redu size of families goes hand in hand with physical development."

The investigation has been extended to other races, and Prof. Boas hopes to continue it until, by noting other changes due to our soil—such as in the color of eyes, hair and skin—he can determine what the indicated "American type" really is.

"American Type" Described in Detail.

During one of the many delightful conversations which I had with that eminent ethnologist, the late Prof. Otis Mason, we discussed at length this very problem. When asked to describe in detail the American type, he replied:

"The average width of his head should be about 80 per cent. of its length, and the whole head is built up somewhat square, with forehead slightly receding and brow and cheek bones together forming an arched angle of considerable prominence. Nose strong and aquiline; mouth full and quite rambling—never pretty, but with a comical curve always its own; chin very strong, and the eye never full or fat, but sunken, on account of the great prominences of the orbits. The color of his eye is dark—hazel, I should say; his skin dark and leathery, and his hair also dark. The natural environment of North America never produced other than dark hair, eyes and skin."

It is worthy of mention that Prof. Mason thus defined the width of the head of the "American type" as 80 per cent. of its length, whereas Prof. Boas finds it in the preliminary investigations to be between 80 and 81 per cent.

JOHN ELFRETH WATKINS.

THE KING'S PROTECTION.

PRECAUTION FOR HIS MAJESTY'S SAFETY WHILE AT WINDSOR CASTLE.

[London Daily Mail:] For an unauthorized person to gain an entrance into one of the King's palaces is nearly an impossibility. It has been done, but the number of times could be almost counted on the fingers of a hand.

Within the walls of Windsor Castle are treasures of priceless value, and even if the court is not in residence no one can enter without his presence being known to the police.

Although the royal residences are so well guarded at all times, the guard is strongest when a foreign sovereign pays a state visit to this country. Then almost every other man is a detective within a mile or two of Windsor Castle, and no one who is not well known has the slightest chance of getting within easy reach of the royal apartments.

When the King is in residence at Windsor, the guards are doubled. Instead of one man marching up and down with bayonet fixed between sentry box and sentry box there are two.

Then there are Metropolitan policemen on duty at each gateway, as well as royal gatekeepers in scarlet and gold livery. In addition to that, there are plain-clothes detectives and night watchmen.

A lunatic seldom gets further than Henry VIII's gateway at Windsor. The little police office is just inside the gate, and here is officially recorded every day anything of note that takes place within the precincts of the castle.

A few yards inside the gateway are also the quarters of the officer who is in command of the castle guard. Telephones are installed all over the castle, and the different entrances are connected with the main switchboard, near the equerries' entrance.

If a paper knife were taken out of the castle today it would be missed tomorrow. Every treasure and piece of furniture in Windsor Castle is entered into huge books, and photographs are kept of all the most valuable articles.

The sentries were always provided with ball cartridge until a guardsman fired three bullets into a stone elephant on the east terrace of Windsor Castle, which he mistook for a ghost in the mists of the early morning. Now they have to depend on the bayonets.

A night watchman goes on duty inside the castle at Windsor every night and comes off in the morning. In case of fire he would at once give the alarm, and in a very few moments the royal firemen and castle guard would be on the spot, and all entrances would be closed and guarded. The same system prevails at the chief of the other royal residences.

There used to be sentries at Frogmore in the early part of the last century, but there are none now. Around the royal mausoleum at Frogmore, where Queen Victoria's remains repose, the metropolitan police are on duty all through the twenty-four hours.

The penalty for a soldier failing to perform his duty when on guard outside royal residences is so severe that there are very few cases indeed on record of men having to be taken off their posts.

Two hours on and four hours off duty are the allotted times in the twenty-four hours' round, and men are very seldom discovered asleep. When the court is in residence at the chief royal palaces the strain of duty is very severe at times.

The royal household police, of course, take turns at night and day duty, and when important functions are on they have a very busy time.

In addition to the soldiers, police, and detectives, there are, of course, the royal servants and lodge keepers, who know a stranger at once.

Even if a visitor got through the strong cordon around royal residences, he would still have to face the six-foot footmen in scarlet and gold, who sit just inside the chief entrances. Near at their hand is a telephone, and if they have the least suspicion of a visitor the police are acquainted in a trice.

A stranger would have the greatest difficulty, even if he successfully eluded the hall porter, to find his way about such buildings as Windsor Castle and Buckingham Palace.

On Ministers Abroad.

THE HOTEL CLERK TALKS ABOUT OUR DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

By a Special Contributor.

"I SEE," said the House Detective of the St. Reckless sagely, "there's a movement been started to provide suitable homes fur our Amurikin diplomats abroad. Wot do you think about it?"

"On the whole, I think it would be better to provide a suitable home for them after they get back," said the Hotel Clerk. "Most of them do very well while in those salubrious foreign crimes far remote from the bucolic atmosphere of Southern Indiana and Central Ioway. They're something like snowballs. The farther they travel from the original starting point the larger they seem. But when an ungrateful government decides they're ripe enough to pick and picks 'em and they return to their native land—that's when they really need a home. A quiet retreat or sanatorium for diplomats suffering from busted prospects, is the idea. Special shrinkage department for those who got too big for their pants, dedicated to Messrs. H. White and Bellamy Storer. Sound-proof rest-cure ward for those that talked too much, endowed by Mr. Crane of Chicago. Small habitable replica of Buckingham Palace for diplomats who have learned to feel deeply ashamed of being born and raised in the United States, Whitelaw Reid Foundation. And so on. 'Tis the crying need of the hour, Larry. It would solve the burning question: What shall we do, if anything, with our returned diplomats?

"At the same time, I can't say I'm altogether out of sympathy with the movement that's been started by a number of patriotic cotillion leaders to provide adequate establishments for our foreign diplomats. I admire the determination of Our Own Frederick Townsend Martin—plain Freddy to the inner set—who's trying to make Congress do the proper thing. A Grand Committee on the Boost, headed by Mr. Martin, has been traveling over the country attending dinners and wearing correct Fifth-avenue clothes in the interest of the movement. Such a strong sentiment has been created. You'd be surprised. The Waco, Tex., Chamber of Commerce and Association For the Improvement of the Breed of Short Horn Cattle passed a stirring set of resolutions. The Gallipolis, O., Board of Trade came out very strongly in favor of a suitable legation building in Bogota, just as soon as they found out where Bogota was. I don't know anybody that's lately eaten more dinners across the continent in behalf of a worthy cause than Mr. Martin, unless it is our worthy President.

"But for some reason Congress has remained unmoved so far. I haven't heard any wild clarion alarrums from Unc' Joe Cannon on the subject. Any wild clarion alarrums that Unc' Joe may have in stock he's saving up for personal use. He's liable to need a few of them at almost any moment. And the rank and file of Congress don't appear to be getting very much excited over the sad state of our diplomatic corps, either. The average member cares naught. He's got more important things on his statesmanlike mind, such as having his aged grandmother appointed as messenger to a couple of committees and putting through a million-dollar appropriation for the purpose of broadening, deepening and otherwise improving Mink Creek so that it will be open to navigation any time there should be an unusually wet spring. Give him but the pippins and he cares not what becomes of the corps, which is a little joke of my own, Larry. Congressmen go on the broad principle that this is the land of simple democratic institutions, and anybody who's foolish enough to go as consul-general to some place on the sunny slope of the Nubian desert when he might stay at home and run for County Attorney deserves what he gets.

"Some of the stories that filter to us regarding the privations which our faithful diplomats are called upon to endure in the pursuit of their responsible and arduous duties would move a heart of stone or even a head of bone. We hear that our Minister to Bulfusia (salary $900 per annum) has his office in a small room upstairs over a retail cheese conservatory in the last house on a small dark alley opening off of the thoroughfare known in the picturesque and poetic language of the country as The Bum Street Of A Million Smells and that he is very anxious for Washington to provide him with larger and more commodious quarters so his wife can take in boarders. He would also like to have permission to wear the clothes, if they'll fit him, of such American citizens as die in his jurisdiction.

"We read with tears in our eyes that the sovereign majesty of our government is subject to daily insults in far-away Jujubia, because the natives, observing that our Minister Plenipotentiary is living back of a pants-pressing establishment, naturally fall under the delusion that ours is a nation of merchant tailors. He'd like for the authorities to send a gunboat down right away to make a demonstration. And if they can't send a gunboat would it be possible to remit passage money home for himself and family? He has a feeling that he'd be happier once more back in dear old South Bend where he enjoys the esteem and love of his fellow-citizens and where he was almost given a nomination for Congress once.

"And yet sometimes it seems to me that merely providing our diplomats with large ornate barracks and permitting them to wear small swords and other regalia in lands where a frock coat does not seem to command the proper respect, wouldn't altogether solve the problem. You see, Larry, in the older countries a man is either born in the diplomatic service or else he's apprenticed to it. It's a regular trade with him. After a young person has learned how to lie affably in several languages and can wear without confusion a court costume which makes him look like a Christmas card shot to death with a load of green parrot feathers, they give him a card in the union and he's sent out to one of those small Colorado Maduro countries to get the experience. Then, by degrees, he's advanced to more important posts. You've got to be a good journeyman diplomat with references from the last place where you worked before they'll let you tackle one of the big lying jobs.

"But with us a diplomat is a politician who's had diplomacy thrust upon him, I might even say driven into him with a maul, or other blunt instrument. He's generally a person who's too unimportant to be given one of the real jobs and not insignificant enough to be overlooked altogether. After the elections are over and the new administration has moved in and made itself comfortable by chucking all the left-over policies of the old administration down the dumb-waiter shaft, the shoguns sit down together to cut up the usufruct. When everybody else has been properly attended to, they come to the name of Benjamin Jinks, Esq., away down at the foot of the list. And somebody says: 'We'll have to do something for B. Jinks, from down in Mississippi. He held his organization together so well that all three of them cast their votes and two of them were actually counted. He's here now, expecting something suitable.' 'What does he want?' asks somebody else. 'Well,' says B. Jink's sponser, 'he thinks that he has the making of a diplomat in him.' 'Fine,' puts in Main Handle, 'we'll send him as United States Minister to Camemberia, wherever that is.' So a delegation goes around to break the news to the expectant patriot.

"'Well, old man,' they say to him, with well-feigned enthusiasm, 'hearty congratulations. In consideration of your invaluable and almost invisible services to the party, you have been selected for one of the most important and responsible diplomatic posts in the gift of the administration.' 'Is it the Court of St. James?' asks B. Jinks, beginning to tremble. 'No,' says the spokesman of the delegation, "it's Camemberia. Lovely, tropical Camemberia, located within easy walking or riding distance of the equator. You can run over any Sunday and take a look at this justly-celebrated curiosity, the equator, and which has a climate that is regarded as one of the most climatic climates on earth. Oh, you'll like Camemberia. And the salary is ninety a month, payable on the 1st and the 15th. When can you start? Can't we come around and help you pack? There's a nice ship sailing Wednesday.'

"Well, at first B. Jinks is a mite put out. It sort of grates on him being appointed to a country which he'd always supposed up to this time was a brand of soda biscuit. But after a few hours of reflection the idea begins to sort of grow on him. He gathers that there'll be no scandal made if he wears his full regalia of the Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias while paying official calls. He can have a sword dragging majestically between his legs, giving him a gait like a pair of buttonhole scissors, without any offense to anybody. He will have the emblem of our country, a fried soft-shell crab, done in bronze and called a spread eagle, over his door, and he can write letters home with the official large, red seals smeared all over them.

"So he rounds up Mrs. B. Jinks and all the little B. Jinkses and starts for his post of duty. He's somewhat pained to find on his arrival that he's only a sort of notary public caught a long way from home, the same as any other diplomat, and that his principal responsibilities consist in being insulted by bock panatella grandees and advancing passage money to busted Americans. But eventually he begins to like the job. He's one of those statesmen with a baritone manner and a tenor intellect, such as are very common among us, and he fits in beautifully with the rest of the picture. He acquires the language and manners of the country. He forgets the turmoil and struggle of life at home. He ceases to take an interest in the vulgar politics that are still said to prevail in the far-away U.S.A. He is friends with the King and the whole court suite down to the seven spots, and his daughter is engaged to marry one of the local banana barons. Election day at home comes and passes and he heeds it not. And then on the early morning of the 5th of March following he gets a cable message, and he goes to his wife with a puzzled look on his face. 'See here, my dear,' he says, 'here's some impudent American back in the States wiring me to start for there at once. Signs himself Taft, or some such name. Cheeky, eh, what?' And then it dawns on him that Taft is the name of the party who's just been inaugurated as President, and with a heart full of sorrow, he returns to his own, his native land to find that nobody remembers him any more, and that being introduced around as an ex-minister merely has the effect of making strangers wonder what the old dodo did to be put out of the pulpit."

"Well," said the House Detective, "by hook or croop, each noo President manages somehow to draw most of the old ones back home purty prompt."

"Yes," said the Hotel Clerk, "and mainly by the hook."

A MIDWINTER TRIP UP MT. WILSON BY MOONLIGHT.

By a Special Contributor.

"COME along, William Jennings Bryan—don't be so slow!" is what I said to my diminutive burro at about 9:30 Christmas night. The burro had been hired at the Sign of the Red W, and I started out leading instead of mounting him. Evidently he was somewhat surprised at this proceeding, and did not quite know what to make of it. However, deciding to come along, he did so, with a slow jig-jog that made me laugh.

It was a clear moonlit night, not at all cold or unpleasant—indeed I had to take off my heavy coat while walking. The ground was somewhat damp, but the walking was not very unpleasant. Occasionally a cold breath of air flowed down from the valleys of the upper hills and made me expand my lungs and take in deep inhalations with a feeling of exquisite ecstacy.

The trail was bathed in a flood of light and wound away through alternate shadows and lights. This was my fourth trip up Mt. Wilson, and each time new beauties unveiled to me and a deeper pleasure was mine. Each tall, dark, silent tree is a familiar sentinel to me, and I feel the great spirit of nature coming closer with each journey that I make. I often feel that God stands at my side revealing to me the truths that so suddenly dawn upon my soul.

After all, the greatest sermon that was, is and ever shall be delivered is that which nature speaks to us if we have the ears to hear and the eyes to see. For the earth is the pulpit, the sky the limitless canopy, while the infinite Spirit of Nature that permeates all is the great high priest. And as this mighty spirit speaks, the finger of nature paints the moral in glowing colors whose beauties defy the brush of the greatest painters, and her murmurings sounds or thunderous elemental strifes put at naught the greatest speeches that man has ever spoken. We can only keep silent in this holy temple of God, and sit quietly, as little children, and hear and see—and thus we shall learn the truth, and we shall be made free.

Two tramps

Watching the sun rise.

After a barefoot run at the top.

All these thoughts, and many more, came to me as I passed slowly up the trail leading my burro or speaking softly to my companion. The moonbeams wove a silver glamour around us, and my heart became fused with vivifying life at last sought expression in an improvised song of praise:

"When I lift up mine eyes to Thy hills,
  When I gaze at the works of Thy might,
It is then that my soul doth arise,
  And I stand ashamed in Thy light;
    And I praise Thee,
    And I praise Thee,
Till my innermost being doth thrill,
Till my troubled self grows silent and still!

"When I lift up my soul in Thy praise,
  Heavenly hosts do echo my song;
Almost doth fall the veil of the earth!
  Then an ecstacy seizes me strong,
    And I praise Thee,
    And I praise Thee,
Till the small and mean slink from my sight,
For only the pure can stand in Thy light!"

Thus all the way up I sang, trying to give vent to the deep bliss that filled me. I felt a great love for all mankind, and I could see and understand many of the dark problems of life. Each time that I go to the hills great truths come to me, and laying their hands on my eyes, bid my soul look, and lo! the veils of misunderstanding shrivel away as at the touch of a holy flame.

To take a trip like this just to boast of it is to gain nothing, for Nature veils herself from sight, and one sees only the rocks and feels only the cold winds; then, to these, there comes no inspiration. No strength, no benefit is gained, and they say: "Take my advice, don't go!" Aye! don't go, unless you go humbly and lovingly, with a sincere desire to get close to nature, for here we find the hand of God plainly revealed without man's devastating touch.

Three times we crossed the icy stream that winds down from the snows, and each time we nearly "put our foot in it." Br-rr-rr-rr! but it was cold, and a draught fit for the gods. Rounding a turn near the top, we came unexpectedly in sight of a patch of dazzling snow, and my heart gave a leap of joy, for I had not seen snow for more than ten years. Afterward we came across snow patches at more and more frequent intervals, until at last we entered the snow belt where the snow crunched under foot with a musical sound that echoed like a paean of praise in my soul. About a mile from the top we crossed an open range of hills that gave us a splendid view of the plains and lowlands and the cluster of twinkling lights that showed where Los Angeles was. The lights were so clustered that they formed the figure of an immense bird with wings partly outspread sitting in a nest. I prayed that the spirit of brooding peace and comfort might come to all and teach them that we are brothers in this world, and the great spirit will then lead us out of the maze of life on to a higher, purer plane.

At about 3 a.m. we arrived at the top. The tavern was dark and closed, and the hour being too early to go to the Point for the sunrise, we went back to the burro yard, and spreading our blanket we sat down upon it to wait.

Gradually the dawn flushed the eastern sky and the rosy fingers of Aurora wrote her message to notify the sun worshipers of the coming of the King of Day. These crimson guidons sent their flaming words from east to west, from north to south, telling to all who would know that a new day was to be born, a new race set, new deeds were to be performed.

Brighter grew the glory, indescribably wonderful. We now sat on the point where we had gone to witness the ever-new miracle of day, and we watched the snow-capped distant peaks grow bright with glory, each lifting its face in royal greeting to the Supreme Ruler of all as He touched them with His scepter of light, revealing that which had been hidden in the dark, making real the half-veiled truths of the midnight hours.

Thus rapt in meditation we watched the wonders of the new day and in my heart echoed the ancient Aryan prayer: "Open, O Thou World-sustaining Sun, the entrance unto Truth, veiled by the vase of dazzling Light. Soften the radiations of Thy illuminating splendors that I may behold Thy true Being!"

The rest of the morning we wandered around the snow-white pathways. At one point near the inn I coasted down with a lady, landing in a bush without any damage, watched some boys coast down the same place and around a dangerous turn where a tall pine kept guard. I had a fine snow fight with my companion, wherein I got my face well washed and some snow down my neck—br-rr-rr-rr!—and at last, after a barefoot run in the snow, we strapped up and started for the foot of the trail.

Thirty-four trampers had arrived at sunrise and loudly clamored for admittance, shouting for breakfast at reduced rates, or at least hot coffee. But the hard-hearted landlord of the inn turned deaf ears to their cries. So more than half pocketed their pride and threats and had breakfast at regular rates. I did not need any—just a couple of bread and cheese sandwiches, a couple of apples and a lemon and I was fit for anything. It is foolish to clamor for a heavy meal while mountain climbing. In fact, the less you eat, and the less you think of food, and the less you load yourself, the better you are. At least, so I have found it from experience.

We started on the downward journey at about 11. Getting my burro, who happened to be named Baron instead of W. J. B., we began our descent.

It wasn't cold, not even at the top. A warm sun was sending its rays broadcast, and though the snow underfoot crunched, we were warm, cosy and cheerful. At various points along the trail the snow had begun to melt, and it was slushy and slippery. But my surefooted little burro took me down safely and carefully, choosing each step with the dignity of a monarch. I had to laugh at my escort, for he was behind with a little switch which he wielded despite my earnest protests and my oft-declared assurance that he would precipitate both burro and myself to fearful destruction. Below the snow belt, and after my last snow washing, I dismounted, and after that we had to push the honorable burro, for he seemed disinclined to chang verted disposition. Twice we had to unite ou and give him a starting push; twice we gather orange peels, which seemed to be Mas special dainty. Toward the end, when he feed house, he started a gait with which we ado to keep pace. Finally we joined hand burro's tail, and attempted to hold him up,

Thereafter we had no trouble, and could

Thus benefited by our tramp, strengthene

Thus may peace and truth come to all wh

Pierre Loti.

Author and Eccentric Retires from French Navy.

By a Special Contributor.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Under the pseudonym of "Pierre Loti," one of the most distinguished of French novelists, is veiled the identity of M. Louis Marie Ju- Viaud, captain in the French navy. He entered the in 1867, and left it under the age limit on January . In the interval he has seen a good deal of service in Far Eastern waters. Since 1891 he has been a member of the French Academy.

Loti is a man of strange habits, and has many us tastes, probably the most remarkable being a passion for cats and a craze for collecting mummies. of his mummies is that of a young princess, and another is that of a little girl, which stands in his study, nt watcher as Loti writes his masterpieces.

Ordinarily, Loti is the most unapproachable of men. He speaks little, shuns society, and generally plays the hermit. Then after a long interval, once every five years or so, he suddenly announces a grand fête, and the residence of the recluse is invaded by hundreds of visi-

One room is Moorish, another apart- Japanese, while his bedroom is furnished in the western style, which he calls Christian. But vel of marvels is the mosque. It is filled with carpets and stuffs from the east and the floor with beautiful pink and white marble. Some Loti's romantic nature may be gained from the that after this mosque had been erected he discovered that its windows looked out on a commonplace and upon a neighboring house, instead of having ar and unbroken view of the sky; he immediately orders for the mosque to be demolished and rebuilt elsewhere, facing in the right direction.

In his book on India he severely ignored existence of the English. The only English woman tioned was Annie Besant, whom he interviewed Buddhist monastery. But he managed to give her a foreign turn by spelling it wrongly.

He had resolved never to visit London; he was cocksure he would dislike it. He did visit that city, however, and later he confessed in an article in the Figaro that he had become enamored of London. The peacefulness and order of the streets amazed him.

"No quarrels; no one raises his voice—not even cabmen in collision!" He admired the policemen who, "with a gesture that is almost graceful," regulate the traffic.

"It is very strange, indeed. I fancied that in London everything would be repulsive to me, and, on the contrary, I feel my racial dislike of the English nation gradually vanish."

The Fugitive.

Fate's Edict Overrules the Decree of a Court.

By a Special Contributor.

SOMETHING of the aversion for his calling which every peace officer feels at times surged over Deputy Hooper as he rode slowly up the Chiquito Cañon trail. Years of service in every capacity, from local constable to United States deputy marshal, had robbed man hunting of its last vestige of novelty. In his younger days he had earned his spurs as an intrepid officer, and now, with his prime behind him, he had come to regard impartially the occasional weaknesses and abuses of the system of surveillance of which he was a part. For his present errand he had no relish, and he realized that his success would arouse little enthusiasm at headquarters. His quarry, a fugitive for many years, had been discovered in a lonely cabin high up in the Manzano range, and Hooper had been detailed with a carefully-prepared map from the District Attorney's office to effect the capture. He had but to steal upon the cabin at night and cover its occupant as he stepped forth in the morning. The danger involved was nil, unless——

Aeons after, it seemed, Hooper remembered. His arm had been pierced by a rifle ball, and his horse had shied, pitching him headlong into the arroyo. He opened his eyes gradually, anticipating the glare of the desert sunlight, and with his uninjured arm felt cautiously about. His gaze encountered the interior of a rude cabin, and his hand touched the soft wool blankets in which he was wrapped. A gray-haired man with an immense shaggy gray beard sat beside the cot regarding him intently.

"Are you quite yourself again?" he asked anxiously. "I had no intention of wounding you quite so seriously. I fear I have afflicted you with a very sore arm."

Hooper, thoroughly aroused, stared at the uncouth figure before him in speechless wonder. The latter continued, a trifle hurriedly, as if anxious to complete his explanation:

"You see, I couldn't let you come here and hound me till you caught me off my guard. Your informant was a man I trusted; I knew he had turned on me—so I expected your visit. It was not pleasant to knock you over this way, but it seemed necessary." Hooper raised himself to speak, but his host waved him back.

"I know you would be saying that I am only adding to my score in assaulting an officer, and that I am bound to be taken now that I am known, all of which I realize as well as yourself. It is simply a case of playing my last card. My fate rests with you. If you choose to go back down the trail as you came—you understand—and give me time—a week—to find a new hiding-place, I can continue this miserable, aborted existence until—until the word comes!"

"What do you mean by 'until the word comes?'"

The fugitive hitched his rude chair nearer the cot and regarded the deputy closely.

"Down in the Swihawk country in Oklahoma I have a brother—ten years older than I—he cannot live a great while longer——"

"And then——" prompted the deputy.

"Before he dies I calculate he will be man enough to tell the truth. I feel that he will at least do that. I had hoped to hold out until that time."

"The truth?" queried the deputy.

"That he killed the postmaster at Shawnee Lake. God knows I had nothing to do with that!"

For a long time the gray-haired fugitive stared moodily across the patch of sunlit floor into the depths of the cañon beyond. Something of his long-pent yearning for freedom seemed to tremble in his tone as he proceeded.

"Of coure, you are helpless, and I could easily make my way south, but your people would hunt me down. I presume I am irrational in expecting your aid, but all I ask is to be let alone—to continue a fugitive—a fugitive from injustice. As man to man, am I asking anything unreasonable?" Deputy Hooper had dragged himself to a sitting posture.

"A fugitive from injustice," he repeated. "I presume you realize that I have heard that argument before, and that I have no choice—I am under oath."

"Then the personal equation means nothing! You would still hunt me down if you knew I was innocent!" The deputy nodded.

"That is a matter for the judge and jury to decide, you know. I have no choice." The gray-haired fugitive shook his head sadly.

"In my case it is a matter for the District Attorney to decide. The evidence was 'framed up.'"

Two days later, Deputy Hooper, divested of rifle and six-shooter, rode away down the cañon and across the plains to the nearest railway station, the fugitive releasing him voluntarily, realizing that a longer absence of the deputy would bring a posse into the hills. Immediately on Hooper's arrival at headquarters, two deputies were detailed to take up the trail and bring in the fugitive.

For a week Hooper lounged about headquarters, nursing his wounded arm. One morning the marshal handed him a telegram with an Oklahoma date line.

"Withhold service Wilkins warrant. Erroneous indictment."

Two hours later Hooper stepped from a train at the little station where the Chiquito Cañon trail winds away into the hills. A jaded horse stood beside the platform, and Walsh, one of the deputies, lounged against the doorway. Hooper nodded and extended the telegram. The other read it carefully and passed it back without comment.

"Did you get him?" Hooper asked anxiously. Walsh nodded.

"Barker and the Mexican are bringing him in," he answered. Something in Walsh's tone aroused Hooper's misgivings.

"What's the straight of it?" he asked, turning abruptly on his companion.

For a long moment Walsh gazed across the cactus-studded mesa to the wavering desert horizon.

"This is a funny life, ain't it?" he commented with apparent irrelevance. "Sometimes a man gets damn sick of this job!"

Hooper studied his fellow-deputy thoughtfully.

"It had to be as bad as that?" he queried. Walsh nodded.

"There was a little shooting—the original indictment will have to stand."

The First Clock.

Since celebrations are the order of the day, why not observe the sixth centenary of the introduction of clocks? It was, we are told, in 1309 that the first clock known to the world was placed in the tower of San Eustorgio, in Milan.

The greatest astonishment and admiration were manifested by crowds who came to see the timepiece. In 1344 a clock was installed in the palace of the nobles at Padua. This was a wonder of mechanism indeed, for besides indicating the hours it showed the course of the sun, the revolutions of the planets, the various phases of the moon, the months and the fêtes of the year.

The period of the evolution from the clock to the watch was seventy-one years, not so very long all things considered, and the record of the first watch is 1380. A half-century later an alarm clock made its appearance. This, we are told, was looked upon by the people of that age as "un instrument prodigieux."

The fortunate possessor of this clock was Andrea Alciato, a councillor of Milan. The chroniclers have placed on record that this clock sounded a bell at a stated hour, and at the same time a little wax candle was lighted automatically. How this was done we are not told, but it must not be overlooked that until about seventy years ago we had no means of obtaining a light other than the tinder box, so that the Milanese must have been centuries ahead of us in this respect.

Not much progress was made with the watch until 1740, when the second hand was added.—[London Globe.

Delivering the Arctic Mail.

The Arctic mail left Edmonton the other Monday afternoon. About the end of January it will reach its destination, Fort McPherson, on the Peel River about forty miles from the point where the great Mackenzie River debouches into the Arctic Ocean.

A sleigh piled up with mail bags also drove away from the Hudson's Bay Company's store. Its delivery will not be completed for two full months. At Lac La Biche three dog trains are in waiting for their 2000-mile journey with message from Christendom up into the land where the sun does not shine in winter. Fort McPherson is served with but two mails a year, one carried by dog trains in the winter and the other by the Hudson's Bay Company's steamer in midsummer.—[Westminster Gazette.

Belgians' New Ruler.

ALBERT IS ALREADY CALLED "THE PEOPLE'S KING."

From a Special Correspondent.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 18.—Albert the First of Belgium is already known as "the People's King." His reign, it is predicted, will stand out in history as that of a humanitarian. Leopold II, empire-maker and palace-builder, ignored the present happiness of individuals in his wide schemes for Belgian aggrandizement: King Albert looks first to individual happiness, and regards the improvement of the condition of the poor as his chief duty.

As heir apparent to a despotic ruler, his position was a difficult one. It speaks much for his diplomatic skill that he succeeded in putting many of his theories into practice without bringing down on himself the open wrath of King Leopold. Much of the success he has achieved is due to the aid given to him by his wife, Queen Elizabeth, who shares his opinions and joins in his work.

King Albert has all the quiet determination of a shy man. Up to the present, partly from inclination, partly because he was compelled to remain continually in the background, he has lived the life of a student, almost that of a recluse. His shyness must be attributed to this. Doubtless, now that he is his own master, and King, it will disappear. Up to the present it is only in private conversation that he has allowed himself full justice. Those who have been admitted to his intimacy are impressed with the quickness of his intelligence, and the depth of his learning, especially in all subjects which deal with the economical condition of the people.

Queen of the Belgians

New Crown Prince and his brother.

New King of the Belgians

As Prince he passed through the military school, fighting hard to be treated exactly as the other cadets were by their superiors; insisting on being given a nickname and "ragged" and generally dealt with by his comrades as one of themselves—an attitude far less common among continental than English princes. From the military school he passed into the Grenadier regiment, in which he was advanced rapidly from a sub-lieutenancy to a colonelcy. At the moment of his accession he was already a general in the Belgian army.

King Albert had no expectancy of inheriting the Belgian throne until the death of his elder brother, Prince Badouin, in 1891. That year he entered the military school, and it was not until he left the school, that he was able to commence the special studies in kingcraft and diplomacy, to which he had never given a thought before. He flung himself earnestly into these studies sitting daily at the feet of Baron Lambermount, and learning all the wisest of European statesmen could teach. "The Baron" has been dead for years, but King Albert's studies continue to this day. When he was given a separate household on his marriage he surrounded himself with men learned in sociology, ignoring party prejudices to such an extent that, though no socialist was included among his instructors, scoffers cried that a socialist was coming to the Belgian throne. Those scoffers will be taught by the King, and before long, that a wide difference lies between socialism and sociology.

In his early manhood King Albert allowed his beard to grow, possibly in imitation of King Leopold. It gave him no resemblance to that King, but, rather, a feeble appearance. One day, advisedly, he shaved his beard, and to the surprise and satisfaction of his future subjects the features of his grandfather, Leopold I, founder of the Belgian dynasty, stood revealed.

Albert was married in 1900 to the Princess Elizabeth, Duchess in Bavaria, daughter of Duke Karl Theodore, the famous oculist who performed hundreds of successful operations on the poor. The gentle air of the princess gained her the sympathy of the Belgian people the moment she entered the country; her innumerable acts of kindness and charity speedily won her their love, and when her first baby, Prince Leopold, was born, on November 3, 1901, thousands of poor people sent her letters of congratulation. To each of these a letter of thanks was sent by the Princess and her husband, the present King; while to every baby born in Brussels on that 3rd of November a present of a gold watch was sent by the Prince and Princess, with a money present in addition for those of the poorest class.

It is not a desire for popularity, but love for the poor that actuates King Albert and the Queen in all they do. King Leopold sought to create a Belgian merchant marine to increase the richness of the country. King Albert has established a training ship for sailors, and encourages schools for fishermen, in order that sailors and fisher folk may reap for themselves rich harvests from the sea in greater security. He is constantly to be seen about the docks of Antwerp and the quays of Ostend, often unattended, always dressed as a private citizen, seeking to discover for himself the real condition of the people without embarrassing them by a show of royalty. When he is on these truth-seeking expeditions he is best pleased if those to whom he speaks do not recognize him, but it is difficult for him to avoid recognition. The portrait of a popular prince is to be found everywhere in his country, and King Albert had not to wait until his image was stamped on coins to have his appearance known to everyone in Belgium.

The new King is represented as being surrounded by a crowd of dangerous men, who fill him with anti-Christian views, and have made him a Socialist of the most advanced type. It is reported in serious newspapers that the Pope, terrified at the accession of the dangerous Prince, has instructed the Nuncio at Brussels to contrive means, in concert with the Cardinal Archbishop of Malines, of removing all the King's present advisers from him, and surrounding him with men selected by the Jesuits. This is all false. The King when he was Crown Prince selected his advisers from each of the two historic Belgian parties, Catholic and Liberal. Rome has no thought of interfering in his selection of his officials, and the King has no intention of allowing interference from any quarter. He has made sweeping changes in the court, in order that no remnant of the old despotic rule may remain. Belgium with a young King and Queen is to have a young court. The Palace of Brussels, and the Chateau of Laeken, where the court has already taken up its residence, are being refurnished, as is the royal chalet at Ostend, where the King and Queen will reside for two months every year in future.

With the coming of the new court to Ostend, the gambling, which was the greatest stain on Belgian's fame, will be suppressed. Laws which proved indefective against the public gambling in Ostend, of late years, will be found suddenly to have full force now that King Albert has come to the throne.

The new Queen of Belgium, as might be expected from the daughter of the only royal doctor, is specially interested in hospitals. She has founded a hospital for consumptives, and several dispensaries, and every year the most delicate children in the poor schools of Brussels are sent to the seaside for a holiday at her expense. When they return, they and their mothers are received at the palace. It is a touching sight to see the offerings of flowers which the children make to their fairy princess, and the toys they bring to the little princes, whom their wise parents already associate with themselves in their kindly acts. The poor children are no losers by their humble gifts; all, whether they bear offerings in token of their gratitude or not, leave the palace laden with good things.

Queen Elizabeth's generosity to the poor, and her kindness to them, know no bounds. She annually sets aside a large sum of money for her private charities—and this sum she invariably exceeds. No want of a poor person is made known to her that she does not relieve, regardless of the state of her own finances, and King Albert has been forced on more than one occasion to remonstrate with the Queen's secretary for the manner in which her charity was allowed to exceed her estimates of what it should be.

The charity of the Queen of the Belgians is not given coldly through secretaries or committees. The Queen herself visits the poor and sees to their needs for herself. No slum in Brussels is too dangerous for her to penetrate privately, when there are it to be tended. A little time ago, the Queen poor sick woman, who raved of music. On the visit of the Queen, a large box was carried sick woman's room. Her friends wondered what it. The Queen, having pledged them to secrecy, the box and took her violin from it. On it she to the sufferer until the music brought her rest. violin was left in the sick woman's room, and day, until the sufferer was well, the Queen came vately, and played to her. Hundreds of such Queen Elizabeth are told in Brussels. Do what will to have such acts of her kept private, the cannot prevent the grateful people from talking gracious acts.

Since his accession, the King rises at 5 and is at work. There is a church near by the palace, he hears mass every morning, going without tion, passing unnoticed by the people. At half- he breakfasts with the Queen. At 8 the little come to wish their parents good morning, and with them. For the King, work commences again and continues until 11. At 11, he rides with the or motors with her; unless, indeed, the Queen at home by some of her work for the poor the tion of which is put before all pleasure. It is continually renewed; it is almost a misnomer of its completion.

The luncheon of the King and light. The King drinks wine dosed with water. After luncheon the whole given up to work within doors and doors. At 6 o'clock the royal babies are put to room next their parents. At 8 the King ladies and gentlemen in attendance dine at table, and the dinner is perforce a ceremonial The King cares little for food, and nothing He is back to his work as soon as he can leave with courtesy.

King Albert and Queen Elizabeth have one to which they give free rein. They love are enthusiastic Wagnerites. While they Crown Prince and Princess they abandoned box and sat in the stalls in the Monyaie, the operahouse, to be nearer the orchestra. It that what Dresden was in other days Brussels in the near future, the center of a music-loving the place of a world-famed conservatoire, the court renowned for every virtue.

King Albert performed a feat few would dertake when he traversed the Congo from desian frontier to Boma. For many hundreds he had to march through bush and forest was neither road nor unincumbered pathway journey in the Congo lasted for several went there to see the country's condition making his tour as little official as possible, into direct touch with the natives. He returned the Congo marveling at its richness, praising the work done there by the state, but saddened tain conditions which prevailed in certain colony, conditions he and his government to abolish as speedily as possible.

journalist set off to look for it. In the midst of their search they were disturbed by a much-perturbed aide-de-camp who rushed up saying in the gravest tones: "Your Royal Highness. Her Royal Highness your mother wants you." Sadly, but immediately, Her Royal Highness, aged 3, toddled off; obedience is inforced in the royal nursery of Belgium; but we may all be sure, by the gentlest means.

The most popular lady in Belgium is not the Queen. There is no treason in saying this, although the Queen's rival is very near the throne. The lady who outrivals Queen Elizabeth in popularity is her own little daughter, for Princess Marie José is assuredly the most popular lady in all Belgium; she outdistances her mother, but only by a short distance, for the Queen is also most popular. On the day of the state entry of the King and Queen into Brussels I was in my club, which happens to be next to the palace of the Countess of Flanders, on the Place Royale of Brussels. The cortége passed twice through the Place Royale. In the intervals between its passing the place was filled by an immense multitude, which was swayed as wind sways water, forced backward by the soldiers pressing upward, as relentlessly as a surging tide. All the time the people had no anger for the soldiers, none for the mounted police who crushed them; none for each other. Every one in the crowd cheered lustily, astonishingly, for Belgians are generally self-contained; the men waved their hats, the women waved their handkerchiefs. Surprised, I craned my head from the window. There, in the palace near by was Princess Marie José. She waved her handkerchief to the crowd, and the crowd cheered enthusiastically. She waved again. and again the crowd cheered. Popularity is dearly bought. The dear little girl, little more than three years of age, had to continue waving for hours and hours. She did so bravely, and when she was tired waving with one hand, she put her handkerchief into the other. Then she took it in both hands, and then she waved her hand, without a handkerchief. At the supreme moment, the Princess was hungry! A child of three years, even if she be princess royal, has wants like other children, and must have them attended to. When her father and mother, newly acclaimed King and Queen, passed back from the parliament house, Princess Marie José saluted them with affection and with reverence, but what she waved toward them was not a handkerchief—it was a huge slice of bread, out of which, with her good teeth aiding her healthy appetite, she had already bitten a large mouthful.

Popularity does not come suddenly in Belgium; I was in the Bois de la Combre on the Sunday afternoon of November 3, 1901, when Prince Leopold, now the Crown Prince, was born. Booming guns announced his birth. All in the crowded park counted.

At the first boom there was no cheer. When the counting reached the number which might have announced a girl one could see expectancy hung in the air. The cannon boomed on. A son was born to Belgium's heir. The dynasty was secure. Largess would shower on every hamlet. Prison gates would be flung open. At such moments as this, kings and princesses bring unaccustomed joy to the people. Amnesty, healing the sorrows of the innocent who suffer when criminals are punished, is the greatest blessing a king can bestow. The Belgians knew this, knew what good things would come; yet in the crowded park not a cheer was raised, not a handkerchief waved. The love of the Belgian people may be earned, it cannot be bought.

Queen Elizabeth was filled with two great fears while her children were still babies. She was afraid of microbes and she was afraid of anarchists. To fight the microbes she placed disinfectants everywhere; insisted on all who entered the royal nurseries leaving coats, cloaks and furs aside and garbing themselves in weird garments prescribed by some courtly doctor.

Her precautions against anarchists were more simple, and more pitiable. The little princes were never allowed to play together out of doors. If one was killed by a bomb, at least the other should survive. So thought the Queen. Now, the Princes go freely where they will. No place in Belgium is forbidden to them. There may be anarchists in Belgium, but the Queen knows her children's lives are safe; for all in Belgium love them, and her.

The love of the Belgians for their King and Queen grew from respect. Belgium, one of the smallest, is the most democratic country in Europe. The fierce light that beats upon the throne, beats nowhere more fiercely than in Belgium. All it revealed was ever to the good of the new King's household.

A Novelty in Corn.

Jake Brunton, a farmer, living five miles northwest of Blair, astonished the managers of the Corn Show here to a finish by bringing in for exhibition, a full well-developed ear of corn, with an odd number of rows of corn on it. It is a noted fact that all ears of corn have even number of rows—running from fourteen to twenty-two—but no odd numbers. This ear has fifteen rows with forty-eight grains to the row. Mr. Brunton planted fifteen hills from a peculiar ear of corn of his own selection, and the planting received the same attention as his other corn. He read last year of an offer by an Illinois corn raiser of a 320-acre farm for an ear of corn with an odd number of rows. He began to experiment, and planted an odd number of grains in an odd number of hills on the 13th day of the month, and husked and counted each ear separately. A dozen corn experts examined it this afternoon, and would not believe it until counted by themselves. It is a freak of which Mr. Brunton is justly proud, but says he forgot to take it to Omaha to the national show.—[Omaha Bee

The Sharpshooter.

ONE OF THE DRAMATIC INCIDENTS OF THE CIVIL WAR.

By a Special Contributor.

"NOW, just hug a Yankee, and I'll get you out of this."

"Well, Yank, I'll try, being as you're the first Yankee who ever kept his word with me."

And a rebel sharpshooter, sorely wounded, was hoisted on to the Yankee's back and carried to the Federal field hospital on the night following the battle of South Mountain, Md., September 14, 1862.

The sharpshooter was bleeding to death when his rescuer found him, but was saved by quick treatment. Incidentally, the young Yankee had bagged his first rebel, as the man he saved was held prisoner.

Both actors in this stirring little drama of the war were boys. Boy-like, they became close friends after being thrown together in such unusual fashion. They vowed to be friends forever, to hunt each other up after the war, and to stand by each other in joy or sorrow.

Also, boy-like, they forgot the promises so quickly made, and, man-like, persisted for many years in forgetting when they were older and the great struggle was over.

It was through the kindly offices of Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama, that the two have been led to exchange reminiscences of the incident, and now both are determined again to visit the scene of the battle. George Weber will not carry Henry Wilson Miller on his back as he did at the time of his rescue, however. Both are far too old and fat for that. Forty-six years can make a great amount of difference in a man's avoirdupois—either in increasing or diminishing it—and neither of our heroes is a shadow.

George Weber, now a retired farmer of Lyndon, Kan., was at the time of the battle of South Mountain a sergeant in the Tenth Pennsylvania reserves. Henry Miller, the man he rescued, was a sharpshooter connected with the company in the Twenty-sixth Alabama Regiment commanded by Capt. Bankhead, now Senator. Miller, a lumber-mill owner of Millport, Ala., declares he would have filled an unknown grave forty-six years ago if he had not "hugged tight," as Sergeant Weber directed him.

Night had fallen on the battle field, compelling a cessation of the struggle, in which the Confederate troops were driven in confusion from South Mountain. The Federal army had full possession of the mountain, and the rebels had fled, leaving their wounded to the mercies of the enemy.

Sergeant Weber was summoned by his captain.

"Weber," said the officer, "take a couple of the boys and look around among these wounded for any members of our company. Lots of the boys appear to be missing, and I'm afraid they're either killed or wounded."

"All right, Captain," replied Weber, "I'm feeling pretty shaky myself (displaying a furrow along his head where a Confederate bullet had touched,) "but I'd better go, because somebody else might not know all our boys."

"Don't need to bother about the Johnnies," was the captain's answer. "Let the regular detail care for them. Our boys and no others, understand."

The little detail went, and hunted throughout that long Sunday night for their wounded and dead. They found many of both. The dead they left after disentangling them from the masses of wrecked humanity and reverently covering their faces. The wounded they carried to the field hospital, keeping careful note of each, so as to report to the captain, who wanted to check up the men he had led from their boyhood homes in Pennsylvania.

The work was nearly done, when Sergeant Weber thought he heard a groan over his head, farther on up the mountain. Thinking it might be another member of his company, he clambered up to the spot. There he found young Miller, desperately wounded, lying behind a rocky shelter, with his life blood slowly ebbing away with each beat of the heart which contained such love and devotion to the Southland.

The wounded sharpshooter, who had "picked off" many of the Union troops that day with his unerring rifle, thought now that his many misfortunes surely had reached their climax.

"My God!" he groaned. "Can it be possible that I've fallen into the hands of a Yankee?"

"Guess you have," was the cheerful answer returned by the man from the North. "Wounded, ain't you?"

"Well, some," agreed the wounded lad. "It doesn't hurt any more, but I can't get up."

"Want a drink of water?"

"Oh, please!"

The stricken marksman drank eagerly as the other's canteen, half-filled with lukewarm water, was pressed to his lips.

"That's fine, even if you are a Yank. Well, I guess you've got me. What you going to do?"

"Get you out of here for one thing," answered Weber. "Can you walk?"

"Not a step. I was carried here by two officers, and they had to run when your army pressed in on us. They left me here to die."

Weber leaned over the rock and called loudly to one of his men:

"Here's a rebel boy up here bleeding to death, John."

"Let the cussed rebel die, then," was the surly answer. "I've got poor George Sowell here, shot through the body, and I'll get him to the front first, you bet. Wouldn't go up there if it was Gen. Lee or old Stonewall Jackson."

Weber then remembered his own orders received from the captain, and overlooked the breach of military discipline for the time being.

"Tell you what I'll do," he told the dying Southerner. "I've got a couple of boys of our own company down there to take to the hospital, and then I'll come back after you. Keep up your nerve."

"I don't believe you'll do it!" cried the now thoroughly unnerved Miller, sobbing in his distress. Visions of his Southern home looked better to him than military glory just then, and he was not ashamed to weep, even in the presence of a hated Northern foe.

"I'll come if I'm alive," solemnly returned the other. "You can count on that. You live another hour, and I'll be here with help. Spunk up, now. I'd carry you down the mountain myself if I could, but you can see it's impossible. Good-by, now, and God bless you. Be sure to be here when I come back."

Sergeant Weber wrung the hand of his former foe, now his fellow-man in distress, and clambered down the mountain to his neglected duty.

Strange as it may seem in a country where all men are equal, Weber could not get any one to return with him and rescue the young rebel.

"Why bother about him? There's others," was the answer in each case.

The idea of climbing up a rugged mountain after a wounded rebel when there were scores of wounded Union men begging for aid did not impress Weber's comrades very favorably. So much for war. It does away with many of the finer sensibilities of mankind at crucial times, but brings them out with telling force in others.

"Then I'll save him myself, orders be hanged!"

And Weber again rushed up the mountain side.

"There yet, Johnny?"

"Yes," very faintly came the answer.

"I've come after you."

"Say, Sergeant," said the boy, his eyes opening with love and gratitude as his rescuer came near, "you're the first Yankee I ever knew who kept his word. I didn't suppose you'd ever think of me again!"

"If you were well, I'd maul hell out of you for saying that," returned the sergeant, "but as you're a rebel, and only a kid at that, I suppose it'll have to be overlooked. But look here, young fellow—the Yankees are real men, better than you ever dreamed of. I'm going to give you a demonstration of that fact right this minute."

Then, lifting up his fallen foe, he managed, after many maneuvers, to get him upon his back.

"Now," he ordered, "you've got to hug a Yankee. Good joke on you, ain't it? If you don't hug me tighter than you ever hugged anybody in your life, you'll fall off and die. Just hold tight with that good arm of yours, and we'll start."

The rebel hugged, and slowly, painfully the sergeant toiled down the mountain with his load.

"Oh, drop me, Yank. You've done your best. You can't make it without help," begged the rebel.

"No, sir," panted the other, "you get there, too, if I do."

They made it, and Sharpshooter Miller was landed safely in the hospital, while Weber went to bed on the hard ground and dreamed of seeing mother making sausage in the Pennsylvania farmhouse.

"And that," said Sergeant Weber, telling the story to an admiring group, "was how I captured my first rebel."

Senator Bankhead regards the incident, with its after features, as one of the most dramatic of the war.

But let Miller tell it.

"Capt. Bankhead," he said, "had ordered me out on a little sharpshooting expedition to try to 'get' some of the Yankees who were harrassing us on our left. While engaged in this (to me) highly diverting pastime, I was shot through the left shoulder. It was a bad wound, and I bled awfully. I was carried back to where Capt. White and Col. Oneal (later Governor) were sitting on a rock. About that time the Yankees surrounded us. I begged them not to leave me. They carried me a short distance up the mountain and put me behind the shelter of a rock. There I fainted.

"Later, a Yankee, whom I knew later as Sergeant Weber, found me. I was helpless, and he thought he could not remove me alone. He returned, after failing to get help, however, and carried me down to a two-room log house, which the Yankees were using for a field hospital. There I was cared for as well as any, and later was taken to Frederick City in an ambulance.

"Since that time I have thought a thousand times about the man who saved my life. I thought of advertising to see if I could find him that way. Imagine my delight at receiving from Senator Bankhead a short time ago a letter written to him by Sergeant Weber. We certainly will have a great reunion soon! I was on my knees behind a big rock shooting many Yankees at the time I was shot. Queer that they should have cared for me so well. But there were good Yankees then as there are now. Weber is one of that class, I am sure."

Sergeant Weber, a few months ago, while reading about some of the doings of Congress, saw the name of Senator Bankhead, and wondered if he were the same Bankhead who was captain of Miller's company. He wrote the Senator to find out. His guess was good. Senator Bankhead sent Weber's letter to Miller, and much correspondence followed. The Senator then insisted, after the proper identifications were made, that the two get together. They promised, and declare the agreement will be kept this time.

G. A. NICHOLS.

The Invaders.

VERY STARTLING BEGINNING OF A WINTER VACATION.

By a Special Contributor.

"I SAY, Grayson, this darkness is confoundedly confusing," growled Burtley, stumbling over the rough country road in the inky blackness that had settled down upon them.

His companion, groping his way carefully behind, gave a short laugh.

"Right you are," he said. "But cheer up, old fellow. The house must be somewhere around here. How far did you say it was from the car line?"

"Two miles, but it's these abominable roads, and—ouch! my toe again!"

Burtley's unlucky member had come into painful contact with another protruding stone in the middle of the muddy road. He pitched forward, stumbling blindly in the bewildering darkness.

Grayson steadied him with a good-natured chuckle. "Hold on, old man," he cried; "don't try to walk all over the whole road at once! Whew! but this sure is the limit! Rain added to our other afflictions!"

Grayson, hugging his great coat closer about his ears, pulled his hat farther down as a few big drops splashed on his face

"We're in for a night of it, I see," he remarked to Burtley's broad back, looming up in the darkness ahead of him, "unless we get there soon. It's beginning to rain, and it's deucedly cold. B-r-rr!"

"B-r-rr!" echoed Burtley, plodding steadily along. "It's freezing, and I'm tired of this tramping all over the country. A pretty way to begin our vacation, I say. The next time I answer one of Nell's invitations I'll make pretty sure they don't live at the end of Nowhere. By George! Grayson, there's a house. I believe we've struck the place at last."

"Thank heaven!" murmured Grayson from the depth of his great coat, hastening to gain Burtley's side. "Do you suppose your sister can conveniently put me up, too?"

"Sure thing. Always room for one more at Nell's—jolly good place. Great Scott! what's that?"

They had reached the little house standing back from the road, and as they paused a big white object came bounding through the mist and blackness, growling savagely.

"It's a dog!" said Grayson.

"Confound the dog!" snapped Burtley swinging his arms about frantically either in an effort to warm them or from exasperation at the new appearance.

"Nell never had a dog. Down, you cur! Come on, Grayson; this isn't the place."

Grayson laughed.

"Not on your life!" he said, advancing cautiously toward the big white dog, who stood at a distance growling threateningly. "It's here for me, or none. Come, nice dog, that's a good fellow—come!"

The dog came toward him, ears watchfully alert, but with tail wagging in a decidedly friendly manner.

"Come, Burtley, let's go in. The dog's all right, and it's blessedly cold out here."

A shrill, piercing blast of wind, followed by a downpour of heavy drops, swept upon them, and Burtley with a muttered exclamation headed at a run for the little porch of the cottage. Grayson followed, the dog close at his heels, and the three stood shivering on the dark little porch while Burtley rang the bell. Again and again he pressed the button, but no response came.

"Confound it!" he sputtered at last, "I'll get in if I have to go through a window. B-r-rr! It's cold out here—wretchedly cold!"

Grayson was already down the steps and around at the side of the house. He appeared in a moment and motioned Burtley.

"Come," he said, "here's a low window. Let me boost you up—you can unfasten it."

"Sure," agreed Burtley, scrambling up with Grayson's aid. "And this is Nell's place, I'm sure. I've never been here at night, and it looks different. Good! it's open. Now—slow, boy—careful——"

With a last mighty shove, Burtley's rather stout figure disappeared within. A moment after Grayson was being pulled unceremoniously in through the narrow opening. The dog, left behind, whining pitifully, put up his paws on the low sill and looked after them.

"Let's pull the pup up, too," suggested Grayson. "It's beastly weather even for a dog."

"Now," said Burtley when they were all safely within, "where in the world are we and what are we going to do?"

The two gazed at each other blankly through the pitch blackness of the room.

"We'll do some exploring," answered Grayson, this time leading the way. Together they advanced carefully across the room, stumbling occasionally into various pieces of furniture and feeling cautiously the way with their hands. The darkness of the past hours had so bewildered the two that neither had thought of the advantage of striking a match, and so they moved slowly and blindly about the little room, until Burtley's hand came in contact with a door knob. Clutching it with both hands, he swung the door swiftly open, and the two found themselves blinking bewilderedly before a great flood of light.

"Hands up!" came from the opposite side of the room in tones cool and constrained.

"Good heavens!" ejaculated Burtley.

"Lord!" said Grayson, "where are we?"

The tall, lank woman, standing with her back set firmly against a door, her eyes glaring like balls of fire behind gleaming spectacles, raised the revolver in her hand. Her face, deadly pale, was set in firm, resolute lines, but the hand that held the weapon shook slightly.

"Hands up!" she repeated in a harsh voice. "I can shoot, and if you make a move, I will. I'm not afraid to," raising the revolver slightly.

Burtley's hands shot up hastily into the air, Grayson's following more slowly.

They turned and stared stupidly at one another.

"What in the——" began Burtley, but the woman's harsh tones interrupted.

"No plotting, now," she said. "You just turn around and march right out of that door—and get out quicker than you ever did before. Get, now!" She pointed the way and turned the revolver on their hastily-retreating figures.

"Come, Tige," she said, as the dog followed at their heels. Then the door shut with a loud bang, and they were alone in the cold shelter of the little dark porch. For a moment they stared in a dazed manner at each other, then Burtley muttered something below his breath, shivering the while.

Grayson's sense of humor was struggling to break through his resentment. At Burtley's hot monologue his irresistible chuckle broke forth.

"By Jove! man, stop swearing at yourself! We sure are in a pickle now. Where do you suppose we are—and who is yonder high-handed dame?"

"To be turned out of your own sister's house—and by a woman! It's monstrous—it's outrageous—it's——"

"Hold on." Grayson's hand was laid detainingly on his arm. "Are you sure? Is it Nell's house?"

"Sure? Well, I guess! I'd know her furniture in Egypt."

"Well," shivered Grayson, "it's cold out here—B-r-rr!—and I'm nearly famished. I say, old man, can't we slip into the pantry? She's probably deaf—and we're deucedly hungry. Let's take the risk."

"Risk!" cried Burtley, his sense of injury lending him courage. With a quick and unexpected twist he turned the knob of the door, which yielded under his hand, and the next moment had jumped into the room, followed by Grayson.

With a frightened cry, the woman, taken off her guard, turned, dropped the revolver to the floor.

Grayson stooped hastily and secured the little weapon. The woman, her bold front shaken and her courage vanished, sank in a frightened heap into a chair.

Burtley was for demanding instant explanation, but Grayson, with an amused glance at the subdued heap, caught him by the arm.

"Come," he said, "I'm nearly starved. Lead the way to the pantry."

Burtley cast a suspicious glance at the woman, who sat as one petrified staring in frozen horror at the rude invaders.

"She'll not trouble us," laughed Grayson. "Come on."

Half an hour later Burtley looked up from devouring half a pie, and listened.

"Nell's coming," he announced, glancing ruefully at the spoiled remains that covered the table.

Grayson, perched on the flour barrel and devouring pie and cake with cannibal greediness, gave a laugh.

"Sorry for you, old man." he said. "Glad I'm out of the family. I——"

"Hush!" Burtley held up a warning finger. "I hear them. Yes, it's Nell, and Ted, too. Jove! what a load rolls off my shoulders!"

A startled exclamation escaped from the other room.

"Why, Aunt Matilda," cried the voice, "what is the matter? What has happened?"

The two culprits listened breathlessly.

From the other room came to them the sound of a great, relieved sigh, and then in a faint gasp the word "Burglars!"

"With a shout of mirth, the two invaders stumbled from their perches, and, locked in each other's embrace, rocked back and forth in the little kitchen, convulsed with laughter.

"George!"

Burtley disengaged himself hastily and sobered his countenance to its accustomed dignity.

"Hello, Nell!" he observed pleasantly. "I've come to make you a visit."

"Well, so I perceive—and you've succeeded in frightening poor Aunt Matilda nearly to death. What do you mean by this?" She gazed questioningly from Burtley to Grayson.

"Nell, this is my old friend, Billy Grayson, the greatest scamp in the country, and we have come to spend our vacation in peace and quiet here in the country. Nice, peaceful time we've had tonight—hey, Grayson? By the way, I didn't know there existed an Aunt Matilda. Who is she? She almost cost us our lives and frightened us half out of our wits. Where did you catch her?"

"George Burtley—shame on you!" Nell's voice was gently reproving. "She's Ted's aunt, and she and Tige are here for a visit. Oh, here you are, poor, dear, Aunt Matilda."

Ted, with the once valiant Aunt Matilda on one arm, had joined the little group in the kitchen.

"Dear, dear!" sighed that vanquished lady, leaning weakly on her nephew's arm. "My nerves are all shaken up; Theodore, I feel faint. And do you mean that these—er—gentlemen—were no burglars, after all? Dear, dear!" I'm all unnerved!"

There was a dangerous twinkle in Billy Grayson's eyes as he glanced slyly at Burtley, and the next moment the little kitchen rang again with the noise of their laughter, in which Ted and Nell joined quite as heartily, while Aunt Matilda collapsed on the nearest chair.

fellow's mind was made up, and so Senator Money handed him $10 and said:

"Now, Ned, there is only one way you can ever come back. If you want to come back home, and can come and tell me that any other white man ever gave you $10, or if any white man in the North ever gave you $5, you can come back and I won't kill you.

The old fellow took the money, thanked his young master most profusely and sincerely, and with tears flowing as though he was going to his own funeral or execution, he departed with the others. Senator Money was also weeping over the error of the old man, for he had such genuine affection for him as the white men of the North cannot understand. It was in the fall of the year. Winter followed, and a severe one. Senator Money often thought of the poor old fellow, and would have sent him aid if he had known where to send it. Early in the following spring, some time in the middle of April, as Senator Money stepped out of his mansion onto the veranda, he saw old Ned sitting on the lowest step, with hat in hand, and his gray old wooly head sunken upon his breast. Senator Money walked down and stood on the ground before him, and asked:

"Is that you, Ned?"

"Yessah, Massa 'Nando, it's ole Ned, pore old Ned," said the pitiful object as he arose and bowed before his master.

"Have you come back home to die, Ned?"

"Yassah, Massa 'Nando, an' thankee kindly, sah, if you-all will have me shot for an old fool, and let me be buried 'longside of the othah ole niggahs on de ole place."

"Didn't any white man offer you $10, or $5 while you have been away?"

"No, Massa 'Nando, no sah; not one. Dey all tole me I was as good as white folks, and dey give me de glad hand, Massa 'Nando; but when the snows was such as dis ole niggah nevah saw befo', when de snows was 'way up to my ole arms, Massa 'Nando, bein' as good as white folks didn't keep me wahm, Massa 'Nando, an' de glad hand didn't keep me from bein' hungry, Massa 'Nando; and all wintah I prayed fo' de time when I could get back home an' be shot fo' an ole fool. So Massa 'Nando, if you-all will have me shot an' buried on de ole place, I'll thankee kindly, Massa 'Nando, fo' I shorely 'serves to be killed."

"There were tears in my eyes" says Senator Money, "and I suppose there were tears also in my voice, as I asked:

"Would you like to have some breakfast, Ned, before you are killed?"

"Yassah, Massa 'Nando, an' thankee kindly, sah; I'se very hongry, sah, an' I shorely would like a bite befo' the shootin', sah."

"Very well, go to the kitchen and get your breakfast."

"Thankee, Massa 'Nando, an' thankee kindly, sah," said the old fellow as he bowed and turned to go to the kitchen."

"As he turned his back toward me," says Senator Money, "I gave him a little kick, a sort of shove as it were, and when the old fellow felt the toe of my boot, he knew that he was safe, for he fell on his knees and remained there shouting:

"'Glory to Gawd! I'se 'mong my friends ag'in.'"

John Brown is a black negro, a typical "before-the-war" sort of a plantation product. He says that he has been a hundred years old for so long that he doesn't know how old he really is. Every day he may be seen shuffling across the plaza of the Capitol, an inch at a time. His feet are tremendously large, and apparently heavy and sore. He moves with difficulty, and he moans with pain; but he goes to the Capitol every day and reports for duty as a laborer. He has been told times without number that he need not come to the Capitol, but he comes, just the same, although his locomotion is painful to witness. He says:

"Some low-down white trash might dischahge me if I don't go."

Long before there were elevators in the Capitol, John Brown used to have a big hod in which he carried up all of the wood that was burned in the Senate places. All of the Senators knew him, but no one of them was responsible for his appointment. Nobody knew by whose influence he was originally appointed. He had no "backer," but still he toiled on, and received his monthly pay. About twenty years ago there came into position a sergeant-at-arms of the Senate who was besieged for patronage by numerous Senators, so one day he discharged old John Brown, to appoint another in his place on the laborers' roll. When he told the old man that he was discharged, he flared up and said:

"Go 'long away 'fom me, you low-down white trash. I was heah befo' you-all come heah, an' I'll be heah long aftah you-all is gone. You-all can't dischahge me, an' I won't be dischahged, neither. You-all go 'long an' don't bothah me. I'se too busy fo' such nonsense."

But, he had already been discharged, on the books; and he was off the pay roll. That did not bother him. He went to Senator Beck of Kentucky, and Senator Vest of Missouri, and Senator Vance of North Carolina, and they all appeared in his behalf before the sergeant-at-arms, and old John Brown was reinstated. He never lost a single day of pay; and he will not now be discharged in his aged and feeble condition. The sergeant-at-arms who discharged him has gone out of office, so old John Brown was right in saying:

"I was heah befo' you-all, an' I'll be heah aftah you-all is gone."

There is another negro on the Senate pay roll who has the backing of all of the Senators from the States of the South. He is James Jones. He was the body servant of Jefferson Davis, the President of the Confederacy. He was appointed about twenty years ago, upon the recommendation and request of Mrs. Jefferson Davis; and so, for all these years, the dead President of the Confederacy has that bit of government patronage to his credit.

John S. Wise of Virginia tells a good story about an old negro of Richmond, a fellow of slow speech and few ideas. He went into a grocery store to get some eggs for his mistress. He waited respectfully until white folks had been served, and then, while some of them were remaining to listen to his quaint remarks, the storekeeper asked him what he wanted. He replied:

"Yo'-all hain't got any eggs, has yo'?"

The proprietor quizzically replied:

"I hain't said I hasn't, has I?"

The old fellow stood quietly looking at him for a minute or two, evidently puzzled, and trying to frame a reply, and finally he said:

"I hain't ast yo' hain't yo' hain't. I ast yo' hain't yo' has. Yo' hain't has yo'?"

Old-Time Customs.

CURIOUS WAYS OF DOING THINGS IN THE BIG CITIES.

By a Special Contributor.

VERY Friday morning of the beginning days of New York City, a mirthful sight was in store for the early-bird stranger walking the streets of that interesting old borough. Each worthy citizen solemnly sweeping up the dirt in front of his house into a neat pile. Just what conjuring magic was used to make these piles stay put in spite of wind and weather is not recorded in the city archives, but later came the public carter, removing them at a cost of 3 pence a load to the thrifty householder who shoveled his contribution into the cart, at 6 pence to the indolent one who left the work to the cart man.

The same fine coöperative spirit shone forth in the night season, a law being passed that "in the dark time of the moon for the ease of the inhabitants," every seventh house should "cause a lanthorn and candle to be hung out on a pole," the six other houses sharing the expense.

Every owner of a house that had three fireplaces was compelled by law to keep two buckets in readiness for fire, while a baker must have three, a brewer six, and so on. These buckets were made of leather and bore the initials of the landlord, for even if the oven of the house were rented, he had to pay the original cost. When an alarm of fire startled the neighborhood, the fire buckets were either snatched up by the men in the house or thrown out of the window to helpers on the sidewalk, all running to form in the fire line that reached from the nearest pump to the burning edifice.

It was not until the end of the year 1732 that two comical little wooden fire engines with roller wheels were used for the first time, their noble achievement proudly chronicled in the next issue of the paper as follows:

"The fire began in the garret where the people were all asleep, and burnt violently; but by the help of the 2 fire engines which came from London in the ship Beaver, the fire was extinguished after having burnt down that house and damaged the next."

When a tolling bell had mournfully announced a death in the city, a "funeral inviter," dressed in black, with long, impressive streamers of crépe dangling from his hat, went from house to house to bid friends and relatives of the deceased to attend the last rites. This lugubrious functionary was a public officer, and in the year 1731, a most remarkable law was enacted regulating his fees—18 shillings for the funeral of any one 20 years of age; for a person between 12 and 20, 12 shillings, for one under 12, 8."

"To regulate" was a favorite phrase of those old-time city fathers troubled over many things. Even dogs were "regulated" as early as 1725. And none too soon, for the city was beset with "a very great number of mischievous mastiffs, bulldogs and other useless dogs, who not only run at coaches, horses, chaises, and cattle in the daytime whereby much mischief has ensued, but in the night time are left in the streets of this city and frequently tear, bite, and kill cows and fly at people."

The emolument from public service was not excessive nor could candidates for public office have been very clamorous if we may judge by the following advertisement of the year 1751:

"The Public Whipper of the City of New York being lately dead, if any Person inclines to accept that office with £20 a year he may apply to the Mayor and be entered."

The spring Tea-water Pump was the chief source of superfine water supply until the year 1800. An engine was early erected to force this water up. An ornamental garden was laid out about it and became a favorite resort known as the Tea-water Pump Garden, while the water was carted about the streets for sale in a picturesque old hogshead on wheels.

Milk was carried from house to house in pails suspended from a yoke borne on the peddlers' shoulders.

At a little later date appeared venders bearing trays with baked pears "swimming in molasses," calling forth no small art in the purchaser to pick up a pear between thumb and finger and carry it to his mouth without disastrous trickling of the sticky solvent upon his shirt bosom.

But pears were not in it when it came to the hot corn that was a special feature of early Bowery times. The venders seated on stools at the street corners were colored women cleanly attired, a white or a checked apron de rigeur, their heads gorgeously wrapped in bandannas. Beside each, a pail filled with hot ears of corn and one cup with salt, another with butter.

"Hot corn! hot corn! Here's your lily-white hot corn!" the entrapping cry.

The price paid, an ear taken, the butter rubbed on, the salt sprinkled—and a rapturous sigh of complete satisfaction.

Very polite and humble was the still small voice of public conscience admonishing the delinquent sinners of early Boston.

"The Town Treasurer presents his most respectful compliments to those citizens who have tax bills unpaid, and requests the favor of them to pay the same to the collectors immediately, as he has large drafts for the selectmen and Overseers of the Poor, to whom, especially at the present season, money would be very acceptable."

A benign and fatherly office was that of the Inspector of the Police in the same Boston town, a sort of general guardian-angelship we infer from the following delicious item quoted from a city paper of the eighteenth-century end.

"The Inspector of Police respectfully makes known to Parents and others that of late several children have very much injured themselves by eating the seeds of Stramonium, or Thorn-apple, commonly called Devil apple; who must inevitably have died had they not been speedily relieved by Emetics, etc. As those bushes are in several parts of town, it would be well if they were destroyed."

A most unique sight in old Boston must have been the celebration of the fourth anniversary of a society for "Promoting Industry and Frugality," when 300 young female spinsters decently dressed brought their spinning wheels to the Common one afternoon and plied their homely craft, a female at each wheel, to the accompaniment of music and the delight of many spectators."

A jest of Franklin's that vastly tickled the local pride of the Philadelphian was the laughing declaration that he could tell a New York visitor by his shuffling gait over the unaccustomed smoothness of the pavements.

But if the Philadelphia sidewalks were all that could be desired, the "carriageways" remained a disgrace to the eye and an abomination to the nostrils until the authorities were shamed into reform by a satire of Francis Hopkins, entitled "Dialogues of the Dead," the conversation being between the carcasses of a cat and dog that had been left to putrefy in the street.

Philadelphia could afford a smile at her expense, however, for she was the largest and most attractive of all three of the leading cities. Chestnut street was the fashionable promenade where gallants bewigged and powdered and most fetching in their pink, and buff and blue satin attire bowed and scraped to courtesying, blushing belles with wonderful bonnets and bewildering gowns modeled after the latest arrived mantuamaker's doll from across the sea.

The wild dissipation of the week was the Thursday evening assemblies, dances beginning at 6 o'clock in the evening and discreetly over by midnight. At these assemblies a cardroom was also provided. Which leads to another curious custom of fashionable city life. Playing cards being plentiful were frequently used for the announcement of functions, the invitation printed on their undecorated backs.

The Skating Mania.

In the autumn of 1907 an American amusement manager, by name Crawford, landed at Liverpool looking about for some fresh worlds to conquer. He was owner of a great skating rink at Coney Island, the Blackpool of America. People told him that roller skating was absolutely dead in England, beyond hope of revival. Mr. Crawford doubted it. He decided that Liverpool was as good a place as any to put his theory to the test, so he found an awkwardly-situated hall built for military tournament, rented it, and opened it as a rinking palace.

This was in September, 1907. Within a few weeks there started a craze which has spread, first over England, and then through the continent of Europe. Today there are several hundred companies engaged in the roller-skating business, and specially-built "rinking palaces" are springing up in all parts by the many score. Seventy-five rinking companies have between them a capital of £793,000, and many rinks have within the past year earned a profit more than equal to their entire capital investment.

In and around Manchester alone there are about fifty rinks now open; Bolton boasts nine, and Batley eight, London, usually the last city to be affected by movements such as this, was aroused by the opening of the Olympia and the Aldwych rinks a year ago. Last winter everybody who was anybody was to be seen on the maple-wood floor of Olympia, and the crowds on many an afternoon rivalled the first night of a great play for the congregation of celebrities. The [illegible]kings of Earl's Court now cannot be far short of £1000 a week. The Crystal Palace has acquired a fresh flicker of popularity because of its asphalt ground. Showy halls have been run up in a number of suburbs, from Briton to Wood Green, and from Wandsworth to Lower Clapton. The biggest specially-built London center will be shortly opened at Holland Park.—[London Daily Mail.

Queen Alexandra's Pets.

The Queen of England has many animal pets in Sandringham, which is her favorite residence. She has twenty dogs, including three prize Pekinese, the Chinese importation which has become so popular recently with society women in England, and which J. P. Morgan now is breeding with all the enthusiasm which a few years ago gave him the world's champion kennel of collies. The Queen also is a fancier of collies and owns several splendid animals. She has cats in Sandringham, birds, and ponies. She goes there as often as possible, and is becoming more and more attached to it. She is never happier than when she can escape to her pets from the stiff court formality of Windsor Palace.—[Cleveland Leader.

Jericho's Walls.

SCIENTISTS MAY PROVE THE TRUTH OF THE BIBLICAL STORY.

By a Special Contributor.

THE recent excavations on the supposed site of the ancient city of Jericho—that city whose walls fell so miraculously before the trumpet blasts and shouts of Joshua's army—have brought to the front the question as to whether it would be possible to raze such ramparts to the ground by vibrations set up by instruments. Indeed, it is more than probable that scientists will take up the matter and endeavor to discover what sounds, or rather vibrations caused by sounds, would be needed to bring down a structure such as that which has been unearthed in Palestine.

Jericho excavations by Prof Selin

Remains of houses and flight of steps

The excavations represent the work of the German Orient Society. They were commenced so far back as the winter of 1906 by Dr. Selin, the well-known Austrian archaeologist. Ever since that date, with the exception of a few months in the height of the summer, an army of 200 men have been digging away in this little corner of Palestine, and their labors have certainly been very fruitful of result. They have laid bare all that remains of what undoubtedly was once a flourishing city, inclosed by massive walls protected by huge corner towers. Dr. Selin and many Biblical scholars uphold his contention that this is ancient Jericho—the Jericho whose walls collapsed at the sound of the priests' trumpets and shouts of the Children of Israel as they marched round it on the seventh day of its siege.

The site of the excavations is a collection of mounds in the vicinity of the village of Ericha, near the Dead Sea. The mounds were attacked at five different points practically simultaneously. It was not long before the exterior wall of the vanished city was encountered at a depth of only eight feet below the surface. The excavators were astonished at the technical excellence of the construction. The wall consisted of three parts. The natural rock foundation is overlaid with a filling of loam and fine gravel, a meter or so deep, upon which a sloping rubble wall, heavily bulging externally, is superimposed to a height of twenty feet, the breadth being from six and a half to eight feet. The wall is built of well-laid rubble, which becomes finer toward the top. Numerous blocks are partially employed for the lower part of the wall.

Every interstice is most carefully filled in so as to offer no advantages to the implements of destruction of a hostile force. Finally upon this massive foundation is the fortification wall proper, built of clay bricks. In one place this part of the wall reaches a height of eight feet, but it would seem to have been considerably higher.

The only advantage which, in point of technical perfection, modern construction possesses over the walls of Jericho is, Dr. Selin states, the use of mortar, which was unknown to these early architects. The wall, so far as can be learned at present, is estimated to have extended a distance of 900 yards, and is believed to have been almost oval in shape. Some 450 yards has already been laid bare. To the north of the city the fortifications are breached, which would seem to indicate that enemies must have penetrated here on some occasion. The wall was undoubtedly crowned at various points, probably at four, with huge corner towers, great ramparts from which the besieged could look down upon an attacking force. Then the excavators have also discovered an inner wall, also crowned with strong corner towers.

Apart from the walls some interesting remains have been discovered. They include lamps, plates, cups, needles, weights, mortars, and mills of bronze and stone, some of very rough and primitive handwork and others very finely executed. In the inner part of the city remains of rows of houses have been uncovered. Below the floors of some of these were found the bodies of children buried in jars. On the northern part of the city, without the walls, numerous remains of Canaanite houses have been unearthed. Some of these leaned against the old city wall, and recalled, as points out, the "Home of Rahab," in which spies took refuge. The partition walls of clay many cases still standing, and even ovens and system were still to be traced. Dr. Selin, how

SCHOOL for HOUSEWIVES

By MARION HARLAND

of the problem. I am today unable to comprehend why either boy or girl should be banished from a home where refining and intellectual influences make an atmosphere in which mind, morals and manners must develop healthfully, and this at an age when the mother's watchful care of physical growth and the father's restraining hand over youthful rashness and imprudence are imperatively needed. In a word, I fail to see why my boy should be committed at 12 years of age to the training of teachers and guardians and subjected to the perils of body and soul that are rife in a boarding school, when he can live at home and attend as good a school on the next block to my comfortable abode. It is a greater mystery to my dull comprehension why I should be compelled by public opinion and social decree to banish my 12-year-old girl from the house of which she is the joy and pride to a fashionable seminary, to take her chances of good and evil among five hundred other girls of varying characters and mixed antecedents. God gave the child to me to be guarded, drilled and loved, and made, so far as mortal can mould her, into a "perfect woman, nobly planned." I would have her a "hand-made article," not one from the paper before mentioned:

"Five hundred of them, and they 'receive' from 300 to 2100 pupils each! Call it an average of sixty to the school, and you will be conservative. That means that there are 30,000 of our young girls continuously engaged in the absorption of that sole quality of mental training which these places have to offer; that close upon 7500 are each autumn admitted, and 7500 each spring turned loose upon us, and that, finally, in the process there is spent fully a million and a half parental dollars per annum."

LIVING BY RULE

To sum up my own individual and antiquated theory upon the subject: If a mother feels herself unable to superintend her daughter's education and wishes her to grow into other likenesses than she is likely to acquire in the home to which God sent her, she is justifiable in passing her over into the hands of hirelings. If she is competent to perform the work assigned to her in the gift of the child, and can rise to the holy mission of growing with her pupil and achieving a higher and nobler womanhood by means of keeping step with her in the upward path, nothing but loss of health excuses her for shirking her duty.

Pass we to the return of our girl graduate to the home of her childhood. She left it at the most plastic age for mind and principles. She has, as was inevitable, taken the stamp of the school. It is as inevitable that she should find it hard to adjust herself to what have become, during the years of absence, unfamiliar surroundings. Every girl who has been for several terms at a boarding school will confirm the assertion that the most depressing feature of the new life, "which is the old," is the abrupt [illegible] to discontent with home and home people. "Mamma is sweet and dear, but she has odd ways of speaking," and "things" somehow are plainer than the girl expected to find them. At the holidays there was a joyous bustle, and the aim of every member of the household, from her father down to the cook, was to make much of the visitor. She is no longer a visitor, nor is she one of and with them. By and by, when she is fairly launched upon the sea of society, she will have something to do, and find her element—perhaps! In the doleful ennui of the present she cannot hope for any change from the dead level of domestic boredom.

She is utterly out of touch with the former life, and early associates are strangers to the full-fledged woman.

A highly educated mother, one of the most accomplished women I know, told me a story not long ago that was a revelation to me. For reasons that were cogent to her apprehension, she had put her only daughter, at 12 years of age, into a first-class boarding school, and had herself gone abroad for a year. The correspondence between the two was regular and, to the mother, gratifying. Constance studied well, was healthy and contented, and not impatient for the return of her parents. When they again took up their residence in their native land the three were together in the girl's vacations and intermediate holidays.

"She was graduated with distinction at 18," related my friend.

"Then she came home for good. A month later I looked up from my sewing one afternoon, struck by the long silence that had fallen between us, and found her eyes fixed upon me with such singular intensity that my heart actually stood still. I had the instant impression of being on trial, or of being under a microscope.

"'What is it, my dear?' I asked, [illegible]

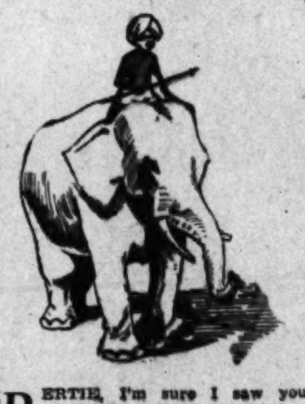
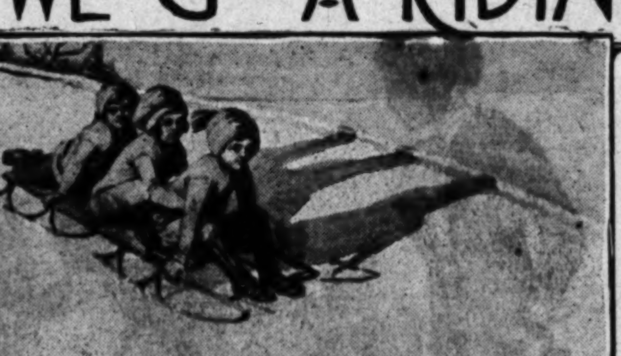
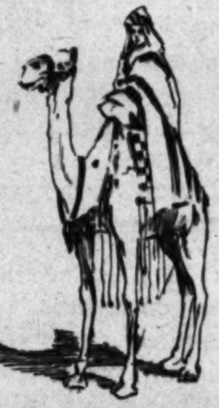
HOW WE GO A-RIDING







"BERTIE, I'm sure I saw you tying the rope of your sled to a sleigh runner. You remember, I've told you how dangerous that sort of riding is. Besides, you promised not to do it."

"I'm afraid I forgot, mother; but I didn't do it very many times, any way," replied Bertie. It is likely, however, that he forgot to count, because there had been many a driver that day who had turned round to scold Bertie when the cry of "On behind!" from some other mischievous boy warned the man that Bertie's sled was being drawn behind the sleigh.

Bertie was fond of fast riding. And although he fully intended to keep the promise to his mother thereafter, as he took his schoolbooks from the shelf for the evening study hour he couldn't help wishing that he were out coasting on the hill.

In his reader he came across the picture of a merry coasting party. "Gee! don't I wish I was doing that!" he exclaimed enviously.

And then, in a trice, he found himself really coasting—in Canada, too. He couldn't even guess how it had come about, but there he was coasting down a hill that sloped for miles. Like the wind he flew, laughing with the others who rode with him on the splendid toboggan. It was one long, enjoyable thrill as the toboggan whizzed along with the speed of a comet. Bertie was having the time of his life.

When the toboggan came to rest at the bottom of the hill, what was the surprise of Bertie to find a camel awaiting him there. "You jump on him!" cried the others as the camel knelt. So Bertie, nothing loath, seated himself and tapped the camel on the head. The camel rose, starting off with roll and pitch. At the same time the snow of Canada had changed to the desert sand of Arabia. But the lad was used to surprises by this time.

A good long ride the camel gave him. It was lots of fun at first, but after a while the boy became weary.

"Let me down!" cried Bertie to the camel.

The beast kept steadily on, however, until they arrived at the bank of a river. Here the camel knelt, while Bertie, with a sigh of relief, slid from its back. But not yet could he rest. An elephant, standing by, gently raised the boy with his trunk and placed him on its back.

Into the river plunged the elephant. Bertie feared he would drown, but the big fellow kept him above water all the time. Finally, they reached the opposite bank, up which the elephant clambered. Then through deep jungles the huge beast plunged, while Bertie was buffeted by swaying branches of trees.

The edge of the forest was gained, and across the fields beyond the elephant traveled. Then, as they were about to pass an oxcart on the roadway, the elephant seized Bertie in its trunk and dropped the boy into the empty cart.

crash. As the machine struck the object, up flew the lad into the air. For the space of a second he tumbled through the air. All at once he found himself on the seat of an aeroplane.

Far too thrilling was such a ride. The giant, birdlike thing scuttled through the air, veering at imaginary corners, dipping and rising and slanting, while Bertie held fast in terror. The longer he rode the more difficult became the "stunts" of the aeroplane. At last it began to turn somersaults. Bertie clung with all his might. Finally he felt his hold weakening. A sudden twist of the aeroplane, and Bertie was falling toward earth!

He struck with a bang that caused him to open his eyes wonderingly. In his sleep he had fallen from his chair to the floor. It wasn't a very great distance—not nearly as dangerous a tumble as was his drop from the aeroplane; nevertheless, he had to rub his head briskly.

Before him lay the reader, open at the picture of the coasting party. "And I wished I were out riding!" Bertie said with a dry laugh. "Well, I've certainly had enough of it. I guess I've ridden enough for a whole year."

But when the morrow came Bertie was as anxious as ever to ride upon his sled, and he wished his mother hadn't exacted from him the promise about fastening his "bumper" to the sleighs.

A DOLL of the CLIFFS

IT WAS warm, very warm, even in the cavern that provided Tuzca a home, high up on the gigantic walls of the Pueblo cliffs. Tuzca did not enjoy the heat, and was as uncomfortable and peevish and discontented as a little 5-year-old Indian maid can possibly be. She flung aside her dolly with a gesture of annoyance. It was an ugly thing, made of hard-baked clay and rudely shaped—almost formless—without any clearly marked features. Hitherto Tuzca had crooned over her dolly and cuddled it with the deepest mother-love. But now she cruelly discarded the "baby," nor felt a single twinge of conscience.

"I shall go to see my little play-sister, Azela," murmured she, yawning as she rose.

Azela, a little girl of 6 years, dwelt in a cave lower down on the side of the cliff. In order to call upon her play-sister, Tuzca had to descend a ladder reaching from a lower level up to Tuzca's home. She did this without a tremor, although a misstep would have sent her careering through the air for hundreds of feet. But the Indian lassie was as sure-footed as a mountain goat, and she had grown agile and fearless through habit.

As she dropped from the ladder Tuzca gave the signal whistle. There came no answer. So the visitor thrust her head into the cave to learn of the whereabouts of her comrade. Azela was not to be seen; neither was any one of the family at home. But Tusca was too indolent to ascend the ladder at once; therefore she dropped upon a grass mat. Looking about her, she suddenly reached forth her hand with an exclamation of delight.

"Azela has a new doll!" she cried; "and it is prettier than any other dolly owned in our tribe!"

Indeed, to an Indian maiden's eyes the doll must have seemed a splendid one. Like glazed pottery it was, with the baked clay made nice and shiny. The nose and mouth and eyes were quite well marked, and an attempt had been made to color the doll with simple pigments. It was no wonder, then, that Tusca was fasci-ing meal. Tusca was disturbed in her story-telling.

"Oh, I must take the dollbaby to my play-sister!" she exclaimed, greatly worried at the thought that Azela must have missed the doll long ere this.

Down came the dollbaby at the end of its rope. Outward the rope swung and then in toward the lower cavern, where Azela gathered the precious dolly into her arms.

"Oh, Azela! I'm sorry, very sorry! I only meant to borrow your dolly, and I'm sorry!"

he longed to be in his bed, sound asleep! He thought deeply. "I've noticed," mused he, "that every time I wish for something different to ride in, I get it. Now, I think I'll wish for an automobile to take me home."

No sooner had he made this wish than he was rushing along in a big touring car. Ah! this was much more pleasant! The machine traveled swiftly, though without being steered. Bertie decided that he might as well snuggle among the cushions and take a nap. Just as he had made himself cosy there was a

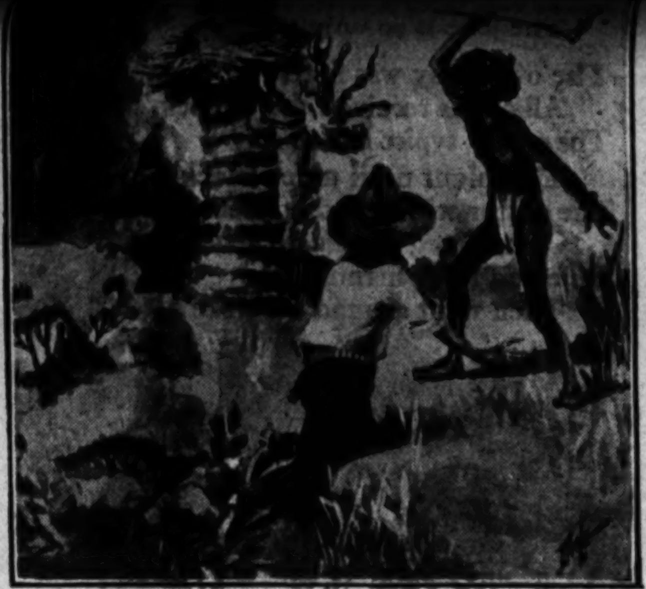
Tusca had expected. Within the dark, shadowy cave, busily occupied as she was with the doll, she did not observe the lengthened shadows or the approaching sunset. Legend after legend about the Sun-God and the lords of the winds and the mythical people of nature she related to the dolly, just as her mother had told them to her. And then came her father and mother.

Tusca's father drew up the ladder, for the sun had set, and there was always danger of attack from a tribe living nearby with whom war had been declared. Her mother prepared the even-



IT HAPPENED that the Reliance, Mr. Boardman's big private yacht, belied its name during the voyage from Quito to Samoa, and in a somewhat helpless condition it was driven by the storm far south of the proper course. The Tonga islands, however, offered refuge. Having sought the harbor of the capital city, Nukualofa, on the island of Tongatabu, the Reliance was dry-docked for repairs while the Boardmans tried to find amusement on the island.

Time didn't hang heavily upon Charlie Boardman's hands. He speedily made friends among the seafaring people, with whom he sailed to the western islands of the group, where he inspected the active volcanoes of Letie and Tofoa. Serious earthquakes occur frequently in this locality, the sailors told him, and islands rise and disappear as though by magic.

Charlie was forced to accompany his parents upon visits to the homes of British officials, until he rebelled, as almost any 14-year-old lad would, and declared:

"If father and mother see any fun gossiping at these silly receptions, they're welcome to it; but I'm going after some real excitement."

Therefore the day that the steamer Victoria was due at port, on her trip from Australia, and the elder Boardmans were looking forward with delight to hobnobbing with the officers, Charlie impressed into service one of his chums among the natives and started to explore the interior of the island.

Passing through the town and its suburbs, Charlie and his guide entered a country overgrown with luxuriant vegetation and tall palm trees. The soil of the Tonga, or Friendly, islands is very rich, and in the favorable climate plants flourish well.

As they sauntered through the wood no animals did the lads meet, however. Tiku, the native, informed Charlie that the few animals found have been introduced into the islands. Charlie was somewhat disappointed to hear this, as he had hoped for a little gunning during his stay at Nukualofa.

Now Tiku began to grow worried. Finally he turned to his companion with the words:

"Master, I do not know the way further. We people of the city do not go much into the forest."

"Oh, never mind; let's chance it, anyhow," carelessly responded the other.

While Tiku did not think well of the plan, he said nothing. For a number of miles the boys traveled, until the shadows warned them it was high time for returning. But the native, who realized their plight, said that the distance could not possibly be accomplished before darkness set in. So he advised building a shelter for the night in the forest, making the trip homeward next day.

"That sounds dandy," replied Charlie, who was glad of the opportunity of camping out; "but what are we going to eat?"

In reply, Tiku pointed to a big cocoanut palm overhead. Charlie at once began to look forward to a meal of cocoanuts, and was, therefore, much surprised when Tiku fastened a ruff of grass around the trunk of the tree, as far above the ground as his arms could reach. Just as this work was finished a cocoanut dropped from the palm, the husk being broken upon a pile of stones at the base of the tree. Tiku exclaimed: "Here he come!"

Then Charlie saw an immense crab slowly making his way down the trunk. When it came to the grass barrier the crab tumbled and fell to the earth, stunned. Tiku quickly dispatched it with his stone spear.

"Its hindquarters are covered with a big, hard shell, aren't they?" observed Charlie, as he inspected the dinner-to-be.

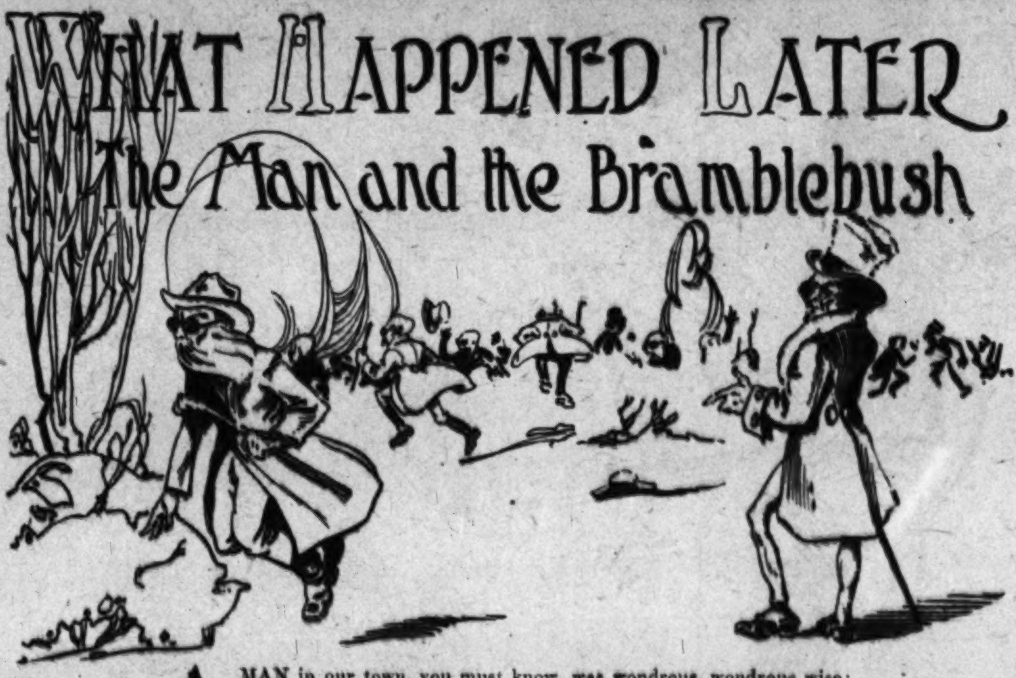
Thereupon the native explained many of the habits of the tree, or "palm," crab. In conclusion, he remarked: "We will have, too, cocoanut that crab cut off with nippers for his meal hisself and send down to break on stones like always he does."

Picking up the crab, Tiku built a fire of brushwood, heated two large stones and roasted the crab between the stones. When done to a turn the lads found the meat delicious. Washing it down with cocoanut milk and eating some of the meat of the cocoanut for dessert, they fared mighty well.

It was a matter of a few minutes to construct a shelter of tree branches. Soon the lads were sound asleep. Little fear had they for the morrow, and it must be admitted that Charlie did not dream as much of his parents' anxiety as he did of other tree-crabbing adventures which he promised himself on the way toward Nukualofa.

WHAT HAPPENED LATER

The Man and the Bramblebush

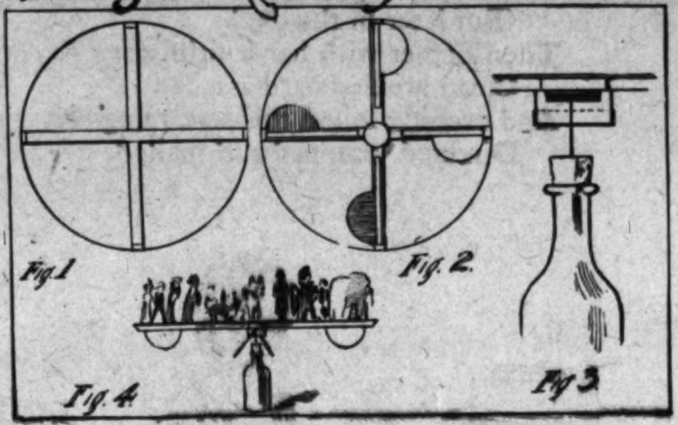


A MAN in our town, you must know, was wondrous, wondrous wise;
He wisely hopped into a bush and scratched out both his eyes.
But then he scratched them in again, which proved him wiser still,
And caused him quick to show blind people how to mend their ill.

"Come one, come all!" he cried; "and jump into a bramblebush!
If you're afraid to jump, stand still, and I'll give you a push!"
The blind folk leaped, were cut, were scratched, but had no sight restored;
Loud rose their cries of anger—on the Wise Man rushed the horde.

Now rests the Wise Man in a tomb, and heart and voice are stilled;
The blind folk jig and waltz in glee, for they the Man have killed.

Merry-Go-Round for Indoors



A VERY pretty and instructive toy can be made in the following manner:

Secure a heavy piece of cardboard. Cut out a round piece about the size of a barrel head or small tub. If the cardboard is not very stiff, and is apt to warp when dampened by the use of paste, it should be strengthened by taking two thin sticks, each as long as is the cardboard in diameter, and cutting a notch in the center of each halfway through, so as to fit the two pieces into a perfect cross. These should be made fast to the cardboard, gluing them carefully on the under side, so as to cross directly at the center. From a lighter cardboard cut four pieces, somewhat the shape of a letter P.

The broad part of this must be left whole—or, in other words, the piece must not have the opening cut—and it should be folded slightly where the wide part of the card joins the long shaft portion. Each must be alike, folded in the same manner, and pasted on the under side of the circular cardboard, thus being divided equally and making sort of wings. In the center, directly over the point where the two sticks cross, paste a round paper pillbox. Remove the lid and glue a penny, or some small flat piece of metal, in the center of the pillbox.

Take a good strong needle, and after the lid has been placed on the pillbox, push the needle through the lid until the point comes in contact with the penny or piece of metal. Remove the lid of the pillbox and paste two or three thicknesses of paper over the penny or metal. Secure a good-sized bottle, with a solid cork, and stick the needle in the center of the top of the cork, allowing the point to stick out about one inch.

Set the bottle with the needle in it to one side, and cut out some pictures of men and boys, or various animals, such as are easily cut out, forming attractive figures. These can be pasted on the under side of the circular cardboard after it has been ornamented with any fancy colored paper you may desire, and formed into groups about the outer edge until the entire circle is filled with attractive figures.

A single figure or a bouquet of tissue paper flowers may be placed in the center.

When the top is finished see that each of the four wings beneath is hanging at an angle, so as not to unbalance the device, and then get the bottle and set it on top of a gas stove, where there is a current of warm air continually rising.

Carefully lower the merry-go-round so the needle in the cork passes through the hole in the lid of the small pillbox, and balance it so that the point of the needle will push through the paper over the penny until the point will come in contact with the metal surface.

The hot air will strike the wings or paddles on the under side, and if care has been used in making the merry-go-round it will travel round and round as long as there is a breath of warm air coming up against it. The delicate mounting prevents friction, and if it is perfectly made and handled with care it will run for weeks. A person not in the secret can scarcely imagine where it gets the power to make it run.

—John T. Timmons.

Game of Swarming Bees

TRACE upon the ground quite a large square, which is to be called the "hive."

The fleetest runner should be chosen for the "queen bee." Two or three swift runners must be the "masters" of the "hive," and the rest of the players are called "bees."

To win the game, the "masters" must drive the "queen bee" into the "hive." She must retreat before the "masters," never letting them touch her. The "bees" are permitted to run between the "masters" and the "queen," in order to protect her, but if a "master" tag a "bee" or force it into the "hive," that "bee" is kept a prisoner in the "hive" and cannot go outside. However, should a "bee" succeed in tagging a "master" on the hand before the "master" tags, then the "master" is out of the game.

If the "bees" can put the "masters" out of the game they win.

consciousness. She continued to stare at a fixed spot on the opposite wall with eyes that were dreary and unseeing. Her attire was tasteful and quiet, as befitted the work of the day. She had an intelligent face that might be pretty when lighted up. Just now it was alike irresponsive to impressions from without and emotions from within. Somehow it made me think of a sheet of the gray, calendered paper affected by some of my correspondents.

By the time the mother had exchanged salutations with me the girl's name took the lead in the conversation.

"Gladys"—I wondered, inly, why it seemed so much a matter of course that the listless creature over there should have been christened "Gladys"—"will be at home this winter for the first time since she went to boarding school at 13. Then there was college—four years of it—and, last summer, seeing that she had graduated so high up in her class, her father and I thought the least we could do was to let her go to Europe with a party of girls conducted by Miss Blank Asterisk. You must have heard of her? She got back two months ago. Travel is very improving, and her father and I have tried hard to give her every advantage of education. But it will be real nice to have her at home again! If only"—dropping her voice and her eyelids lest the girl might glance at her and divine the subject of our talk—"we can make her happy there! You see, things are so different now from what they were when her father and I were young! I got so low-spirited, thinking over it all last night, that I caught myself wishing that we hadn't educated her so much, or that we were educated more."

THE TRANSITION PERIOD

I spoke as consolingly as conscience would allow me, to minister to her pain. For pain it was, loath as she was to admit it. It was a relief when the boat bumped the wharf and the mother hurried back to her charge. The latter did not offer to meet her halfway, or to notice me. Her unaffected indifference to our interview advertised as plainly as words could have done that her mother's friends were not hers by natural selection.

I was still thinking of the incident and of what it implied and prophesied when I got home and picked up the topmost letter from the pile on my desk. It was from another mother, and one who is an utter stranger to me. I copy a paragraph:

"You have the ear of the women of our country. Won't you, some time, write some words of counsel to mothers and to daughters that may pilot both over the transition period succeeding the return of the girl from boarding school or college, with a diploma in her trunk and the world before her?"

She might have added, "A world of which she knew next to nothing when she left that home to be 'educated' by hired professors."

I wish I could take it for granted at the outset of these "words" that the girl was not sent away from the supervision of her natural guardians until they were convinced that she could not be properly educated as a day pupil in a really good school in the vicinity of her home. My views upon this branch of our subject are pronounced.

A woman to whom I said this one day retorted, "And antiquated!"

I answered, "I beg your pardon! The 'finishing school' under the very same name was familiar to fashionable mothers and parvenues in Fanny Burney's and Maria Edgeworth's day."

Now, as then, the mother would have her children wiser than herself and better fitted to fill their places in society. The one disinterested affection possible to human nature comes out strongly here. Her son may be ashamed of her when he reaches intellectual and social heights she can never climb. She has studied her limited sphere to small advantage if she does not admit the probability that her daughter will pity and patronize her when she has taken the polish of the finishing school. Amen! So let it be! They must increase in mental stature, though she be dwarfed by comparison. Let them shine, though her feeble light be quenched in the outer darkness.

There is not one mother in ten thousand whose own education was meager who does not face as a strong probability this result of sending her child from her for a term of years to be spent in acquiring learning and accomplishments she cannot hope to get under the parental roof. After more than a half century of patient study turned out by contract and machinery.

This is so unlike the popular conception of maternal duty and the ideal education for girls that, according to the data collected by the clever author of a clever paper entitled "Our Undisciplined Daughters" in a late number of a popular magazine, there are 500 "finishing schools" in the United States. I quote their parents, you would do a great good for us all. The work of readjustment into their rightful place in the old home is difficult to them, and sometimes an agony to us."

Is it strange that, with the memory of that other mother's meek submission to the tribunal of her child's judgment and taste fresh in my pitying soul, I uttered aloud in folding the letter in a sort of passionate protest the cry that breaks, as through cooled lava, upon the calm sequence of narrative in Thackeray's masterpiece:

DAUGHTERS, BE CHARITABLE!

"O it is pitiful—the bootless love of mothers for children in Vanity Fair!"

This problem is not new in our country. Over eighty years ago an eminent New England divine, who had paid much attention to the subject of "Female Education," wrote:

"Thousands of American mothers, impressed with the importance of knowledge which they do not possess, are willing to rise up early, to sit up late, to eat the bread of the most rigid economy, that their daughters may be favored with means of improvement greatly superior to what they have enjoyed."

It is not one of the "little ironies of fate" that the love and the sacrifice so often result in "agony" to those who have borne the heat and burden of the day, sustained by hopes of what the homecoming of the girls will be to the yearning, prideful mother-heart. It is domestic tragedy.

"O, ye poor! be charitable to the rich!" cries the parson in Bulwer's "My Novel."

If I might stand, face to face, with our girls, my plea would be "O, ye daughters! be charitable to those who have impoverished themselves in all ex-

THE HOUSEMOTHERS' EXCHANGE

Dated 1751

I INCLOSE herewith an ancient recipe for chowder. It may interest some of the lovers of good things among the readers of the Exchange. It was taken from a Boston paper, date of 1751:

BOSTON CHOWDER.

First, lay some onions to keep the pork from burning;
Because in chowder there is no turning.
Then lay some pork in slices very thin;
Thus you with chowder may begin.
Next lay some fish (or clams) cut crosswise very nice;
Then season well with pepper, salt and spice;
Parsley, sweet marjoram, savory and thyme.
Then biscuits next—which must be soaked some time.

Thus, our foundation laid, you will be able
To raise a chowder high as Tower of Babel.
For by repeating o'er the same again,
You may make chowder for a thousand men.
Last, a bottle of claret, water enough to smother 'em,
And you'll have a mess called "Omnium Gatherum."

GEORGE D. S. (Stonington, Conn.).

Fifty years ago I had my first taste of New England chowder at Nahant, Mass. It was, I am sure, compounded in exact obedience to the ancient and honorable recipe for which we are indebted to our humorous correspondent. I make it thus in my own kitchen to this day—excepting for the claret. I do not think it improves the taste of the famous seaside dish, and it muddies the color.

Feather Question Raised

I would say to "E. M. H." (Bluffs, Ill.), who asks how to sweeten rancid feathers, that if she will get four empty spools of fair size, open the ends of the bedtick, place a spool in each end and resew around each spool, then put the bed in the sun every fine day and on other days leave it in an airy room without covering it, she will find in two or three weeks that the bad odor will be gone.

I am a constant reader of the Exchange and deeply interested in everything helpful pertaining to the home and children.

A. K. (Central City, Ky.).

The use of empty spools is, of course, to allow the air to get at the musty feathers. I am obliged to you for backing me up in the advice to put the feathers in the sun. I have pursued this plan for years and with success. But two esteemed correspondents have lately insisted that the offensive feathers must be left in the shade.

Who is right? Or are all of us?

A Variety

Will you kindly inquire if any of your readers have a camera or a pyrographic outfit they can spare? I should like one or both of these for my children, as I am unable to buy them, and they want these means of entertainment and occupation on Saturdays and during the short stormy days and long evenings of winter.

I should also like to learn from some connoisseur in curios the value of an old cameo brooch.

I have a pile of papers that are good reading. Likewise several good books, and a copy of Young People's History of the World, which I should like to give to anybody who cares to pay freight upon them.

Here is a domestic item that may be useful: Instead of spending so much time and strength upon silver, and wearing it away in the process of the weekly scouring, put silver and plated ware into a pot of sour milk (the sourer the better), and set at the back of the stove to heat slowly. Leave it there until the milk is scalding hot. Then wash with hot soap and water. You will be amazed at the result. It will not harm the finest silver.

We are not very well-to-do, having just enough to make us fairly comfortable, but I try to have an agreeable variety in my daily fare, if I can get it only by cooking the same thing in different ways. In Oklahoma we have plenty of some things that are luxuries at the North, but as we have them every day, they pall upon the appetite sometimes.

Take, for example, sweet potatoes. They are a stand-by with us. We weary of them more quickly than of Irish potatoes.

We make our everyday sweets of sorghum. Here is a cheap recipe for cake:

One cup of sorghum, one of sugar, and half as much shortening; two cups of sour milk; one teaspoonful each of baking soda, cinnamon, cloves, allspice and nutmeg. Flour to make a good batter. Some brands are dryer than others and take less. If you like, add a cupful of seeded raisins and candied citron, mixed. I put up my own citron, so it costs little.

L. H. (Tryon, Oklahoma).

Have you ever fried sweet potatoes as you would prepare what are popular under the name of "French fried potatoes" when Irish are used? They are delicious cooked thus.

Then there are scalloped and caramel sweet potatoes, and sweet potatoes mashed and beaten light into a soufflé, with butter and cream, then browned quickly in a bakedish. And sweet potato pies and puddings are southern delicacies, to say nothing of a baked sweet potato in its prime, and the same stripped to the skin after it is boiled, and browned in a quick oven. Glaze it while browning with butter, and use as garnish and accompaniment—sweet and savory—of roast beef. Don't fancy that you have exhausted the capabilities of this vegetable until you have tried all of these, and other variations.

Write to us again. We are proud of our Oklahoma members. They do good work that grows better as the weeks roll on.

Your requests and your query are passed along the line.

No Charge!

Would you mind making place in the Exchange for the following "few facts worth knowing"? They may be appreciated by some who "don't know."

First—That a convenient small economy is to cut lengthwise the hosiery of the family, and to sew several together for use in polishing stoves, rubbing leather furniture, etc. The uses for these good, soft cloths, kept in a convenient bag or drawer, will be found innumerable.

Second—Save the various "cartons" that come in the mail, or from the ribbon counter, and train your young daughter to dampen carefully and very slightly her hair ribbons and sashes and "dad's" cravats, then smooth and roll on the cartons until they are needed to wear.

Third—Salt will curdle new milk. Hence, in preparing porridge, cream gravies, etc., the salt should be added after the dish is ready for serving.

Fourth—Equal parts of ammonia and turpentine will remove paint from linen or cotton materials if they are soaked in the mixture. Renew if the paint be slow in disappearing. Rinse thoroughly in clear cold water. Then rub out quickly with a little borax in clear water and rinse again.

Fifth—Cure for hiccough: Sit erect and inflate the lungs fully. Then, retaining the breath, bend forward slowly until the chest meets the knees. After slowly rising again to an erect posture, gradually exhale the breath. Repeat the process, and the nerves will have received an access of energy that will enable them to perform their natural functions.

Lastly, and most important of all—When you are tired, sit or lie down and rest! This is a sure and certain cure for the weary.

"NO CHARGE" (Chicago).

If there were a tariff, we ought to pay it gladly. Those who don't know and those who do are alike grateful for your addition to our store of practical information.

Are you quite "sure and certain" that the efficiency of the hiccough cure does not consist in the diversion of the sufferer's mind from the distressing affection? It is purely a nervous disorder, as you know, and is relieved times without number by drawing off the patient's attention suddenly and entirely to some new subject of thought.

Your last and best prescription should be conned and practiced by every housemother. Don't wait until you are "clean tired out" before you lie down, in a quiet, darkened room, long enough to let that tight screw in the back of the head—just at the base of the brain—slip back a thread or two. You comprehend the feeling, whether the masculine readers do or not. Or, if you cannot lie down, do the next best thing by seating yourself in the easiest chair at hand and "putting your feet up."

That is the way one kind and wise husband puts it to his wife. Lay your head against the back of the chair, or, as poor, harassed Mr. Jellyby was wont to do when his wife was most wearing, "find comfort in a wall." Let something prop your head, shut your eyes and relax the whole system—moral, mental and physical. You can do it while waiting for the kettle or the pot to boil. Let yourself go for five, eight, ten minutes. Then plunge your face into a basin of cold water, and with a rough towel rub up and down in the hollows behind your ears. Maybe you do not yet guess how much rubbing exactly there will do for "that tired feeling." A woman doctor let me into the secret twenty-five years ago, and I have thanked her in heart for it every day since.

Marie Antoinette Model

This Curved Upper Line Gives Height.

The Straight Girdle of Silver Cloth.

WOMEN declared that the eminently becoming long lines of last year were too lovely to relinquish, and there was an undercurrent of protest when a hint of a decided change in gowns was given by great modistes. As a happy medium between the high waist line of the Directoire period and the low line of the moyen-age, the girdle, more attractive than ever, has been placed on many of the newest gowns.

Its form departs decidedly from the straight shape of a few years ago, and its infinite variety promises lovely decoration for every kind of gown.

A straight girdle of silver cloth has been beautifully combined with the upper bodice of chiffon and the velvet skirt. It has been draped in soft folds around the waist, and, as a decorative touch, corals have been embroidered in a huge buckle form. These stones reflect the pink used as an underslip for the waist and give the jeweled effect which is one mark of this season's decoration.

In the Marie Antoinette model the girdle is a lovely integral part of a soft color combination of black, mauve and silver. The pointed form of black satin has folds of pale heliotrope, which repeats the lining color and that of the satin flowers. This is the appropriate finish for the full chiffon skirt.

By curving the upper line of the girdle on the light silk gown the height has been greatly increased. Silk braid and heavy embroidery in selftones, with just a suspicion of color, are used to decorate the most important part of the bodice, for you will notice that the rest is of tucked net, with folded bands of silk passing over the shoulders. Pipings of silk are used to outline the upper and lower edges of this shape.

Heavy with contrasting rich embroidery, the irregular girdle on the white broadcloth gown lends a beautiful line to the waist. It is fairly narrow at the sides and rises in two square tabs, which hold the fulness of the draped bodice. Silk and jewels in barbaric splendor are well worked to decorate the most noticeable part of the lovely afternoon costume.

On the dark dress the silk girdle has been pointed upward, while the lower line remains virtually normal. The rich coloring of autumn is used in embroidering the conventional design, which is all that is necessary for the somber dignity that seems to be required.

The central motif is almost the girdle on the chiffon evening dress. Narrow sides broaden out into a large form that has a square top line and is slightly curved at its lower edge. The decoration of the bodice is built around this girdle, following the upper line; and, starting from the important motif, two lines of embroidery drop to the deep band on the skirt.

No one can ignore these attractive ideas. They hold the bodice and skirt in a general scheme of line, color and grace, at the same time affording consistent and lovely decoration for the latest creations.

brations set up by sound are capable of inflicting great damage. Indeed, not only walls, but buildings and strong bridges can be made to collapse by the simple process of setting up vibrations. Many instances could be quoted of bridges having fallen through the tramp of soldiers across them, and for this reason when an army is crossing a bridge the men are made to change step. Not so long ago a German scientist demonstrated how he could cause strong glass globes to break by vibrations set up by instruments. In this case the instrument resembled the pipe of an organ and was blown by steam power.

The same individual declared that a wall could be made to fall if the conditions were favorable. In the first place it would be necessary for the wall to be built truly symmetrical, so that it could give out a "pure" note. Then again, the sound made by the instrument or by the voice must be in "tune" with the sound, or rather the duration of the vibration which the wall is capable of setting up. Provided these conditions could be fulfilled, there is no reason why any wall could not be rased to the ground. The fact that more than one scientist is asking for measurements and full details of the wall which Dr. Selin has unearthed in Palestine would indicate that we might hear more of this matter in the near future. It is, of course, a scientific problem and many factors have to be taken into consideration. The atmospheric conditions have to be reckoned with, and many other things. The report of a pistol fired at the top of Mont Blanc, for instance, would not be louder than a child's cracker on account of the rareness of the air. A striking instance of the power of vibration is afforded in the case of the eruption of Krakatoa, in Sumatra, some twenty-five years ago. The vibrations caused by this eruption traveled right round the earth seven times before they finally died away. If these vibrations had continued indefinitely and with uniform power and the wind and weather conditions had been favcrable, they would no doubt have caused fearful damage, but nothing came of them for the reason that they were not in "tune" with other vibrations issued from standing objects. After all, Marconi sends his messages across the Atlantic by vibrations, known as ether waves.

Dr. Selin has announced his intention of continuing the excavations, as only a part of the city has been uncovered. It is clear now that the wall, which mainly interests us, must have been a most striking structure, dominating the whole plain without the city and visible for miles. In those days, too, Jericho was situated in the midst of beautiful scenery. Everywhere the date palm flourished, and here and there were fields of hemp. It was noted for its balsam gardens, and the roads leading to the city were shaded by sycamore trees. Indeed, Antony was so charmed with the district of Jericho that he presented it to Cleopatra, who sold it to Herod. The latter monarch embellished it with palaces and constituted it his winter residence, as being the most beautiful spot for the purpose in his dominions. He died here, but directed that he should be interred in the Herodium. It was at Jericho that the Jewish pilgrims from Galilee and other places used to assemble on their way to the Temple; and Christ also began his last journey to Jerusalem from this point. Today, however, the site of the excavations is one of the most dreary spots it is possible to imagine. All around is a bare and barren wilderness.

According to history Jericho was thriee rebuilt. It was first destroyed in 1451 B. C., was replaced by the one built by Hiel in 918 B. C., in the reign of Ahab, and this, having been looted by Simon, slave to Herod, gave way before the one set up by Archelaus, son of Herod. The final destruction was the work of Vespasian in 68 A. Such a story, glistening with modern shellac, is told of a Secretary of the Treasury who some years ago was importuned by a young lady on behalf of a Congressman to whom she acted as secretary. The gentleman was absent, and some important business had come up concerning one of his best constituents. The Secretary had very gallantly explained to his visitor that he could not possibly comply with her request, and had arisen to his feet as a gentle hint that time was flying.

The young lady persistently urged her point, and threw her whole soul into an eloquent appeal, but the Secretary remained undaunted. Then she made a final effort, and turned upon him the irresistible battery of her handsome black eyes; the Secretary was impelled to look at her, and unfortunately hesitated in his sentence.

"I don't see how I could possibly do what you ask," he was saying firmly, when the eye artillery turned upon him, "but those eyes of yours——"

The Appian Way.

The famous Appian Way was constructed by digging two parallel trenches, three feet in depth, at the bottom of which were placed two layers of flat stone in mortar, upon which a layer of cobble stones was placed, also laid in mortar; then came a course of pebbles in concrete, over which were placed large, flat blocks of smooth lava well joined together, forming an even, uniform surface. It was primarily a military road, and extended from Rome to Brundusium, a distance of 350 miles. So perfect was the construction of this celebrated road that it still exists in places as good as ever notwithstanding it was made more than twenty centuries ago.—[New York Journal.

"William Allen's Fate."

AN INTERESTING REMINISCENCE OF BLACK HORSE GULCH.

By a Special Contributor.

BLACK HORSE GULCH had a pair of curiosities of which we were extremely proud—the "Whistling Hole" and "William Allen." The whistling hole was located at the extreme head of the gulch where it narrowed into a box cañon with high, precipitous, overhanging walls, making of it a natural megaphone.

The hole was three inches in diameter, located in the rock at the box end of the cañon and extended into the mountains to an unknown depth. Out of this hole at regular intervals of six hours issued a blast of air that the Judge estimated that, could it be utilized, would equal the strength of an eighty-horse-power steam engine. This "exhaust," as we termed it, would last a couple of minutes, and then the hole would remain quiet until the time came for another blow-out.

A large boulder had fallen from the cliffs above in such a manner as to partially muffle the sound, so that the exhaust could not be heard more than a mile down the gulch. The few Indians who yet remained in the neighborhood said that before the fallen rock had partially covered the hole that the whistling could have been heard many miles.

"William Allen" was as difficult to account for as was the whistling hole. Early one morning there was wafted to our ears from far up the mountainside the voice of a burro in dire distress. And such a voice! Though the animal was at least a mile distant, that voice rolled down the mountainside in a volume of sound that was something never to be forgotten.

A miners' meeting was hastily called and a committee sent to investigate the cause of the uproar. After a deal of hard climbing the committee reached the spot from whence the noise emanated. Here was found a strange burro gazing into an abandoned prospect hole, perhaps fifteen feet deep. In the bottom of the hole was seen the form of a man who, upon being brought to the surface, proved to be the Judge. He was on his way back from Chloride, but instead of taking the regular trail, undertook a short cut, with the result that but for the donkey's timely warning, he would have miserably perished.

The burro followed the committee into camp and made known his presence by giving us a sample of his vocal abilities. To have heard that noble brute at short range was worth a trip around the world. He would brace his front feet, throw his ears back, half-close his eyes, elevate his face and, accompanied by a solemn pump-handle motion of his paint-brush tail, emit a "h-e-e h-a-w, h-e-e h-a-w" and a "tiger" that was something shameful. We simply thought that we could not stand for it, so it was voted to put the beast out of the way for self-protection. In consideration of his having saved the valuable life of the Judge, its death should be as painless as possible. Just as the fate of the animal had been decided upon, Bud Owens came in and told how it had tramped the life out of a big diamond-back just as the reptile was ready to strike his girl Lissa. Lissa was Bud's 5-year-old daughter and the pet of the camp. The motion to do away with the animal was reconsidered with the result that the stranger with the magnificent voice was voted the freedom of the gulch with a whoop.

The next matter in order was to select a fitting name for our new ward. The Judge, who, by the way, was a Buckeye, suggested "William Allen." He told us in a few well-chosen words how that William Allen had at one time been a noted Ohio politician. He was not only a true friend, an honest and patriotic American, but had a voice of national fame. He had started life as a farmer's boy and when he would call his hogs at feeding time all the swine for miles around would rush for the Allen homestead. Also, when he was making a speech anywhere near the Ohio River it was impossible to hear a steamboat whistle for a landing. He gave other points of similarity between the celebrated Buckeye and our burro, which it is unnecessary to enumerate here. The result was that the stranger within our gates was named "William Allen." He was always known by his full name, it never being cut to Bill or Al.

About this time, there drifted into the gulch a nondescript individual to whom the name of "Molasses" was given by common consent. No one suggested the name, it just came to him spontaneously. Most of the men in the camp had been country-raised, to whom in their boyhood days a "candy pulling" had been looked forward to as a great social event. Molasses's long yellowish locks reminded them very much of taffy after it it had been about half "pulled." Hence the nickname.

Molasses in his mild way resented the name, and came to me with his trouble. I tried to soothe him by telling him that most of the boys in the camp had those nicknames—in fact, the real names of but few were known. There was "Kentuck," "Tar Heel," "Wabash," "Cousin Jack," etc., all of whom appeared to be proud of their names except him and "Holy Joe."

"You don't appear to understand," he replied, "William Allen don't try to kick nobody but me and Holy. It must be our names that he has taken a dislike to."

After a few minutes' silence, he continued: "In the days before the war, my grandfather run a steam sawmill in the American bottoms across from St. Louis, Mo. He also owned a fine Kentucky jack with a voice nearly as powerful as William Allen's. My grandfather was always experimenting, and when that jack died—say, I've an idea," and he looked at me with the only gleam of intelligence that I ever saw illuminate those salt-mackerel eyes of his. What that idea of his was he refused to divulge, but it developed later on.

Some mornings later as we were preparing for our daily labors a voice came rolling down the gulch that was something terrific. It was worse than a hundred peals of thunder concentrated into one. Men who had faced undismayed the roar of a thousand cannon at Gettysburg and Chickamauga acted more like a herd of stampeded Texas longhorns than steady-going miners. Even Lum Gin, who never had shown the least trace of fear, began to burn joss sticks in front of a slant-eyed god that occupied a niche in his laundry. The noise itself was not what frightened so much as the voice. It was the voice of William Allen magnified a thousand times and which ended in a sob that would have wrung the heart strings of a wooden Indian.

After the noise had ceased and we had somewhat recovered our normal condition, the Judge suggested that we immediately go on a tour of investigation. "Boys," he said, "William Allen is in trouble; he is in dire need of help from his friends. He is calling us. Who will volunteer to go with me to his assistance?" It was needless to add that not a man in camp remained behind.

When within a couple of hundred yards of the head of the cañon we found William Allen, or rather what was left of him. His head and neck had disappeared, having been cut off close to the shoulders. Wedged tightly into the whistling hole was one end of a section of two-and-a-half-inch water pipe. On the other end was William Allen's head and neck, being lashed there by many thongs of buckskin.

"Fhat the divil does all this mean?" exclaimed Red, "and fhat a beautiful corpse he be after making, I don't know."

William Allen's countenance wore that calm and serene repose we would naturally expect to see in the face of one who had lived a life of rectitude, and had met death conscious of a life of eternal bliss beyond.

A low rumble in the bowels of the mountain gave notice that the "hole" was about ready to exhaust. William Allen's eyelids were noticed to quiver, his ears to erect, his lips to pull back from his teeth in a diabolical grin, and his nostrils to expand double their natural size.

As he pointed his nose straight out to the front, a low, gutteral moan came from his throat. As the exhaust increased in strength so did William Allen's voice increase volume. Such a mighty "h-e-e h-a-w, h-e-e h-a-w" could not have been surpassed by a million jackasses trained to sing in unison. Then the peculiar shape of the cañon multiplied the voice of William Allen many times over. Those of us who were so unfortunate as to be standing in front of the late lamented were wafted down the cañon like a tumble weed before a Kansas blizzard. During the allotted two minutes did William Allen sing that terrific, unearthly song, ending as before with a heart-crushing sob.

An inventory showed that with the exception of a few minor bruises and cuts no one was seriously hurt. We had not missed "Molasses" until now. He was gone, and henceforth lost to Black Horse Gulch forever. William Allen's remains were gathered together and reverently buried beneath a monument of rock.

Not long since, out at the Soldiers' Home, a venerable-looking gray-bearded veteran introduced himself to me as the long-missing "Molasses." "Don't give me away," was his parting injunction, "there are a few of the boys from Black Horse Gulch in the Home, and even at this late day, if they could find him, they would make it somewhat interesting for the fellow who played that low-down trick on William Allen."

The Passing of the Year.

Tonight a year is dying; I must say:
"Farewell, my dear old friend," and turn away.
Only a little while, then from my sight
The blessed year will pass away tonight.

Now as the moments hasten her to rest
I lay my cherished blossoms on her breast;
Sweet memories plucked when days were glad and bright
I must relinquish with a sigh tonight.

They could not last, I see their beauties lie
All fallen, withered—with a broken sigh
I gather them and turn me from the light,
For oh! they must be hidden deep tonight.

When new years pass beside me through the hours
And beckon me to new and lovely flowers,
I know their hues will never seem more bright
Than those I bury in the grave tonight.

And so I'll kiss them once and lay them there—
Their dying perfume scents the quiet air—
And bury them beyond my longing sight
Upon her breast, the dear Old Year's, tonight.

The Value of Play.

The first self-revelation of the child is through play. He learns by it what he can do—what he can do easily at first trial, and what he can do by perseverance and contrivance.

Thus he learns through play to recognize the potency of those "lords of life" (as Emerson calls them) that weave the tissue of human experience, volition, making and unmaking, obstinacy of material, the magic of contrivance, the lordly might of perseverance that can reinforce the moment by the hours (and time by eternity.)

The child in his games represents to himself his kinship to the human race—his identity, as little self, with the social whole as his greater self.—[Froebel

The Contrary Marietta.

SHE MAKES GREAT PLAN FOR A DAY AT THE AVIATION MEET.

By a Special Contributor.

MRS. HIGGINS was in one of her moods, which meant that she was out of sorts with everything and everybody; and her husband, who by this time had lerned that the wisest procedure was to sit by and say nothing, warmed his hands behind the kitchen stove and tried to efface himself as much as possible.

"Here it is Aviation Week and everybody a-goin' to see the 'planes, and we've got to sit here just because we own a ranch. I wish the people that are so stuck on ranches'd come along an' buy this one. I'd sell it to 'em mighty quick, I tell you. I'm tired and sick of havin' to give up everything that comes along because we've got a passel of live stock that'd up and die if we left them."

Mr. Higgins spread his hands out over the top of the stove, only to draw them back hastily as he saw that the space was needed for the toaster.

"I could take care of the ranch all right, Marietta, if you want to go an' see them ships," he at length ventured timidly.

"You take care of it!" snorted his wife in return. "And a pretty care you'd take of it! How many eggs did you let get chilled under that settin' hen the last time I left you to go in town? Seven! And do you suppose I'm goin' to let this batch get served the same way? I said I was goin' to have early pullets, and I'm goin' to do it if I never get to a single place. Much good you are to take care of anything but your old trees!"

John Higgins heaved a sigh of relief. The batteries were turned upon him. He was used to having his shortcomings haled before him, and he no longer minded it, but it "went agin' his nature," as he often expressed it to himself, to have his wife rail at the ranch.

Thirteen years before he had come out from the East and had purchased with his savings fifteen acres of bare land. There was not a thing on it excepting a few stunted pepper trees, and even these he was obliged to cut down, as they interfered with the planting of his orange grove. At first he lived in a tent while he dug holes and planted his trees. When they were all in, instead of building a house, he put a good substantial fence all around his holding, after the manner of farmers back East, to whose ways he was accustomed. This completed, he built himself a two-room shack and considered himself a fortunate man in possessing so grand a home. All this time he had been unlearning all he had labored to acquire as a farmer in the East and learning it over again. It was hard at first to get used to having no rains for six months, and harder still to know the exact time and how properly to irrigate his trees. Some men mastered these things easily, but John Higgins was a man to whom knowledge came hard, and he experienced many failures before he finally succeeded in learning the proper way.

It was not until the trees were bearing and every foot of his soil in process of cultivation that he bethought himself of taking a wife, and even then he hesitated for two years before he could make up his mind which of two girls to choose. The old adage of "He who hesitates is lost," often occurred to him when finally his choice rested on Marietta Bailey, but he was too honorable a man to turn back after he had once proposed. A foretaste of what was to be his portion had been granted him, when several weeks prior to the day set for their wedding he had taken her down to see their future home. Marietta had glanced then at the two-room shack with withering scorn, and the marriage was delayed until her fiancée could add two more rooms and a front and back porch to the structure.

Everything on the fifteen acres had been planted by his own hands. He knew the nature of each tree as well as a teacher knows the children under her. Once he had been the laughing stock of the near-by country because he had fed flax-seed meal to the roots of a sickly-looking tree. The people laughed, but the tree got well. He studied his soil and made tests of it to see that it contained the proper ingredients to produce the finest oranges possible. If there was a possibility of Jack Frost's visiting the grove, he would watch the thermometer like a hawk in order to be on hand to protect the young trees. If the blossoms dropped before the fruit was set he would not rest until he found whether the trouble was due to too little water or to a lack of something in the soil. In fact, the ranch was the apple of his eye, and he could not bear to hear his wife eternally nagging about it. To her everything he did was wrong and the hours he spent on his trees so much good time thrown away. "They'll grow just as well if you don't fuss so over them," she was forever flinging at him.

This morning there seemed to be no let up to her tongue.

"'Tain't likely there'll ever be another aviation meet here in Los Angeles," she said, as she set the platter of ham and eggs on the table and turned to the stove for the coffee pot. "Lightnin' don't strike the same place twice, and other cities'll be a-wantin' the 'planes. I suppose I'll be in my grave before they come here again. I might have knowed that settin' hen would come off this week. If it was the middle of summer I wouldn't mind a-leavin' her, but chickens are the foolest things that grow, and like as not, if I did go, if one or two'd hatch, she'd leave the nest and the rest would go dead in their shells before I got back."

"As you're so set on it, Marietta," her husband said, "you go. I won't do a thing but hang 'round the barn all day. I shan't go near the trees, an' if anything happens I'll be handy."

Marietta set the cup of coffee down with a bang that sent the liquid over the table cloth.

"And a nice figure I'd cut goin' alone! I suppose I might do it if I was same as some wimmen that like nothin' better than to go traipsin' over the country, leavin' their husbands to home, but I ain't that kind. Not that I've much of a one to be sure, but I ain't a-goin' to no aviation unless he goes along, and it's out of the question for us both to go and leave it. I'd like to send out a warnin' to all them fool wimmin back East that thinks it so nice to come out here an' marry a rancher. It don't take long to learn that 'tain't no bed of roses. If any one wants to be tied hand and foot and miss everything that's goin' on from the President to aryplanes, let 'em marry a ranch man. They can have 'em and welcome."

John Higgins would have liked another cup of coffee, but that meant he would have to break in on his wife's flow of eloquence, so he waited until she rose to go to the stove for something, and when her back was turned he quietly slid from his seat and glided out of the door.

He was quite excited when he returned for the noonday dinner. Marietta's humor had not improved. If anything, she was angrier than she had been earlier in the day.

"The Sharys have gone, and the Browns. I seen them both go while I was out to the woodpile. They're drivin' over, an' they're goin' to make a day of it, for I seen the lunch boxes a-stickin' out. We ain't even got a child to leave on the place."

"No," said John Higgins sadly, "we ain't." Then he brightened up. "But I've great news, Marietta, and maybe you can see the 'planes yet. A man come along this mornin' and wanted to buy the ranch."

"And of course you turned him down, as you always do, more fool you."

"No, I told him he could have it."

Marietta wheeled around, and so complete was her amazement that for once in her life she was speechless. When at last she recovered, she gasped out: "Have you, really?"

John nodded. "He went back in town to see about the title. He likes it mighty well, but he wants everything left on it, even to the settin' hen. He says he wants things that's accustomed to the place, and I knowed there wasn't anything you'd care to keep."

"When's he want it?"

"Just as soon as we can let him have it. I thought as today's only Tuesday, we could let him come in, say, on Saturday, and that'd give you time enough to see the 'planes before the meet's over."

"He can have it tomorrow for all I care. There's precious little on it that I want."

So complete had been Mrs. Higgins' indifference and so great her longing to leave the ranch that she failed to ask the purchase price. In fact, no thought of the money consideration came to her until along in the early morning, when she awoke and fell to thinking of the events of the previous day.

"John!" she said sharply. "Are you awake?"

When no answer came, she extended her hand only to find his place empty. She sat up and looked around. By the dim gray light she saw that her husband was on his knees by the bedside with his face buried in his hands. She spoke again more sharply than before, but his only reply was a broken sob.

"Baby!" she flung out as she threw herself back on the pillow in disgust.

Hardly was breakfast over when the purchaser came and desired to inspect the ranch thoroughly. Marietta went along, for after what she had seen that morning she did not trust her husband, and she was fearful that at the last moment he might decide not to sell. But John showed no signs of flinching, and it was arranged that he and his wife should go to the city the next day to see about the deed, and everything being satisfactory, the ranch would pass out of their hands at that time. There was not a great deal to be done in the meantime, for they were to take very little with them. For the first time in months Marietta's face was serene. She packed their few pieces of bric-a-brac, took down clothes from the closets and emptied bureau drawers quite as if life was a pleasure instead of a terrible hardship. All at once she thought of the setting hen. It was out near the barn, and it had had nothing to eat since the previous day, for it would not leave the nest, and in the excitement of the morning she had forgotten to take it any food. She laid down her armful of clothes and hastened out to the hen, taking with her in one hand a small dish of feed and in the other a dipper of water.

"Peep! peep!" sounded from under it as Marietta drew near. Hastily setting down her pans, she lifted the hen carefully and saw to her amazement that every one of the eggs was hatched. There were fourteen little balls of buff and brown all crowding under their downy coverlet to keep warm. Several of them were still quite damp, and two could hardly stand, so Marietta gathered these up carefully in her apron and returned with them to the house. There in the kitchen she lifted them out one by one and placed them tenderly into a little basket which, after tucking a woolen cloth about the sides, she set down by the stove. Then she went back to feed the hen. The others were lusty little chicks, standing firmly upon their tiny legs and peeping out with their beads of eyes quite as if they were conscious of being in a new and very unfamiliar world.

"I'm glad they hatched out today," Marietta said to herself. "Like as not, them strange folks'd ruin half of 'em, and I'd hate to have anything happen to them when I've had so much trouble to get them this far. I'm bound to have early pullets this——" She stopped suddenly. "I declare to gracious," she exclaimed, "if I didn't forget I was leavin' them!"

She started for the house to finish her packing, she passed the horse corral, Topsy reached o head and playfully bit at her sleeve. Topsy wa horse. John had given it to her the year after were married, for her own use, and if Marietta al herself to love anything, it was this horse, but this she had decided to part with.

"There ain't any comfort drivin' in town nowad she had explained to her husband, "with them brained autos dashin' around every which way— I don't want anything that ever belonged on the Marietta hesitated a moment, then took a step the corral. This far she stopped and looked in direction, but seeing no sign of her husband, she hurriedly up to the bars and flung her arms about horse's neck.

"I'm a plumb old fool," she whispered in the mal's ear, "but I'm powerful glad, all the same, shet of you all."

Somehow, in spite of her lightheartedness, the noon dragged. Marietta tried to pack, but she not keep her mind on her work. A score of times left it to go see the little chicks in the basket. out by the heat, one of them even grew so spry try to climb out of its prison, and Marietta laughe she put it back and drew the cloth more tightly it.

"I wish they wouldn't want the ranch till these little older," she said aloud. "Chicks never are terestin' as they are the first week." A moment she thought of its being Aviation Week, and was prised to think she had forgotten it.

It was that evening at supper that John had the surprise of his life. His wife had bee quiet throughout the meal, and when it was she said abruptly:

"Tomorrow'll be a busy day; let's take a walk the ranch an' say good-bye to things tonight."

"All right," replied her husband. "But it's dark fast, so you'd better leave the dishes til come back."

Marietta threw a shawl about her shoulders lowed John down the board walk and out of the garden to the ranch proper.

"They won't find a much nicer garden than that," said, pointing back to it with pride. "Here is a ary, and lettuce an' peas a-growin' as if it was

She had brought along an apple box, and this, they came to the hen and her brood, Marietta over them.

"Tomorrow I'll get 'em all nicely fixed in the yard before we go. I'd like to feel, anyway, that left 'em all right."

John nodded, but he made no verbal answer.

They skirted the barn and passed out into the ard. In the fading light the trees loomed up and dark. The work of picking had barely comm Against one tree leaned a ladder, and beneath it of orange boxes. The trees were heavy with great of beautiful golden fruit. It was hardly time for soming, but here and there little tips of white, precocious than the rest, appeared amid the black foliage, filling the air with a faint, delicious grance.

John straightened up and drew in a long breath and exhaled it slowly. To him it was the perfu the gods. He let his eyes wander over the Each tree was a perfect specimen, and its perf was due to him. It was his work. The sun an rain and the soil had all done their part, but he put into it also something of his own life. The had taken thirteen of his best years, and now his with them was done. Other hands would finish he had so well begun. But as he would not tak his word before, so now he turned away and his walk in silence.

Marietta dragged along for a while back of him, all at once she quickened her pace until she abreast.

"John," she said, catching him by the arm, "don't the ranch. I don't want to let it go any more'n do."

John Higgins' eyes were round with amazement his lower jaw dropped. "Do you mean it?" he gasped. "Say, do you mean it?"

Marietta inclined her head. If the light had not so dim he might have seen two tears that, frighten their boldness, scurried down her thin cheeks.

"I thought I wanted to leave it—but I don't. I wouldn't be happy anywhere else."

"But what about the aviation meet?" John feeling that he must do his duty. "You won't that, will you?"

Marietta stiffened. "There's enough curiosity in the world now without me addin' to the number I don't know what I want to go an' look at 'planes shiftin' in the air for, unless I'm pinin' stiff neck. I guess them that stays at home'll only ones that won't have to use liniment."

Grand Duke's Dilemma.

A LITTLE STORY OF A PRINCESS AND A POET.

From London Opinion.

THE Grand Duke of Dusseldorf-am-Rhein sent for his daughter, the Princess Isolde, and spoke to her in much the same language that meaner mortals use when calling younger members of their families to order.

"Come, come, my child," he said, "I want to know the meaning of this;" and "this" did certainly stand in need of explanation.

It was a letter—or at all events a draft of a fragment of a letter. The Baroness von Spandau had found it in the Princess's blotting case, and laid it before the Grand Duke as one who discharges a painful duty. It ran as follows:

"Oh, you are cruel—cruel. Why must you take advantage of my ignorance and weakness. Surely you must have known that I did not mean all that I said—or that I should not mean it always. You know, as well as I do, that time flies and hearts change, and that love, like a bird, is on the wing. And yet I have to plead with you, and I plead in vain, and you threaten you will——" etc.

The Grand Duke read it aloud, in dry accents, as if he were reading an order in council or an auctioneer's catalogue; and, when he had finished, he continued:

"It's no good telling me that that's a French exercise, Miss, because I shan't believe you. It is evident that you have been conducting a clandestine correspondence with some one. The question is, with whom?"

"I don't know, Papa," replied the Princess, beginning to cry.

"You don't know? Nonsense! I insist upon your telling me," said the Grand Duke impatiently.

"But I don't know, really, Papa," the Princess repeated. "I mean to say I don't know his real name. I only know the name he writes under."

"Writes!" ejaculated the Grand Duke in tones which suggested that writing was an occupation of which he now heard for the first time.

"He's a poet, Papa," the Princess explained.

"Poetry! You don't mean to say people write poetry nowadays? I thought all the poets were dead. I wish they were. But never mind about that. What I want to know is: How does this poet, whoever he is, come to be writing letters to a princess?"

This time Princess Isolde not only cried, but blushed.

"It was all my fault, Papa," she said.

"Your fault, child? What do you mean? How can it be your fault?"

"Because I began by writing a letter to him."

The Grand Duke started in his chair, and repeated his daughter's words with emphasis.

"You—began—by writing—a letter—to him!"

The Princess defended herself as best she could.

"I didn't see why I shouldn't," she said. "He wrote such beautiful poetry—all about love and that sort of thing—and I wanted to tell him how much I admired it;" and then the whole secret was dragged out, and the full confession was made.

Tristram—that was the poet's pen name—had awakened sympathetic chords in the Princess's bosom by his beautiful verses. She had yielded to a sudden impulse and sent an anonymous letter. She had corrupted her maid, and arranged for an answer to be sent for at a glove shop. The correspondence thus begun had continued, had become quite intimate. It had seemed romantic to have that mystery in the midst of the unromantic palace etiquette; but now——

"And now," said the Grand Duke with scorn, "your poet appears to have got tired of you. It serves you right, of course, but still——"

"He was about to say that he was glad; but the Princess protested.

"It was I who got tired first," she said indignantly.

"Indeed! And may I ask what it was that caused you to get tired?"

Again the Princess blushed.

"It was Prince Eric, Papa," she said, with a crimson face.

"I see."

He spoke a shade more kindly now, feeling that things were not quite so bad as he had feared. Princess Isolde had just been affianced to Prince Eric, and it was all to the good that she was willing to throw over the poet for his sake.

"He's so good-looking," she said. "And he dances so beautifully, and he says such beautiful things to me——"

"Quite so, my dear. You needn't apologize," said the Grand Duke.

"Only, if he were to find out about those letters, Papa——"

"Precisely. That's the point. Or if other people were to find out—that's another point. Or if that Republican rag Socialismus were to get hold of the story—that's a third point. How many letters did you write the man?"

"I couldn't tell you, Papa, without looking at my diary."

"So bad as that, is it? And what sort of letters were they? Letters about poetry, or letters about other things as well?"

"Partly about poetry, but some of them were about other things as well," the Princess admitted with a deeper blush than ever; and the Grand Duke felt once again that the situation was serious.

If Socialismus did get hold of that story—and stranger things had happened——

"I'll have to talk to Prince Eric about it," said the Grand Duke. "Meanwhile you'd better run away and play." And in due course Prince Eric was closeted with him.

"Prince," he asked him, "do you happen to know anything about poets?" And the Prince replied that any knowledge of poets which he possessed was entirely at the Grand Duke's service.

"Are poets gentlemen?" the Grand Duke asked, just as persons of lower rank and different experience have been known to ask whether dentists or bank clerks or stock jobbers are gentlemen. And the fair-haired, blue-eyed youth smiled a winning smile as he replied:

"Some poets have even been noblemen. There was Lord Byron, for instance. Your Highness may have heard of him."

"Of course—of course! But how about the others? Can one rely on the other poets to behave like gentlemen? It's all right if one can, of course, but otherwise——"

"Your Highness is pleased to speak in riddles," said the Prince.

"I know—I know. It's a very delicate subject; but you've got to be told. It's better to tell you now than leave you to find out afterward."

So he told him what he had just heard, and then:

"You aren't half angry enough, Prince; in fact, you seem rather pleased than otherwise."

Prince Eric laughed.

"Well, it is rather pleasing for a prince to think that he's cut out a poet!" he said gaily. "It's the sort of thing a prince doesn't often get the chance of doing."

"I should think not, indeed," said the Grand Duke. "In a country in which the natural distinctions between classes are carefully observed——"

"I know. That's what makes it so particularly gratifying," said the Prince. But the Grand Duke would not allow him to treat the subject lightly.

"You don't seem to understand the seriousness of the thing," he said.

"On the contrary, it is just the seriousness of the thing that fascinates me."

"You don't seem to understand that if that rag Socialismus got hold of the story——"

"Oh, surely, Your Highness——"

"And came out with it on your wedding morning——"

"That would be a pity, certainly," said the Prince.

"It would be more than a pity," said the Grand Duke, and he even went on to use a very vulgar expression.

"It would be more than a pity. It would be a pretty kettle of fish."

"I suppose so. Yet if I assure you that it would make no difference to my feelings——"

"If you say that, I shan't believe you. Besides, there are my feelings to be considered, and I mean to consider them. Sooner than have a scandal I'll break off the match and send the Princess to a convent. Unless you can suggest some way of recovering those letters——"

It was a challenge, and Prince Eric took it up.

"Very well," he said. "I will recover them. They shall be one of my wedding gifts to the Princess."

"But you don't even know the writer's name. She doesn't know it herself."

"His publisher shall tell me. If he doesn't——"

He frowned ferociously, as if there were no need to be more explicit.

"And when you have found him?" asked the Grand Duke.

"Then I will appeal to his better feelings."

"And if he has none?"

"Then I will try other means."

This, with another ferocious frown, which seemed to inspire the Grand Duke with a certain amount of confidence.

"Do your best then," he said. "But you quite understand that, if you fail, the match will have to be broken off."

"I shall not fail," replied Prince Eric; and he sallied forth—a magnificent young northern giant who looked as if he would make but a mouthful of all the poets in the grand duchy—while the Grand Duke sent again for his daughter, and told her, in his abrupt way, on what issue her fate hung.

She spent an anxious, and even a tearful, afternoon in consequence. It was romantic, of course, to know that rivals would presently be fighting for her hand; but then, if there should be bloodshed—if the combatants should hurt each other——

"The Prince can take care of himself," said her father, "and as for that poet fellow—why, surely, my child, you don't mean to say you care what happens to him?"

He could not understand this lingering tenderness for a love which a more suitable love had superseded. Still less could he understand any one caring whether a poet was run through the body or not. Poets, indeed!

"Don't be such a sympathetic little goose," he said. "I daresay the Prince won't hurt him more than he can help;" but it was, nevertheless, a relief to him when he received a message, and could report that the quest for the letters had been successful.

"Poets are gentlemen," ran the note which he received, "and they feel confident that Grand Dukes are gentlemen, too."

"Good gracious! What is the world coming to?" was the Grand Duke's comment when he read that; and, having let off steam through the safety valve of interjection, he read on:

"The poet will only consent to part with the letters on the condition that he be permitted to hand them back personally to the writer. Having no means of ascertaining whether the writer is, or is not, acting under coercion, he absolutely declines to entrust them to any intermediary. Subject to that one stipulation, he places himself unreservedly at His Serene Highness's disposal."

"Holty toity!" was His Serene Highness's first exclamation on reading that; but he felt, as he uttered it, that it was not an exclamation which advanced matters in the slightest.

Talk of poets behaving like gentlemen! Why, here was a poet who had the audacity to go farther and behave like a grand duke! And he dared not even have him arrested for lèse majesté for fear of Socialismus. The most that he would dare to do would be to give him a piece of his mind; and he dared not even do that until he had got the letters back. So he sat at his desk and dipped his pen in his ink pot.

"Tell the man," he wrote, "that I will give him an audience at 9 tonight, and that Princess Isolde will be present. Warn him, in case he is ignorant of court etiquette, to ask, in the first instance, for the equerry-in-waiting."

Then having dispatched the note, he told the Princess what had been arranged, and bade her come to his apartment five minutes before the appointed hour.

Her heart, as will readily be believed, went pit-a-pat, and conflicting emotions tore her. What a meeting! And what surprises it might have in store for her!

Suppose this poet to whom she had confided the secrets of her girlish heart turned out to be an ugly snuffy old man—how very uncomfortably foolish she would feel then! Suppose, on the other hand, he turned out to be even handsomer and more gallant in his bearing than Prince Eric himself—could she then trust herself? Suppose again—— In truth there was no end to the suppositions, and it was an immense relief when steps were at last heard in the corridor.

"The visitor whom Your Serene Highness expected awaits your Serene Highness's convenience," announced the groom-in-waiting.

"Send him to me," said the Grand Duke.

The groom withdrew, and there was a pause. The Grand Duke, like a soldier coming to attention, assumed his haughtiest manner, and called severely upon his daughter to assume hers.

"More dignity, my dear! More dignity! Don't look like a stuffed owl," was his way of putting it.

"I'm doing my best, Papa," said the Princess, biting her lip and trying hard to look frozen, impassive, and indifferent; and then the door was thrown open once again, and then:

"What! You! Prince Eric! And where's the poet? Haven't you brought him? You don't mean to say he refused to come after all?"

Prince Eric laid his hand upon his heart and bowed low.

"It is the poet," he said, "who has now the honor of presenting himself to Your Serene Highness."

"You! You the poet?" the Grand Duke almost shouted in amazement.

"Yes, I have that honor. I am 'Tristram.' A prince, you see, who wishes to write poetry, hardly dares to do so under his own name. He might be laughed at—by Socialismus; or he might receive flattery which he would know to be insincere. Writing under an assumed name, he has the chance of winning such a reward as this."

He produced a bundle of letters, most neatly tied together with blue ribbon, and laid them on the table.

"They are all there," he continued. "If her Highness will do me the honor of counting them—one—two—three——"

But now it was Princess Isolde's turn to speak, and there was no longer any need for her to try to look like frozen marble.

"And you knew all the time?" she exclaimed, with a joyous little laugh.

"Yes, I knew all the time, only I liked to play this comedy of cutting myself out. And now, if Your Highness still commands me to give up these precious treasures——"

He paused for a reply, and Princess Isolde did not think it necessary to consult the Grand Duke before replying. She had glanced at his face, and read that she might ignore him; and she did so.

"No, no" she said; "they are yours—yours—until——"

"Until they are ours," said Prince Eric, finishing the sentence for her.

Not Worth the Offer.

"I was standing out in front one night," said a theatrical manager, "when a ragged little urchin came along with a dog under his arm. The dog was a yellow cur of the mangiest variety I had ever seen.

"Are you the manager of the show?" asked the boy.

I told him I was.

"'Well,' remarked the lad, 'I want to see the show, but I hain't got no money. I'll tell you what I'll do; I'll give you this dog if you'll let me in.'

"I looked at the boy and then at the dog, and my heart melted. 'You can go in,' I said, 'but never mind about giving me the dog. Take the dog along with you.'

"The lad went in with the yellow cur under his arm. After the performance I was standing out in front and happened to see the urchin come out.

"'Well, sonny,' I remarked, 'how did you like the show?'

"'Oh, pretty well,' he said, 'but I'm awfully glad I didn't give you the dog.'"—[Detroit News Tribune.

The Quest of Content.

One time I felt as if my soul
Must break its chains, to seek a goal
Elsewhere, beyond earth's narrow bounds
Where only dull content resounds.
My heart, too, bid me let it go
Without this frame which bound it so.
I heard its knocking, loud and fast,
Against the bars that held it clasped.
I felt that mass we call a mind
Surge 'gainst the shell where 'twas confined—
Its convolutions swelled and tossed
Like restless sea on rock coast forced.

So each I freed, and each I sent
Upon its journey of content;
Yet all returned, to peaceful be,
Nor seek to solve humanity.

A Joke on a Journalist.

SINCE M. Bjoernsterne-Bjornson, who is in feeble health, has come to Paris to receive medical care, the hotel where he resides has been invaded by newspaper correspondents of the entire world, desirous of informing themselves of the state of health of the great writer. The clerk of the hotel has been bothered greatly by their inquiries, but has answered them with good grace. He finds that the German journalists, more than others, abuse his complaisance. The other day the correspondent of a great Berlin weekly asked with much insistence: "How is the master?"

"Better, much better," was the answer.

"Is that so? Well, then, I am going to see him, to congratulate him."

"Impossible; he has just gone out."

"You say so?"

"Yes, he has gone to breakfast with Tolstoy."

The journalist remained a moment, surprised by this marvelous cure. He then said: "Certainly not on foot."

The journalist jumped for the telegraph office and sent, with many embellishments, the good news to Berlin.

An hour later he heard from his journal: "You are an astonishing idiot. How can Bjornson breakfast with Tolstoy, who is at Yasnaia Poliana?"

Furious, the journalist returned to the hotel, demanding that the clerk pay for the erroneous telegram.

"How much did your telegram cost?" inquired the clerk.

"Thirty-two francs 50 centimes."

The lawyer rudely replied:

"Then, M'Lud, I know it is no use my knocking my head against a brick wall. I suppose I must sit down."

The judge, adjusting his eyeglasses and looking sarcastically at the lawyer, said:

"Sir, I know it is of no use for you to knock your head against a brick wall, but, I may add, I know no one else who could perform such an operation with less injury to himself than you."—[Tit-Bits.

One on Morgan's Partner.

OF course, it may seem mean to dig it up on him now that he's made good, but George W. Perkins, now famous as partner of J. Pierpont Morgan, was once a singer in a church choir in Cleveland, and his only claim to distinction in those days was an incident now past the memory of all but the older inhabitants of this town.

George lived here when he was a young man in his early twenties, and he liked to sing. He had a first-rate voice and made the choir out at Beckwith Memorial Church, if one is correctly informed as to the particular church. The choir singers sat in a loft back of the pulpit almost hidden from the congregation. At that time there were two or three remarkably pretty young women in the choir. Well, there wasn't any harm in the bass or tenor singers looking at the contralto or soprano members of the choir and feasting their eyes on them when the sermon dragged, was there? Certainly there wasn't. But being seated all in a row, it was necessary sometimes for one to tilt back one's chair in order to get a square view of a face at the other end.

That is what George W. Perkins did one bright Sunday morning, if the dope is handed down aright. He shifted his chair about a trifle to get a still better view. Unhappily, one leg of his chair had been resting close to the top of the steps that led down from the choir loft to the main auditorium. When George shifted his chair he shifted one leg over the edge of that stairway.

A second later a bright young man, destined to be one of the great financial geniuses of the country, lay all in a heap at the foot of the pulpit. And the sermon was brought to a complete stop just as effectively as if it had been wound up by a peroration.—[Cleveland Plain Dealer.

As the tip of the little tail disappeared over the wall the disappointed missionary ejaculated: "You won't be a Baptist! Then go and be a Presbyterian!"—[Chicago Record-Herald.

Why the Landscape Was Incomplete.

MR. KREEZUS, the millionaire, was entertaining a friend at his elegant country home. "I was born and brought up in this neighborhood," he said, "and when I was a boy I used to think what a fine thing it would be to have a house on this hill. It's the highest point of ground, you will notice, within a circuit of several miles, and the view from here is extensive."

"It is magnificent!" exclaimed the visitor.

"Yes, and when the time came that I could afford it I gratified my boyish ambition by buying the land around here and putting up this house.

"I have been in a great many places, and I have never seen a finer landscape."

"That's what I used to think, but I don't like it now as well as I did when I was a boy."

"What makes the difference?"

"It isn't complete."

"Not complete? Why, you own the landscape, don't you?"

"That's the trouble. I own all of it but that eighty-acre patch over there beyond the creek, about six miles away. The old curmudgeon that owns it won't sell it to me at any figure."

And Mr. Kreezus sighed dismally.—[Youth's Companion.

Getting at the Date.

THE Erie Railroad Company has been collecting data covering the years of service of all the older employés. Sam Marquis has been conductor on the Erie running between Niles and Lisbon, almost since there has been a railroad down that way. An official of the Erie went to him and asked him when he first went to work for the company. Oh, he said, he couldn't remember. It was a long time ago, and that was as definitely as he could say.

"But you must be able to tell approximately," insisted the official. "Isn't there some other date that you can associate it with?"

Sam still shook his head. "No use trying to remember," he said.

But the official was persistent. "There must have been some important event that happened about that time," he suggested. "Wasn't it the same year of the big wind or the close of the war or Grant's election or something?"

Sam thought a minute. "Oh!" he said, brightening up, "I'll tell you when it was. I went to work the day after Bill Larkin was married. I don't know how long ago it was, but that was when."

Bill proved to be an engineer on the road, and his marriage record was duly looked up.—[Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Why is a stick of candy like a horse?" he suddenly asked.

The joke was on the archbishop, and he graciously promised to send the candy as soon as he returned home.—[Philadelphia Record.

"WE had a county judge down my way a few years ago whose love for biblical lore was so pronounced that he couldn't resist the desire to air it on every possible occasion," said Congressman Henry D. "'Joshua, eh?' said the judge, as he rubbed his hands. 'Joshua, you say? Are you the same Joshua spoken of in holy writ—the Joshua who made the sun stand still?'

Edison's Don'ts.

MR. EDISON is also still busy with his new storage battery, which, he claims, will solve the traction question. This, too, has been scoffed at from the beginning; it is a long time since Mr. Edison began investigation in this direction, but when a successful portable method of storing electricity is developed, another industrial revolution will be accomplished.

This leads up to the point to which special attention is directed, says the Book-keeper. In his experiments with these batteries Mr. Edison has had men at work for years with a patience unparalleled. More than a half ton of reports on experiments with batteries have been made. Two of his best men had to give up the work because of its unending monotony to save themselves from nervous breakdown. The work was continued night and day for more than three years, and more than 9000 experiments were made without obtaining the results which Mr. Edison wanted. A visitor to whom this was told exclaimed:

"Then all those experiments were practically wasted."

"Not at all," said Mr. Edison. "I now know 9000 things not to do"—all of which indicates that it is as important to know what not to do as what to do.

Bishop's Don't Do So.

A FRIEND of the late Father Tabb said in Ellicott City:

"This fine poet and good man thought that class hatred was due to ignorance—that the rich knew too little of the poor, and vice versa.

"He once illustrated this ignorance with the story of a Methodist bishop's wife who addressed a meeting of slum housewives on their home duties. The address made the home life seem all very fine and ideal, but one housewife voiced the opinion of the rest, perhaps, when she said to her neighbors with a sniff:

"'She's all right as far as she goes; but what I'd like to ask her is this—what does she do when her old bishop comes home on pay night with his envelope empty and a fightin' jag on?'"

The House Beautiful—Its Flower Garden and Grounds.

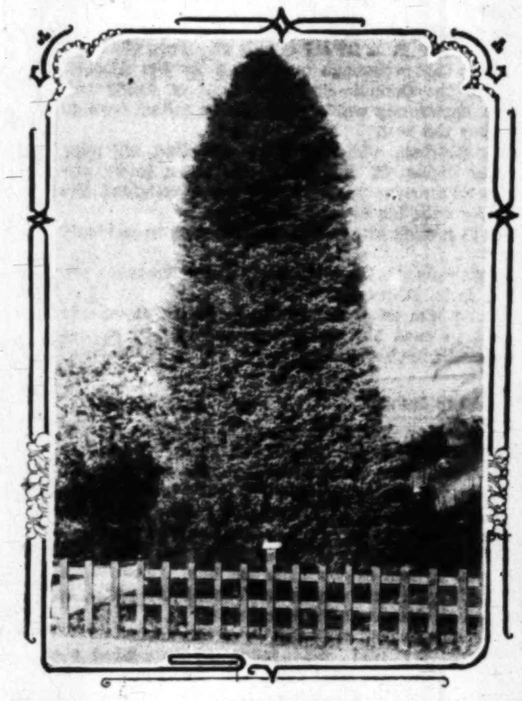
MOUNTAIN MAHOGANIES.

TREES AND SHRUBS BELONGING TO THE ROSE FAMILY.

By Ernest Braunton.

IN California we have many species of trees and shrubs belonging to the rose family or natural order Rosaceae. One section of the family (the cherries and plums) was described in this department a few weeks ago. Those herein described complete the list of rosaceous subjects indigenous to California that are entitled to be ranked as trees. To these might be added a long array of closely-allied shrubs, so that the rose family is very well represented in this State, and especially in the southern part.

California contains three species of trees popularly known as "Mountain Mahogany" and belonging to the genus Cercocarpus. One of these is an extremely rare tree, being confined (so far as our present knowledge extends) to a single cañon on the southern coast of Santa Catalina Island. This distinctive species was named for the discoverer, Mrs. Trask, a just and fitting honor, for no one has contributed so much to the scientific knowledge of Santa Catalina Island as "Blanche Trask," a name well known to all Pacific Coast students in several branches of science. This species is the most handsome in foliage of any, and occasionally attains to twenty-five feet in height, with a trunk diameter of eight or ten inches.



JAPAN CEDAR.

On the mainland are found two species of Cercocarpus that occasionally attain to as great height and girth as the Trask Mahogany, but differ greatly from it in foliage. Both have smaller and less handsome leaves, though in other respects quite similar. The Curl-leaf Mahogany (C. ledifolius) has narrow leaves with revolute or curled edges which are deceiving as to its true leaf surface. The other species (C. parvifolius) is generally called the "Birch-leaf Mahogany," and grows somewhat more shrubby than the two others noted. The popular name of Mountain Mahogany is derived from the reddish-brown or mahogany-colored wood, which is exceedingly hard, close-grained, and heavy.

The Japan Cedar.

PROPERLY speaking, we have but one species of Japan Cedar, known as Cryptomeria Japonica; the other, known to gardeners as C. elegans, being but a variety of the first named. It would appear to be only a horticultural variation, too, for none of it is found wild in Japan, and our best investigators have concluded that this elegant form was obtained by selection. Nevertheless, it is at least a hundred times as much in demand as the valid species, and endures all our warmer and drier sections much better than Cryptomeria Japonica.

Flower Beds.

FLOWER beds should properly be flower borders, for beds should never occur except about the sides of a garden unless said garden is laid out in formal style. Nature makes no "beds," but riots in "patches" of flowers, and we should aim to imitate her by having patches or zones of a single kind in each, but all intermingled to form a harmonious whole. Such plantations should look luxurious, and therefore seeds for them should be sown broadcast and the plants allowed to grow as thickly as possible without suffering by competition for light, air and food. Do not spoil lawns by cutting out beds in the grass and planting them to foliage plants or flowering plants; no one ever made a homelike place by pursuing such methods. Aim to get simplicity, dignity is its constant companion. Do not make patches of each kind too small so that the effect will be similar to that of a giant "crazy quilt;" have enough of each kind to make it look as though nature had "run loose in reckless abandon." Don't be trival in seeking garden effects.

Park gardeners still seem to think they must amuse the public by startling and bizarre effects in carpet bedding. It is a mistaken idea, and shows a lamentable lack of taste and resource, for an ingenious gardener needs no such aids to interest his employers. In home gardening we need no horticultural curiosities or museums, and should be content with the richness and luxuriance afforded by our wealth of garden plants, contributed by nearly every country under the sun. Have all beds or borders as informal as possible—a total lack of design. For subjects, use any flowers that you fancy, though inharmonious colors should be avoided. By keeping out magentas and avoiding two or more shades of pink close together, no doubt the general effect will prove satisfactory. One should not altogether aim at floral effects, for these latter are materially heightened by the occasional introduction of a larger foliage plant in a floral mass. A flower border such as herein described could be made most charming by the use of nothing but natives of California. We have a great array of both annual and perennial flowering herbaceous plants, and aside from their great beauty and fine garden effect, they should prove of additional interest by reason of being natives to our own State.

Tender Plants.

THE exceptionally severe frosts of a few weeks ago proved a good test of the hardiness of many popular garden plants. Cannas and callas are generally supposed to be as tender as any plants, to which might be added the common "Elephant's Ear," but even these were less tender in the writer's garden than some woody plants. The very first plants to succumb were dwarf lantanas a full year old and in vigorous health—frozen to death without even the root crown escaping. Several dwarf abutilons went the same way, and a three-year-old Bougainvillea lateritia. One supposedly tender vine, the Beaumontia grandiflora, while injured, proved hardier than many plants quite common in Los Angeles gardens.

Gladiolus from Seeds.

SOME time ago, in this department, we told of the great promise of gladioli seeds sown about July 1. A larger per cent. of these bloomed than has any earlier-sown lot in many years of experimentation. The tops and bulbs were matured by reason of the cold weather causing a suspension of functional activity. The bulbs have just been dug during the past week and some of them are as large as any mature bulbs in the market. This is remarkable when it is remembered that all this growth and development took place from July to November, just four months. From an extensive experience, it seems best to recommend the planting of bulbs as early as possible, those put in now will give the best results. Later plantings bring blossoms during hottest weather, which seems to prevent development. Seeds planted in June or early in July are started by our almost tropical heat, but cooler, more humid air is needed for plant development, and the plant and bulbs reach a vigorous state during the autumn months. Were it possible to rest bulbs sufficiently early, the best of flowers could be obtained along with the chrysanthemum crop in autumn. One other point of value seems absolutely sure, that no matter what the color or form of flower or foliage, the bulbs always resemble the seed parent. As an instance, America is an exceptional seed parent, and in all such crosses foliage and bulbs have resembled this parent, but when it was the pollen parent, in no single case out of forty-six crosses did the bulbs resemble those of America.

The Deadly Nightshade.

DURING the excitement attendant upon the introduction of the fake "Wonderberry" much was written about the "Deadly Nightshade," a plant native to Europe and Asia and not found here. It is not a true Solanum, but is known to botanists as Atropa belladonna. From the roots atropine is produced, a drug used since 1860 in ophthalmia for dilating the pupil of the eye, also for making a liniment used in neuralgia. The weeds of our gardens which belong to the genus Solanum are somewhat poisonous, and the writer had a daughter quite ill for a week or more, the illness being caused by her eating the green berries. No cases of fatality have been reported, and the berries appear to be non-poisonous when fully ripe. The "Deadly Nightshade" (atropa) differs from the genus Solanum in its blossoms as does Phacelia Whitlavia, our native "Canterbury Bells," from our other species of Phacelia. Solanums have nearly a flat or rotate corolla, with very little show of tube; Atropa has a tubular, campanulate, or bell-shaped blossom, quite easily distinguished from that of any Solanum.

The City Beautiful—Its Avenues, Streets, Parks and Lakes.

THE CALIFORNIA LAUREL.

USED BY ANCIENTS TO DECORATE BROWS OF HEROES.

A GENTLEMAN residing for many years in Oregon told the writer that many of the better-planted streets were aligned with Oregon myrtle, or, as we prefer to call it, California laurel. In some cases these streets have been named Laurel or Myrtle, a most happy and appropriate recognition of fitness. It has been stated by some that the tree does not thrive in the valleys, but this is decided untruthful, for the finest specimens the writer has seen were in gardens, and during several years as botanical collector he saw none so fine in their native cañons.

The family (Lauraceae) to which our tree belongs is an interesting one, containing such well-known trees as the Alligator Pear, the camphor tree, the sassafras, and the famous European Bay, which we see here clipped into grotesque and unnatural forms. The latter is very closely related to our subject, and is not far different in appearance or aroma. It is the laurel of the ancients, with which they were wont to decorate the brows of their returning triumphant warriors. Its leaves are much used in cooking, and are often found in canned olives and other pickled goods. The leaves of our own tree are much more pungent and therefore not so pleasant to the olfactory nerves, yet are fully as harmless to use. The tree is one of the most handsome native to the Pacific Coast, and should be much more extensively used in street and garden work. A Covina garden owner told the writer he considered the valley too hot for its best development, yet some very fine specimens may be found but a few miles away in Pomona. Neglected, the tree will, in common with many excellent sorts, look somewhat unhealthy, but if given a sufficient water supply during summer it thrives fully as well as the average ornamental tree of our gardens.

Cocos on Streets.

IN districts not too cold either from a weather or a financial standpoint, Cocos plumosa is the most popular of all subjects for street planting. No other plant for the purpose gives such a luxuriant, tropical effect. The sole deterrent to its universal planting lies in its high price, but by reason of its richness the sales are each year growing larger.

The Public Spirit.

NOT all one's time and means should be given to one's own premises; opportunities are many for caring for public property where the same represents a value to you that should be plain to see. In the district where the writer lives, several of us gave $5 each to save some oaks out in the street. One man, in front of whose place grew a very fine tree, gave $10, and would if necessary have given more in order to preserve it. We all benefit by the presence of these trees, and the value of real estate and the reputation of the neighborhood is benefited by the preservation of all such trees.

A case is known where a land company in putting a new tract upon the market, ran the sidewalk around a large tree. Inasmuch as they were ignorant of what a tree most needs (air,) they had the cement walk placed close about the tree. In grading the street to throw the lots a little about they had taken off the best one or two feet of soil. As if this was not sufficient to destroy any tree, they oiled the street. Any ordinarily intelligent individual should have known that the tree would die, and no doubt the agents suspected as much, but they were selling lots, and as a rule rank deception is part of the game. Of course the tree died, and in time some one cut it down for fuel. After some boys set fire to the stump and a great hole was burned in the earth. Comes now an enterprising, public-spirited citizen, one of those good souls who are of the veritable "salt of the earth." He caused a deep hole to be dug, the full size of the opening through the cement; good soil was placed therein and a young tree planted. He did not own the lot, nor any of the several on each side, but was actuated only by love of trees and of his home and neighborhood. Now for thhe sequel: The young tree grew apace, and a few years after the lot in front of whihc the tree grew was sold at several hundred dollars more than were asked for the adjoining lots. This bit of history leads us to ask a question not necessary to answer here: Do street trees have a value? Another question arises which is not difficult of solution: If they have a value so high as demonstrated by the above instanced sale, why do we not pass a reasonable street-tree ordinance and provide a sufficient city forestry department? If any considerable number of people demanded such legislation, it would be enacted.

A STREET OF COCOS PLUMOSA.

Corner Catch Basins.

IT has always been a puzzle to the writer why catch basins for storm water should be located at corners or street intersections. In order to have them effective it is necessary (or seems to be) to depress the street surface somewhat at these points. The consequence is that during storms the greatest amount and depth of water is just where traffic on foot is heaviest. In theory, at least, the two should be separated. The public should be safeguarded, convenienced and accommodated so far as possible, no matter what the cost or trouble. When it is remembered that tens of thousands are each rainy day inconvenienced at storm-drain corners, it would appear to be wisdom to have one or more smaller catch basins in the middle of the block to at least relieve the great rush of water at some of our prominent corners. The cost to the city should ever be a secondary consideration. We are here for the purpose of being made as comfortable as possible, cost not considered.

Defacement by Poster.

WHILE our city fathers are struggling with the billboard nuisance, it is hoped that some regulation will be made of the poster evil. There is not a single reason why posts, poles, fences, street trees and buildings should be defaced by posters; we repeat, not a single good reason, yet such vandalism is allowed. Were it forbidden, there are plenty of people who would gladly help to inforce the ordinances; many would also tear off the offending cards or posters did they know they were within the law in so doing. Never in the history of Los Angeles has the privilege been so abused as during our late municipal campaign when every pole had from one to six posters of political candidates. Rains and wind eventually scattered many of these all over the city, only adding thereby to the slovenly appearance of many districts. Such posting should be positively forbidden by ordinances sufficiently drastic to protect the appearance of our city.

Practical Poultry Culture in the Southwest.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF STANDARD-BRED POULTRY AND THE PEOPLE WHO GROW IT.

FANCY POULTRY BREEDING.

"ALICE HARPER," AN OCCASIONAL CONTRIBUTOR, GIVES SUGGESTIONS.

By Henry W. Kruckeberg.

NOTE.—Short articles of a practical nature are cordially solicited from breeders and fanciers, relating their experiences with poultry, giving their successes as well as failures. The writer will be glad, in so far as lies in his power, to answer inquiries of public interest bearing on any phase of an enlightened poultry culture, such as feeding and management, disease and its prevention, market conditions, fancy points, etc. The co-operation of utility breeders and fanciers is cordially solicited, to the end that the best thought and practice in an enlightened poultry culture may find a healthy expression in these columns.

"TOT homines, quot sententiae," as many men, so many opinions, we learned about in Latin classes years ago, but nobody fully realizes what it means in any language until he wants to start breeding poultry. Just let him ask the older breeders how he shall start and note-book the points given by each one and he will be able to conclude that any old start will pan out according to starters. Chief among the starters is the to be-breeder—himself. With the best of everything he will be able to fail and to realize self is a serious problem. To see that one's hands and feet put up a good service to a wisely-willed endeavor is not a small item, but a daily necessity, until one gets into the routine. To consider that things before him do not constitute all the working material at his command, that a hen is more than she seems to be, that the real might with which he proposes to experiment is but partially manifest, that fowls are a present product of many past endeavors, that heredity of parents is a huge dictator, never condescending to fellowship, yielding only to legal considerations—to consider all these things obliges one to conclude he is quite an outsider, and to get in he must study law and get obedient to observed laws.

In the first place, he must have some dry, sandy, sunny soil to build a hennery upon, and face houses south or west. One ideal plan in building may be recommended in the illustration. If one wishes to grow poultry on the back of his home lot, and the soil is adobe, he can dig down fourteen inches, remove the soil, and have the right kind hauled in to replace it. A plot of land 12x28 feet can be made anywhere. Poultry is successfully grown on adobe soil, but it is not ideal. Six-foot wire netting should go around each of the four pens, a fine mesh wire being at the bottom. The houses in the big pens should be 3x5 feet and 5 feet high at highest pitch of shed roof, with no floor, with door space and no door in end of the house, the size of the end. The nests should be against the back end of house, with a cover to let down in a slant over them at the night feeding, so the fowls cannot roost either in a nest or on the cover, this to be lifted and buttoned back against the house at the morning feeding. The perches, each three or four inches wide, should face the opening in front of the nests. No drapery is needed at the opening in this mild climate and ventilation is self-operative from the opening. The illustration shows two of these big pens with big houses. Between the big pens and to the right are two smaller pens each 5x12 feet with a small house about 2½x2½x4 feet, with one perch.

A small plot of alfalfa can be maintained in each pen by sowing seed and keeping a small wire run over the plot, made by stretching wire over a frame a foot and a half high, the proper area. When the plants are strong enough, say in six months, the wire can be lifted at noon and fowls allowed to pick the green off fresh. Covered at night, new green will soon come. A green feed of alfalfa once a week is a great luxury, and an old stand will give a bi-weekly feeding for several years. In case the ground is cold in winter, fowls will perch on the edge of the rim and sun. A small dish of grit should be placed in the back of each pen, and the drinking dish in an opposite corner. The feeding trays should be on either side of the wire net in the big and small pens, with a small door big enough to open and let a cock pass in and out between the pens. The door for the care-taker should be to the right of each pen.

Next come the birds: It is ideal not to think of money only to have a lot in one's pockets, when birds must be bought. Go to a breeder in one's locality, who has been breeding one breed a long time, or to a new breeder, who got his start from such stock. The old breeder will charge more for stock, but the new one has a reputation to make and will try to do well by a buyer. If the stock is line bred for six or seven years, or more, so much the better, but it is worth money. Buy of such stock for sale the best two old hens three or four years old and put in the left-hand pen, having closed the little door into the next pen. Then buy the finest cockerel possible to put in that next pen. Buy four-year-old hens as nearly perfect as money can buy and put in the next big pen. Lastly buy the best cock bird possible that is three, four, or even five years old—if a remarkable bird. The present condition of the cock bird has everything to do with the near future of the family. Rely upon the breeder to sell you his best sale birds for his own price. The breeder also has elegant birds of his own breeding to sell, is a just trader, is as anxious for his buyer to get money value as the buyer is, and doesn't sell birds as so many things. A successful breeder is always a lover of creatures and delights in creative possibility. To him the passage of money in the chicken yard where birds are going is not a nice jingle.

Put the cock bird, or sire, in the narrow pen to the right, having closed the little doors into the next pen. Let the breeding pens stay quiet a week. The male birds are separated, and cannot fight through the wire net. The cockerel eats near the old hens and gets gallant calling. He can cross his narrow pen and flirt with his young kin through the wire, and if the breed is a high-flying one, the tops of the pens must be covered with wire net, or the young things will cross over. The sire eats next to the young hens and calls vigorously to them to come over, and having the cockerel on the other side of them calling, jabs him with jealousy. After they all seem happy and busy a week, put up the little doors and let the cockerel to the old hens, and the sire to the young hens. If the males meet on opposite sides of a wire net and insist upon revenge for indignities of a past week, take small long nails and pin sacking along the wire rim so they don't see each other.

Mating the sire to the four-year-old hens is expected to bring the smartest of chicks, especially the female, while breeding old hens to a cockerel, or stag cock, often begets the finest males. Then the cockerel is a safe guard to the sire, who may meet with some accident. The old hens are fine mothers, of broody breeds, and these old birds will bring up chicks from the young hens, and brood two or three times in a year. It has been the experience of many breeders that year-old males from old hens make the best sires, bred to year-old hens from the cock-bird, selecting always the best specimens according to the standard of perfection. It is always interesting to watch the individual influence of a parent upon offspring, and in scientific breeding of the first importance. The first year a novice may think he does not care to breed scientifically, but the next year he may find he would like to do so; hence it is wise the first year to band the hen's leg and register her number in a little book.

In the breeding season, one should watch the nests, or get somebody to do so, or trap-nest the hens and watch them to let them out after an egg is laid, and mark each egg with the number on the leg-band of each hen. In the book credit the hen by her number with each egg laid. The record book of the first year is the key to future successes, if one can profit from the records. Every chick which hatches can be attributed to individual parentage, and it is not possible to predict truthfully that certain individuals of marked excellency to look upon, will throw excellent chicks. The more one knows of gameto-genesis the less confident he is of results. Anybody who confidentially assures one that such and such a bird will be sure to throw such and such chicks, is quite innocent of facts. If birds which have cost much money do not throw birds which will bring much money, it is not necessarily the fault of the breeder who sold them. Bred to a different individual of the same strain in the same colony, the moneyed birds will show up.

Gardening in California—Flower and Vegetable.

Semele Androgyna.

WE met with a specimen of this remarkable plant at the City Nurseries of Redlands, Cal. The foliage, which is not foliage in the sense that the word is generally understood and applied to the leaves of plants—is light green in color, leathery in texture with parallel veins, ovate lanceolate in shape, with very short twisted petioles, set alternately on the branches. When mature they are about as durable as holly leaves, and we believe that for decorative purposes would be more desirable, because more enduring than smilax. It is the first plant we have met with and we believe so little known to gardeners that we copy from Bailey his description of the plant, which we believe commercial florists could grow with profit in Southern California.

Semele Androgyna—Semele (mother of Bacchus) Liliaceæ—the Climbing Butcher's Broom—is a tender evergreen vine which attains a height of 50 to 60 feet and is remarkable for bearing its flowers on the margins of the leaves instead of on separate flower stalks—(The same is true of the asparagus plumosa—Ed.) These flowers are small yellow, six-lobed blossoms about three-eighths of an inch across. What appear to be leaves are technically Cladophylla, i. e., leaf-like branches and are readily mistaken for compound foliage.

They are organs which have the form and function of leaves, but not the morphology. Semele belongs to the small group of four genera known as the asparagus tribe, all the members of which have Cladophylla.—[Pacific Garden.

Fraudulent Seed Case.

A CELEBRATED seed case has been settled by the New York Court of Appeals. In 1904 a New York farmer bought five bushels of alfalfa seed from a Rochester seed company. The manager of the seed company pronounced this seed "the best you can get." This seed was put in the ground for alfalfa, but the crop showed a mixture of yellow trefoil and dodder. The seedsmen refused to pay damages, and the farmer sued them to recover $822. This was classed as follows: Seven hundred dollars for loss of a year's crop of alfalfa, $80 for cost of fitting ten acres and $42 for clean seed. The seedsmen defended their case by claiming that they did not guarantee the seed, and hence were not responsible. The jury in the county court gave a verdict for the farmer. The case was carried to the State Supreme Court and to the Court of Appeals—both confirming the lower court. This case has interested many New York farmers, and will influence many seed purchasers hereafter. No farmer can expect to get damages in court that will compensate him for stocking his farm with bad seeds. His best plan is to have a fair sample of his seed tested by the Experiment Station or at Washington. If weed seeds are found in it, reject the stuff at once.—[Rural New Yorker.

Strawberry Culture.

THE small fruits, comprising the strawberry, raspberry, blackberry, currant and gooseberry, play a very important part in the economy of the household, inasmuch as they come at a time when there is a scarcity of other fruits and oftentimes of vegetables as well. It is very important that every farmer especially, should set apart a plat of ground sufficiently large to be capable of producing all the small fruits that the family can possibly consume during the year. The size of the plat will depend somewhat upon the size of the family.

There is probably no fruit grown that will adapt itself to such a diversity of soils and conditions as the strawberry. For that reason it can be grown by practically every one, in nearly every portion of the United States, who has a few square rods of good soil which can be devoted to that purpose.

The soil for strawberries should be a deep rich loam, capable of holding much moisture. Whether it be clay or sand, it should be made deep and rich by the application of a heavy dressing of manure, well rotted if possible, and plowed under to a depth of eight or ten inches.

If the soil is a heavy clay with a hard tenacious subsoil, nothing will give better returns for the money invested than to go over the entire plat with a sub-soil plow, following the breaking plow, thus loosening up the subsoil to a depth of fifteen inches. This plow will furnish a reservoir for the surplus water in the spring which may be drawn on by the plants during a time of drouth which often comes when the fruit is beginning to ripen and just when an abundance of water is absolutely necessary in order to enable the fruit to develop properly and the plant to attain a good, vigorous growth. If the subsoil is of a sandy or gravelly nature, the subsoiling will not be necessary; in fact, on such land the crop is often cut short because of the looseness of the subsoil which allows the surplus water to pass down out of reach of the plant roots.

This is one of the most important points to keep in mind. No plant should be transplanted that is more than one year old. A plant that has borne fruit should never be used in a new bed. Select plants of the previous year's growth for transplanting, if set in the spring. Such plants may be told by the bright yellow color of the roots.

It must also be borne in mind, that some of our varieties have perfect blossoms and some of them imperfect. In other words, some are capable of fertilizing their own pistils while others must depend upon other varieties for their pollen. In almost all small fruit catalogues, the perfect and imperfect varieties are designated by an S or P, indicating that the variety is staminate or perfect, or pistillate or imperfect. In planting, some of both kinds should be used so as to insure a good stand of fruit.

For general culture, the rows should be three and one-half feet apart and the plants set eighteen inches apart in the row. That will give plenty of room for a horse and cultivator, and the rows should always be perfectly straight and long enough to allow of horse cultivation. This will save much time and labor in keeping them free from weeds.

Some will prefer one method and some the other. The matted row system will appeal to the busy man or the lazy man, as less labor is required in keeping the plants thinned. In hill culture, the plants are not allowed to run at will, but are kept in hills of four or five plants each, all other runners are cut off and treated as weeds. If large fine berries are wanted the hill or half-matted row system is preferred, but if a large quantity of medium-sized berries will answer the purpose, and for family use they are just as good, then the matted-row system may be used.—[California Cultivator.

Farming in California—The Land and Its Products.

CONDUCTED BY J. W. JEFFREY, STATE COMMISSIONER OF HORTICULTURE.

FIELD NOTES.

Another Land Lease.

I HAVE a letter from one of the employés of this journal for advice upon the uses to which he might put a piece of land upôn which he had lately filed. Eighty-five times out of a hundred it would be safe to advise him to forget it as a New Year's gift to himself. I have had some knowledge as to what a job on The Times is worth, even if I do have to work far over time a few nights every month to hold it, and I have had opportunities of investigating the average land in the State now subject to filing. Ordinarily, I would say put the money made on salary in good city, or in good farm property if the funds are sufficient, and not invest in lands so far away that no one else thought worth while to file on it all these years. If no opportunities of this character offer there are several good savings banks not far from the corner of First and Broadway.

But for fear my correspondent may have found a bargain subject to entry, and if he thinks after a few weeks of cogitation that apples will grow there and that he can afford to pump water from 150 feet below the surface to grow them at 75 cents a box, hauling added, I would advise another thorough investigation of all the conditions, and then if the proposition looks more roseate than at first glance, ask some good, conservative friend to go back to the land with him and pay the friend $10 to advise him again to forget it. As this advice is gratuitous, yet none the less honest and timely, I will explain the above involved admonition by stating that few men qualified for, and accustomed to a business or professional career should attempt farming in California, unless with plenty of spare money for the venture. There are exceptions, of course, and this may be one of the fifteen out of the hundred. Conservatism is the best policy, and it is especially valuable when a man gets land hungry, as hunger for isolated land often leads to fatal results. With the best New Year's wishes for the prosperity of all who are industrious and frugal, and in helping to make these wishes good, I would admonish all investors to take diligent care of their earnings and not invest in distant lands until convinced and convicted that it will pay.

Bogus Land Sales.

MANY people were very indignant at the land sharks who recently sold lands supposed to be located upon a rock, some miles out from the Golden Gate. It was a downright swindle, but not as bad as some of the sales of real land made in the inland valleys of the State. If one is to be swindled, it is better to have done with it and not have to endure a lingering loss as is the case in some instances where the promoters are selling land planted to orchards and vineyards altogether unsuited to the production of fruits. Imagine yourself a tenderfoot, or a verdant "store clerk," or a stenographer inveigled into buying a vineyard on soil only deep enough to sprout peas. You would no doubt hang on to the forlorn hope of growing crops for years and finally fail—suffer a lingering loss and then have to give up the struggle and perhaps the alleged land also, for which you should "return thanks."

I have few worries worse than the appeals from correspondents and visitors upon the value and availability of lands for growing fruits. It is difficult to refrain from plain speech, but there is always an element of fear that adverse advice may do wrong to the promoter. Only a few days ago I had a letter from a Los Angeles woman who said she had just bought ten acres in Florida and wanted to know if my strictures in a late magazine were directed against the firm from which she had purchased her land. Again I was reprimanded for for stating that a certain orange district in the north would not prove a profitable location, because the trees would not bear good crops of fruit. I had made the statement only, that the majority of the growers did not know how to make their trees bear good crops, but that the climate, and the soil if properly worked were ideal for the production of citrus fruits. After all, one should not buy land on any one's advice, but he should take plenty of time to investigate for himself. A man who is not wise enough to decide upon the advisability of a purchase himself, after full investigation, is not wise enough to make a success of fine fruit growing, and it is not worth while to grow any other than fine fruits. I was asked a few weeks ago by a school miss what she should do to the man who four years ago sold her a ten-acre vineyard of wine grapes, telling her that she could make so much money in three years that she could quit teaching. It is the pain of protracted failure that destroys all hope.

Turkey Shrinkage.

ONE of my correspondents engaged in turkey raising complains in a letter before me that he did not realize promised prices upon his birds in the holiday trade. Nor did his turkeys "tote" up to his expectations in weight. I am not up in the manipulations of the fowl trade, but one can see from the mere statement of the case that no one but the commission merchant who sold the birds knows the particulars of the case, and if that individual chose to grade down the quality of the turkeys or to return under weights what evidence to that effect could be adduced by the rancher who made the shipment? It is the same old story of turning one's property over to another who may or may not have rendered an honest account It is easy to get into the produce commission business and does not cost much to get out, and while there are hundreds of honest men engaged in selling farm produce upon commission, the very nature of the business has for many years induced many dishonest men to follow it.

I know nothing about the standing of the firm involved, and nothing of the farmer's standing, either. But it is a safe guess that the latter did not know how much his flock should weigh when offered for sale, and that he knew nothing at all about the standing and business methods of his sales firm. So I repeat the well-known admonition: "Take your medicine" till you get enough sense to know that the occupation of turkey raising is not the same as the business of turkey raising. As long as the farmer is content to do all the work, take all the risk and then get only about 35 per cent. of the consumer's price, he ought to accept the results without complaining against the men who have found out how to handle the business end of it for him.

Orange-Packing School.

A CALL meeting of all sub-exchange and association managers met in the board room, Tampa, Wednesday, December 22. It was well attended and over 100 were present.

Samples of citrus fruit (car run) had been ordered sent in and forty-two boxes were in position. Prof. Tenny of the United States Agricultural Department, orange expert; W. C. Hewitt, Florida exchange inspector; Mr. Conners and Assistant Manager Burton were sèlected as the committee to decide. Appearance of crate, marking, packing, grading, sizing, wrapping, cut of stems and decay were the points to be marked. Box after box was opened and judged. The revelations exposed were astonishing. There was only one perfect box, and even in that it might have been better. What opened our eyes were the facts before us, and many of the best packing-houses in the State fell down. It seemed as if the older houses were not complying with the directions sent out, either in grading, sizing or bulge pack. W. S. Hunt was the notable exception in that respect. This kindergarten has and will have very, very good results. It has taken the idea out of us that we, as separate packing-houses, were shown by actual sight, how our pack opens up in the markets. Grading and sizing seem bad. If a box is marked bright, 176, it should show nothing but bright, and in size the actual one. After the meeting it was the general expression among the managers that, never mind how badly they as individuals had been hit, they were glad to have the test, and that they fully realized faults that they had overlooked.—[Florida Fruit and Produce News.

Home of the Apricot.

ALMOST every country has its favorite or national fruit, America no doubt being partial to many kinds of fruit on account of the intermingling of so many nationalities. Many claim the apple as our most popular fruit, as is the orange of Italy, the banana of the tropics, and the pear of France. We often hear the apricot spoken of as of Persian origin, but it may be of Tibetan. The Lower Nubra Valley in Little Thibet produces the apricot abundantly. The fruit, either dried or fresh, stewed in honey, is the most prized of all dishes in Central Asia, and the oil from the pits is used in the native religious ceremony. In Thibet when a traveler is given apricots to eat, the natives feel complimented to receive back the pits, both for planting and for use before their gods.

A traveler writes from this unknown land and its apricots as follows: "The Lower Nubra Valley is wilder and narrower than the Upper, its apricot orchards more numerous and its wolf-haunted tamarisk thickets more dense. Its villages are always close to ravines, the mouths of which are filled with chod-tens (roadside temples,) manis, prayer wheels and religious buildings. Access to them is usually up the stony beds of streams overarched by apricots. The camping grounds are apricot orchards. The apricot foliage is rich, and the fruit small but delicious. The largest tree I saw measured nine feet six inches in girth six feet from the ground. Strangers are welcome to eat as much of the fruit as they please, provided they return the stones to the proprietor. It is true that Nubra exports dried apricots, and the women were splitting and drying the fruit on every house roof, but the special raison d'etre of the tree is the clear, white, fragrant and highly illuminating oil made from the kernels by the simple process of crushing them between two stones.

"In every gonpo temple a silver bowl holding from four to six gallons is replenished annually with this almond-scented oil for the ever-burning light before the shrine of Buddha It is used for lamps, and very largely in cooking. Children, instead of being washed, are rubbed daily with this oil, and on being weaned at the age of 4 or 5, are fed for some time, or rather crammed, with balls of barley meal made into a paste with it."

The above account is authentic, and shows that the apricot grows under conditions there that would kill our apricot trees. The lowest elevations of this valley are as high as "Old Baldy," and yet trees of this fruit grow to a diameter of over three feet. But few travelers have ever penetrated the fastnesses of lesser Thibet largely because of the unspeakable hardships met in getting through the passes the lowest of which the altitude of our highest mountains. Previo the late expedition made through these mountai Col. Younghusband during the war between Japan Russia, no civilized man had ever reached Lhasa seat of the Great Lama.

Cost of Living and Diet.

THE Department of Agriculture has started an investigation of the ever-increasing cost of living in this country. This is certainly the most important question before the people of America today. The high cost of living bears especially hard upon those in receipt of small fixed incomes. Prof. E. R. A. Seligman of Columbia University recently said:

"The situation is really so serious that the government should awaken to it. As a partial remedy, the nation's leaders are called upon to devise some better method of money circulation. The constant increase in the supply of gold in the world is making its purchasing power less. It takes more gold to buy the same commodity, and so everywhere prices are rising.

"There are other contributory causes. The rise in the cost of meat is, for instance, caused by the increase of irrigation and agricultural development in the West. It has become more profitable to raise crops than to devote land to cattle, so the owners of land are giving up ranging. Naturally with the supply cut down, the price of beef goes up.

"I do not place the onus of the increased cost of living on trusts and tariff."

A conference of all commercial bodies of New York State is to be held in Syracuse in March to ascertain, if possible, the causes of the high prices of food products. Congress recently had to make an additional appropriation for army rations, the usual allowance being insufficient to meet the advance in prices.

A movement among the people to stop using meat for thirty or sixty days is rapidly spreading all over the country. In the Pittsburgh district it is estimated that a million and a half people have ceased the use of flesh foods for sixty days, or longer if necessary. A resolution was introduced in the Ohio Legislature calling upon the people of the State to abstain from meat for the next sixty days. In St. Louis, all employés of the sub-treasury have pledged themselves to abstain from meat. This is a practical method of reducing the cost of meat, or any other food product.

By the way, at a meeting of the Colorado Retail Merchants Association at Fort Collins, Col., on January 17, T. M. Sullivan of Chicago, president of the National Association of Retail Grocers, stated that mutton in Los Angeles is 8 cents a pound higher than in Chicago. This seems to be a wide margin of difference.

As far as the price of meat is concerned, that question will not trouble the vegetarian or fruitarian, and as land becomes more valuable, their ranks will have to increase. Even the consumption of grain will in course of time have to decline in favor of such crops as fruit, nuts, and potatoes, which yield vastly more food to the acre than grain.

One effect of this movement will doubtless be that many people, finding the omission of flesh food from their dietary benefits not only their pockets, but their health, may give it up permanently, or, at least, eat much less of it, which they might do with great benefit—that is to say, provided they adopt a rational dietary, for as frequently stated here, the mere dropping of meat from the menu may be a step backward instead of forward, if you fill yourself up with a lot of starches, sweets and slops, as so many vegetarians do.

There is no other country in the world where a large proportion of the people eat flesh food twice a day, and there is no country in the world where dyspepsia and other diseases due to errors in diet are so prevalent as in the United States. A majority of the people of the world never eat flesh food, and not 2 per cent. of the inhabitants of the world eat meat more than once a day. Also, be it remarked that those who consume the least meat do the hardest work of the world—work calling for the most endurance. It is true that flesh food will give you a passing ferocious power—as will whisky—but that strength will not endure. On the other hand, it not only loads your system with too much proteid, but it poisons your blood with the urate deposits in the blood of the animal eaten even when that animal is healthy—and a large proportion of animals slain for human food are not entirely healthy, some being very badly diseased.

Recent exhaustive investigations, conducted at Yale University and elsewhere, have shown conclusively that we need very much less proteid than has hitherto been considered necessary—not more than from one-third to one-half the general ration. It is the proteid substances in food that do the most harm to man. They are the "heavy villains" in the dietetic play. An excess of carbohydrates will lead to dyspepsia and gastric derangements, but an excess of proteid foods leads to graver troubles, such as cancer, which is becoming so alarmingly prevalent in this country. Over 60,000 people died of cancer in America alone last year. These deaths were chiefly due to the consumption of more proteid food than the system can assimilate. Surely this alone should be a strong argument in favor of giving up, or decreasing the consumption of flesh foods.

When it comes to a question of substitutes for flesh food, we find that the chief proteid foods are—semi-animal products; milk, cheese, eggs. Vegetable products, the pulse family—peas, beans and lentils—to which may be added peanuts, and true nuts—almonds, pecans, walnuts, Brazil nuts, filberts, pinones, etc. The chestnut contains a large proportion of starch, taking the place of bread. Sufficient proteid is found in whole-meal bread, but cereals should not form too large a part of the dietary, as they contain too much of the phosphates. Nuts, when fresh and sweet, are an exceedingly important article of food, forming with fruit a perfect nourishment. Where the teeth are not good the nuts should be ground.

If you do not care to give up the use of meat altogether, at least reduce considerably the amount you consume, and in a few months you will notice how your health improves—that is, as above stated, if you otherwise adopt a rational dietary. Above all, be sure to see that you get with each meal a little raw green stuff—either leaves, stalks or roots—lettuce, water cress, radishes, celery, etc.—or fresh fruit.

This prevailing high price of flesh foods may prove to be a blessing in disguise. Meat will never be cheap again in this country. You cannot afford to raise cattle on land that will yield a large revenue through intensive horticulture.

Religion and Hygiene.

SOME of our good Christian Science friends seem to think that the Care of the Body should not venture to comment upon Christian Science, because it is a religion.

With the religious end of Christian Science—or of any other religion—the Care of the Body has nothing to do. Every man's religious belief should be respected, so long as it does not interfere with the rights of others. Christian Science differs from other religions in that it involves a system of healing. Indeed, this is with most people the main attraction of Christian Science. As such it therefore comes strictly within the province of a department devoted to the care of the body.

A few days ago, in the State of Washington, a family of "Holy Rollers," consisting of father and mother and several children, stripped themselves naked and went up on the roof, on a freezing day, to wait for a "golden chariot," which one of their prophets had told them was to appear. One of the children died from the exposure, and when the parents were arrested they fought savagely with the officers whom they called "emissaries of Satan."

There have been in the world thousands, and are today hundreds of religious sects which practice methods injurious to the health, and sometimes dangerous to society. These people sincerely believe that they are pleasing their God, but it is absurd to claim that such practices shall not be criticised because they are called "religious." So long as "religion" is confined to the salvation of the supposititious soul, it is innocuous, but when it begins to deal with the care of the actual body it is a legitimate subject of criticism, like any other human activities.

The editor of the Care of the Body has frequently commented on the good points of the Christian Science method of treating the sick, namely, cheerfulness, hopefulness, good suggestions, the avoidance of drugs and unnecessary operations. On the other hand, he has severely criticised—and experts in the future further to criticise—the unreasonable and dangerous neglect of Christian Scientists to adopt simple, rational methods of aiding nature to restore normal conditions. This is specially true when it is a case of treating the young. If grown people desire to commit suicide, that is their affair, but they have no right to cause suffering or death to children who are not old enough to reason for themselves.

Only recently a strong, healthy child, 7 years of age, died in Los Angeles under Christian Science treatment. All that ailed her was a severe case of constipation, which might easily have been relieved by simple, natural methods. Even the ibis of the Nile knows enough, when suffering from constipation, to dilate its rectum with its bill, and the Arizona Indians aid nature in this manner, when their children are constipated. An injection of warm water with or without soap or oil, will bring immediate relief. This child was killed by neglect. People who thus permit children to die while they sit idly by thinking vain thoughts should be severely punished. Such fatalities as that referred to, which are of common occurrence, outweigh the benefit done to many Chrstian Scientists by suggestion and the avoidance of drugs.

Hold on to Your Appendix.

IF an Omaha woman should win her suit it may tend to make enterprising surgeons a little more careful before they proceed to remove a woman's internal "organs" without her consent. This woman has brought suit for $25,000 damages against one of the leading surgeons of Omaha. She went to him for treatment for varicose veins, and after an examination he told her she had—guess once—appendicitis, of course. She did not believe it, and so told the doctor. After coming from under the influence of anesthetics she discovered that not only a part of a vein in her leg had been removed, but also her appendix.

You surely have to hold on tight to your appendix

OXYPATHY

AGAIN PROVES VICTORIOUS

On November 21st, an article appeared in this magazine referring to the large amounts of money about to be expended by the medical profession "in more or less useless efforts to stamp out the PELLAGRA."

With that article we entirely agree. No drug has ever been discovered that can cope with this terrible disease. From a medical standpoint, it is INCURABLE.

Last month the OXYGENATOR accomplished what all the doctors in the SOUTH had wrestled with in vain, and had given it up as HOPELESS. It is just another proof of what we have already told you, "The Oxygenator, is destined to sweep the practice of medicine into the relics of the PAST."

Read the following, all from one little town:

PELLAGRA.

JOHNSTON, S. C., Dec. 15, 1909.

The Oxygenator Co.

Gentlemen:—My wife was taken sick five years ago. For upwards of four years the doctors attending her could not say what her trouble was. In the spring of this year, three of our best physicians pronounced her case genuine PELLAGRA, and in July said she was beyond cure—their verdict was—insanity and death.

I had absolutely lost all hope, but on the 28th of September procured an Oxygenator, although her condition seemed to me hopeless; her blood had now turned to water, and her flesh was cold as it could be in death.

She has now good rich blood in her veins, her skin is as soft and silky as a bady's, where before it was coarse and rough as a nutmeg grater. She is now of a good, healthy color. Her mind is clear and bright. Her sight is good. She was almost blind when the treatment was first applied. It was hard for her to stand alone; now she can walk half a mile daily with little fatigue. She has gained fifteen pounds in the last thirty days. Her recovery is the talk of the whole community, and I consider her cure is ABSOLUTE.

With the Oxygenator, I have corrected croup and fever of 103 in my children in from 15 to 30 minutes. I can never thank you enough for bringing the OXYGENATOR to my notice, and would not be without onee for many times its price.

Yours very truly,
J. H. CRIM.

PARALYSIS.

JOHNSTON, S. C., Dec. 15, 1909.

The Oxygenator Co.

Gentlemen:—For many years I have had paralysis, followed by a complication of diseases, including paresis, prostate gland, loss of locomotion, and speech, and memory. On the 15th of October last I purchased an Oxygenator, and I now look back on its action as simply wonderful. I can compare it to nothing but a good rat terrier thrown into a pit of rats. It got the worst one and shook the life out of it, coming down the line, taking the most vicious next, and throwing them out one by one, until now I feel like a new man. I can walk and talk better than for years, so much so that I have recently challenged my former doctors to a foot race.

I am 68 years of age, and contemplate returning to business the first of the new year. I have taken no medicine since I began the use of your instrument, which I would not care to part with at ANY PRICE.

Yours very truly,
W. P. CASSELS.

ULCERATED STOMACH.

JOHNSTOWN, S. C., Dec. 15, 1909.

The Oxygenator Co.

Gentlemen:—For years I had been a constant sufferer from chronic constipation, liver trouble, and chronic appendicitis. This last summer my blood became very bad. I had ulcerated stomach; many boils and carbuncles; was using vast quantities of medicine and ointments, but got no relief.

My attention was called to the Oxygenator through what it was doing for Mrs. J. H. Crim, a case of PELLAGRA; so I determined to secure one of these instruments. This was five weeks ago. The first night my temperature was 104, but in less than an hour's treatment, it was down to normal.

It has absolutely cured my constipation, appendicitis, indigestion. No more boils or other eruptions, and I can eat almost anything with no ill effects. I consider the ulcerated condition of my stomach as entirely cured. I have not taken a single dose of medicine since starting to use the OXYGENATOR, and would not part with mine for any sum of money.

Yours very truly,
JAS. P. ROGERS.

NOTE.—Exhaustive investigations have been made in ITALY and by the United States Government, to find a cure for PELLAGRA, but so far in vain. Andrew Carnegie has now offered $1,000,000 for the cure of this terrible and deadly disease. November McClure's Magazine contains a 14-page article upon it.

Week after week we keep telling you in this column what the OXYGENATOR will do. IS there anyone in LOS ANGELES whose trouble is harder to cure than any of the three cases quoted above?

Each of those testimonials is attested by the local Notary Public. They are by this time known all over the South, where Mr. Crim is a well known planter, and they have caused tremendous excitement as this is the first case of PELLAGRA that HAS EVER BEEN CURED.

We do not publish Los Angeles testimonials in this column, but come up to our office and we will refer you to people right here in your midst, who can tell as wonderful things that OXYGENATOR has done for them, and we will convince you that ALL WE SAY IS TRUE.

The OXYGENATOR is sold on easy terms, and will save its cost many times over. Let us prove this to YOU.

Apples and Husbands.

THE following dispatch from Yreka, Cal., was recently published in The Times:

"Mrs. M. K. Thomas died at the family home near this city yesterday while eating an apple and conversing with her husband. She was a prominent pioneer woman of Siskiyou county, and is survived by her husband and two sons.

Perhaps this may scare some people about eating apples. Possibly, however, it was the conversation with the husband that killed the woman—or she might have died "anyhow."

Don't be afraid of apples. They are a most wholesome fruit. They should be thoroughly masticated, and never eaten on top of a full meal, but as an important part of a meal, or alone.

Drugs and Disease.

THE NATIONAL DRUGGIST, in its January number, published a description of 127 new remedies reported for the year 1909, most of them having crackjaw names.

Meantime, new diseases continue to keep pace with new drugs, and some of the old-fashioned diseases, such as cancer and consumption are increasing in prevalence.

Cause and effect.

Intestinal Irrigation.

"THE ROYAL ROAD TO HEALTH" is the title of a book of 224 pages, by Charles Tyrrell, M. D., president of Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, New York, and editor of that excellent magazine "Health." (Published by Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 321 Fifth avenue, New York.) This, the forty-sixth, edition recently issued, has been completely revised, and much of it rewritten.

The author gives good advice in regard to drugging, the true cause of disease, rational hygienic treatment, exercise, diet, etc. Dr. Tyrrell admits that he has not been a very close student of diet. He also endorses that time-honored heresy, a "mixed diet." As frequently stated here, a mixed diet is the most illogical of all diets. The only animal besides man that is omnivorous is the hog, and then only after he has been "civilized." Also, the hog and the man are more subject to disease than any other living creatures. The amount of proteid recommended is also much larger than has been shown to be sufficient by careful experiments conducted during the past few years.

Dr. Tyrrell is a great advocate of the enema for the purpose of cleansing the colon. This is in line with recent teachings of Prof. Metchnikoff, who claims that old age comes mainly from bacteria in the colon, caused by decomposing food, especially flesh food. Metchnikoff advanced the absurd idea of cutting out the colon, or failing that, the use of a certain variety of sour milk used in Bulgaria, which it is claimed, contains a germ that does not die in the stomach, but reaches the colon and cleanses it. As previously stated here, it would be more sensible to avoid foods that cause this filthy condition of the colon.

An occasional washing of the colon is undoubtedly a good thing, but it should not be made a regular and frequent practice. Some have gone to absurd extremes in this direction, advocating an enema after each meal. Dr. Tyrrell is not one of these extremists. He gives the following interesting suggestion as to the origin of the enema, which, he says, comes to us from the ancient Egyptians, who acquired their knowledge from observing a bird called the ibis, a species of Egyptian snipe. He writes:

"The food of this bird, gathered on the banks of the Nile, was of a very constipating character, and the bird was observed by the earliest naturalists to suck up the water of the river and, using its long bill for a syringe, inject it into its anus, thus relieving itself. Pliny says this habit of the ibis first suggested the use of clysters to the ancient Egyptian doctors, known to be the first medical practitioners of any nation, not excepting the Chinese."

Dr. Tyrrell condemns the use of the long, flexible tube advocated by some, and gives reasons for his objections. He has invented a new method of intestinal irrigation, the patient sitting on a rubber bag from which water is injected by the weight of the patient.

The author gives some interesting facts showing the horribly filthy condition of the colon in many persons who little suspect the truth. Some persons may for many years have regular actions of the bowel, while the colon is incrusted with hardened fecal matter on the sides. This undoubtedly is often the cause of premature old age and death. Dr. Tyrrell declares that of 284 cases of autopsy held of late on the colon, only twenty-eight were found to be free from hardened adhered matter and in their normal healthy state.

A Real Gold Cure.

ABOUT this time of year California oranges begin to be at their best, although they will continue to increase in sweetness for several weeks.

The citric acid of the orange is a valuable medicine. Try an "orange fast" for a few days or weeks, eating nothing but ripe oranges. Better wait with this until late in February. It will prepare you for the warm weather of spring. Eat at your usual mealtimes, and eat sufficient to satisfy yourself, rejecting the white pith.

Perhaps you will say you "cannot eat oranges." That shows that you need them very badly. Quite likely the first oranges of the season you eat will produce diarrhoea. That is a natural effect of this natural medicine, and should not be checked. The citric acid coming upon a stomach that has been overloaded for months with food deficient in the organic salts is naturally aroused when the first citrus fruit of the season is consumed.

As a means of breaking off the drink habit, the orange is the real gold cure—infinitely superior to the so-called gold cure, which consists largely in soaking a person with alcohol. Cures made in such manner are seldom permanent.

"Ethical" Advertising.

FOLLOWING is from the National Druggist:

"By the way," said the gentlemanly-looking person in the black broadcloth suit, "if you mention my name in connection with the accident, you may say that 'Dr. Swankem was called and the fractured arm was suitably bandaged,' or something to that effect. Please spell the name correctly. Here's my card."

"Thanks," said the reporter, looking at the card. "You are next door to Dr. Rybold, I believe. Are you acquainted with him?"

"No, sir," replied Dr. Swankem, stiffly. "We do not recognize Dr. Rybold as a member of the profession. He advertises."

"Breakfast Foods."

WE have heard of all kinds of queer materials being used in the manufacture of so-called "breakfast foods." The latest report of this kind comes from Chicago, where an investigation has been called for to ascertain whether peanut shells constitute the basic element in the manufacture of breakfast foods. It is said that in a recent freight-train wreck it was found that several cars consigned to breakfast-food concerns were loaded with peanut shells from the peanut-butter factories in the South.

It is not probable that this material is extensively used, if it is used at all. It is true that grain is high in price just now—but so are "breakfast foods."

Saccharine.

A CORRESPONDENT writes:

"I have discontinued the use of sugar owing chiefly to the reading of your articles in condemnation of it, but have been taking saccharine in small quantities—about one grain per day—in place of it. I should much like to see your opinion of this substitute."

Saccharine is one of the numerous tar preparations that have been introduced by the medical fraternity from Germany during the past few years. They are all more or less dangerous, some of them exceedingly so. Deaths from "headache powders" are quite frequent. Some of the medical journals are beginning to utter warnings against the use of these dangerous preparations.

Saccharine has no food value whatever. It merely tastes sweet. Instead of using such stuff, take a little pure honey or real maple sugar—only a little, however. Otherwise, get your sweetness from sweet fruit, fresh and dried, and sweet roots, such as beets and carrots.

Cane sugar does much harm. They tried it in the German army as a ration, but had to give it up.

The Seven Essentials.

"THE SEVEN ESSENTIALS TO LIFE AND HEALTH" (Modern Hygiene Publishing Co., Los Angeles) is a book of 400 pages by G. D'Estin Ballou, a Los Angeles ophthalmologist, who for thirty years has been a student of and a lecturer on hygiene. It is written in simple language, is, with a few minor exceptions, in accordance with the teachings of the Care of the Body, and while not pretending to be particularly original, it contains much useful information in regard to the care of the body.

"The Seven Essentials" Mr. Ballou designates as Sunlight, Air, Water, Food, Clothing, Exercise, and Rest. Among other things, he treats of drugs, stimulants, narcotics and patent medicines, gifts of healing and miracles, disease and its cause, mental causes and mental remedies, physical remedies for disease, and treatment of diseases. In regard to "little things" the author says:

"Even so smaller matter as the leaving-out of tea or coffee, or simplifying the diet to two or three articles at a meal, or breathing a full supply of pure air for a few minutes night and morning, or taking a cool sponge bath or a dry hand rub every morning, or even drinking a single glass of water extra, night and morning; any one of these or some other little things make all the difference sometimes between health and sickness. When will mankind learn that the little things of life are the great things?"

Here is a sensible remark in regard to constipation:

"The sum of suggestion for constipation is, plenty of moisture in the body, bulk as well as nutrition in food, and abdominal exercise by breathing and manipulation."

The chapter on "Mental Causes and Mental Remedies" is interesting and sensible. Writing in regard to the so-called "sub-conscious mind" Mr. Ballou says:

"There is enough of mysticism in the new forms of expression to make it somewhat enchanting. We hear much of the 'Sub-attentive Mind,' 'The Subliminal Consciousness,' 'Sub-consciousness' and the 'Sub-conscious Mind,' all of which prevail in dreams and under the hypnotic influence. The 'sub-conscious' mind is simply the human mind with the will dethroned or held in abeyance, either by natural or by artificial conditions. The mind becomes the sport of circumstances while not under control of its own monitor, the will. And this condition of mind is now being made the subject of lengthy 'research' and learned 'dissertation' with great swelling words and expressions which few if any understand. The writer cannot see the good of dressing up ideas in such great flowing robes, unless like the patent-medicine man, they are aiming to arouse in the common mind a sort of muddled fascination and thus make it easier to captivate the will by confusing the judgment.

"As in all the other kinds of mental healing, the object of all suggestion is to bring in a state of mental hopefulness, courage and confidence, to bring rest and peace into the vital domain. And it is to the great law of Rest that the Emanuel Movement owes nearly all of its cures. From what the writer has heard from the lips of one of the chief advocates of this movement (Dr. Shields,) one great purpose is to exalt hypnotism and hypnotic suggestion to a position of honor in the working of the Gospel of Christ."

In his ideas regarding food the author is in the main sound. The following statement is, however, unsatisfactory:

"It is safe to say that from twenty-four to forty-eight ounces per day of any solid food is sufficient for the average person if he has been trained into proper mastication of the food, and proper drinking habits. Hard labor would make a larger amount necessary in some cases."

Now, this is altogether too vague. What does the author mean by "solid food?" Rice contains 87 per cent. of solids, apples 15 per cent., and cabbage only 5½ per cent., therefore, taking the lowest quantity he mentions, 24 ounces of rice would give 21 ounces of solid food, or twice as much as is necessary for the average person. On the other hand, 24 ounces of apples would give only 3½ ounces of solid food, and 24 ounces of cabbage would give less than an ounce and a half. You would not regard milk as a solid food, would you? Yet 24 ounces of milk contains nearly 3½ ounces of solids, or as much as apples, and more than twice as much as cabbage.

The only sensible way to estimate food values is by giving the water-free amount of food they contain. At Battle Creek they have an elaborate system of "calories," but this is altogether too complicated, and is also misleading, for you may get an immense amount of calories from butter and sugar, a diet upon which you would soon starve to death:

In regard to unpolished rice, the author says:

"Japan feeds her army and her people on the unpolished rice. Thanks to the prevailing good sense of some of our dietetic reformers, this exceedingly wholesome and palatable grain can now be had in the markets of civilized America, owing to the demand that has recently arisen for it."

This is not quite correct. The Japanese do not polish their rice, but they peel it, which makes it about on a par with "middlings" wheat flour. Unpolished rice has recently been introduced in the United States, on a small scale, by reformers. In this way, the Japanese lose much of the organic salts, which may account for some of the evils attaching to an exclusive rice diet.

The latter part of the book under the head of "Pointers" contains a number of good short suggestions on the subject of health.

The Strenuous Life.

TWO men whose offices were on the second floor were on the first floor waiting for an elevator.

"Me, too."

Still they waited for the elevator.—[Kansas City Times.

Crime in the Southern States.

A RECENT dispatch from Cincinnati announced that Col. Jack Chinn, famous "knife fighter" and chairman of the Kentucky State Racing Commission, says he is going to introduce a bill in the next Kentucky Legislature, of which he is a member, declaring that persons who carry pistols are insane, and making the penalty incarceration in insane asylums. He says any man who carries a pistol is a public danger.

Chinn was shot nine times one day at a Chicago race track, and though picked up for dead, was able in two months to come to Latonia, where he killed two men with his knife. He has killed more than ten persons in this way. The only person he ever shot was a negro who was stealing from him, and he admits he did wrong in shooting.

While the Kentucky Legislature is dealing with this subject it might investigate regarding the effects of unwholesome diet, malaria, and quinine on the prevalence of crimes of violence in the Southern States.

"Hell Farm."

FOLLOWING is from the New York Herald:

"The ninety-seven-acre tract called Hell Farm by those familiar with laboratory proceedings, recently purchased in New Jersey to provide living material for the inquisitorial rites of medical research, is attracting widespread attention. This pitiless project will be passed down through the ages as one of the landmarks of the time, registering the accepted ethics of the people, and the status of the medical progress which accompanies overflowing hospitals for the diseased, besieged medical clinics for the sick, and overcrowded mad houses for the insane. We are sending out missionaries to the distant Chinese, instructing our foreign sisters as to the foolish injuries resulting from the arrested foot circulation, but for the future mothers of the American nation our guardians of health have no warning instruction regarding the weakened spine, the anaemic intestines, the displacement of organs, the arrested respiration incident to the waist constriction which fashion and folly suggest and impose. To serumize the whole community—hence the Hell Farm endeavor—seems now the object of medical intention. But while vivisectionists are loud in the praises of things they intend(?) to accomplish, they will do well to temper applause and to remember the strong opposing condemnation accorded to these same preparations by other medical men of equal repute but of more conservative temper. Quite pitiful the avowed confession of Claude Bernard, the arch fiend of vivisection, after near 2000 years of animal torment: 'Without doubt our hands are empty today.' 'Highly successful,' 'doubtful, dangerous, to be avoided,' are the verdicts successfully affixed to every laboratory poison which the vivisector elaborates out of the nerves and the anguish of the martyrs of the false science today."

Remarkable Invention
"Actina," a Scientific Appliance for Relieving Defective Eyesight—Has Achieved Wonderful Results.
If your eyesight is defective, or you have any form of eye trouble that might endanger your eyesight, you should lose no time in investigating "Actina." It is applied directly over the eye, and its potent action stimulates and maintains the circulation of the blood, thereby removing congestion and assisting nature to repair the defects and restore the eyesight to normal condition. Hundreds of people owe the restoration of their eyesight to "Actina." Among them are the following:
Prof. T. S. Sligh, Mansfield, La.
Rev. J. M. Foster, Burton, Wash.
Rev. W. C. Goodwin, Moline, Kan.
T. F. Lees, Great Barrington, Mass.
Mr. S. A. Donnella, Agt., U. S. Secret Service, Louisville, Ky.
Many persons wearing spectacles might better be without them. Strengthen the eye by improving the circulation and it will not require an artificial lens. If you are interested and desire to know what the "Actina" is and what it is accomplishing, write today for our FREE TRIAL OFFER and OUR BOOK—TREATISE ON DISEASE. The book contains most valuable information. A postal card will bring it to you. Address, ACTINA APPLIANCE COMPANY, Dept. 89H, 811 Walnut Street, Kansas City, Mo.

rooms, which he said was exceedingly bad. He also said there are twenty-four beds in a ward. Another Home veteran writes:

"I don't know of a ward containing twenty-four beds. In my ward there are only nine. In some there are more, but I think not more than twelve in any. If any one feels that the air is foul he can raise a window. I frequently get up in the night and raise one. There is no need for any one to suffer in that direction. We can have all the air and sunshine we want."

It is quite possible, however, that the raising of a window might meet with serious objection from some of those who are afraid of "night air." Any well-appointed sleeping apartment for a number of people should have means of perfect ventilation without raising or lowering the windows. Ventilation is the most important thing about a house, a thing to which about the least attention is given—if indeed it receives any attention at all.

Deadly Gasoline.

AND still gasoline gets in its deadly work. Not only are people killed by the explosion of "perfectly safe" gasoline stoves, but they are also burned to death when cleaning clothes, and recently in Kansas City a woman was burned, probably fatally, from the ignition of gasoline in which she had washed her hair.

If you must—or think you must—use this dangerous stuff, at least handle it with as much care as you would dynamite.

Was This a "Reason"-able Fee?

THE following dispatch from Terre Haute, Ind., was recently published:

"John Sudbrink, who has been insane since he was injured two years ago when working as a brakeman on the Big Four Railroad, has been restored to sanity by an operation on his skull, only to be told that $16,000 damages, obtained from the company for him, has been expended in medical treatment."

Commenting upon this, a correspondent pertinently writes:

"Here is another case of one who 'suffered much of many physicians and spent all he had.' He is in great luck that when he recovered his reason he did not find a big doctor's bill in addition to all his money gone. This is assuming that the physicians would continue their work on him after all his money was gone."

The lawyers are bad enough, but they content themselves with taking your worldly goods, while the doctors—or some of them—are not content to take all the money you have, but sometimes take your life also—

"Fizzy Water."

THE drinking of champagne is a fad—at least, so far as men are concerned. Not one man out of a dozen really cares for the stuff. A great majority of men who know how to eat and drink would greatly prefer a bottle of dry California Riesling, claret, or Burgundy to the best champagne ever turned out of a French cellar. If champagne was 35 cents a pint, and Bass's ale $3.50 a quart, you would find few people drinking the "fizzy water." Its consumption is mainly due to dietetic snobbishness, like the use of expensive table souvenirs. Carbonated cider is better than ordinary champagne—and much cheaper.

Lemons and Consumption.

A CORRESPONDENT sends the following newspaper item dated Sioux City, Ia.:

"After being given up to die by physicians, Mrs. Charles S. Banse claims to have cured herself of tuberculosis by eating twelve lemons a day for twelve days. She boiled the lemons until they were palatable."

Not altogether an advisable course, this. The lemon contains a powerful acid—citric acid. The juice should be taken with much moderation, and always diluted. In cooking this, or any other fruit, the acids and salts, which are the chief value of the fruit, are greatly changed, and their value much lessened. At the same time, if the woman had not modified the acid by boiling, she probably would have injured herself by taking such a large amount of citric acid. As it was, it is quite possible that the boiled lemons may have had a temporary medicinal effect, but to suppose that this alone could "cure" a case of consumption, unless the diet was otherwise correct, is absurd. She would have done better to have lived for several months entirely on sweet, ripe sub-acid fruit—whatever fruit was in season—with a little nut cream to furnish the fat and additional proteid.

All Is Not Mind.

AS frequently stated in these columns, to assert that "all is mind," and to ignore the importance of the body is health matters is just as unreasonable and foolish as it is to ignore the mind and depend entirely upon physical culture. Following are extracts from an article by Norton Hazeldine, published in the Pasadena Star:

"No one may expect to be well who takes the negative side of life. Life is made for health, happiness, generosity, love and truth. Health is not found in the exclusive ideas, but is found in abundance in the inclusive; therefore it is absolutely necessary that we acknowledge that as human beings we consist of a body, a mind, a soul and a spirit, without which perfect combination we could not be human. . . . Physical culture is the exercising of the anatomy and the muscular system, a

Eyesight Restored

Could Only Tell Daylight from Darkness

Mrs. Helen Heulings, 320 Boyd St., says: "A few weeks ago the sight of my left eye began to leave me, till I could only tell daylight from darkness with it. Three of the best known occulists told me nothing could be done for my sight, but under Dr. McCleery's treatment the sight has been restored. His treatment is painless, but effective, and too much credit cannot be given him for the good work he is doing for his patients."

Don't take chances with your eyesight. Wrongly fitted glasses, or any character of eyestrain may cause irreparable damage to the eyes.

Cataracts, the growth of which is ultimate blindness, are more frequently caused by eyestrain than by anything else.

If you are subject to headaches, nervousness, painful, sore, red, inflamed, burning, smarting, itching, scratching, twitching and gluey eyes, heavy or crusty eyelids, floating spots, cloudiness of vision, watery or discharging eyes, feeling like sand in the eyes, granulated eyelids, your eyes should be attended to at once.

Miss Jennie Williams, a former Los Angeles school teacher, says: "Previous to coming to you, I had taken a year's vacation because of continuous headaches and nervousness, but with no relief when school work was resumed. Your treatment effectually cured me of these disturbances."

Weak eyes made strong. Crossed eyes straightened without operation.

VARICOSE VEINS

Large Knotted Veins in the LEG

I have discovered and made perfect an entirely new, scientific and harmless method of treatment for this serious affliction. It cures very quickly, without cutting out or tying the veins. Average two months. No loss of time necessary. It is a positive cure in 93 per cent. of all cases in man or woman, no matter how long standing or how bad the case. It makes the leg smooth, strong and vigorous again, and natural in size and appearance. The cure is permanent. With such prospects and assurance, won't you begin treatment, or investigate? No one can make proper business success or enjoy life when irritated in mind or distressed in body from such an affliction. Are you proud of your present condition? Does it please the eye to look at it? Do thoughts of your ailment make you glad or sad? cheer you up or cast a shadow? Is it a joy and delight to bolster up your weak limbs every day? Would you rather stay unsound and defective, or be made whole?

Now the future, what about that? You've got to face it, to know and feel this disease is fastened on you for life and will get worse as you grow older, and in nine cases out of ten become a source of wretchedness and misery, and likely to deprive you of livelihood, strikes fear to a man and makes life look awful dark. Maybe you have been told it is useless to treat, your trusted family doctor may have told you so. Some think it is not safe. If this be true for such treatment as they give it is not at all true for my system, which I have used for sixteen years and found both safe and sure. The let alone policy may look good to you today, but time passes and disease eats on—a month or two, next year, or sooner, things may take an unlooked for turn and bring bitter regrets you can't see today. Therefore, to all afflicted ones everywhere I say, free yourself from this burden. Don't grind out a miserable existence when a bright future with relief and a cure can so easily be had. Start now, make any sacrifice within reason; it's worth the price. Listen to no outside advice, nor ask it; examine and decide for yourself—you will do all the suffering. Follow the promptings of your own mind and you won't go wrong. Testimonials of deep gratitude from citizens here may be seen, and you may call upon them. I treat no other ailment. Write, or please keep and send this notice to some afflicted one.

Animal Curiosities.

The world has been so thoroughly explored that one might imagine it impossible that any noteworthy species of mammal or bird could still remain unknown. Yet every now and then something new turns up. For example, it was only a short time ago that a first acquaintance was made with the harpy eagle, a fowl native to the region of the Amazon, which feeds chiefly on monkeys. Another curiosity, not long known, is the aye-aye of Madagascar—a mammal which has one finger of each hand most curiosly skeletonized and elongated for the purpose of dragging from their furrows the earthworms on which it feeds. As is well known, it is from Australia and New Zealand that come the flightless birds (some of which readily breed in captivity,) while one must go to South America to find a feathered creature, the "steamer duck," which flies when young, but cannot fly when adult. It is a water fowl, and the reason is that its wings do not increase as it grows in proportion to the augmentation of its weight.

In the new world the elephant tribe is represented by the tapir—an animal which is easily propagated in captivity. When a baby it is marked by a curious arrangement of longitudinal stripes and spots, which by naturalists are held to prove that anciently this interesting creature was striped and spotted.

But, whereas it may be claimed that most of the wild animals may be bred in captivity under suitable management, there are not a few which are hopeless in this regard. The fur seal is an example in point. The seals that one sees captive and which do such intelligent tricks are hair seals—belonging to quite a different species. So opposed is the fur seal to the very notion of deprivation of liberty that it will invariably starve itself to death rather than submit to such a condition. Likewise it is with the Tasmanian devil, a queer little marsupial about two feet long, somewhat resembling in appearance a baby bear, which is found only in Tasmania, a large island formerly known as Van Dieman's Land, to the south of Australia. It is almost incredibly ferocious, preying upon the sheep and poultry of the farmers, and never yet, though captured in earliest infancy, has it responded to kindness by manifesting an amiable disposition.—[London Tit-Bits.

An Old Baptismal Font.

In the old baptistry at Florence—the baptistry with the wonderful bronze doors which Michelangelo called "so beautiful that they were worthy to be the gates of Paradise"—most of the babies of Florence have been baptized for many hundred years.

At almost any hour of any day one will find baptismal parties waiting before the font, with babies of every rank in life, from the princely heir of a great house, nearly smothered in costly laces and attended by a small army of friends and relations, to the little creature decked out in gaudy cotton and held in the arms of a solitary old peasant woman.

No register of baptisms was kept in the very early days. The first record was made in this wise: A certain priest took it into his head to keep account of the number of children to be baptized. Accordingly, he put a white bean into a box for every boy and a black bean for every girl.

Later on, records were carefully kept, and if one could look them over it would be a fascinating study, for probably the greater part of the painters, scholars, poets and soldiers who have made Florence famous received their names at the font of "my dear little Saint John"—as Dante called it.—[Youth's Companion.

Real Estate and Development Section.

Review of the Week
SURVEY OF REALTY MARKET

Los Angeles Sunday Times

Part V—24 Pages
FINANCE AND TRADE.

XXIXth YEAR.

SUNDAY MORNING, JANUARY 30, 1910.

On All News Stands, Trains and Streets. | 5 CENTS.

Houses, Lots and Real Estate Activities—Latest News and Comment.

AN ADDED REAL-ESTATE SHEET.

Another real estate section appears in this issue of the Sunday Times. It follows this section (V,) has ten pages, is numbered VI, contains additional real estate and development news, including the real estate summary of the week, besides striking industrial developments and achievements, near and far, and real estate display advertising.

It will be found an important and attractive section of the paper, and is added to supply the demand for additional space, both in the form of reading matter and advertising, for these prominent features.

FACT AND COMMENT.

With this issue of The Times the writer completes a period of four years and seven months as "Fact and Comment Man" upon the journal. This means that in this period he has written the article treating editorially of real estate very nearly a quarter of a thousand times, having missed but two issues in all these months, when the work was very capably done by his assistant. The task has not been without its difficulties, and some of these have been great. Judging by the expressions of public opinion that reach this office almost every week, it is fair to conclude that the difficulties generally have been met—all the important ones.

Abnormal Conditions.

When at the beginning of July, 1905, this work was turned over to the present Fact and Comment Man, conditions were very abnormal. There was a boom of great strength threatening to sweep everything away in the real estate market. The editor-in-chief of this journal instructed the real estate editor to use every sound, fair argument he could muster up in the way of warning people not to plunge too deeply in wild speculation. This was an ungrateful task to every one, but met with the general approval of rational real estate men. When the public get their heads set one way it is as hard to arrest their progress as it is that of a pair of runaway steers on a down grade with a heavy load behind them. Until the team falls the "progress" will go on.

The Scene Shifts.

This department prophesied that sooner or later something would come to catch these real estate speculators who had plunged rashly into the stream without life preservers. It was in April, less than a year after the writer took charge of this department, when San Francisco was shaken from its foundations, and then the wreck burned to the ground. One abnormal condition gave place to another. The era of speculation came to a full stop as suddenly as a clap of thunder. The difficulty confronting this department under the changed conditions was to prevent a panic. The danger was most imminent, and was very great that the whole public would become panic stricken, throwing all the property of this part of the State upon the market with no buyers possessing courage enough to buy anything with prices cut in two or even in four. As Fact and Comment had wielded its club to arrest the rush of speculators, so now it had to toil, and using a slang phrase, "by main strength and awkwardness," to brace up the weak-kneed and pump courage into the faint-hearted. This untoward condition was followed the next summer by the threatened financial collapse which culminated in October, 1907. Here were two depressing influences working. The dull period lasted all through 1908, and conditions were not normal until well into the following year. It is conceded by every intelligent real estate operator in Southern California that the wise course of the department since April, 1906, to the present time, has been greatly influential in sustaining the market value of city and country property all through this end of the State.

Normal Conditions.

We are now well into the new year, and one of the arguments used by the department during the later months of the past year was a prophecy of great activity, based on actual growth of population, for the year 1910. The Fact and Comment Man either was prescient of conditions during all the dull period, or he was a good guesser. Very few of his positive predictions have failed to put in their appearance very promptly on time. The outlook which appeared to the department all through the last half of 1909 is developing even more magnificently than expected. Thus we may be said now to have reached a period in real estate affairs entirely normal. We are not in the wild speculation rush of the summer of 1905, nor are we in the severe depression of 1908. The population of the city is growing perhaps as rapidly, if not more so, than ever before. The demand for property is good and building promises for the current month to exceed that of any similar period in all the great progress Los Angeles has made in a quarter of a century.

What Is Speculation?

One of the statements appearing often in this department of late is that the real estate activity of this time is not speculative, but of an investment character. Some of the readers of The Times who are mostly in accord with Fact and Comment are disposed to laugh a little at the use of this statement. The question is, what is speculation? There are a great many builders, some individuals, others in firms, who are continually picking up a lot at the right price, putting up a home upon it and then putting it on the market for sale. Inasmuch as there is a pretty ready sale for the numerous homes being constructed, the writer considers this activity of the investment kind. Some of his friends say that it is speculative. We will not quarrel about the meaning of the term.

A Case in Point.

When the period began over which we have been casting a backward look, that section of the city lying between Temple street and Sixth street from Coronado street back to Commonwealth avenue, was almost entirely given up to oil developments in its southern part and very neglected in the northern section. The derricks have all disappeared from the section, magnificent streets have been constructed, and the property has been subdivided and put upon the market. The three or four blocks bounded by First, Fourth, Coronado and Rampart streets, a year ago had not a single house. Five months ago there were, perhaps, one or two there. At the present time there are very close to thirty. These all front on Rampart or Coronado street. There are perhaps half a dozen in course of construction and there are perhaps not three of those finished untenanted. The same conditions have prevailed north of First street as far as Temple. Building all in through the section is very rapid, and nearly all the buildings are taken, as fast as they are finished. It is only what is going on all over the city, perhaps a little more rapid.

Property Values.

The department has been insistent for these past four or five years in the use of the argument that residence property in Los Angeles was cheap. The lots being discussed here are selling at $30 a front foot and less. A good walker can come from the corner of First and Coronado to First and Broadway in half an hour. That seems to those who know the value of residence property in other cities like a very reasonable price.

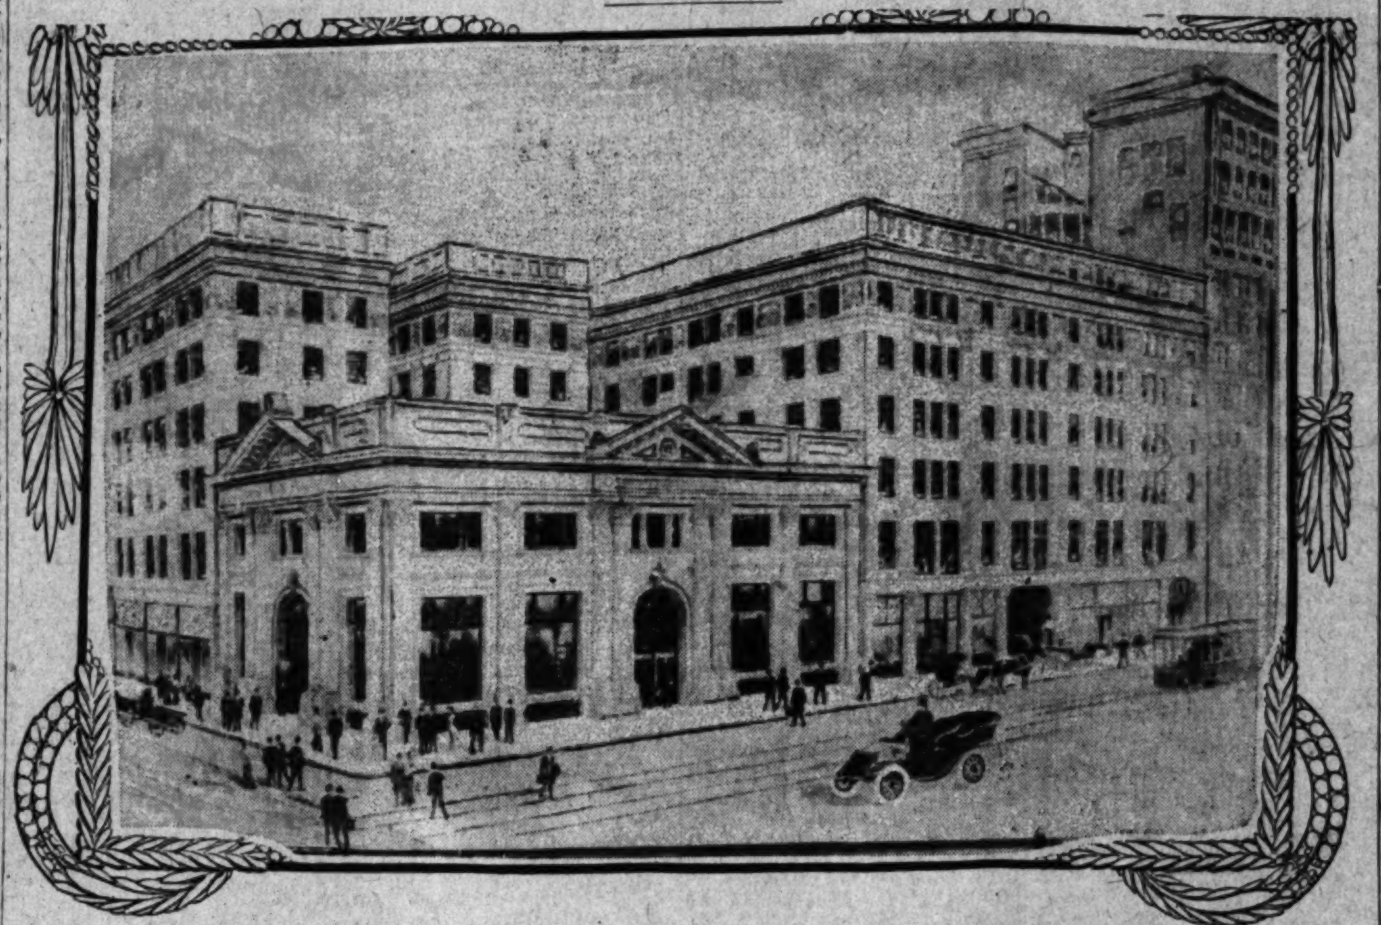
New Development.

Carondelet street north of First is being very rapidly graded. A syndicate owning fourteen acres lying east of Coronado street and between Third and First streets has just filed its map with the City Engineer and will begin grading the lots and improving the streets for the market in a few months from now. The property here referred to is exceedingly sightly. It will cut into about fifty lots, all of them seventy or seventy-five feet frontage and the largest 190 feet in depth. The views from this part of the city are unsurpassed anywhere in Los Angeles. The frontage on Coronado street will be graded in wide sweeps back for a distance of forty or fifty feet, leaving ample room for magnificent homes on the high ground in from the street.

Increase in Prices.

Less than ten years ago the writer sold half a score of lots right in this district for $300 each. These are worth today from $1500 up, and some of them are held at $5000. In speaking of the increase in values a week or two ago the department called attention to the Wilshire tract, where within seven years fifty-foot lots just off Sixth street sold for $1500 to $1700 and are now worth from $5000 to $7500. The jump from $300 to $1500 may seem considerable, but it is the fixed opinion of the writer that five years from now these new $1500 lots will be worth $100 a foot.

TWO HUNDRED-THOUSAND-DOLLAR BUILDING TO IMPROVE WEST FOURTH STREET SKY-LINE.



Block Which Will Complete Imposing Group Planned by I. W. Hellman Years Ago.

The permit for a six-story, steel and concrete structure to occupy the gap between the Union Trust building and the Southern Trust Company's quarters was issued last week and the excavation for the foundation has already been started. The plans for the addition were prepared by Morgan & Walls, who designed the other blocks in the I. W. Hellman group, which includes in addition to the Southern Trust building the beautiful block occupied by the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank and the I. W. Hellman building on South Spring. The illustration is reproduced from a perspective drawn by the architects and is the first picture published showing the complete group and the attractive sky-line that will result from the improvement.

REALTY "FLYER" PAYS.

Profit on Good Buy of Three Years Ago Equal to High Interest on Investment.

A syndicate purchased the southwest corner of Bixel and Sixth street, a vacant lot 140x150 feet, about three years ago, for $17,500.

A deal is now in escrow by which the property will be transferred partly for cash, partly for mortgage, and the balance in good real estate at a nominal valuation of $26,000. The deal is probably about equal to a cash sale at $25,000.

To earn full interest on the money the selling price should be about 20 per cent. over the original purchase price. The profit made is therefore pretty satisfactorily above what interest would make.

The original syndicate included quite a number of Los Angeles people who took a flyer in this bit of realty. The names of the purchasers are withheld for the present.

LEASES REPORTED.

Through the rental department of Mines & Farish, the following leases have just been closed: One-story brick building on the east side of Hill street, between Fourth and Fifth, to Boos Brothers, for a restaurant. The owners are Clark & Sherman. The rental is $500 per month. One-story brick building to be erected at No. 416 West Sixth street, to M. E. Miller, to be used as a skating rink. Mrs. Emily C. Hardaway, the owner, will receive $600 per month. Garage building at No. 117 West Sixteenth street to the Pneumatic Air Cleaning Company, by Benjamin Harwood, at $85 a month.

PLAN WHOLESALE BUILDING.

The construction of residences to the number of about 200 in the northwestern part of the city will, it is reported, be begun immediately by the Elysian Development Company, organized recently by Los Angeles men. The lots to be improved are located in the section between Elysian Park and Alvarado street, and between Echo Park and the city limits on the north. The houses will contain eight to ten rooms each and will cost $2500 to $6000.

The company proposes to establish a large temporary lumber yard, importing building material and hauling it from the coast by trolley car. The following officers and directors have been chosen for the organization: A. C. Burnham, president; H. A. Lewis, vice-president; C. A. Devens, secretary; D. R. Gardiner, treasurer; Joseph Streeton, Robert Odell, James T. Webbs, C. A. Paxton, Louis A. Dunf, Len Claiborne, A. Loosyen. The company will have offices in the Citizens' National Bank building.

MONTH'S RECORD BEST IN OVER THREE YEARS.

Home Builders Alone Smash Totals for All Classes of Building in the Whole of January, Last Year—Valuation Gain for All Items Exceeds Million Dollars.

The permits issued by the Chief Inspector of Buildings for residence construction, alone, during the period from January 1 to 28, inclusive, exceeded by over $100,000 in valuation the total represented by all classes of building during the entire month of January, 1909. The home builders' contribution to date to the present month's building record amounts to the huge totals of 373 permits and $748,861, and probably forms the most notable feature in what has been a most wonderfully lively January.

For all kinds of buildings the city building department has issued in the twenty-two actual business days of the month 715 permits, representing construction work to cost $1,650,453. The gain over the corresponding period of last year is 252 in number of permits and 181 per cent. in valuation. The actual increase in dollars, is $1,063,636, a figure which would of itself represent a good record of valuation for a month's building.

The permits issued yesterday morning and those to be issued tomorrow are still to be heard from in the total reckoning for the month, and it is possible that the January record may even surpass the $1,750,000 mark. Even as the figures now stand the record is the best recorded by the department in the past thirty-nine months.

In point of valuation the Third Ward leads with $696,516. The Fourth Ward is second with $346,637, and the Seventh with $154,140 is third.

Following is the classified report and the report by wards:

	Permits.	Valuation.
Class A, steel frame	2	$400,000
Class A, reinforced concrete	1	100,000
Class C, reinforced concrete	22	273,029
Class D, 1-story	275	386,309
Class D, 1½-story	35	75,400
Class D, 2-story	63	290,152
Class D, 3-story	2	13,500
Sheds	54	5,428
Foundations	4	4,730
Brick alterations	60	53,896
Frame alterations	184	48,995
Demolitions	13	2,015
Total	715	$1,650,453

Comparison with last year: 463 permits; $586,817 valuation.

Following is a report by wards, from January 3 to January 28, 1910, inclusive:

	Permits.	Valuation.
First Ward	59	$ 51,650

$5700.

Here is the prettiest bungalow home in all the Wilshire district. We have seen nothing in all our experience to equal it in construction and in beauty throughout. The lot is large, an east front, 50x150 feet, on a splendid street, close to yellow car line. The house has brick and cement veranda across entire front, porte cochere effect, and the roof lines are simple and artistic. A superb living-room occupies the front of the house; the hardwood floors are in every room; the three bedrooms are bright, with many windows and abundant sunshine; the kitchen is especially complete, and there is a breakfast-room or servant's room, as desired. The bath has tiled floor and is fitted with fine shower. Basement and furnace pipes complete. It's the best and cheapest bungalow in Wilshire. Only $5700.

FINE BARGAIN ON HIGH GROUND.

In the best portion of West Adams Heights, between two fine car lines, we have this remarkable nine-room home for sale at an astonishing bargain price. You could not duplicate the property today for $7000, and it is almost as good as new. Hardwood floors upstairs and down; brightly finished walls and woodwork; furnace complete to every room; fine large living and sleeping-rooms throughout; and an attic, all floored, which could be converted into a servant's room with an expenditure of $50. There is no better lot in the city, 50x175 feet, on a wide, beautiful street, in full view of foothills and mountains. No better, more comfortable home for your large family can be found in Los Angeles. One thousand dollars will handle the property if you so desire.

The owner of this property, being a nonresident, is extremely anxious to dispose of his holdings in Los Angeles; hence the above sacrifice figure. The house is most conveniently planned—hardwood floors, cellar, furnace pipes, large garage, and every convenience which contributes toward a livable home. Large lot, within one block of the car, just across from Berkeley Square. You will readily see that this is a snap price for that locality. It must be seen to be appreciated, and we will gladly show it to you if you will 'phone us for an appointment.

Undoubtedly the best buy in the Wilshire section today, but the lot was purchased at an exceptionally low price and the property is offered at more than $1000 less than similar homes in the neighborhood. A most artistic home, admirably planned and especially well constructed, of eight rooms and attic. First floor in mission design, hand-rubbed to cabinet finish; handsome stone mantel, large plate mirrors, art-glass windows, substantial fixtures; all rooms decorated with imported papers and hangings. The chambers, in white enamel, are decorated in special designs. With hardwood floors throughout, gas furnace and complete garage, this value cannot be duplicated in the entire Wilshire section.

A very modern house, containing nine fine rooms, on a fifty-foot lot, elevated about fifteen feet above the street. The lot alone is worth the above price, and the house cannot be duplicated for less than $5000. Remember, the house is modern and located in the best block on West Ninth street, east of Park View. You had better look into this if you want a bargain.

Just completed, a beautiful nine-room home on an east-front lot, 60x150, and only half block from the West Sixth-street car line. This home has quartered oak floors throughout, large cellar, furnace and automatic heater. There are four beautiful sleeping-rooms in white enamel and fine sleeping porch upstairs. Most complete servant's quarters are on the first floor. Large living-room, dining-room, library and hall, handsomely finished in the most approved designs, and a kitchen which will delight the housewife, finish the lower floor. A beautiful home in a splendid location at an attractive figure.

On a corner lot, 64x150, is this handsome new home of ten rooms, with two baths, attic, gas furnace, and double garage with telescope doors designed for two machines. The lot is three feet above grade, and the house with granite porch and chimney presents a most imposing exterior, and the arrangement inside is ideal. Large reception hall, living-room and dining-room look onto Western avenue, and the den faces Sixth street. Servant's room and bath and large cabinet kitchen are carefully separated from the rest of the house. Five rooms on the second floor, one 16x12 with mantel, full plate mirror and lavatory with dressing-room and closet connecting; two others, one a sunroom, make a charming suite for young people or as a nursery. Mahogany and mission finish downstairs and enamel upstairs; all rooms decorated with imported papers and hangings; fixtures of genuine Tiffany design. A local investor just made a straight $7000 loan for three years on a $15,000 valuation. Owner must sell. Our price $11,000; $4000 cash.

Located at the highest point on Bonnie Brae, near Seventh, we have this beautiful ten-room home, on a lot elevated ten feet above the street with granite retaining wall. This home was built about one and one-half years ago at an expense of $15,000, and is in perfect order, having been occupied but a short time. The finish throughout is superb—you can see your reflection in all woodwork, including floors, which are covered with exquisite rugs. These rugs are included in the above price, as are the hangings, which were made especially for this house, and are practically new. On the lower floor we have a large reception-room in ivory and gold, with cut-glass fixtures and beautiful wall coverings. The hall, living-room and dining-room are in mission oak, with a finish like a piano, and carefully selected hangings. Kitchen and pantries in eight-coat white enamel, with screen porch, laundry, ideal in arrangement. The lot is 50x150 to an alley leading to Seventh street, which is paved. The lot is worth $10,000 today and the house another $10,000, but for a few days we can offer the property at the ridiculous figure of $12,750. In five years the lot will be very valuable for income property; in the meantime, you will have one of the most beautiful homes in the Westlake district, and only five minutes from the heart of the city.

It is very seldom that we are able to offer a home of this character at such an extremely low figure, but the owner is leaving the city for an extended stay and has authorized us to dispose of his home at the above price. Standing on a lot 60x150 feet to an alley, half block south of Wilshire Boulevard and close to Shatto Place, this beautiful home is one of the show places of the city. The lower floor is finished in solid oak and mahogany, and the second floor, containing five sleeping rooms and tiled bath, is in white enamel. Very complete servant's quarters are on the first floor. Large cellar, furnace and good garage finish this handsome property.

In all our experience dealing in desirable real estate, we have seldom offered such excellent values as you will find on our lists today. Following are some of the best of these, which we would be pleased to have you investigate.

$3650. $3650

This price for a new seven-room bungalow, desirably located, is ridiculously low—the house itself is worth this much without considering the lot. An ideal home, with large front porch, which can be enjoyed summer and winter in Southern California; the living-room is delightful, with large open fireplace and large windows, just the sort of room one could really live in; the library or music-room has built-in writing desk and bookcases, as well as a wall bed, and is sure to be one of the most used rooms in the house; dining-room has beamed ceiling and paneled walls in "mission" finish, built-in buffet and china closet; the kitchen is enameled spotless white, walls lined with shelves and drawers, large windows and sink; big screen porch with laundry trays; one of the prettiest features of this house is a bright, sunny breakfast-room, artistically finished and decorated; the bedrooms are finished in white enamel, with attractive wall hangings, closets are all very large, many windows; excellent bath, with medicine chest and mirror; linen closet. The house is situated on good-sized lot, in a very attractive neighborhood; reasonable terms can be arranged.

Close in, very convenient to Pico st. car line, a handsome two-story residence which the owner desires to sell at once. Every concession has been made in the matter of price, as you will realize the minute you see the property. The house is thoroughly modern and well arranged, has hardwood floors, rooms finished in hardwood and paneled with handsome wall decorations; large reception hall; a living-room that you would fully enjoy, with its large windows, open fireplace and handsome finish. The dining-room has handsome grate, artistic built-in buffet and is beautifully finished and decorated; the kitchen would be a delight to the most exacting housewife, with its large windows and convenient arrangement, large pantry and screen porch with laundry tubs; the four bedrooms are large and well supplied with windows and closets; dainty designs in wall hangings; bath and toilet are fitted with the best sanitary plumbing; basement; garage; well-kept lawn, flowers and fruit trees. The lot is 45x150, extending back to alley; a mortgage of $2500 can be paid off at once or allowed to run indefinitely. We are in a position to know that this property is being sacrificed.

Close to the "Log Cabin," a beautiful nine-room home, surrounded by lawns, flowers and shrubbery. The lot is 50x150, and faces an 80-ft. street; house has been built of the best material and in a pleasing style of architecture; rooms finished and paneled in hardwoods, very highly polished; hardwood floors; artistic lighting fixtures; reception hall is 12x14 and opens into a large comfortable living-room, with many windows, handsome fireplace and mantel; dining-room 15x22; has beautiful center light, wide, artistic buffet and rich wall decorations; pass pantry leads to kitchen, an ideal of culinary convenience; large screen porch from which there is an entrance to furnace room; stationary tubs, toilet. The five large bedrooms are remarkable for their many windows, big closets and the dainty coloring of the wall hangings; there is broad front porch, furnace, garage. The price asked gives you no idea of the completeness and attractiveness of this home.

In all our many years of experience in handling Wilshire property, this is the best value we have ever been able to offer. Only one-half block from Wilshire blvd., a beautiful 10-room home, finished in rich hardwoods, hand-rubbed and polished to a degree; elegant lighting fixtures that were originally made for the "Wentworth" Hotel. The cement front porch is 10x28 feet; reception hall and living-room combined, extends clear across the front of house, has plate-glass window 6x10 feet; huge open fireplace and handsome mantel; walls are hung with imported tapestry paper; broad open staircase, with stained-glass windows; dining-room is 18x22, has large oval bay window and artistic French doors opening to veranda; buffet in special design, with leaded glass doors, beamed ceilings, studded lights; expensive tapestries. Den has paneled walls, hung with Lincrusta to plate rail with tapestry above; a dainty little breakfast-room just off the kitchen, all enameled in white and Delph blue; large pass pantry and kitchen in white enamel. The four bedrooms are white enameled, with beautifully colored French papers; center and side lights in each room; large windows and closets; sleeping porch inclosed in glass, and plastered; handsome bath with tile floor, cabinets, mirrors and finest fixtures and plumbing; cement basement, furnace, Rudd hot water heater, fruit and storage closets, wood and coal bins, laundry trays. This gives you an idea of the many desirable features in this house.

FOR SALE—A SIX-ROOM BUNGALOW LOCATED AT HUNTINGTON PARK, CAL., 62 Stafford ave., 5 minutes walk from Pacific Electric (Whittier) car line and 17 minutes' ride from the P. E. Station, Sixth and Main sts., Los Angeles, with five-cent carfare.

Size of lot 50x150 feet to alley.

The house is modern in every respect.

It is convenient to both the new High School, now building, and the Grammar School building. (Huntington Park offers ideal school facilities.)

The surroundings are open and the soil is rich sandy loam. The shrubbery and fruit trees have been carefully selected and have made vigorous growth during the past year. The place is entirely complete as it stands, having chicken corral, barn, fencing, cement walks, etc.

The house was built as a home for the undersigned by the Milwaukee Building Company one year ago.

It offers a specially desirable home-place for a family with children.

As a residence suburb Huntington Park is ideal. All the streets are thoroughly oiled, and even in the most rainy weather there is an entire absence of mud. Cement walks and curbs also prevail throughout the city and all the streets are being uniformly set out to black acacias.

The residents are of a cultured class, and the population is steadily increasing. Price $3000, satisfactory terms. Telephone or call on W. P. BOLTON, owner, 220 Pacific Electric Bldg. Main 5213. F6921. x30

FOR SALE—

A HOLLYWOOD HOME.

$25,000
$25,000

There are many beautiful homes in Hollywood, yet you will find beauties in this one that will surpass anything you have ever seen. The situation, the views, the surroundings and the beautiful grounds will first captivate you, but when you have entered the house and wandered through some of the handsome rooms, noting the exquisite hangings, the artistic lighting fixtures and the wonderful luster of the highly-polished hardwoods everywhere, your admiration will leave you without words to express it.

The house is built of hard blue brick to second floor, the rest in frame. Its architectural beauty will not escape you. A broad cement front porch makes an ideal outdoor living-room, overlooking the spacious grounds and the beautiful Hollywood hills. On entering the reception hall, a vista of large, well-arranged rooms opens up before you, giving a general impression of elegance and refinement, fully carried out by the remarkable beauty and finish of the hardwood paneling, the expensive tapestries above the paneling, the high quality of the hardwood floors and the splendor of the lighting fixtures. The reception hall is attractively finished in curly birch; the living-room and den have that rich, aristocratic tone always associated with Tobasco mahogany; the dining-room finished in oak, has an atmosphere of solid comfort and good cheer, heightened by its handsome buffet and splendid center light; the kitchen, a model of convenience, is finished in sweet, clean cedar, a protection against ants or other insects. Off a large rear hall on this floor there are 4 closets, 2 bedrooms and a tile bath, and on the second floor are 3 more large bedrooms. All bedrooms are finished in pure white enamel and exquisite wall hangings; doors of solid mahogany, with cut-glass knobs, large closets, many windows, separate wall switches for each light, full length mirrors and tile mantel are some of the special attractions in these rooms.

The lot is 100x200 feet, with an east front, on broad roadway, with wide parkings. There is a two-story garage in rear, large cement basement, furnace. We will gladly show you the place upon request.

IN THE WEST ADAMS DISTRICT.

Are you looking for a complete home in every particular? If so, we have it in this fine bungalow. The living-room, which is 27x14, cannot be beaten for size or finish in any bungalow in the southwest. The dining-room is wainscoted and beautifully finished in Flemish oak. The bedrooms, which are large, have many windows, making them very light and airy. The closets are large and commodious. The porch, which extends across the whole front of the house, is overgrown with many beautiful roses and vines and right here is where we will sell the place if you let your wife see these flowers and grounds, as there are no better in the city for a place of its size.

Better let us show you this place and your house hunting days are over.

$4750.

NORTH OF FIFTH, NEAR HARVARD.

Handsomest bungalow in the Wilshire district.

If you are looking for one of the handsomest bungalows on high ground in the city see this place at once. It is 34x60 ground plan, has 8-foot cement porch running across whole front of house, faced with stone. Solid stone chimney; this gives an air of elegance and substantialness to the place, rarely found in bungalows.

The living-room, which is 20x16, has beamed ceiling, stone mantel 8 feet in length, and is decorated with a frieze of the latest English block paper. The dining-room, 16x14, is decorated 5 feet in height, has one plate glass window over 7 feet in length, and a window embrasure with 5 casement windows set in, decorated with the finest tapestry paper.

The den has large bay window, beautifully papered; is 13x14 in size. The bedrooms are white enamel and daintily papered; have French doors opening onto a spacious porch and pergola. The kitchen has over twenty cabinets and places to put things; is white enamel and has every modern convenience. Cellar, furnace and laundry tubs. The electric fixtures are something entirely new and are very effective in design.

The bathroom is the most complete of any we have ever seen, down to the linoleum on the floor.

Houses.

FOR SALE—$6250.

Few homes have been planned so beautifully and worked out in such detail as to give so comfortable and hospitable an air as this one, which was built by owner for his home. From a wide and inviting cement porch, which extends across the entire front, one enters a large living-room with plate glass French door, many French windows, a large plate glass window and a blue brick Mission fireplace built to the ceiling and built to heat. To the right, one enters a music-room, 12x14 feet, paneled 5 feet high, and contains many French windows. The dining-room, with beam ceiling, is paneled 5 feet high to a plate rail. The massive buffet is exquisite with specially-made bent glass doors 5 feet high, and special beveled French plate mirrors. Buffet alone cost over $200. Two French doors in the dining-room lead, one to the greenhouse, the other to pergola, which, with the many windows, admit abundant sunshine and air. The bedrooms, 15x16 feet, with large closets, contain full length French plate mirror, together with bath and hall, are finished in white enamel and each represents a different color scheme. The large number of windows in bedrooms admit an abundance of sunshine. The cosy breakfast-room is just off a most convenient white enamel cabinet kitchen. Kitchen contains woodstone sink. Two wash trays on large screen porch. Gas and electricity in every room. Garage, lawn, trees and abundance of flowers. The woodwork throughout this home has been carefully selected and matched and is beautiful beyond description.

VICTORIA PARK.
VICTORIA PARK.
VICTORIA PARK.

A score of well-known citizens have united to create a private residence park of the highest class. Their committees inspected the four or five other first-class private residence localities and adopted only their best features, improving on them in most particulars.

The result is Victoria Park.

Drives 100 feet broad.

Parkings thirty feet wide.

Seven-foot cement sidewalks.

Four rows of trees along each drive.

Elevated site, overlooking lower ground, so that the superb view can never be obstructed.

Asphalt pavement from the business center to Victoria Park.

Convenient location on the high plateau known as West Adams Heights.

Pico Heights cars on the north side of the park, beach cars along Sixteenth on the south side.

Subway right of way from 68 yards to 1½ blocks north.

Large lots, 60 to 110 feet frontage, averaging 150 feet deep.

No street or driveway names are used, the address for each residence being Victoria Park, with the number of the lot.

Low prices at present, combined with an assured future, the four or five other private residence localities, the only ones which can be compared to Victoria Park range from $100 to $300 per front foot. Victoria Park, at least the equal of any, ranges from $35 to about $60 per front foot.

These prices will soon be advanced to figures more in proportion to the merits of the property.

If you intend to build a home costing from $5000 to $25,000 or more, you should see Victoria Park before selecting a site.

For further particulars and to see the property, telephone us for automobile appointment.

FOR SALE—
AEROPLANES.

Are not a necessity.

But a broad 51 to 53-foot frontage lot, like those in

ARLINGTON PARK.

Is an absolute necessity to the observing, wide awake, bungalow builder who wishes to embody and carry out all the strictly down-to-date ideas in bungalow construction, because it is the extra broad and pleasing frontages that attract the eye of the prospective purchaser and above all one likes to feel that he has plenty of elbow room with his next-door neighbor and you cannot carry out your plans and feel the same pleasure of living on a cramped up forty-foot lot as on the large lots in

ARLINGTON PARK.

You may often wish for a wide lot, but think you are compelled to buy the narrow forty-foot lot because it is cheaper, but this is not the condition in

ARLINKTON PARK.

As we are selling beautiful 51 to 53-foot lots at only $1000 to $1050 on very easy terms and we can show you decided advantages to be derived from investing in

ARLINGTON PARK.

The improvements in
ARLINGTON PARK

Will be the best that money can buy, and no expense will be spared in carrying out every little detail that goes to promote the general welfare of a first-class tract.

ARLINGTON PARK

Will have wide macadamized streets, graveled, tamped, oiled, sanded and rolled smooth as a floor. Arlington Park will have five-foot cement walks, 10-ft. parkways instead of the usual five-foot ones on other tracts, and ornamental shrubs and shade trees along each and all the streets.

ARLINGTON PARK

Has electric lights, city water, elegant car service, and in fact, every convenience that goes to make up the ideal city home life.

ARLINGTON PARK

Is selling rapidly. Many homes are to be started at once, and now is the time for you to get in on the ground floor and reap the early harvest that is sure to follow.

ARLINGTON PARK

Is located in the heart of the southwest, along Arlington avenue, Van Ness and Cimarron at Jefferson street, the great southwest cross-town street.

Don't delay. Go out to
ARLINGTON PARK
today. Tract office corner Jefferson and Arlington streets. Take West Jefferson (red or green) car to Arlington st.

FOR SALE—

Wilmington, the closest spot on the harbor of Los Angeles to the city of Los Angeles, in our opinion, presents the greatest opportunities for investors of any section around the great harbor.

$3,000,000 harbor bonds are to be voted on March 16, every dollar of which is to be spent on the harbor of Los Angeles, which will carry every investor to Wilmington. Why not go down now, and buy some of the 120x 125-foot tracts, which we are offering at $1000 each, only $350 of which need be cash, and cut these tracts into 40x125-foot lots, and sell them in the next 30 or 60 days at from $450 to $550 each, or hold them until the harbor bonds are voted, when everybody will want property in that part of Wilmington, where our property is located, and sell your three lots to those people who do not see the opportunity just now, at from $750 to $800 each. That is just what these lots will be worth when "the fellow who waits" wakes up on the morning of March 17 and finds that the city of Los Angeles has voted $3,000,000 in bonds to be spent on the harbor, and that an additional $7,000,000 bond issue to be spent in finishing, what will, without doubt, be one of the world's greatest harbors.

Our property is located within 5 minutes' walk of that portion of the harbor where great industrial enterprises ARE LOCATED, employing hundreds of men.

VAUGHAN-MIDDLETON COMPANY,
815 Security Bldg. Phones—F1225, Main 1453.
After February 1, we will be located 207-208 Story Block. x30

FOR SALE—

On March 16 $3,000,000 harbor bonds will be voted in this city, every dollar of which will be spent on the harbor of Los Angeles. We control the building site situation at the part of Wilmington where activity IS NOW, and where the greatest activity will always be. We have no boom prices on our property. You can buy a tract 120x125 feet from us for $1000, only a part of which need be cash, and you can cut this tract into three forty-foot lots, and sell these lots to people working in these mills adjacent to our property, at from $450 to $550 each. This can be done NOW. What will these lots be worth after the harbor bonds are voted?

This is a proposition that you have to see to understand and appreciate. We are perfectly willing to go with you to Wilmington and take you to see the property, and leave it to you to decide.

We are not offering any more lots than the present demand justifies. Some of the most conservative business men and bankers of this city are with us in this deal, and the personnel of our company, without doubt, is the strongest and most conservative, and we believe the best known of any similar organization that was ever gotten together in this city.

We will be glad to have you call and let us explain the whole matter.

VAUGHAN-MIDDLETON COMPANY,
815 Security Bldg. Phones—F1225, Main 1453.
After February 1 we will be located at 207-208 Story Block. x30

FOR SALE—

We can sell you for $1000, only a part of which need be cash, a piece of ground, 120x 125 feet, which will permit you to cut it up into three 40x125 feet building lots, in that part of Wilmington where the greatest activity IS NOW, and will coninue to be.

These three 40-foot lots you can sell today for from $450 to $550 each; within 5 minutes' walk of this property is located two of the largest industrial enterprises in Southern California. These mills will be employing, within 30 days, from 1000 to 1200 men; these people must have homes and they are buying 40-foot lots and building homes rapidly.

We absolutely control the building situation around these great mills. We have only a few of these tracts left. Better see us promptly. Salesmen and automobiles to show property.

You have to see this property to appreciate its merits.

MR. APARTMENT BUILDER
HERE IS WHAT YOU HAVE BEEN LOOKING FOR

An elegant close in unrestricted lot in the Westlake district, near Burlington avenue and Orange, for only $3200. This property is excellently suited for flats or apartments and if improved at once would yield as great an income as a lot costing three times as much and not any closer to the business section. This lot is 51.48 feet frontage by 134.5 feet in depth and the price is only $3200.

Don't overlook this for good close-in lots at this ridiculously low price are not to be had, but this particular lot must be sold at once. We guarantee this to be absolutely the cheapest unrestricted lot in the Westlake district.

MUST SELL
MY WILSHIRE LOT.

I'm obliged to dispose of my splendidly improved lot in the Wilshire district. Other interests require the money I've put into it. I'm willing to sacrifice just to unload. Pay me a small amount of cash and assume monthly payments of $25; that will let me out and you will get a bargain, for this is one of the best lots in Wilshire. It fronts on a 70-foot oil-tamped avenue, running back to a private drive in the rear. Cement walks and curbs, wide, tastefully-planted parkings, gas, electricity, good car service, in a neighborhood of handsome homes. The new subway line will pass close to my lot; that means 10 minutes to Fourth and Hill streets. Get my price; it's under the market, and do it now. This lot will go to the first person who examines it. Take Pico Heights (not Wilton Place) car and get off at Alta avenue.

FOR SALE—
McKENZIE-CARTER COMPANY.

Call your attention to the WEST ADAMS HEIGHTS DISTRICT.

Property in that vicinity is much cheaper in price than in the Wilshire district. The only reason for this is for want of car service; but the cars will be running to Eleventh avenue in the next four weeks, and then history will repeat itself.

You can buy large 60x175 ft. lots on 27th street, for $2500, on the beautiful high ground overlooking the entire valley, with view extending to "Snow-Capped Old Baldy."

We have some beautiful high terraced lots on 28th street that are ideal, where the view can NEVER be shut off. They are 20 ft. higher than the surrounding country.

We are building a retaining wall, and steps, so there will be nothing for you to do except to build. We only have a few of these beautiful high-terraced lots, and we will sell them at $3000 each for a few days only.

Will raise the price 20 per cent. when the cars are running. You can make this if you buy now.

We have a proposition for a BUILDER; lots from $900 to $1000 in bunches of from ten to fifteen.

WEST ADAMS STREET is now paved almost to our tract. You can use your automobile in all kinds of weather if you live on West Adams street. No other residence street in the city is paved, graveled and oiled like West Adams.

Remember the drainage in the West Adams Park Place Tract when you are looking for a home is worth considering. It has a sandy and gravel sub-soil 30 ft. deep.

SALE—

EAGLE ROCK,
The New Home of OCCIDENTAL COLLEGE.

sales in Eagle Rock last week were the t in our experience. We doubt very whether any other real estate firm in sold half as many lots.

THE REASON.

of our Eagle Rock tracts are conceded the best street improvements ever suburban property. No shoddy cement or light surface oiling for us. We buy cement in five-carload lots, and see that into the work. The road oil used in olithic paving is the heaviest grade altum oil we can buy—and costs us barrel in 1000-barrel lots. All these are well known in Eagle Rock, and aped by buyers of good judgment.

ANOTHER REASON.

addition to constructing the best quality work in our tracts, we control the and most picturesque subdivisions in Rock.

NOW THE CLINCHING REASON.

—Our prices are ACTUALLY LOW- the figures asked for surrounding much of which has not street work and none of which has the same qual- tract improvements that you find on erties.

THINK OF THESE PRICES!

FOR SALE—
"BEACHWOOD," HOLLYWOOD

"Beachwood" is in a "class" by itself. It has no equal. Beachwood is a foothill home tract of charming, exclusive features; 300 feet of elevation without climbing; even temperature, above the fogs, killing frost, the dust and the noise. The pineapple and banana ripen there, the rarest of flowers and foliage thrive in all their tropical glory the year around at Beachwood. All modern conveniences at Beachwood. All lots large, facing 100-foot paved boulevard; 15-ft. parkways, set to ornamental date palms; electroliers will soon light the boulevard at Beachwood. A view of the city, landscape and the shore, unsurpassed at Beachwood. Nestling in the hills, under the protection of Mt. Cahuenga, 1000 feet high, Beachwood invites the homeseeker to share her charms. An ideal home spot, with all the beauty of country life at the city's gates; 25 minutes from Hill-st. station. Take Hollywood Franklin-ave car, get off at Park Drive, Beachwood one block north; 15 houses under contract at Beachwood. A place of beauty and a joy forever. All lots at prices half their value. Will double in few months. Stick a pin here. Go out today. Take Hollywood Franklin-ave. car, get off at Park Drive, go north one block. ALBERT H. FOR SALE—
Acreage for Subdivision.

FOR SALE—

In order to control the building site situation in that portion of the harbor town of Wilmington, where things are doing NOW; we bought several 10-acre blocks of ground, which we will be willing to dispose of to people who would permit us to subdivide and sell it out for their account.

As everyone knows, on March 16th, this city will vote the first issue of the harbor bonds, amounting to $3,000,000, to be followed later by further amounts, until $10,000,000 has been voted, making of our harbor one of the world's greatest land-locked harbors.

For you people who have seen Los Angeles grow we will only have to mention this fact to give you a vague idea of what will be the demands for desirable property in Wilmington, on March 17th, when this city wakes up to the fact that $3,000,000 is available for harbor purposes. You will just about have time to buy this acreage and let us subdivide it and get it ready for the market, by the time the bonds are voted.

We only have a few 10-acre blocks for sale; these blocks adjoin our Millsire tract lots, which are selling rapidly to desirable people. We can show you a profit of 100 per cent., for we bought this acreage before the advance in Wilmington property.

We have with us in our deal some of the most conservative and best known business men and bankers in this city. We can give you the benefit of our investigations in Wilmington, and also arrange to handle the property out for you, in a way that will meet with your entire approval.

Better see us early on this matter, for we only have a few 10-acre blocks to dispose of.

that within five years you will have gotten back more than one-fourth of the purchase price in rentals, without additional expense, and the ground value will have more than doubled.

ANOTHER THING TO REMEMBER.
Eighth and Broadway will always remain the choicest and highest priced property, in the center of the shopping district.

SURROUNDING IMPROVEMENTS.
The largest and finest establishment of its kind, west of Chicago, is located directly opposite this choice piece of property.

THE CORNER ADJOINING.
Could not be purchased for $7500 per foot, the owner now contemplating the erection of a very large and handsome building.

GUARANTEED INVESTMENT.
If you are looking for a high-class conservative and guaranteed investment, this is your one opportunity, act quickly.

FOR SALE—SPRING ST., NEAR 4TH.
$3500 PER FOOT—$3500.
60x150 TO 20 FT. PAVED ALLEY.

After 18 years' experience on Spring st. I could tell you a lot of actual occurrences that would show you how many fellows have lost fortunes by listening to knockers, and how many have made fortunes by paying what "wiseacres" "CALLED" high prices, but which turned out to be fortune makers. The lot I am offering you will make you about $150,000 to $180,000 profit in about 7 years, I firmly believe. It only means that, JUST AS SURE as our population prognosticators' predictions pan out, you needn't fear about prices following in proportion. There are right now SEVERAL MILLIONS of dollars' worth of buildings planned to be erected within ONE BLOCK OF THIS LOT.

If you can afford to buy the cream, don't stand back because you can't get it at a skimmed-milk price. Los Angeles isn't built that way. Many a fellow has come within $10,000 or $15,000 of making big fortunes on Spring and Broadway, but stood out for $200 or $300 a foot "hold up," SO CALLED, and let the lot go by; and the fellow who stood for the high price (so called) made $2000 OR $3000 a foot profit. The instances are too numerous to mention, but if you want to hear them mentioned just come up to 447 Wilcox Bldg. and the old man can accommodate you good and plenty. This is the proper place for some "wise one" to say that I'm writing like I thought my price was $200 or $300 a foot too high. Well, son, I'm "not guilty." It's the AVERAGE WISEACRE who has ALWAYS called our prices on Spring and Fourth "too high" ever since I pounded away on the lot the 12-story Union Trust Bldg. stands on, trying to sell it at $1000 per foot; and when later I sold it at $1147 per foot several "conservative bankers" scared the sand out of the craw of the fellow who bought it. But he stood for the "big price" and more than doubled his money in less than 5 years. So much for "high prices." All I ask you is to come and see me if you can "afford the best."

MR. APARTMENT BUILDER
HERE IS WHAT YOU HAVE BEEN LOOKING FOR
An elegant close in unrestricted lot in the Westlake district, near Burlington avenue and Orange, for only $3200. This property is excellently suited for flats or apartments and if improved at once would yield as great an income as a lot costing three times as much and not any closer to the business section. This lot is 51.48 feet frontage by 134.5 feet in depth and the price is only $3200.
Don't overlook this for good close-in lots at this ridiculously low price are not to be had, but this particular lot must be sold at once. We guarantee this to be absolutely the cheapest unrestricted lot in the Westlake district.

HOMES IN ALHAMBRA.
WHY A HOME IN ALHAMBRA?

Because it is the best city in California for families. Look at this combination; no other city in California can match it, viz

The purest of mountain spring water. High elevation, good air.
Clean streets; well shaded, fine trees.
Low taxes; clean city government.
Fine breeze every afternoon. (No high winds.)
Scarcely ever frost or fog.
Beautiful school buildings, highest grade.
Best of superintendents and teachers money can hire.
Live newspaper, awake to Alhambra's interests.
No saloons, and "cooler" empty.
Good churches and more building.
Good clubhouse, well managed.
Choice society, settled by choice families from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore; lecturers, writers, historians, editors and musicians of the highest order.
Surely of all localities in California Alhambra leads for home and family.
The best people in the world that have traveled, and know what is good, have selected Alhambra as their home.
We have the climate, fruit and flowers, and we have the lots, cottages, bungalows, houses, mansions, villas, from $1000 to $100,000. We have the cream of Alhambra and San Gabriel property listed.
Fine residence lots, $500 to $1250.
Single acres, $500 to $2500.
We make a specialty of home places.
We make a specialty of orange groves.
One-acre home place to 10-acre dividend-paying orange grove.
See our advertisement under Orange Groves.
Get off cars at First and Main.

FOR SALE—
FULLERTON-PLACENTIA ORANGE AND WALNUT LAND.
Beautifully situated on Orange-Thorpe ave. and right on main ditch of the Anaheim Union Water Company. This ranch was recently sold to a gentleman for a country home but owing to another business he was compelled to give it up. Has large new 10-room house, 5 bedrooms, elegant porch extending in front and on one side of house to kitchen. Very attractively built; heavy solid pillar supports. Altogether an exceptionally attractive residence from a distance. The large living-room with immense fireplace is what really appeals to the lover of the old-fashioned fireplace. A large living-room opens up on the end and facing the living-room is an elegant buffet. The hall is very large and leads past the stairway to another room which could be used as a breakfast-room. Upstairs is a very nice bathroom with bath, toilet and medicine chest.
20 ACRES WALNUTS
There are 20 acres of the finest 12-year-old English walnuts you ever saw. Positively the finest soil in this garden spot. The income from these trees is about $3000 a year. 18 acres vacant land ready to plant to Valencia oranges. This is only a short distance from the famous and the same kind of soil. About 5 acres of the 18 is in cabbage. Large lawn with flowers and a driveway lined with lawn on either side extending to the road. This place in a few years will be worth $75,000. The price now is $32,000. Half cash, balance time at 7 per cent.
CHAPMAN ORANGE GROVE

ALFALFA OR FRUIT LAND.
220 acres irrigated, $65 per acre.
The best buy in California today. It is in Yolo county, too. The Yolo County Consolidated Irrigation Co. is building one of their main ditches through this 220 acres now, which will throw all but about 50 acres under irrigation and the land is rich and deep. No hardpan, no alkali, and soil that will grow anything you plant. And especially almonds, walnuts, oranges, figs, apricots and alfalfa.

This land will jump to twice this value as soon as the ditch is finished. We guarantee the ditch. "No water, no sale." That's plain enough. Besides, we give free water rights and charge no irrigation tax. Only pay for what you use. Every one knows Yolo county. And everything we have said in this ad. is true and we want to show you this land. It is one in a thousand. Write or call on

SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY—

FOR SALE—

FRESNO COUNTY.

BEST BUY IN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY.

We have for sale 160 acres in Western Fresno county. Land is all level and entirely free of alkali or hardpan. Water conditions are easy. This land is suitable for alfalfa, grain, trees, etc. It is near the several large tracts which have been recently purchased by Los Angeles capitalists, and is in the heart of a section where a vast amount of development work is taking place at the present time. For the farmer who wishes to secure a high-class piece of ground, or the investor who purchases for speculative purposes, this quarter section possesses exceptional advantages. It is on the market for a limited time at $12.50 per acre, all cash. We are willing to insure a net profit of 15 per cent. on this tract within one year. For further particulars, see

FOR SALE—
NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY AN ORANGE GROVE.

Not only do you SEE the crop on the trees but you GET it.

By seeing the matured fruit on the trees you can judge the quality of the grove. By getting the present crop you save about one-fifth the cost of the grove.

THESE ARE UNQUESTIONABLY THE BEST GROVES IN COVINA.

FIVE ACRES IN YOUNG VALENCIAS. Family orchard and three-room house; well located, one-half mile from electric. Good barn and outbuildings; trees in first-class condition; $5500, part cash.

A MAGNIFICENT HOME PLACE OF FIVE acres, right in town, on one of the best corners in Covina. Large modern 8-room house; handsome grounds. Large crop on trees now included in the price of $11,500. We do not know of a finer property in the whole Covina district. It is a remarkable opportunity to acquire a show place at a price that guarantees a profitable investment.

TWENTY ACRES, YOUNG TREES, HALF Valencias, half navels, all in prime condition. New 4-room bungalow, large barn, beautiful live oak in yard. This grove is growing very rapidly into a most valuable property. Can be purchased now for $14,500, on easy terms.

A GOOD PRODUCER, WELL LOCATED. 10-acre grove in full bearing; 7 acres Navels, 3 acres Valencias; 30 shares Covina water. Good crop included in price. Owner is non-resident and must sell. One of the best small groves in the district. $16,000, part cash.

RIGHT ON COVINA ELECTRIC CAR LINE. 12½ acres in Valencias, 5 and 6 years old, in splendid condition. New four-room house. Three shares Azusa water to each acre. One of the finest young Valencia groves in the district. Price $16,600. Easy terms.

FIFTEEN ACRES IN FULL BEARING NAVELS, Valencias and St. Michaels. Large house and outbuildings, choice location. We can deliver for $1500 per acre, including heavy crop.

HERE IS A TWENTY-ACRE GROVE THAT any experienced grower would be proud to own. We doubt very much whether a finer property can be found in Southern California. All trees 12 years old, about half navels and half Valencias. Crop estimated at 6000 boxes, is included. Good seven-room house, bath, etc. Price $32,500, part cash.

San Pedro.

FOR SALE—AT SAN PEDRO.
THE POINT FIRMIN TRACT.

$630,000 appropriation has been made by U. S. Government for San Pedro.

The government is spending millions here. The $10,000,000 of harbor bonds which will be voted by Los Angeles city will make great harbor improvements. The 146 acres in outer harbor will be the site for great warehouses, docks and general shipping business.

Lots in the Point Firmin tract are sightly, overlooking the whole harbor, the 146 acres and the big $3,000,000 government breakwater. Lots run to water's edge and command the finest view on Pacific Coast.

We sell these lots cheaper than lots elsewhere in Southern California—$1000 to $2500 for large lots. Easy terms.

BUSINESS CHANCES—
For Sale.

FOR SALE—

$350 cash and your notes for $450, bearing only 6 per cent. interest, will buy for you in that part of Wilmington where the greatest activity is now and will continue to be, a tract of ground, 120x125 feet, that can be cut into three 40x125-foot lots that will sell a from $450 to $550 each.

The city of Los Angeles on March 16 will vote $3,000,000 harbor bonds, every dollar of which will be spent on the harbor of Los Angeles, and without doubt Wilmington will receive greatest benefit from this improvement. The city is pledged to vote an additional $7,000,000 for the harbor, which will make it one of the greatest harbors in the world. Any banker in Los Angeles will tell you that money invested in good property at Wilmington is absolutely safe, and will return to you a greater profit than an investment made in any other section of this rapidly-growing city.

Remember that the property we are offering is located where the harbor is now completed; where ships bring their full cargoes and anchor at great industrial institutions, which are within five minutes' walk of our property. These mills and factories are now employing several hundred men, and within thirty days there will be from 1000 to 1200 men at work in these mills, which we repeat, are located within five minutes' walk of our property.

Money invested in any part of Wilmington, if you buy the property at the right price, is a good investment, but in some sections around the harbor you may have to wait until the harbor is completed before getting returns from your investment. Where our property is located you can buy today, and sell immediately at a profit if you so desire.

See us soon, for we only have a few of these tracts left, and as building operations have already begun on our tract, it will not be long before the entire property is disposed of. Come in and let us show you the proposition and tell you who is interested with us in the deal, and what kind of people are buying these tracts from us.

VAUGHAN-MIDDLETON COMPANY,
815 Security Bldg. Phones—F1285, Main 1452.
After February 1, we will be located 207-208 Story Block. x30

FOR SALE—

In order to control the building site situation in that portion of the harbor town of Wilmington, where things are doing NOW, we bought several 10-acre blocks of ground, which we will be willing to dispose of to people who would permit us to subdivide and sell it out for their account.

As everyone knows, on March 16th this city will vote the first issue of the harbor bonds, amounting to $3,000,000, to be followed later by further amounts, until $10,000,000 has been voted, making of our harbor one of the world's greatest landlocked harbors.

For you people who have seen Los Angeles grow, we will only have to mention this fact to give you a vague idea of what will be the demand for desirable property in Wilmington on March 17th, when this city wakes up to the fact that $3,000,000 is available for harbor purposes. You will just about have time now to buy this acreage and let us subdivide it and get it ready for the market, by the time the bonds are voted.

We have only a few 10-acre blocks for sale. These blocks adjoin our Millside Tract lots, which we are selling rapidly to desirable people. We can show you a profit of 100 per cent., for we bought this acreage before the advance in Wilmington property.

We have with us in our deal some of the most conservative and best-known business men and bankers in this city. We can give you the benefit of our investigations in Wilmington, and also arrange to handle the property out for you, in a way that will meet with your entire approval.

Better see us early on this matter, for we only have a few 10-acre blocks to dispose of.

VAUGHAN-MIDDLETON COMPANY,
815 Security Bldg. Phones F1285, Main 1452.
After Feb. 1st we will be located 207-208 Story Block. x30

It Stops FITS

TRIAL BOTTLE GIVEN FREE

To neglect Epilepsy is dangerous. It not only impairs the general health, but is a constant menace to life and limb. The discovery that Fits are purely a nervous disorder has led to the application of the great remedy, Dr. Guertin's Nerve Syrup, with the happy result that the first few doses have stopped the attacks in some of the most distressing cases of Epilepsy. Why, then, should any one go on and suffer with these awful convulsions, besides running the risk of a life-endangering fall, when relief is to be had? It is guaranteed harmless, strengthens the nerves, and children take it willingly because it tastes good.

For Epilepsy or falling sickness, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Insomnia and Nervous twitchings, there is no better, no safer medicine than Dr. Guertin's Nerve Syrup. Large-size bottle, sufficient for nearly two months' treatment, costs only one dollar. If the first bottle does not benefit, come and get your money back.

Owl Drug Co. and Sun Drug Co.'s Stores in Los Angeles and leading druggists everywhere sell it with this guarantee. Your nearest druggist can get it for you through his wholesaler. Ask him to keep Dr. Guertin's Nerve Syrup on hand for you, and don't let him talk you into something else. A big bottle sent absolutely free to try if you write to Kalmus Chemical Co., Sta. S, New York City.

EVERY MAN Needs It

Every man, who suffers from exhaustion, lost strength, nervous debility, lumbago, rheumatism or weakness of any kind ought to read my big free book, which tells how men become strong and vigorous after a few applications of Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt.

This book is written in plain language and beautifully illustrated with pictures of well-built, robust men and women. It explains many secrets you should know. Remember, it is absolutely free if you'll bring or mail me this coupon.

Don't wait a minute. Cut out the coupon right now.

Call if you can. Consultation free.

Office Hours—9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Monday and Saturday until 9 p.m. Sunday, 10 to 12.

THE MARKETS.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

The usual light Saturday morning business prevailed on the markets yesterday. There were no changes in most varieties of staples and fresh commodities. One of the features in the vegetable market was the arrival of some excellent eggplant from Cuba. It sold at 20 cents a pound, against 8 cents on the remaining local stock, which is of rather inferior grade. Cuban tomatoes were unchanged in prices. Mexican stock sold at the same figure, and Redlands tomatoes were down to 50 cents per five-pound box, or 10 cents a pound.

Receipts of eggs were 225 cases. The prices were unchanged, leaving the market on the best local eggs at 32 cents at the end of the week. Last year the price on the same grade of eggs on the same date was 37 cents, 5 cents higher than the present market. This was occasioned by lighter receipts than have been the rule this season.

Butter receipts were 36,612 pounds, the largest in some time. Prices have not changed a particle in the week. Receipts have been large and the market is still weak. The price at present parallels that of last year. Eastern fresh butter has stopped coming entirely and all eastern butter now sold is storage stock.

Cheese receipts were 587 pounds. Eastern cheddars and longhorns were the varieties in most demand. There were no changes in quotations of cheese during the week.

Potato receipts were 2332 sacks. The market on potatoes is still holding at $1.25 on Highlands, which is the stock most plentiful. Last year at this time Highlands were selling for just $1 per hundred more than they are at present. Receipts have been large right along and the supply is heavier than last season.

Onions are also lower by $1 per hundred than last year. They are averaging $1.50 to $1.60. No changes were recorded in onion prices this week, and the market is only steady owing to large arrivals of the week. Yesterday only 16 sacks arrived.

Bean receipts totaled 400 sacks. The market was steady and the demand was light. There were no changes in any varieties. Pink beans are selling for $1.75 more a hundred this year than last. The same is true of whites and other varieties are naturally higher.

Sweet potato receipts were 245 sacks. The price on sweets of best quality continues at $2.50 per hundred. No changes have been recorded since Monday.

SAN FRANCISCO LIST.

Trading Not Extensive—Some One Is Making an Effort to Gain Control of Mayflower.

[Special Service to The Times by B. F. Taylor, No. 112 West Third street.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—With the exception of a 2½c rise in Florence and Goldfield Consolidated and a 2-point loss in Jumbo Extension, there were no changes in the Goldfield list.

The Bullfrogs and stocks in the outlying camps are unchanged from last night.

Belmont was up 2½; Tonopah Extension gained 1; Montana was off 2; McNamara lost 1 and the balance of the Tonopahs were unchanged.

In the Comstock list, Belcher closed at 1.40 bid, against an offering of 1.35 last night. The balance of the Comstocks moved within 2 points of yesterday.

As is usual on Saturdays, trading was not extensive.

Some one is trying to get control of Mayflower and is bidding 1c a share for 500,000 or 1,000,000 shares. No stock is offered at less than 2c. The fate of the company will be known next Saturday, when the special meeting of the stockholders will be held in Rhyolite.

SHARES AND MONEY.

WALL STREET IS MORE BUOYANT.

MARKET GRADUALLY SHAKING OFF DEPRESSION.

Moderate Buying Raises All Price Levels—Union Pacific Gains in Spite of Decision to Press Dissolution Suits—Bank Loans Increase Ten Millions.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Today's stock market was exempt again from the kind of selling pressure which disorganized the market in the early part of the week. The way was left open to some further recovery and moderate buying was sufficient to raise the price level. The action of Union Pacific in face of the refusal of the government authorities to discontinue the suit to dissolve the merger with the Southern Pacific was an index of the extent to which the week's liquidation has relieved the situation. That stock has been most acutely affected of all the prominent market leaders by the week's depression, presumably from apprehension of last night's decision by the Attorney-General's office to push the suit against the company. The dip in price was but momentary today, followed by aggressive buying, and an advance which carried the whole market with sympathy. News that the crest of the Paris floods had passed was received with relief, but the situation there left some shade of anxiety on the financial market. The lack of ready communication with the French capital today left a fear that recourse for relief to outside financial markets might be only deferred. Whatever relief measures may be found necessary, confidence is felt that they will be adopted with deliberation and without sudden disturbing effect on outside markets. Commercial and industrial advices recognized some lull in activity, and it was admitted that some further reflection of this week's unsettlement in the stock market might be looked for in business. The fact that the Supreme Court will adjourn on Monday for a three week's recess was relied on to afford some relief from the suspense of watching for the American Tobacco case decision. Last prices were considerably below the best, with a rather heavy tone at the closing. Another actual increase over $10,000,000 in clearing-house bank loans, in spite of the week's heavy stock market liquidation, is a revelation of other credit requirements for which provision had been made, and may serve to throw additional light on the real causes of the stock market depression. Bonds were firm. Total sales, par value, $1,575,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call for the week.

New York Curb Stocks.

[Special Telegram to The Times by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members New York Stock Exchange, No. 112 West Third street, Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The curb market, with the exception of Ely Central, was quiet with a strong undertone until near the close, when a rally started and the whole list closed at the best of the day. Miami, which has been hanging around 23½@24, closed strong with a net gain of $1 from the opening. This stock is due to go much higher, as we believe all the good copper stocks are. Ely Central, which has been quoted recently at 1¾, jumped up to 2.00 and closed at 2 1-16. Live Oak was exceedingly strong, running up from $20 to $24. This is one of the new Miami district properties that will be heard from. Chino continues strong and in demand, and much better things are predicted for it. Following are the closing quotations:

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, Jan. 29.—[Reported by A. B. Wollaber, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.84; at 5 p.m., 29.86. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 51 deg. and 65 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 82 per cent.; 5 p.m., 57 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., northeast, velocity 4 miles; 5 p.m., southwest, velocity 4 miles. Maximum temperature, 72 deg.; minimum, 48 deg. Rainfall for season, 10.36 inches; rainfall last season to date, 11.32 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

Weather Conditions.—There has been a marked fall in pressure over the Southwest during the last twenty-four hours, attending the approach of a moderate disturbance which has moved eastward over Mexico and is now entering the United States over New Mexico and Western Texas. This disturbance has caused some cloudiness and somewhat lower temperature in the coast districts of Southern California, otherwise but little change has occurred in the weather west of the Rocky Mountains. The South Atlantic storm has increased in energy and moved northward along the coast, causing general precipitation from New England to Florida and in the lake region, Ohio and Mississippi valleys. The indications are for generally fair weather in Los Angeles and vicinity and over the fruit belt tonight and Sunday. Owing to the proximity of the disturbance to the south, some cloudiness will probably prevail at intervals.

Forecasts.—Local forecast for Los Angeles and vicinity: Generally fair, probably with some cloudiness at intervals tonight and Sunday; winds mostly northerly.

Local forecast for Riverside, Pasadena, Redlands and San Bernardino: Generally fair, probably with some cloudiness at intervals tonight and Sunday.

General forecast for Southern California: Fair tonight and Sunday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Forecasts:

San Francisco and vicinity: Fair Sunday; light northeast wind.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair Sunday; light southwest wind.

Santa Clara and San Joaquin valleys: Fair Sunday; light north wind.

Sacramento Valley: Fair Sunday; light south wind.

Firm Undertone Keeps Wheat Firm, Caused by Favorable Foreign Cables—May Corn Travels Downward—Oats Were Weak—Provisions Rule Lower, Except January Pork.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Trading in grains was within narrow limits today. Wheat and oats advanced slightly and corn fell off in about the same measure. Provisions ruled generally lower, January pork being the only exception to the decline. A firm undertone was manifested throughout the day in the wheat pit, strength being contributed by foreign cables because of slight advances in Liverpool prices and a good demand in the north and west. Prices swayed up and down, the fluctuations ranging from 3-8 to 5-8. Liberal arrivals tended to keep prices at a low level. May advanced from 1.11 to 1.11 5-8. The close was firm with May at 1.11⅛@1.11 3-8, ⅛ higher than yesterday's final figures. May corn traveled down from 66 7-8@66 to 66½ and closed at 66 5-8, 1-8@¼ lower than yesterday's final quotations. Trade in oats was comparatively weak at the start, but changed to firmness through influential buying. Fluctuations were within a narrow range, the variations not exceeding ¼. May advanced from 46 5-8 to 46 7-8 and closed at 46⅝; a shade higher than yesterday. Provisions closed 2½ to 5 lower than yesterday.

Cash quotations were as follows: Flour, steady; winter patents, 5.20@5.65; straights, 5.00@5.40; spring, straights, 4.90@5.05; bakers', 3.90@5.35; No. 2 rye, 81; feed or mixing barley, 65@67; fair to choice malting, 68@71; flaxseed, No. 1 southwestern, 2.05; No. 1 northwestern, 2.15; timothy seed, 4.15; clover, 13.25; mess pork, per bbl., 20.75@21.25; lard, per 100 lbs., 11.75@11.77½; short ribs, sides (loose), 11.00@11.75; short clear sides (boxed), 12.00@12.25.

Grain Statistics.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Total clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 185,000 bushels; primary receipts were 732,000 bushels, compared with 381,000 bushels the corresponding day a year ago; estimated receipts for Monday, wheat, 7 cars; corn, 364 cars; oats, 545 cars; hogs, 34,000 head.

New York Cotton Market.

[Private wire to E. F. Hutton & Co., Members New York Stock Exchange, No. 112 West Third street.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The cotton market was fairly active and lower. Cables were disappointing in the decline in futures, but this to a certain extent was offset by unusual sales for Saturday of spot cotton. The market opened down and rallied a little, but later showed further pressure, and there was a good deal of cotton on the market during the morning. Prices showed a loss of about fifteen points the first hour under the pressure of offerings. The southern spot news was unchanged. Prices are firmly held and the offerings from the country are reflected in the smallness of the movement. Some reports this morning that further lots of spot cotton were to be shipped to this port. While the local receipts have been large the last day or two, they have been made up of a good deal of stuff to New England points. There is not, however, a very large trade on the advances or declines. Logan & Bryan's letter follows: "The commercial spirit of America is being undermined and destroyed with pessimism and the semi-humorous tirade against the cost of living seems to be swelling into a protest that promises to become a frenzy, much more far reaching than first fear. Many people who felt comfortably well to do sixty days ago have hypnotized themselves into the idea that they are financial bankrupts, when in reality it is metal bankruptcy. This rash or disorder is affecting the cotton market despite the merit in possesses from a statistical standpoint and notwithstanding the continued refusal on the part of spot holders to sell. Patience and less pessimism will eventually bring us higher prices for cotton, but the new crop can bring no actual relief before the middle of October."

RARE CASE.

MARE A VICTIM OF HYDROPHOBIA

BITE OF MAD DOG IS FATAL TO VALUABLE ANIMAL.

Another Horse Bitten Is Being Carefully Watched—First Case, So Far as Is Known, in This City. Veterinary Who Watched Symptoms, Says He Is Certain of Cause.

Hydrophobia, resulting from a dog's bite, is given as the cause of the death of a valuable mare belonging to the L. W. Blinn Lumber Company, at East Sixteenth and Alameda streets.

So far as can be learned this is the first horse that has died of this disease in Los Angeles. In the East and Middle West, where rabies is more frequent than here, it is seldom that a horse succumbs after being bitten by dogs.

The dog, a large white bull, beloged to a teamster by the name of Tucker, who works for the Blinn company. About the first of the year, Tucker, alarmed by the growing viciousness of his dog and fearing for the safety of his children, took the dog over to the company's barn, in a corner of the big lumber yard on Alameda street. There the dog was chained in a stall and kept under surveillance until January 2, when it was freed in a singular manner.

In the stall next to the dog was a powerful Percheron mare, an animal valued at $300. Annoyed by the dog's continued yelping, barking, and whining, the mare stretched her neck over the partition and lowered her head as if in mute protest.

With a savage growl, the bulldog leaped upward and fastened his fangs firmly in the nose of the unfortunate mare. The mare, frantic with pain, lifted her head with such a powerful sweep that the dog's chain was snapped, and the mad dog was hurled down on the floor of the mare's stall. There followed a great battle, during which the mare tried to stamp its assailant under foot, but the dog managed to escape through the open stable door.

The bitten mare was nailed up in her stall and a close watch was kept upon her, but this was only after she had bitten another of the company's horses. The second bitten horse is still being worked, but under close watch.

After the mare had bitten her harness mate, she began to show symptoms of rabies, becoming more and more violent as the disease became more acute. About a week or nine days ago, the hydrophobic animal became so violent that none dared approach her. She bit and chewed the woodwork of her stall constantly, and snapped at whoever drew near. Once, in her furious struggles, the mare threw herself to the floor, and the stablemen thought she was dying. The halter was loosed a bit, and the mare was on feet like a flash.

Friday evening, however, the disease had made such inroads that the mare was unable to arise from a second fall and apparently choked to death on her halter, being too weak to hold her head high enough to relieve the strain, while attendants feared to approach.

Dr. W. A. Connolly, the veterinary surgeon who was called in the case, said last night that he had no doubt that the mare's death was due to rabies. "I'm sure is was hydrophobia," he said.

Superintendent Calvert of the Blinn company said he had heard that the dog, after its escape, had bitten another dog and had subsequently been killed. Other reports were to the effect that the dog had also btiten the child of a policeman before being killed, but this could not be substantiated.

The horse bitten by the mad mare has not yet shown any trace of the disease, but Superintendent Calvert said yesterday that no chances would be taken, and that the least symptom would be the signal for putting it out of the way.

FREE Until February 10th. Consultation, Examination and Treatment

All Diseases (except Malignant and Drug Habits)--Until Cured

All who call at our offices on or before Feb. 10 will be treated until cured Free. We do this to further introduce our Specific German Remedies for the cure of difficult Chronic Diseases. The Germans are far ahead of all other nations in the discovery of new remedies for the cure of diseases; one well-known remedy may be mentioned, Antitoxin; this remedy has reduced the death rate of Diphtheria 75 per cent. The world looks to Germany for nearly all new and valuable remedies. The only offices and Sanatorium on the Pacific Coast equipped to treat and cure Diseases with the New Specific German Remedies. The majority of cases can be cured in our offices, some can be cured only in a Sanatorium. We have all mechanical and Electrical apparatus known to be good in curing diseases. We do not treat incurable diseases.

The New and Scientific Treatment of Diseases based upon the cellular pathology of Prof. Virchow, the greatest scientist of modern times.

The complex human body can be reduced to very simple elements—cells and intercellular substances, to which they give origin; these two elements make up every tissue of the body. It is now universally accepted that the cell is the seat of nutrition and function. Health and disease must be considered as terms referring, not to the body as a whole, but to the cells of which it is composed. The complete healthy life of a cell consists in the perfect performance of all of its functions; failure in any one of these will cause disease.

We should have abandoned long ago the theory that disease is due to a disorder of the blood. The blood is itself a product of the cells of the body, and its condition does not determine their health or disease, but is an index of their condition. We must examine and direct our treatment of the cells if we ever expect to cure diseases.

Food is taken into the body, digested and absorbed; the blood carries the prepared foodstuff to the cells, where they are taken up and become part of the substance of the cell, replacing some older material which has been broken down.

Our New System supplies the cells with that which is necessary to remove the disease and quickly restore the patient to health. This in the last analysis is the only scientific method of curing diseases.

This simple statement of facts has never before been given to the public. These facts cannot fail to impress deeply the minds of all intelligent persons. Please call at our offices or write for further information, which will be cheerfully given. Hours 9 to 4, 7 to 8; Sunday 10 to 12. Cancer, Tumors, New Cure, Book Free. WISER THAN BIRDS.

CANADIANS GO TO SOUTHLAND.

Crown City Winter Rendezvous of Colonials.

Go Migrating Birds One Better by Settling Here.

Foothill Cities Report Growing Realty Activities.

PASADENA, Jan. 30.—Building permits filed with the building inspector up to last night show the best January in the history of the city, with the exception of 1907. The totals for this month so far are $90,217. The largest permit of the month was for the residence of Frank Wallace for $15,000.

Permits for private residences during the past week were: B. M. Wotkyns, six-room bungalow, $3300, at No. 654 Huntington Terrace; H. E. Wilhite, seven-room bungalow, $2000, in the Walnut Grove addition.

Pasadena has the largest number of winter visitors this winter in the history of the city. An unusual number of these are Canadians. There are several hundred people registered from Vancouver, Victoria, Alberta and Winnipeg. Many of these northern visitors are carefully investigating real estate in Southern California and not a few of them have already made investments.

The William R. Staats Company reports a good week's business, particularly in the Oak Knoll district. These deals follow: Oak Knoll Company to Llewellyn W. Jutten, lot 245x301 feet, on El Molino avenue near Allendale road. Mr. Jutten will improve with a beautiful residence. The purchaser represented by Mahlon Stambach. Frank Roger Mowrer has purchased through the Staats company a lot of 150 feet frontage on Oak Knoll avenue, just south of Pinehurst, for $3000. Mr. Mowrer will improve his lot with a pretty home.

Jane M. Phillips has sold to Daniel Craig and Ed A. Marshall, through the Staats company two lots on Madison Avenue Heights for a consideration of $4200. The same agency has sold to Charles Snyder a lot of 82 feet frontage, $8000. This lot adjoins the property recently bought by Mr. Snyder from Harry C. Allen for $30,000. Mr. Snyder now has a frontage of 400 feet.

Edwin A. Potter, a wealthy retired capitalist of Cleveland, O., who has been spending his winters in Pasadena for several years, has bought a beautiful building site on South Fair Oaks avenue opposite the Raymond golf links and will soon begin the erection of a $25,000 home.

Real estate activity in North Pasadena continues. Thirteen lots have been sold there within the past few days. Mr. Newell has purchased six lots from Mrs. Heald of San Luis Obispo, on Dennulson avenue west of Fair Oaks, for $3000. C. W. Upton has bought two lots from William Esterbrook on Glen avenue north of Crosby street, for $700. L. Y. Brown has bought a lot of the Sunset tract from Iwan Serriuer fo. $600.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS.

FOOTHILL CITY ACTIVITIES.

SIERRA MADRE, Jan. 29.—The recent improvements, with prospects of a municipal water system and the addition of a gas plant, have started real estate activity in the foothill city. Ten miles of paved streets, just completed, at an expanse of over $100,000 has also added greatly to the value of residence property.

An election of stockholders of the Sierra Madre Water Company was held on Friday night for the purpose of offering to sell the plant to the city for $96,000. The proposition failed on account of a lack of stock represented at the meeting. Those present were almost unanimously in favor of making the sale and another meeting will be called soon. The city has advertised for bids for a gas plant.

Real estate dealers report good sales since the first of the year. Capt. J. A. Osgood has purchased two lots on Grandlin avenue and will build an eight-room bungalow. S. J. Sokol has purchased the home of W. A. Walker on Hightland avenue for $5000. Mr. Walker has purchased the two adjoining lots and will build another bungalow to cost $5000. W. B. Drackett has commenced the foundations for four six-room bungalows to cost $4000 each.

A. S. Mead reports several good sales. Mrs Arlene Kern to Mrs. Nellie M. Emery, lot on Ramona street, $500; Mrs. Arlene Kern to J. A. Patterson, lot on Ramona street, $500; Henry Harris to Miss Lydia Webster, 100 foot lot on Esperanza avenue, $500; Miss Mae Campbell to S. R. Winter, quarter acre in Park Manor, $500; Mrs. N. J. Emmerson to Marie Moravec, lot on Hotel street, $350; Lewis Newcomb to William McCullough, lot on Grand View, $600; Joseph Bergien a lot on Central avenue $1000. Mr. Bergien will erect a brick furniture store on his lot. J. V. Bartow who recently bought a lot on Highland avenue, will begin an eight-room bungalow next week, to cost $3500.

MARKET FULLY ALIVE.

GROVES AND LOTS IN DEMAND.

REDLANDS, Jan. 29.—The heavy frosts of this season have not served to "down" the real estate market in this section. Groves, both large and small, are selling at good prices, showing the faith of old and new residents in orange acreage as an investment.

Fourteen acres of oranges belonging to A. H. Holgate have been sold to John McIntosh for $25,000. The property is located on East Lugonia avenue, adjoining the famous Hubbard grove. John Boesch has sold to Mrs. S. M. Evans a nine-acre orange grove on the north side of Cypress avenue, between Sunnyside and San Mateo streets, the consideration being $20,000.

Ten acres of oranges for $18,000 was the consideration in a deal just closed in which J. M. Woehr bought from Dr. W. K. Wright. The property is located at the corner of Park avenue and Iowa streets. Mr. Woehr gives in part payment his Colton avenue residence. Mrs. E. F. Daly has purchased of Mrs. Edward Hotchkiss her Summit avenue home paying therefor $15,000.

Seven and a half acres of navel oranges have been sold by A. J. Wilson to H. H. Scott, the reported consideration being $12,000. The grove is located on Center street above Crescent avenue and adjoins the Higgins place. B. P. Dugan, has traded his property on East Colton avenue, between Times and Alta streets, for a twenty-acre improved ranch at Hemet. Mr. Dugan also pays a cash consideration to J. A. Wright, the seller. The value of the properties is in the neighborhood of $12,000.

Sylvester Link has sold his six and a half acre ranch at the corner of Highland avenue and Dearborn streets to Warren Tucker, receiving $12,000. John Clark has traded a ten-acre orange grove near Rialto to George Rossitermof this city for property at No. 133 Angelica street. The grove is valued at about $15,000. D. S. Jordon has purchased from Dr. W. M. Johnson the property at the corner of Norwood street and Olive avenue, paying therefor $4000. J. G. Roth has purchased the Fred Durham house at the corner of Bond street and Olive avenue, paying $4500. Among the city property deals of the week was the sale of the home of E. G. Judson at the corner of Highland avenue and Center street to Senator H. M. Willis. No consideration is given.

SPANISH VETERANS' EVENT.

Stand of Colors to Be Presented Friday Evening, Anniversary of Philippine Outbreak.

The following order has issued from Department Commander Mulqueeney to the Spanish War Veterans of California: "One of the most important events in the history of our beloved order in this State will occur Friday evening, February 4, 1910, in the Western Fraternal Hall, 231½ South Spring street, Los Angeles (over Orpheum Theater,) on the occasion of the presentation to the department of a handsome and valuable stand of colors, national and departmental, by Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, a member of Roosevelt Camp, No. 9, and a veteran of three wars.

"The date selected for the presentation is the anniversary of the outbreak of the Philippine insurrection, and it is, therefore, fitting that every comrade and eligible member commemorate by his presence at exercises so patriotic in character and far reaching in significance his undying devotion to flag and country; honoring and respecting the valorous deeds of the nation's defenders, and according high appreciation of the sentiment which makes such occasions as the presentation of these beautiful emblems possible in our organization.

"Commanders are urged to notify every member of the camp by written notice or otherwise to be present if possible. The Ladies' Auxiliaries are also cordially invited and it is expected that the respective camps will convey this information to their auxiliaries. Other patriotic societies will be present, and an enjoyable programme has been arranged."

The colors to be presented are a national standard and a department flag of cherry-colored silk; upon one side of the latter flag is the badge of the Spanish War Veterans; on the other, the seal of the State of California.

There will be present, representatives of all the local camps of Spanish War veterans, G.A.R. posts, Ladies of the G.A.R., Women's Relief Corps and Philippine Society and local companies of the National Guard.

We Treat You 30 Days FREE

Blood Poison can never be cured with mercury or potash. You might as well know this first as last. Medical authorities say so. The most these drugs can do is to drive the blood poison back into the system and smother it for several years. Then when you think you are cured, pitiful mercury symptoms will break out, and you find that your bones have been rotting all the while. Your teeth will begin to loosen and your tissues, glands, brain and vital organs will show the terrible destructive power of the mercury and potash. Locomotor Ataxia, Paralysis, Imbecility, and Premature Death are then almost inevitable. Any medical authority will corroborate these statements. The remarkable vegetable Obbac Treatment does not drive in the but drives it out. It positively contains no mineral poisons whatever, so that once cured by the Obbac Treatment you never run the terrible risk of having your bones soften, your nerves collapse, your teeth fall out, your kidneys degenerate or your brain weaken. The Obbac Treatment is a marvel, producing remarkable changes in only 30 days. This is why we offer to any blood poison victim living, no matter how bad a case a

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Notice is hereby given that bids will be received up to 5 o'clock p.m., of March fifteenth, 1910, at the office of Reclamation District No. 798 of the State of California in the Bank of Santa Maria Building, Santa Maria, Santa Barbara County, California, for the construction of about nine miles of levees along the southerly side of the Santa Maria River from Fugler's Point to the Pacific Ocean.

Plans and specifications for said work may be seen at the office of Reclamation District No. 798 in the City of Santa Maria, at the office of F. C. Finkle, Consulting Engineer, 628½ South Spring street, in the City of Los Angeles, and at the office of the Union Sugar Company, in the Alaska Building, 310 Sansome street, in the City of San Francisco.

Prospective bidders, who desire to use copies of said plans and specifications, can secure same at any of the above places by making a deposit of $10.00, which will be returned to them when the plans and specifications are returned. All bids must be accompanied by a certified check in the amount of ten per cent. of the estimated total figure of the bid. Such checks shall be made payable to Reclamation District No. 798 and will be returned to the successful bidder, as soon as he shall have executed a contract with the district and given bond for its faithful performance as required by law, and to all other bidders as soon as their bids are rejected.

If any bidder whose bid has been accepted fails to enter in a contract and give bond according to law, his check shall be forfeited to the District.

Bidders may offer to do all or a part of the work called for by specifying in their bids the portion of the work they offer to execute, and the District reserves the right to apportion the work by letting various parts to different contractors, the right to let the whole to one contractor, or to reject any and all bids.

Bids must be made on the blank form accompanying the specifications and addressed to the Secretary of the Reclamation District. All bids must be received with the understanding that the contractor shall provide for the completion of all work, except the setting of tree cuttings, before November first, 1910, and the completion of all work, including setting of tree cuttings, before December thirty-first, 1910.

By order of the Board of Trustees of Reclamation District No. 798 of the State of California.

W. H. RICE, President.
F. H. GATES, Secretary.
Dated this 19th day of January, 1910.

KRANICH & BACH PIANOS

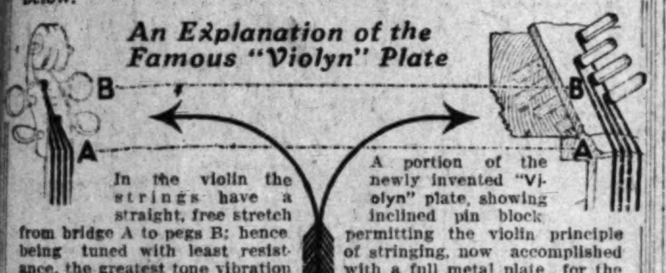
For 50 Years A Leader

The Wonderful Harp-Like Tone To Be Found Only In The Kranich & Bach The Famous "Violyn" Plate An Exclusive Feature

Kranich & Bach

We have just received a large shipment of Kranich & Bach Pianos, to which we invite the consideration of discriminating people who desire to purchase a thoroughly high grade instrument. The Kranich & Bach is a Piano that has attained its present high position among genuinely good Pianos solely on its own merits. Its quality is of high standard—up to the high mark of musical quality that we have set for this Establishment. An exclusive feature of the Kranich & Bach—a feature of great merit—is the "Violyn Plate," explained below.

An Explanation of the Famous "Violyn" Plate



In the violin the strings have a straight, free stretch from bridge A to pegs B; hence being tuned with least resistance, the greatest tone vibration is produced without unnecessary pull or tension.

A portion of the newly invented "Violyn" plate, showing inclined pin block permitting the violin principle of stringing, now accomplished with a full metal plate for the first time in the history of piano construction.

Kranich & Bach Uprights $475 Up—Terms of $10.00 Monthly

Grands $750 Up—On Terms of $15.00 Monthly

The Kranich & Bach "VIOLYN" plate insures the minimum pull upon the strings. This results in a longer vibration, which means a purer, more sonorous and greater sustained tone. It means ease in tuning, reduced strain upon all of the strings, and the merit of "staying-in-tune" twice as long as without this marvelous improvement. Among the new Kranich & Bachs received are pianos in mahogany, oak, walnut, colonial and Louis XV models, etc. We invite you to see and try these beautiful instruments.

We Are Sole Agents Also for Steinway, Sohmer and Kurtzmann Pianos and Farrand-Cecilian Player Pianos

The instruments named are Pianos of known value—each a standard in its respective class. All may be purchased on favorable terms. And of all large assortments are available, affording you the widest opportunity for the exercise of individual tastes.

DETROIT JEWEL

1910 finds the line improved as usual, and now we can give you something heavier and better for the same money. This is the genuine Jewel and has every known gas-saving device. Of course, the most important part of any gas range is the burner, and this burns the largest amount of oxygen possible on a gas range. Every baking prize was won in Denver on Detroit Jewels, 1209 women competing. They cost no more than the painted kind, which are made of common iron and are full of slag.

STOPPED.

THEIR TRUNKS OPIUM-FILLED.

Many Thousand Smuggled, Inspectors Assert.

Supposed Members of a Gang Are Jailed Here.

Traveling in Style, Taken from a Train.

One end of a daring smuggling scheme was unearthed here yesterday, and $14,000 worth of opium was confiscated by Federal authorities. The stuff was in the possession of T. J. Murphy and M. L. Harris, two flashily-dressed travelers, who occupied a drawing-room on a Southern Pacific train, which reached the city early yesterday morning.

The arrest was made when the train reached Colton, as the two Federal inspectors who followed the trail of the smugglers did not dare to take chances in letting their men reach the Arcade Station, where they might have made their escape.

M. O. Archibald, customs inspector, and R. L. Brazie, immigration inspector, who spotted their men at Yuma, the day before, waited until 8 o'clock before making the arrest.

They had the negro porter go to the door of the drawing-room and tap on the door. Harris opened it. He and his companion were fully dressed. Archibald drew his revolver and covered the men.

"We are United States officers, and we want you," said he. "Hold up your hands."

Harris instantly obeyed the command, but Murphy was slow about putting up his left hand. Like a flash, Brazie was on him, and a scuffle followed. When it was all over, Harris and Murphy were both securely shackled and handcuffed. If either had made resistance, the Federal officers would have shot them, as they expected a fight when they made the arrest.

THE "GOODS" THERE.

Archibald took the keys and checks he found on one of the men, and went to the baggage car. He first selected a big trunk, which was securely roped and strapped. When opened, a number of taels of opium were exposed to view. A second trunk was filled with opium tins. Two suit cases, also, contained the forbidden drug. Altogether there were about 320 tins, which customs officers estimate are worth $14,000 at the present time.

Harris and Murphy were turned over to United States Marshal Youngworth, who assumed charge of the prisoners. Each was arraigned before United States Commissioner Van Dyke, and bail fixed at $5000.

As they were being taken to the elevator of the Tajo building, where the United States offices are located, a photographer attempted to make a picture. Murphy, though securely handcuffed, managed to kick the camera across the corridor, and would have assaulted the photographer if he had not been restrained by Chief Deputy Marshal Sittel, who had the men in charge.

"You cannot take any pictures of us," growled Murphy. "We may be in custody, but pictures don't go."

Murphy and Harris are believed to be members of a gang of smugglers which has headquarters in San Francisco, with branches in Los Angeles, Nogales and New Orleans.

Inspectors Brazie and Archibald have information which they hope will lead to the apprehension of others in the same gang. The two officers have been working hard on the case, and followed the suspected smugglers night and day for several days.

FOLLOWED SEVERAL DAYS.

"I got the first information some time ago," said Inspector Brazie yesterday afternoon. "I thought it was a case of smuggling Chinamen across the Mexican line when I first took hold of it. It developed later that it was an opium case.

"Archibald and I have been following the two men for the last three or four days. We saw them buy tickets for San Francisco at Yuma and we boarded the same train. Both checked their trunks through to San Francisco.

"Early this morning, after an all-night watch, we decided to make the arrest before the men reached Los Angeles. We walked into the Pullman and told the porter to knock on the door. He grinned knowingly.

"Archibald had his 45-caliber Colts ready for action when the door opened. Both men were surprised when they saw who wanted them. Murphy was slow about putting up his left hand, and I suspected he was trying to draw a gun. I jumped on him and seized his wrist. While Archibald covered them, I went through their pockets. They told us they had just put their guns in their grip. One had an automatic and the other a heavy caliber revolver. If they had been armed when we reached the door, there would have been a little shooting. I am certain. We did not expect to get them so easily.

Harris asked if we had a warrant of arrest. 'This is my warrant,' said Archibald poking his gun in front of him. 'That is good enough for us,' grinned Harris."

AFTER OTHERS NOW.

"We went with them to the local customs office and delivered up the cases of opium. We are glad we were fortunate enough to make the arrest and get the opium. Our work is not ended. We are going after other members of the gang."

Archibald and Brazie are regarded as two of the best officers in the service of the Department of Commerce and Labor. Both are typical westerners, good natured men but hard to best in a gun play. In commenting upon the case, Assistant United States District Attorney Stewart said that the capture is one of the most important made on the Pacific Coast in recent years. He highly praised the officers for getting Harris and Murphy and said that the case had been so well managed that he anticipated little difficulty in getting a conviction.

Under a recent United States statute, having smuggled opium in one's possession is a felony with a maximum punishment of two years in the penitentiary and $5000 fine. Opium which formerly brought $8 a tael in San Francisco readily sells for $25 a tael, since the new law went into effect.

The profit from a successful smuggling job is so large that there are

STRANGE and wonderful things are expected of the new Chief of Police. There is no book of rules for his guidance; but he can examine the marks and scars of the recent carnage, find out what happened to his predecessor and govern his life and his public services accordingly.

His first duty and, supposedly his first joy as well, will be to learn the names on the card index of "friends and enemies" maintained by Boss Lissner. Mr. Dishman didn't know anything about the list of friends and enemies and his fall was sudden and the jolt was severe.

The new Chief of Police, profiting by this sad example, will know that the first duty of the policeman, upon the arrest of a citizen, is to measure the hair and find out upon whose nominating petition the culprit last appeared.

He will learn that, while there are laws to be enforced, laws are made by Councilmen; Councilmen are made by Boss Lissner; there is a pipe line between the office of the Chief of Police and the office of Boss Lissner. So what's the use?

The new Chief of Police will be expected to recognize the fact that the highest law for a bunch of politicians trying to build up a lasting personal political machine is self-preservation; and that he, as their mailed fist, must look after their interests.

Some of the amusing complications that the Chief will encounter in trying to carry out this routine are suggested by the comic artist.

BULL TERRIER IS GRATEFUL.

Dog Rescued from Choking to Death, Follows Benefactor Home and Stays Until After Breakfast.

While on his way home about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, J. E. Lambert of No. 201 North Flower street, came to the rescue of a dog which was apparently choking to death while tugging at a rope tied around its neck in the form of a loop knot. The rope had been attached to a street hydrant, at First and Bunker Hill avenue.

Lambert heard stifled moans and upon reaching the corner saw the animal almost exhausted in its struggles to free itself. With considerable difficulty he managed to cut the rope, which had been drawn so tightly around the neck that it had cut into the flesh. The dog fell limp, but soon revived; Lambert found it to be a white bull terrier.

The dog seemed to appreciate the man's good deed, for he hung at the heels of Lambert, who was unable to persuade it to go home. Patrolmen Thornburg and Hickey happened along at this time and he explained to the officers what had occurred. An examination of the dog made by the patrolmen showed that it had worn a large collar, as the imprints were still there. Evidently it had been recently removed by some one. The dog followed its rescuer to his house, and yesterday morning Lambert was astonished to find the dog asleep on the door mat. After giving it a good breakfast he decided to turn it over to the S.P.C.A.; while looking for a piece of rope the dog disappeared, and has not been found.

WATER, POWER, MONEY.

ENERGY OF THE RIVER MEANS CITY FORTUNE.

WHEN the Owens River reaches Los Angeles with its supply of water for one of the greatest cities in the world, it will bring with it a municipal fortune of something like 100,000 horse power of electrical energy. Plans for the development of the power are progressing commensurately with the march of the great ditch across the desert. On February 10, the board of consulting electrical engineers will meet in Los Angeles to formulate a preliminary report. On March 16, the people of Los Angeles will vote on $3,500,000 of power bonds.

During January, the special board of engineers has been making a field study of the power proposition. Prof. W. F. Durand, head of the department of mechanical engineering at Stanford, returned to Palo Alto yesterday with complete data on the power surveys. Prof. Durand, Prof. Harris J. Ryan, head of the electrical engineering department at Stanford; O. H. Ensign, engineer of the Kern River project; Chief Engineer Mulholland and Assistants Lippincott and Scattergood of the aqueduct recently

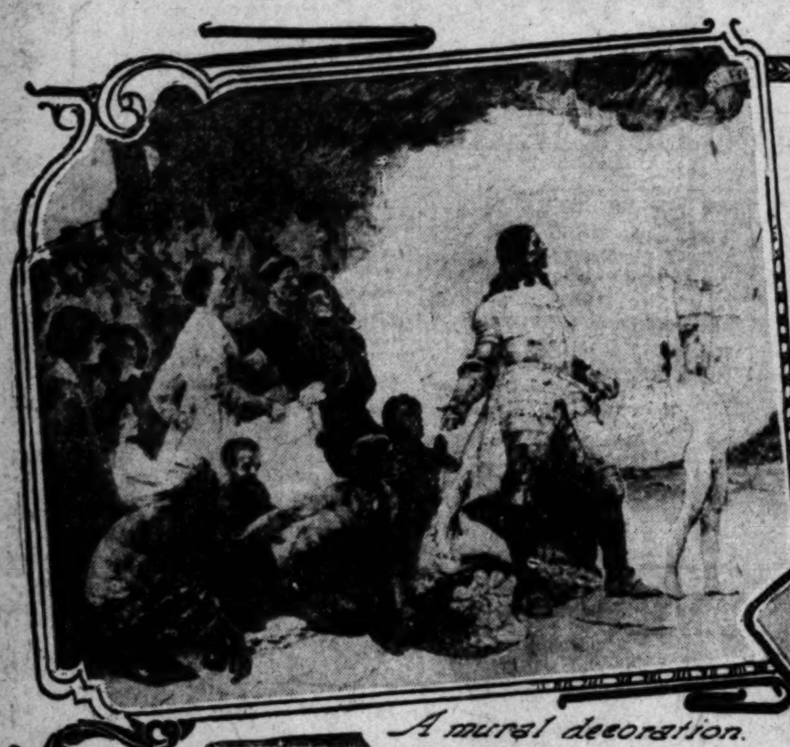
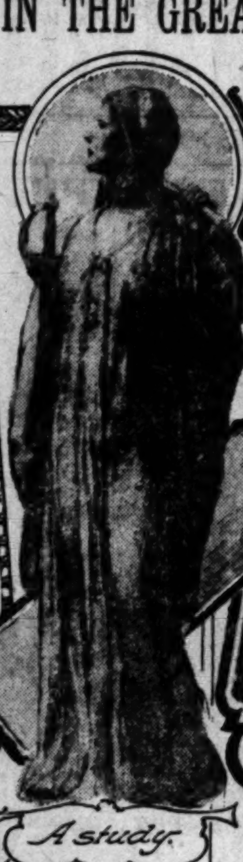
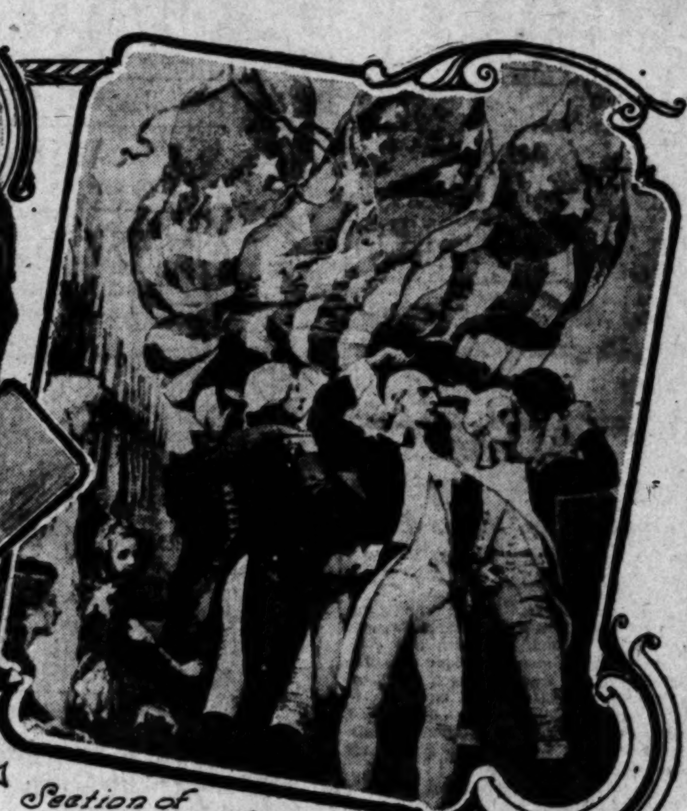
EDUCATIONAL AND ARTISTIC PLEASURE IN THE GREAT ARCHITECTURAL DISPLAY HERE.



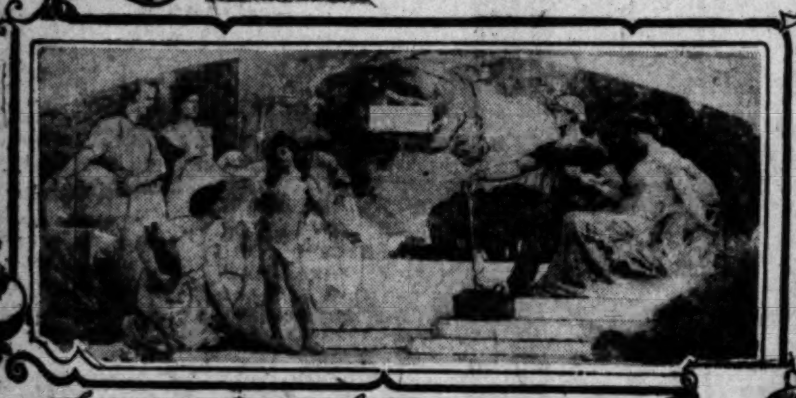
A mural decoration.



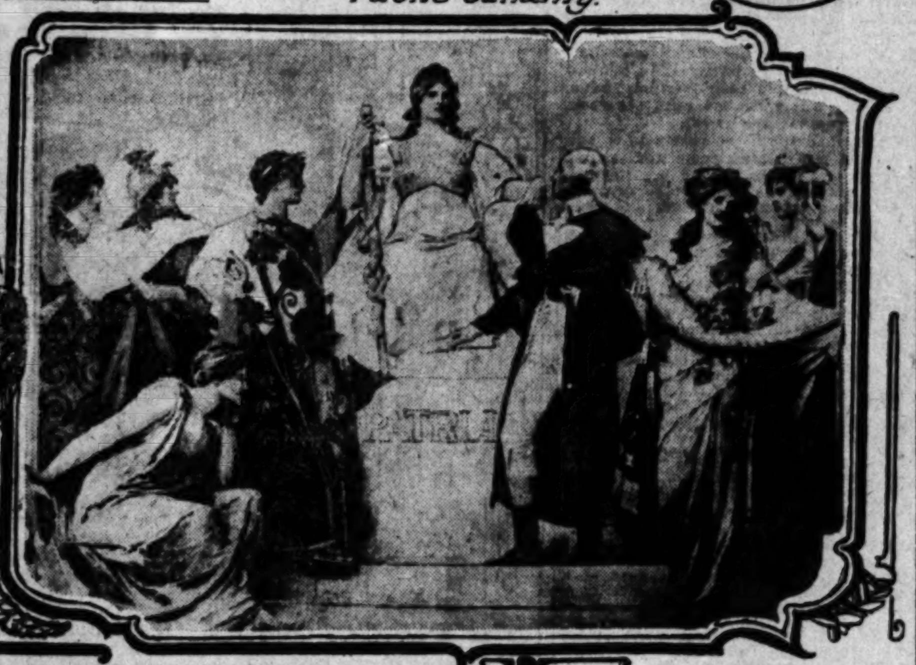
A study.



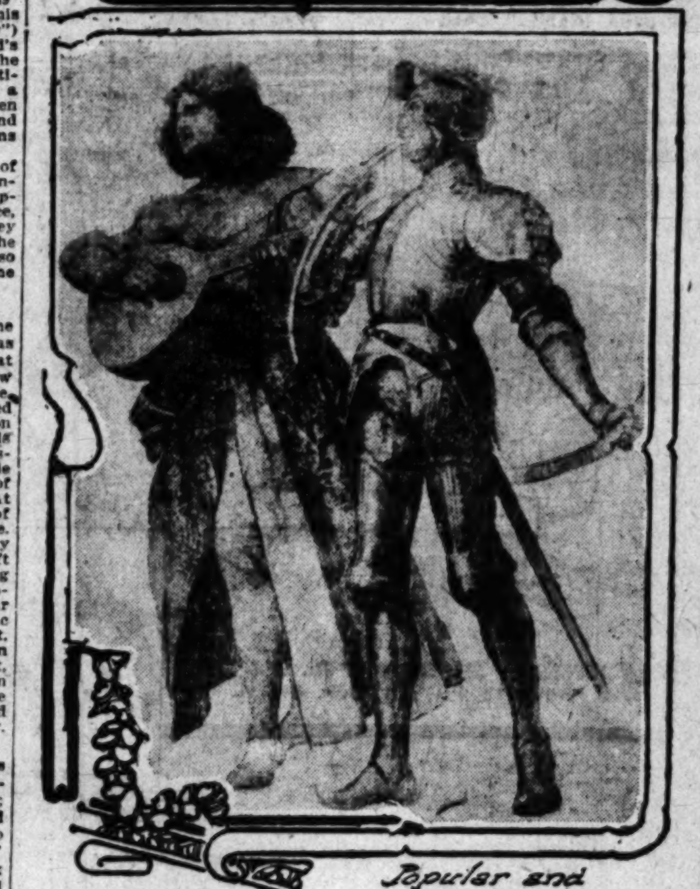
Section of decoration for Public building.



The Uses of wealth.



Decoration for Baltimore Courthouse



Popular and military music.

Some of the Blashfield works

WHEN Merritt A. Vinson of Cleveland conceived the idea of the traveling exhibition of the Architectural League of the Pacific Coast, which is the western branch of the Architectural League of America, he may possibly have known that he was to bring a great educational and artistic pleasure to thousands of men and women in our western cities—but he could not have guessed how very great that pleasure would be.

The success of the exhibition was astonishing in San Francisco, a few weeks ago, but it has proved to be even more surprising in Los Angeles. It is estimated that more than 20,000 persons will have seen the architectural pictures and designs, and the Blashfield drawings, when the exhibition closes at 6 o'clock this afternoon.

Almost the entire fourth floor of the great Hamburger building has been set aside for the exhibition, and this tremendous area has given Los Angeles gallery after gallery of artistic material to look at and to study, making this, without a doubt, the most important and illuminating exhibition of art ever held in this city. It has appealed to the layman, as well as the artist, to the man of affairs, to the student, to the savant. Many have stopped at the exit, and, overflowing with genuine gratitude for pleasure given them free of charge, have expressed their thanks to the attendants.

THOUSANDS IN A DAY.

Last Thursday over 2100 people went to see the exhibition. On Friday over 2500 came. Mr. Vinson expresses himself as more than pleased at the appreciation shown in Los Angeles. This appreciation promises to take a very tangible form, as it is believed that at least two or three of the Blashfield drawings will be purchased for our public library, and probably one or more will go to the Fine Arts League. A number of our private citizens have also been "nibbling," with the settled intention of buying before the exhibition closes. It is gratifying to know that the drawings under consideration are among the very best in the collection.

Interesting as the exhibition is as a whole, the pencil and charcoal drawings of Edwin Howland Blashfield are, of course, the main attraction. There are over a hundred of these, besides numerous photographs of this famous mural painter's finished work. The drawings are for the most part the cartoons and studies made for the mural decorations, and consist of single figures as well as groups of two, three or more figures.

MAIN ATTRACTION.

Before the World's Fair in Chicago, Mr. Blashfield painted genre pictures as well as decorations for interiors, but it was in 1893 that he "found himself," as the artists say, and since then he has devoted himself entirely to mural decoration, rapidly taking rank among the very best of our mural painters. No other American painter of interior decoration has been kept so constantly busy as he in his chosen field of artistic endeavor, and none has met with such genuine recognition.

He was born in New York over sixty years ago, and after spending fourteen years in study abroad, he returned to the city of his birth in 1881, where he has remained ever since. He has been the recipient of many honors, and has been elected to membership in many representative institutions and societies. He has lectured on art at Columbia, Yale and Harvard, and is the author, in conjunction with Mrs. Blashfield, of "Italian Cities."

It took Mr. Vinson almost a year of correspondence to win Mr. Blashfield's consent to show the artist's collection of drawings in the West. Mr. Blashfield felt that the East still needed them—as it certainty wanted them. But the consent, once granted, was full and free-hearted, and every important city in the West will have a chance to see the drawings before they are sent back to New York. Perhaps the most of them will never reach home—for the liberal West has ever been appreciative of the best, when the best has been shown to it, and has never been called a niggardly buyer.

We shall probably not remain content with the drawings alone. When we see what other cities have done to beautify their public buildings, when we begin to realize that our own buildings are beautiful without, but cold and bare within, we, too, shall want such mural decorations as have come to the capital cities of Wisconsin, of Iowa, of Minnesota, and to Pittsburgh, New York, Baltimore, Cleveland.

FOR A MUSIC HALL.

One of the most interesting and beautiful of the drawings now to be seen in the Hamburger building is the decoration for the music room of Adolph Lewisohn. It is one of four panels and contains two figures representing Popular Music and Military Music. The figures are full of life and movement, and have that subtle touch of the poetic which always characterizes Mr. Blashfield's work. These two figures are part of a long procession typifying other branches of music.

Another is a study for a group of decorative figures placed in the Church of Our Savior in Philadelphia. This study has four figures in the artist's most characteristic manner, and will probably be purchased for our public library. If this purchase is made, Los Angeles will be in possession of a very beautiful drawing, one that takes rank with some of the best by the old masters.

"The Edict of Toleration of 1649" ("Lord Baltimore recommending his people to Wisdom, Justice and Mercy") forms the theme for Mr. Blashfield's decoration in the courthouse of the City of Baltimore. Behind Lord Baltimore are a Catholic priest and a Protestant pastor, holding between them the Edict of Toleration; behind them, and at their sides, are Indians and a negro woman.

In Cleveland, Ohio, "The Uses of Wealth" forms the theme of an unusually striking lunette. Capital, supported by Labor, offers to Science, Literature and Art the Golden Key of Opportunity. A photograph of the complete decoration is exhibited, also two studies for heads used in the mural painting.

IMMENSE CANVAS.

"The Graduate" is the theme of the decoration, perhaps the largest canvas ever painted in America, in the great hall of the College of the City of New York. In the center, the Graduate, having lighted his torch at the Sacred Fire of Learning, is about to start on his voyage of Life; Alma Mater bids him Godspeed. Behind him is a colossal statue of Wisdom. At either side of her are ten seated figures of women representing universities. At the right of the center is a figure of Discipline, with sword and scourge, awaiting the Graduate to accompany him on his journey. At right and left are two groups of men representing Branches of Study; at the left, Democritus for Philosophy, Augustus Caesar for Law, Harvey for Medicine, Isaac Newton for Mathematics; at the right, Shakespeare for Poetry, Beethoven for Music, Michael Angelo for Art, Petrarch for Letters, and Lord Kelvin for Modern Science. Below at the left are the Aspirants, the People, and at the right, the Collegians of today.

OTHER FINE ONES.

Other important mural paintings from Mr. Blashfield's brush are: "Minnesota as a Grain State," in St. Paul; "The Discoverers and Civilizers Led to the Source of the Mississippi," also in St. Paul; "The Power of the Law," in the Appellate Court, New York City; "Pittsburgh Offering Her Steel and Iron to the World," in the Bank of Pittsburgh; "Westward," in the State Capitol of Iowa; "Wisconsin," in Madison, a figure surrounded by three other figures symbolizing Lake Superior, Lake Michigan and the Mississippi River; "Justice," a panel in the courthouse at Wilkesbarre, Pa.; and, probably the best work he has yet done, a new painting for the courthouse in Cleveland, to be placed there next fall. The Citizens' Trust Company, Cleveland, also has a decoration by Mr. Blashfield, as well as one by Kenyon Cox.

The notable drawings now exhibited in Los Angeles will go to Long Beach on Tuesday, to be shown in the public library there for a week. They will remain in the West, traveling from place to place, till September, when they will be shown in the American Institute of Architecture, which will convene at that time in New York City.

TOURIST RUN DAWN.

Old Man from Iowa Struck by a Sightseeing Automobile and Seriously Injured.

C. A. Windsor, 75 years old, a tourist from Iowa, barely escaped fatal injuries, yesterday, when he was run down by a sightseeing automobile at Seventh and Olive streets. He was crossing the street with his brother and did not notice the large car come up behind him. He was thrown to the pavement and sustained concussion of the brain. The police surgeons, who treated him at the Receiving Hospital, say he will recover.

C. Priddy of the buying corps of the Ville de Paris, will leave today, on an extended business trip to New York and the eastern markets.

CLEARED.

INNOCENCE IS ESTABLISHED.

SUPPOSED VICTIM OF FOUL PLAY IS ALIVE.

Man Held at Fresno on Suspicion of Crime Will Be Released—Circumstantial Evidence — Forger Pleads Guilty of Old Charge—Drug Clerk Violated Liquor Law.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

FRESNO, Jan. 28.—J. Curtis, who has been held in the County Jail for several days, under suspicion of having murdered Mato Raich, will be released. He was arrested in Coalinga for petty larceny and was brought to Fresno about a week ago. When searched a Masonic button and receipts for the payment of the dues of Mato Raich in the Masonic lodge of Bisbee, Ariz., were found on him. The police were then investigating the mysterious disappearance of Raich and for a time they worked on the theory that Raich met foul play and that Curtis was concerned in the crime. Yesterday word came from Coalinga that Raich has been found there at work and the murder theory was exploded. Curtis says he found the lodge dues receipts and the Masonic button.

FORGER PLEADS GUILTY.

E. W. Hersey pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery yesterday in the Superior Court and was sentenced by Justice Austin to two years' imprisonment in San Quentin. In February, 1905, while working as a painter and paper hanger for a local firm, Hersey forged a check for $22. Before he could be arrested he left the State and for nearly five years successfully evaded the authorities. He returned to California not long ago, and obtained work in Stockton. His arrest followed. Hersey has a wife and two children in Oakland.

DRUG CLERK CONVICTED.

The trial of William Rutledge, a drug clerk of Lindsay, charged with selling whisky in violation of the law, began in Visalia Wednesday afternoon and ended yesterday when the jury returned a verdict of guilty. Sentence will be pronounced by Justice Connor within a few days.

Fred Seeley, accused of having robbed his benefactor on a Southern Pacific train between Tracey and Fresno, pleaded not guilty in Justice Austin's court this morning. He was released under bail of $1000, furnished by his relatives in Red Bluff.

P. Mantino appeared before City Justice Graham yesterday and pleaded guilty to killing doves out of season. He was fined $25. Deputy Game Warden Ferguson swore to the complaint.

SCHOOL DISTRICT CHANGES.

Tulare County Supervisors to Consider Propositions—Visalia Young Woman Goes Blind.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

VISALIA, Jan. 28.—The most extensive changes in the boundaries of school districts in the history of the county at one time will be discussed by the supervisors at the February meeting. Petitions are in for the formation of seven new districts and the change of boundaries of three others.

County Superintendent of Schools Walker, today arranged for a special train on the morning of March 9, to take Tulare county pedagogues to Fresno to attend the session of the Central California Teachers' Association, following a two days' session of the Tulare County Institute in Visalia. There are 231 teachers in Tulare county.

B. D. Olney of Omaha has purchased a twenty-one-acre orange grove near Lindsay, consideration, $24,000.

Miss Inez Clotfelter, was taken suddenly blind yesterday and has been removed to Fresno, where she is under the care of a specialist. She has previously had several attacks of blindness.

Amos J. Hart, a resident of this section for twenty years, died last night in Farmersville at the home of his son, E. F. Hart. He was eighty-four years of age and is survived by two sons and one daughter.

THREE CASES IN ONE.

The hearing of three cases combined in one has been begun in the local Land Office. They include the case of R. O. Reynolds against the State of California and the Buena Vista Land Development Company, transferee; George Derby against the same and Parker Barrett against the same. The land involved is the southwest, northeast and northwest quarters of section 12-32-34, thirty-five miles southwest of Bakersfield.

Walter J. Newman of Visalia has made at the Local Land office homestead entry for the north half of the northeast quarter and the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 8-20-14. Letus Jewell Kratzmer has made homestead entry for the east half of the northwest quarter, southwest quarter of northwest quarter and northwest quarter of southwest quarter of section 34-26-29.

TRIED FOR PIMPLES

The dispensers of poslam, the new skin discovery, ask that notice be given that no one is urged to purchase it without first obtaining the sample package which will be sent free to any one who writes to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West 25th St., New York. This alone is sufficient to clear the complexion and to rid the face of pimples. Every one who has tried poslam knows that the 50c box, on sale at The Owl Drug Co., as well as all other drug stores, contains sufficient for the worst cases of eczema, where the surface affected is not too large. The itching ceases on first application. It will also cure acne, tetter, blotches, scaly scalp, hives, barber's and every other form of itch, including itching feet. Being flesh-colored and containing no grease, the presence of poslam on exposed surfaces, such as the face and hands, is not perceptible. Water and soap cannot be used in connection with it, as these irritate and prolong skin troubles, sometimes even causing them.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

AGENCY MEN ARE OUT FOR SCALPS.

OBABLY WILL CLOSE DOORS TO THE BACKWARD ONES.

Important Meeting to Be Held Bakersfield on March 1 to Further Discuss the Subject—California Oil Production Big for December 1909.

of the absorbing questions now ting the oil men of California is closing the doors of the independent agencies to companies and individuals now producing oil who have joined the agencies and are refusing all overtures along that line. meeting held at Bakersfield about week ago, attended by prominent members of the independent agencies, following resolutions were adopted spirited discussion:

Resolved, that it is the sense of the members of the Kern River and Coalinga oil producing agencies that no company or individual now producing in the State of California be admitted to membership in either of the agencies unless such application membership shall be filed on or before April 1, 1910.

And be it further resolved, that no company or individual who may hereafter engage in the business of producing petroleum in the State of California be admitted to membership in either of said agencies unless application for membership be filed on or before the first well is drilled upon the property of said company or individ-

The forces favoring the above resolutions were presented by L. P. St. Clair, president of the Kern county agency, and member of the arbitration board which governs the sale of agency oil; S. W. Morehead, who occupies the same position with the Coalinga agensy; S. A. Guiberson, organizer for the agency forces; W. B. Robb, secretary of the Kern agency; L. N. Scofield, A. E. Wallace, D. W. Carmichael and others. Thomas O'Donnell of the executive board and H. H. Welsh, treasurer of the Coalinga agency, opposed the plan.

At the Bakersfield meeting a strong sentiment was apparent for the consolidation of the Kern county and Coalinga agencies, and a resolution was adopted for the appointment of a committee of seven, to consist of three members from each agency, the seventh member to be W. L. Stewart of the Union Oil Company, to formulate a plan for consolidation.

The following new operators were admitted to agency membership: A. W. Mason, Akron Oil Company; W. F. West, American Crude Oil Company; D. S. Ewing, C. J. Oil Company; Don C. Porter, Del Rey Oil Company; T. Weisendanger, Denver Oil Company; F. C. Berry, E. P. T. Oil Company; J. H. G. Wolf, Exploration Oil Company; J. M. Danziger, Emerald Oil Company; W. J. Roberts, Eldorado Oil Company; J. P. Fox, Fox & Garrett; H. L. Black, T. M. Hodgens, Poinsettia Oil Company; A. Weill, Jewell Oil Company; J. Goldman, Junction Oil Company; S. P. Wible, Jackson Oil Company; W. A. Ferguson, Knob Hill Company; John Robertson, K. R. W. Oil Company; G. G. Gatch, Los Angeles-Kern Oil Company; C. J. Berry, Michigan Oil Company; R. H. McCutchen, McCutchen Bros.; George W. Walker, Olig Crude Oil Company; C. E. Price, Pricewell Oil Company; Walter Snook; H. P. Peacock, Tejon Oil Company; H. W. Thomas, Twenty-three Oil Company; E. H. Love-Wrenn, Wrenn Oil Company; D. C. Welch, United Crude Oil Company; J. B. Overland Oil Company; W. L. Stewart, Cousins Oil Company; Union Oil Company; Ruby Oil Company; H. A. Jastro, St. Clair & Jastro M. and S. Oil Company; Calloma Extension Oil Company; J. H. Ramey, Rambler Oil Company; H. U. Maxwell, San Francisco-McKittrick Oil Company; W. T. Sesnon, Sesnon Oil Company.

On March 1, another meeting will be held at Bakersfield to discuss the advisability of closing the doors of the agencies to all producers who do not affiliate themselves with the organization by April 1. An address is being prepared by the committee appointed at the first meeting, which embraces a broad invitation to all producers, marketers, transporters and consumers of California oil. This committee is composed of S. W. Morshead, L. P. St. Clair, R. W. Dallas and W. B. Robb, officers of the two agency companies. The result of this meeting will be awaited with interest by all California oil operators.

DECEMBER PRODUCTION. EXCEEDS THE PREVIOUS MONTH.

According to figures recently compiled, the total oil production for California during the month of December was 5,236,372 barrels, as against 5,113,236 barrels for the month of November, an increase of 123,136 barrels. The production by fields was as follows: Kern River, 1,285,490; McKittrick, 461,346; Midway, 371,813; Sunset, 189,995; Coalinga, 1,361,338; Watsonville, 4960; Arroyo Grande, 1930; Lompoc, 53,010; Santa Maria, 618,580; Summerland, 6120; Santa Paula, 38,750; Newhall, 12,476; Salt Lake, 301,155; Los Angeles, 44,506; Whittier-Coyote, 81,070; Puente, 3250; Fullerton-Brea Cañon, 399,582; total, 5,236,372 barrels.

COUNTY ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

The Los Angeles county Christian Endeavor convention will meet in Pomona on Friday, Saturday and Sunday next, and will have the distinction of hearing "Father Endeavor" Clarke and William Shaw, president and general secretary, respectively, of the world's society. Both are familiar to Endeavorers of the world, and Mr. Shaw comes direct from India, where he has been attending a world's conference. They will appear at the Pomona convention on Sunday, the closing day, speaking at a mass meeting in the afternoon. Dr. John Willis Baer will speak at the convention on Friday evening, the opening session.

BOLD WORK OF THREE CROOKS.

THEY ROB A MINER IN BROAD DAYLIGHT IN ALLEY.

He Is So Surprised He Fails to Give Alarm Until Hold-up Men Have Escaped—Several Burglaries Bulletined Yesterday by the Detective Bureau.

Three footpads selected a fitting setting for a "strong arm" hold-up shortly before noon yesterday. They pounced on their victim in the shadow of the Express building, where the organ of the "Goo-Goos" is issued.

Frank Keegan, a miner, had been on a spree for several days. When he woke yesterday without any money, he went to the bank and drew $50. As he passed through the Express alley, the three crooks grabbed him, hastily searched his pockets, and made way with two $20 gold pieces.

There were half a hundred persons within a short distance, but Keegan was so surprised that he made no outcry. When he finally reported that he had been robbed, there was a great commotion.

Detectives hastened to the scene, but the robbers had fled. They obtained a description of them.

Several burglaries were bulletined by the detective bureau, yesterday, as having been committed Friday afternoon and night.

M. T. Lester's residence at No. 1901 Atlantic street was entered and $16 stolen.

John Welsh complained of the loss of a suit from his room at No. 704 North Main street.

A suitcase, $12, razor and some clothing were taken from William Kardinal's room, No. 311 Central avenue.

Frank Gregg reported that an overcoat, a suit and a pair of patent leather shoes were taken from his home, No. 460 East Fourth street.

A watch was carried away from Mrs. G. Bradley's apartment, No. 1111 San Julian street.

HAS SPAT WITH HUSBAND.

Wife Attempts to Drink Carbolic Acid—Burns Neck and Throat—Reconciliation Results.

Following a quarrel with her husband as to where they should make their home, Mrs. Minnie Mahoney attempted suicide with carbolic acid yesterday. As she placed the bottle containing the fluid to her lips, Mahoney struck it with his hand. The contents were spilled on her neck and throat.

The spat and its near-tragic end may result in harmony being restored. Mahoney accompanied his wife to the Receiving Hospital, where she had her burns treated. They left in good humor.

Mahoney is employed at Taft, a new town. He erected a home there and sent for his wife and three children. She refused to leave the Picomain apartments, where she had been staying. It took all of his money to maintain two establishments, so he came to Los Angeles to attempt to persuade her to change her mind.

THREATENED.

WRITES ROT TO A MOTORMAN?

SAN GABRIEL MAN TAKES PEN IN HAND FOOLISHLY.

Is Arrested on Charge of Sending Obscene Letters to Friend of Morgan Shiveley, Recently Murdered. Confesses to One Offense, Now Said to Have Repeated.

ALHAMBRA, Jan. 29.—A complaint has been issued by Justice Northrup against Paul Vallee of San Gabriel, in which the latter is charged with sending threatening and obscene letters to Fred R. Donaldson of Alhambra, who swore to the complaint. Early this week Donaldson, who is employed by the Pacific Electric Railroad, was motorman on the car of conductor Morgan Shively, who was murdered on the morning of the 2nd inst. The first letter received by Donaldson was signed "the two who robbed the postoffice," the writers told Donaldson that if he did not leave town in ten days, he, his wife and child would be killed. The letter was handed to Detective Brown of the District-Attorneys office. He says he, Paul Vallee wrote it and that the man confessed when confronted with the evidence. It is said Vallee went to Mrs. Donaldson and made a clean breast of his guilt and apologized.

Relieved at finding the sender of the letter intended it as a joke, Donaldson was inclined to let the matter drop. Yesterday however, he got another epistle, which, he asserts, was written and signed by the same party. It warned him, in obscene and abusive language, that the original threats would be carried out unless the demands of the writer were acceeded to at once. Vallee was taken before Justice Northrup this morning and held under $500 bonds for his appearance Monday for preliminary examination.

WILL GIVE CANTATA.

The cantata, "Last Night at Bethany," will be given by the Los Angeles Pro-Cathedral Boys' Choir, Tuesday evening, in the High School auditorium. Special numbers will be furnished by Freeman Wells Saunders, baritone; Chester Rand, tenor; Arthur Radeker, alto; and Eddie Perkins, soprano. The proceeds will be for the benefit of Holy Trinity Mission.

City Marshal Parker arrested three boys in the act of filling sacks with oranges in the Champion and Storey orchards. They intended to take the fruit to Los Angeles on bicycles. All three were given stiff sentences by Justice Northrup.

The orange packing companies report that a very small percentage of the crop has damaged by the frost. Some of the orchards escaped entirely. The crop generally is large and fine in quality.

Alhambra Lodge, No. 127, Knights of Pythias, will give a ball in Pythian Castle, Thursday evening.

The fifth annual reunion of former residents of Fulton County, Ill., will be held February 22. The committee appointed to plan the day's entertainment for the 450 members, is: Mrs. Joseph Merrill, chairman; Mmes. Chester L. Whitnah, C. E. Bacon, G. K. Barrere, C. E. Snively, W. L. Sherwood, L. D. Ashton of Alhambra, and Miss Carrie Ingersoll.

EASTERN PHYSICIAN'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Dr. P. D. Harding, formerly a well known practicing physician of Evanston, Ill., was held yesterday afternoon, at the Bresee chapel in this city. The deceased recently came here to spend the winter, and died at the Good Samaritan Hospital. Many old friends from Goshen, Ind., and from Evanston, attended the service, which was conducted by Rev. Edwin H. Fretz of Alamitos Park. Brief remarks were also made by Dr. A. W. Lamport of Pomona, a former pastor of the deceased.

Editorial Pen Points

TODAY'S TIMES.

In today's issue of the Sunday Times appears a still closer and more perfect classification of parts, pages, divisions, subdivisions and subjects. The impressive array is shown by the following summary:

PART I. Telegraph News Sheet. 12 pages. The Freshest News of the World by Wire; News of Southern Counties; Record of Births, Marriages, Deaths and Divorces; Weather Conditions.

PART II. Editorial Sheet—News, Views and Business. 16 pages. The Advancing City and Contiguous Territory; Important Home Affairs.

PART III. The Cream Sheet—Life's Finer Side. 20 pages. Art and Artists; Music and the Playhouses; Home, Society, Books, Writers; The Little Children.

PART IV. Southwest "Liner" Clearinghouse. 12 pages. Classified Advertisements, Covering a Wide Field; Marine and Other News.

PART V. Real Estate and Development Section. 20 pages. Review of the Week; Survey of Realty Market; Finance and Trade.

PART VI. Real Estate (2)—Industry and Progress. 10 pages. Dealings in Land; Down-to-Date Reports; Freedom in the Industries; Achievements in Industrial Lines.

PART VII. The Pink Sheet—Sporting Section. 12 pages. Leading Events in the Field of Sports; Round-up of the Week.

PART VIII. Color Sheet—Juvenile Section. 8 pages. Our boys and Girls; The Household; The Fashions.

Illustrated Magazine—32 pages.

The particular attention of readers of real-estate news, activity and progress is called to Part VI, which becomes the second real-estate section, containing news and display advertisements. An immense volume of classified real-estate advertising appears in Part V, as usual; while Part IV, designated "The Southwest Liner Clearinghouse," contains the main body of general classified advertisements. The whole number of liners in both parts is more than 5000.

Taken altogether, the Sunday Times was never before so thoroughly and intelligently classified in respect to its reading matter and advertisements. Notwithstanding the great size of the issue—150 pages, large and small—the location of its various features can be easily traced by the careful reader.

WHAT THE PRODUCER GETS.

The Times is presenting to its readers this morning a carefully-prepared article on the subject of prices brought by farm products and the relation of these to the cost of living. The article in question deals only with facts and excludes almost every comment upon the facts. It shows what the producer gets today. It is our opinion that the article will be read with care and interest by a large number of people. Most of them doubtless will be able to see the reasons for themselves. But in some cases there will be readers not supplied with the expert knowledge necessary to interpret the facts.

But a cursory study of the tables in the article will show that the producer is getting in general about 100 per cent. more for his crops than he did fifteen years ago. Live hogs sell at Kansas City and Sioux City for as much per pound as cured meats in the great centers of population in 1895. The cotton planter is getting close to 100 per cent. more for his crop now than he got in 1895.

There are millions engaged in agriculture, and the farm products are worth over $8,000,000,000 this year. The farmers are prosperous, and therefore the whole population is so. He is the "working man" of us all. Other toilers are better paid than before, and between the farmer and the wage-earner, the $35 per capita of money in the country is kept busy every day in the world.

The New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin has had an expert studying this subject, Mr. Stimson, who says: "In ten years the increase in feedstuffs has been about 30 per cent., while the increase of cattle has been about 60 per cent. For five years prior to 1907 the crop of oats averaged 900,000,000 bushels. The crop of 1906 was 965,000,000 bushels, yet the price went above the 40-cent mark in Chicago in February and reached 43½ in April, 48½ in May, and I desire to suggest a reason why oats will probably not go back to the old mark of 40 cents. There were on January 1, 1907, a total of 26,000,000 horses and mules (in the United States,) of which, in approximate round numbers, 23,500,000 were in use on farms and 2,500,000 or 3,000,000 elsewhere."

In the last ten years the number of horses and mules in the country has been increased many millions over the figures when the automobile first began to come into general use. With the increase of domestic animals using oats as food on the farms, all the time less grain is offered on the general market, where the demand is probably increased. We have a considerable demand for oats for export. With supply less on the general market and the demand steady or gaining, the price of oats naturally rises.

Apply the very same reasoning to corn and hogs, and you will find the amount of corn offered in the general markets not increasing, but decreasing because of consumption at the point of production; and so the price of corn rises. Corn and hogs have as direct a relation one with the other as oats and horses, as wheat and human beings. Either the number of hogs produced in the country must increase in the same proportion that the population increases or the price of hog products must be higher. If we increase the number of hogs raised and do not increase the corn crop, then there will be less corn offered on the general markets and the price of corn will rise. It takes just so many bushels of corn to produce a pound of bacon or ham, and if corn rises from 40 to 70 cents a bushel the increase in the price of the hog must pretty nearly double.

We can go all along the line, with butter, cheese, potatoes and every farm product. The home consumption (that is the farm consumption) increases steadily, and unless the production of the commodity increases as rapidly there is less offered on the general market. With a demand in the general market steady, and the supply lessened, prices must advance.

Go back fifteen years, as the tables in the general article referred to here do, and we reach a period when millions of the people were out of employment, when all industries were greatly depressed, when money circulated slowly and these millions of out-of-works had to cut down their daily ration of food. The demand was less, the supply was steady, and prices declined. In these fifteen years we have increased our population by perhaps 20,000,000. We have not increased our supply of farm products at the same rate, consequently with more consumed on the farm, less offered on the general markets, while the demand in these markets increased, the prices had to advance. We are living today in a period of unexampled activity and prosperity. Generally speaking there are no idle people in the United States except the incompetent and the disinclined. Wages are high. People spend money freely, have plenty of everything, and have the best.

There is a great clamor for lower cost of living. Check the steady flow of prosperous industry, throw millions of the people out of work, cut down their rations to a starvation level, make a less demand for foodstuffs in the general market, while the supply keeps steady, and you will have the cost of living low enough, too low for the millions who are out of employment! It is better to have prices high and employment steady at high wages than to have prices low, millions out of employment and wages at the minimum.

FOR A BROADER TREATMENT OF ORIENTALS.

We have been favored in Los Angeles during recent weeks by the presence of distinguished American gentlemen who are doing missionary work in the Orient. Others of the same character are to address bodies of our citizens during the next few days.

These missionaries are flanked by merchants doing business with China and Japan in giving expression to similar sentiments. There is no doubt that our dealings with orientals have been unjustifiably narrow and still more unjustifiably severe. It has been for many years our fixed opinion that the Geary exclusion law aimed at keeping all Chinese laboring classes out of this country was one of the most serious mistakes ever made. It was a mistake because California and the Pacific Coast generally needed a certain number of Chinese laborers, and the development of the country has been held back by the exclusion of these diligent, peaceful and in every way acceptable laborers. It has been a mistake in the hostility it created among the Chinese toward our own country and people.

We are busy in attempting to open up trade with the orientals. Side by side with the missionary and the teacher carrying western civilization into the Far East we have the merchant and the financier going hand in hand, carrying occidental products in mechanics, in farm produce and everything we have to sell, seeking to open markets with these people where we may do a profitable business. The financier and promoter ask concessions for railroads and similar industries. We go with a petition to the orientals for favors in one hand and with a clenched fist to commit violence upon them if they ask anything in return. It is as unfair as it is unwise.

No rational person would think of annulling the Geary exclusion law, but a rational person would certainly think of modifying it. The Japanese will not stand for absolute exclusion of their people from the United States. They are a people of a good deal of amour propre—perhaps a little too much. But they would deserve more contempt than the most extreme occidental entertains for them if they submitted calmly to the insult offered them in saying their people shall be absolutely excluded from coming to our country while we demand free admission for our people to their country. Now there is no reason for the admission of Japanese under any restriction which will not apply equally to the Chinese. These people from the Flowery Kingdom are peaceable; they are industrious; they are loyal. They are ready to do a class of work which Americans will not do. We admit from Southern and Eastern Europe and from Western Asia classes of people who, taken man for man as they run, can scarcely be said to be in any way more desirable additions to our population than the Chinese. In some respects they are less. Miscegenation with orientals is forbidden in many States and should be forbidden in all States. Intermarriage with the lowest class of Southeastern Europeans and Western Asiatics is not forbidden. Everywhere you touch this question you find unreasonable, harsh and unnecessary discrimination against the orientals.

Our shrewd friends to the north, the Canadians, have set us an excellent example. The Dominion has a law which taxes all Chinamen entering that country a sum of $500. It is readily paid by a considerable number of the most intelligent, energetic and capable young Chinamen who leave their native land. Our relations with the Orient, both from the point of view of the missionary and from that of the merchant and financier, would be much improved if we should modify this exclusion law and other severe laws dealing with the subject in some reasonable way. At the same time it would give this Coast a considerable addition to the limited force here now, ready and willing to do rough, common labor.

PARALYZING THE POLICE.

For some reason, the office of Chief of Police is treated as legitimate spoil for politicians.

As a matter of fact, it is simply fatal to change the head of the police force. It would almost be better to endure a very bad chief than to change chiefs. There is a strong military reason for this.

At present the position is so insecure that the rank and file of the force have little or no respect for the office; they regard the Chief as an unhappy wretch whose hands are both tied and whose days are numbered. Any policeman would rather fall into disfavor with the Chief than with a police captain.

This has the effect of making the subordinate officers of more weight than the head of the department. It has the further and scandalous result of causing police officers to contemptuously decline promotion to the position of command.

Every time a police chief is removed for any cause, it is as though deadly poison had been injected into the military organization of the police force. When he is removed without cause and for no reason except to make grease for the wheels of a dishonest political machine, the effect is to utterly paralyze the morale of the department.

THE FIRST INSTANCE.

The district known as Highland, in San Bernardino county, has taken down all "For Sale" signs on real estate holdings. If it were to happen that some property holder in Highland desired to sell, his neighbors would be the first to meet his demands and secure the transfer of the ground to themselves. In other words, there is nothing for sale in Highland.

This is the first instance of the kind in the history of Southern California, but it will not be the last. The day is at hand when numerous similar instances will be reported. One by one the communities of the territory south of the Tehachepi, reaching all the way to San Diego, will take down the "For Sale" signs and then it will be about as difficult to buy an acre of land anywhere upon that area as it would be to buy the wag of a dog's tail.

For years it has been a favorite argument with real estate men that "There is only just so much of Southern California." The argument included the prophecy that the day would come when Southern California would be crowded with a dense population whose desire would be to remain here untempted. It meant that in the course of the years Southern California would contain all the people it could hold, to the exclusion of any further influx of settlers and homeseekers.

Already, as we have stated, one large district has been closed up. There is no room left in it for anybody except those who are now there. Next year, or maybe this year, we will hear of another closed district, and so it will go. We have entered upon the era of not the closed shop but the closed land.

The lesson, dearly beloved, is to get hold of a little of Southern California while you can. Buy anywhere from Santa Barbara's shining mountain walls to the blue bay of San Diego. Buy while there is still a chance to buy at a price within reach. Get the rooftree idea into your head.

WHY THE VICIOUS DOG?

In the camps of wild Indians, no doubt, hordes of vicious dogs are well enough. They do not, however, seem to be a pressing necessity in a city like Los Angeles.

Within the past week, the police surgeons have been busy dressing wounds of persons preyed upon by these wild animals. There was a good deal of point in the protest made by the bill collector who was bitten by a dog in the course of his duties and who was told he had no recourse because the dog was on private property. "I suppose," cried the collector, "that if the owner shot me on his own place, that would be all right, too."

A man's house is his castle; but certainly not to the extent that he can make it a jungle for wild beasts.

When you go by a house, and a dog with snarling teeth and with hair standing on end rushes out after you, some imbecile usually raises the front window and says in a hurt voice: "Why, Fido wouldn't hurt you; he is just playing."

It's about time the curtain went down on some of these dog humorists.

Where Grows the Sunflower.

There's the man whose hand is clammy as a fish that lately died, and to grasp it sends a shudder percolating through your hide, and you feel its cold impression in your muscles and your glands, and you wish he'd wear an oven on his blamed antarctic hands. There's the man with hands so horny that they feel like chunks of slate, and when he is shaking with you, you can feel them grind and grate; and he nearly breaks your fingers, and you mutter through your hat: "I would run them through a smelter if my hands were hard as that!" There's the man whose hands are always pawing, pawing while he talks; they are fussing with your whiskers, they are reaching for your socks; they are patting on your bosom, they are clawing on your arm, and you'd like to meet their owner on the Mrs. Gunness farm. There's the man whose hands are always sliding down into his jeans, to relieve some broken pilgrim of their miseries and pains; and such hands, that in their giving, never falter, never tire, in the golden time a-coming will be twanging at a lyre!

Draws Investors.

The recent Midwinter Edition of the Los Angeles Times was a splendid illustration of enterprise and ability to accomplish a work commensurate with the demands of a country of marvelous resources and wonderful development. The edition consisted of 200 pages, made up in six sections in magazine form, a digest that is of practical value and unlimited in its possibilities as an advertising medium in attracting the attention of investors and homeseekers to Southern California.—[Glendora Gleaner.

Heroism.

What a hero one can be without moving a finger! The world is not a field worthy of us, nor can we be satisfied with the plains of Troy. A glorious strife seems waging within us, yet so noiselessly that we but just catch the sound of the clarion ringing of victory, borne to us on the breeze. There are in each the seeds of a heroic ardor, which need only to be stirred in with the soil where they lie, by an inspired voice or pen, to bear fruit of a divine flavor.—[Thoreau.

THE LANCER.

FROM an interview with William Northrup McMillan, who was the host of Col. Roosevelt in South Africa and who is now in Pasadena, I judge that the world is about to see a ferocious and indecent slaughter of wild animals.

Driven by blood lust, hunters from all over the world are rushing to South Africa to hunt the animals who escaped the rifles of the Roosevelt party. What we will see now is the final and disgusting story of the massacre of the buffalo repeated.

I guess this Roosevelt hunt must have been a fine sporting event and "good hunting," and all that. I confess that I never have thought so poorly of Col. Roosevelt as when reading his accounts of the violent death of the wild animals who fell before his guns. It seems astounding that a man with so many fine instincts could find pleasure in witnessing the fright and the pain and, at last, the death struggle of any living thing.

A man must be inflated by a powerful egotism to arrogate to himself the awful right to take away life.

Genius and a Fool Father.

I am sorry that the wonderful boy student, James Sidis, who took the high school in a running jump at the age of nine and roughhoused the Fourth Dimension at eleven, has broken down.

His life work will, I fear, never be finished now. It was obvious that he would blow up; but I lived in the hope that after fixing up the Greek and Latin grammars, and getting the fourth plane onto the dimension, he would round out his career with a psychological examination of his fool father.

It was not half so astounding that a child of eleven could teach mathematics to the faculty of Harvard as that there could be a professor of psychology so cold-blooded and heartless as to wreck a child's life to "see what would happen." The breaking down of James Sidis, this pitiful, driven, joyless child, was carrying vivisection pretty far.

Twaddle.

The military ideas that leak out of the Adjutant-General's office of this State, through the medium of the Sacramento newspaper reporters, are sometimes peculiar.

One day, last week, it was joyously and triumphantly announced that, after a contest of a century, the national guard officers have been accorded, by the War Department, the right to receive from regulars the military salute, "that badge of humility and homage."

On the heels of this Adjutant-General Lauck is quoted as saying that the military aëroplane will never be a danger because "the long range guns would take care of the airships by day; and by night, the forts and camps could be kept free of lights observable from above so that the ships would be no use after dark."

It would be interesting to know if these are actually the views of the Governor's chief-of-staff to whom is intrusted the active running of the militia of this State. It is clear that, either this State needs a new Adjutant-General or Sacramento needs a new crop of newspaper reporters. Let us trust that it is the latter.

It would be humiliating to believe that the director of our military affairs considers the military salute to be a "badge of humility and homage;" or that he is so ignorant of the views of the world's artillerists as to disgorge this silly twaddle about war aëroplanes.

Welcum, Fair One!

Mrs. Leslie Carter has announced her intention of coming to Los Angeles to live at the close of her present tour. Some of us, at least, wish the lady success and prosperity and, above all, a long, long tour.

* * *

Political Sarcasm.

At least, the Good Government administration is to be thanked for a bit of delicate sarcasm.

After removing Chief Dishman by one of the most brutal exhibitions of raw machine politics that I ever heard of, their newspaper organ announced the sequel of that event in these words: "MACHINE will take care of Dishman. Assistant postmastership, etc."

Lissner denouncing Parker as a "boss" is certainly a truly awful rebuke.

Many of us who are Dishman's friends regretted when he became Chief. Dishman is a rank, "square," outspoken, authoritative man. He has no talent for guile or trickery, and no understanding of "policy." He says what he thinks, and bluffly. Dishman is a fine executive and would make a fine soldier; but no one should think of employing him as the "kept" tool of a political machine, because he is a poor hand at the job.

A Peevish Actor.

Henry Miller, the actor, makes a most amusing assault upon the New Theater in the last number of the Saturday Evening Post. It is amusing, not because Mr. Miller is particularly witty, but because he is so peevish.

He seems to think the New Theater was built on purpose to insult him. He takes it as particularly hard that the new manager should be a person of social importance. The fact that the New Theater has private boxes and that the people in the private boxes wear diamonds seems almost more than he can bear.

In the course of his article, however, he suggests the formation of a combination of stock houses like the combine that has been actually formed on this Coast by Oliver Morosco.

It looks very much as though Morosco has hit upon an idea that will revolutionize theatricals. Los Angeles leading the way, the managers are beginning to see that the stock company with an arrangement of swapping plays and actors is the thing that looms up as the dawn of a new theatrical day.

I say "Los Angeles leading the way," because the modern stock company has been raised to its highest point in this city.

As Mr. Miller suggests, the "stock combine" offers every advantage that the New Theater offers without either the expense or the snobbishness.

Waning Stars.

A stock company rehearses, say, three times, and produces a play that runs one week. Result: Rotten show.

A manager engages a high-priced star and surrounds her with a company that is "starvation cheap," and she takes the road after a year or more in New York. Result: Rotten show.

It is obviously impossible to make a finished production in one week. It is just as impossible to keep on saying the same lines every night for two years and do them well.

The combination of two or three stock houses where each company has a repertoire of eight or ten plays opens up a brilliant promise of a compromise between these two for systems. If there are less stars than now, I imagine we will try to bear the blow.

The star system is played out. We have seen through the trick of the managers. We all know now that a star is not a heaven-born genius; but merely a person whom press agents are directed to make famous.

Manufacturing fame is as simple as making pie.

Boston's Automobile Laws.

In Boston, they have been injecting a little sanity into their automobile laws; ours are still crazy.

Trying to regulate auto traffic by making a "speed limit" is tackling the problem hind-side-to. It is impossible to fix upon a rate of speed that will safeguard the public. Sixty miles an hour on Pico street on Monday morning at 10 o'clock might be in keeping with public safety. Six miles an hour on Pico street at 10:15 Monday morning might endanger lives.

There is no such thing as a "safe speed." The only sane plan is to hold the chauffeur to careful and discreet driving.

I understand that this is done in Massachusetts by licensing public chauffeurs under one class and "operators" (auto owners) under another. No machine can be run, under any circumstances, without a licensed chauffeur or licensed operator in the vehicle, if not actually at the wheel. Careless driving renders chauffeur or operator liable to be deprived of his license.

Such a law as this would more efficiently safeguard the public than any speed limit, and also would be less irksome for motorists. It would squeich both the pestiferous country constable and the really dangerous speed maniac.

A Flying Fake.

One of the finest fizzles ever pulled off was the Hearst flying-fest in San Francisco.

"Personally conducted" by the Hearst management, the public paid $2 to $3 a seat to sit in the rain and the wind—and not see any flying.

After the first day, I understand, the San Francisco Examiner office was besieged by an angry crowd of the "stung," who demanded their money back, and roared threats in case they didn't get it.

Goo-Goo Googles.

The Goo-Goo evening organ is kept in a condition of apologetic fury that is almost perpetual.

Its latest excitement is over the shady dismissal of Gen. Sherman, the cause of which the Mayor once said he "didn't have to tell."

In apologizing for it, the Express says that the Mayor's message says, etc. etc.

The what? The Mayor's message! In its comments, The Times confined itself to what the Mayor said. Not what John Smith said, or the Mayor's message writer said.

What have the Mayor's messages to do with the Mayor or what he said?

THE LANCER.

WHAT'S DOING IN SAN FRANCISCO.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28.—Peerless Paulhan, aviator and citizen of the universe, after breasting our breezes three times, gives us some airy talk not of the hot kind. He says: "I find that the topography and the general geographical configuration of California are particularly favorable to the successful application of the essential principles of aviation." This is not at all bad for an evoluted tight-rope walker, and we modestly admit its truth.

The one thing lacking in our aviation meet was the fact that it was not a meet at all. There was no opponent there to meet Paulhan. The spirit of competition was not there, and while we are grateful to the airy little Frenchman for braving our gentle zephyrs, still we would have enthused more if Glenn Curtiss had jumped into the belted arena of the atmosphere. It was also a positive disappointment that Paulhan did not use the monoplane.

There was some whispering that Mayor McCarthy would go up in the air with Paulhan. His friends thought that this would prove his courage, and they felt sure that before the trip ended he would show the Frenchman how to run things. The chief executive, however, stuck to the earth, and the incumbent Taylor commissioners were again disappointed.

Ajax defied the lightning, and the records show that nothing of much importance happened to him. Mayor McCarthy defied the banks, and the city lost $10,000 by it. Now, our first citizen has withdrawn his defy, and will allow the banks to have city money at call on payment of 2 per cent. interest. Credit is due the head of the municipality for his financial retreat.

For three days, while we were up in the clouds, it was a relief to get away from the talk of the Jeffries-Johnson prize fight. Now that we are back to earth again, there is talk of nothing else. Utah's Governor says that he will not allow the big bruisers to show in his State. Promoter "Jack" Gleason praises the Governor for his humane stand. Gleason thinks unselfishly, of course, that San Francisco is the only fit place for the brutal exhibition.

In reply to his wife's suit for divorce, Charles Wesley Reed, lawyer and publicist, begs her to withdraw the petition and return to her once happy home. He insists that she wishes to get the divorce in order to remarry, and he thinks that she ought not to desert her five small children. While he is willing to forgive her if she returns, he will resist if she persists in her suit.

With tender consideration of the workingman deprived of his smoke on going to and returning from work, it is proposed to repeal the law prohibiting smoking in the street cars. One sarcastic citizen suggests that in order to avoid discrimination, chewers of tobacco be permitted to spit in the cars, and if the ladies object to it they can wear rubbers.

People are asking what Oakland ever did to "Big Jim" Gallagher that he should prefer to live there than anywhere else in the world. His brother "Tom" swore in court that the former Supervisor would soon return from Europe and would settle down in Oakland, as he would rather live there than go on the stage.

Some peculiarities of our legal procedure are amusing, to say the least. There is the case of Banker Hays, for instance. After his sudden disappearance from here, the police said they wanted him. He voluntarily reappears in Tennessee, and the police say they do not want him, but he says that he is going to return and sue for $100,000.

An Oakland preacher roasted "Jack" London for not having any hope beyond the cemetery, and the author neatly sidestepped the charge. The next day his mother broke into print with the statement that she was a medium and could talk with the spirit of her husband, who had been a special policeman in life, and the father of "Jack." Philosophers might term this a case of vicarious belief.

Out of Berkeley cometh much learning, and this time it is Prof. W. C. Mitchell, who believes that wives should save the earnings of their husbands and should be chosen for their knowledge of economics in running the household. As to the latter, the professor would have to dispense with sex magnetism and as to the former, he will have to dispense with millinery stores.

PUBLIC SERVICE---Courts and Offices.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The Police Commission announced no special meeting would be held yesterday, and it is believed a choice for Chief has been made, and will be announced tomorrow night.

A sleuth thought he had discovered a deep plot to reopen the old tenderloin district, yesterday, and was disappointed when he found the only occupant of a "crib" house was a ranch-hand.

Thomas J. Brown brought an action in the Superior Court against the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, asking $1500 damages by reason of the alleged violation of a contract giving him the sole privilege of selling soft drinks during the aviation meet.

John Haley, an Eagle Rock man, told in Justice Summerfield's court, yesterday, why he was angry with Mrs. Emma Monroe, and expressed his opinion. It cost him $5.

AT THE CITY HALL.

READY TO NAME A NEW CHIEF?

POLICE COMMISSION NOT TO HOLD SPECIAL SESSION.

Expected to Announce Name of Galloway at Tomorrow Night's Meeting—Indications That Members Have Agreed Who Shall Have Place—Suspense of Others.

No meeting of the Police Commission was held yesterday or last night, and members declared none will be held until the regular hour tomorrow night. The members were emphatic in saying no meeting had been arranged, although the report was current that one would be held yesterday afternoon.

And this emphasis alarmed many of the candidates for Chief Dishman's shoes, for they construed it to mean that the commission has fully made up its mind for action Monday night. But this the Mayor and other members would not express an opinion about.

The belief is that Alexander Galloway, practically an unknown quality, has made the best impression on the commission, and will receive the appointment. Galloway has nothing to say about it, and the commission is silent. But the fact that the commission considers its work done, and is only awaiting Monday night's session, indicates that he has been chosen. Still, the politicians will not be surprised if some one never heard of is named. The friends of George Lyons, W. T. Harris, James Hanley and others are professing hope, and finding some, in the uncertain attitude of the commission—if it is uncertain.

The Police Commission has postponed most of its saloon permit troubles until February 14, and hopes to get through the coming week without an extra meeting. The saloon party St. Valentine's Day may be disastrous to many places, as the commission has taken abundant time to determine whether it may legally refuse permits to places which are controlled by breweries or under lease to breweries. Probably fifteen saloons hang in this balance, with a whole list more that may be in a similar situation any day. Discovery that saloons were being operated under permits standing in another person's name opened the door to the commission, and it is making no effort to close it. The advice of the City Attorney is expected before a decision is reached.

Raise Wilmington Streets.

Property owners of Wilmington will appear before the Board of Public Works Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock to discuss proposed changes of grade in a number of streets in the business section of the district. The change is necessitated by the requirements for sewers, and in most cases will cause an elevation of several feet. That portion of the district is now so level with the waterline of the ocean that sewer construction is not feasible. As the grades must be established some time, the board has asked the conference, so that it may be made as speedily as possible and permit the engineer to prosecute the sewer plans.

Desmond Asks Increase.

Because of the increase in the cost of meats, D. J. Desmond, contractor for the subsistence of the 3000 aqueduct employés, has asked to have his contract changed, so that he may charge 25 cents a meal straight, instead of twenty-one meals for $5. The change will increase his income 5 per cent. His request was made of the aqueduct advisory board, but has been taken under advisement. It is represented that the subsistence was without profit before the raise in prices, but is now positively a loss.

Oppose Park District.

The West End Improvement Association has protested against the condemnation of additional land for Sunset Park by assessment district plan, and urge the Council to authorize its purchase by the use of public revenue.

City Tree Planting.

The City Forester yesterday issued permits for the planting of 2500 young trees in the streets of Los Angeles. It is estimated they will beautify many streets five years hence, when they have gained full growth.

SORROW AND LIQUOR.

J. T. Ewing sought to obliterate his sorrow over the death of his wife, who was buried Friday, by indulging in his cups, yesterday. He submerged his equilibrium and as a result was taken to the City Jail. He told the officers that he had not imbibed for several years. In view of the mitigating circumstances, he will probably be gently dealt with in Police Court. Louis Cwreg called at police headquarters yesterday and requested the desk sergeant to lock him up. He declared he was "drunk." His request was complied with.

B'NAI B'RITH BALL.

The B'nai B'rith order of this city will give a grand ball next Tuesday evening at the Goldberg-Bosley Assembly Hall. Invitations have been issued. The committee in charge consists of Isaac O. Levy, chairman; M. J. Finkenstein, Irving S. Metzler, J. H. Birnbaum and Julius Salmonson.

STREET CAR DELIVERY.

Early Newspaper and Passenger Service.

To facilitate an earlier delivery of The Times in the southeastern and southwestern parts of the city, arrangements have been made with the street railway companies by which yellow car starts from The Times Office, corner First and Broadway, at 4 a.m. daily. It runs via Broadway to 12th, to San Pedro, to South Park avenue and Slauson avenue.

An interurban car, running via Hill street to 16th, to Burlington, to Vermont and to Santa Barbara, leaves The Times Office at 3:30 a.m., taking papers to the southwestern section.

Both cars carry passengers and will undoubtedly prove a convenience for many late night and early morning workers.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

DRINK VENDER HAS GRIEVANCE.

WANTS DAMAGES FROM AVIATION MEETING MANAGERS.

Complaint Alleges That His Contract for Exclusive Sale of Soft Thirst Satisfiers at Dominguez Was Violated and That His Business Was Hurt by Whisky Signs.

In the Superior Court, yesterday, Thomas J. Brown brought an action to recover $1500 from the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, for an alleged breach of contract, involving the sale of soft drinks during the recent aviation meet.

Brown shows, as "exhibit A," a copy of the contract signed by F. J. Zeehandelaar, secretary of the defendant company, and himself, in which it is stipulated that Brown was to have the exclusive sale of such merchandise by the payment of $600, the receipt for which is acknowledged.

The petitioner alleges that on the 5th inst. he purchased the sole privilege of selling lemonade, soda water and bottled soft drinks during the aviation festivities, continuing from the 10th to the 20th, for which he put up $600, but that for eight days of the term the defendants also allowed "Tom Thompson" to dispense soft drinks; also that Henry Behrens, an employé of the plaintiff, was not allowed to purvey the drinks for which he had purchased the privilege, and it is also asserted that the defendant took $10 from Behrens for the right to sell "Modern Brew."

Another count in the indictment is that the managers of the meeting refused to allow Brown's vending boys free admission to the grounds, as had been agreed upon, and that a saloonkeeper was allowed to display the signs of "Whisky" and "Beer," above the sign of Brown, thus making his place objectionable to the people to whom he was trying to cater—those who indulged only in soft drinks.

Brown asks for a judgment of $400 each for the "Tom Thompson" and Behrens episodes, while the balance of the $1500 claim is charged to the distasteful signs displayed over his place on the grounds at Dominguez.

Fred Rickert and Tom Thompson, who brought suit in the Superior Court against the Aviation Committee on Friday for alleged breach of contract, stated yesterday, that the action was not brought until they had consulted fully with their attorney.

"We allege that the contract for our restaurant concession was violated in several particulars," said Thompson. "By its terms, we paid $1200 for an exclusive privilege to sell viands on the grounds during Aviation Week. We can prove that twenty-eight other men sold edibles on the grounds.

"We also allege that the contract was broken in regard to selling liquor. A representative of the District Attorney informed us we were violating the State law in selling liquor with box lunches in the grand stand. As soon as notified we discontinued the sale.

"While we lost money on the deal, we are only suing to recover $1200, what we paid for the concession. As we did business with the Aviation Committee, our suit is against that body.

UNHAPPY JAPS.

SEWER FISH COST MONEY.

In Justice Ling's court yesterday, nine Japanese pleaded guilty to a violation of the county ordinance prohibiting fishing within a mile of the outfall sewer, between Playa del Rey and Redondo, and were fined $15 each and given a suspended sentence of 150 days.

The Japs said that white men had been doing the same thing right along and had never been molested, intimating that the little brown men of the Land of the Cherry Blossom and Chrysanthemum were being discriminated against, but the excuse had no influence on the court. They also alleged that Deputy State Fish Commissioner Pritchard had told them that they could catch fish for bait near the outfall sewer.

The Japs have a camp on the bluff near the electric railway track, and have been violating the law in other regards, according to the testimony of white men fishing along that coast. The accused are large contributors to the local fish market.

Justice Ling gave them a sound lecture on the necessity of keeping the food supply of the city beyond the suspicion of contamination of any character.

WHY HALEY KICKED.

AND NO WONDER HE SWORE.

John Haley, a bright Irishman living at Eagle Rock, was in Justice Summerfield's court yesterday on the charge of disturbing the peace. The complaint was sworn out by Mrs. Emma Monroe, a neighbor, who alleged that the defendant had used bad language in her presence.

It appeared from the testimony that Haley is the owner of a fast horse and likely-looking buggy; that on many occasions he had taken the Monroes, husband and wife, on driving excursions, but finding that it was a bit hard on Dobbins to pull a load of pleasure seekers around the country after a day's work, he concluded that he would quit treating the Monroes to any more joy rides. That conclusion, according to the evidence, seemed to anger Mrs. Monroe especially, and when Haley would brush by, the woman would not speak to him, presumably because he had cut out the country trips. At last, Haley thought that was the reason, and a few days ago he fractured the atmosphere in giving his vocal opinion of the woman. His arrest followed, and he contributed $5 to the conscience fund. The magistrate thought there were some mitigating circumstances in the case, but the majesty of the law must be maintained.

VICTIM OF DRINK.

PLEADS FOR HIS FAMILY.

The wife and three children of F. C. Shoemaker charged with forging a check for $9 on the C. J. Kubac Company, gave him a tearful welcome in Judge Willis's court yesterday, as he came over the Bridge of Sighs for sentence. The crime was committed on December 20, last, and the old excuse of drink was the only palliation in sight. The family sat closely huddled together during the proceedings, the mother and children taking in every word of the court.

Shoemaker acknowledged that he was a periodical drinker, but could remember but little of what had happened preceding the commission of the crime to which he had pleaded guilty. He declared that his greatest sorrow was on account of the innocent persons who had been disgraced by his act, and as he spoke he looked full into the faces of his wife and littles ones. He asked no clemency for himself but in behalf of those who were dependent upon him.

The court postponed action on the case until Friday, and said that tomorrow he would make arrangements by which Shoemaker would be enabled to take treatment for the liquor habit. Judge Willis expressed sorrow for Shoemaker, and thought that with the assistance of his friends he would be enabled to get on his feet. It is understood that when the case comes up again Shoemaker will be allowed to go on probation for the sake of his family, who seem strongly attached to him.

ACTION FOR DAMAGES. An action was brought by Charles C. McCarty and Mary L. McCarty against the Pacific Electric Railway Company in the Superior Court yesterday for $30,000 damages in account of injuries alleged to have been received by Mary L. McCarty, while a passenger on a car of the defendant company, near Oneonta Station, July 30, last, by the sudden starting of the car.

AFTER THE STOCKHOLDERS. The stockholders of the Wentworth Hotel Company were made parties defendant in the Superior Court yesterday in a suit brought by the Meyberg Company to collect an account of $3000, through the stockholders' liability.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT. The jury in Judge Bordwell's court found for the defendant in the suit brought by Mrs. A. N. Altman against the Pacific Electric Railway, to collect $50,000, alleged to be due on account of an accident resulting in the death of James Altman, husband of the plaintiff.

QUEER DAMAGE ACTION. A jury in Judge Bordwell's court yesterday began the consideration of the testimony in the action brought by Lydia A. Thomson against the Pacific Electric Railway Company to collect $5530, alleged to be due by reason of an accident that occurred on Temple street, August 15, 1907. The complaint sets out that the plaintiff was a passenger in a car of the defendant on that date, and that the car was allowed to collide with a four-horse team, running away with a load of hay, knocking her down and causing severe injuries.

THREW A BOTTLE. In Justice Summerfield's court yesterday, T. J. Cook was fined $5 for disturbing the peace, by throwing an empty beer bottle through the window of a passing car. Cook is a road supervisor in Supervisor Nellis's district, at Clearwater.

GIVEN PROBATION. Bert Cohen, who pleaded guilty to committing rape upon Opal Penn, aged 19 years, was given two years probation in Judge Willis's court yesterday.

The trial of N. J. Ocksreider, charged with embezzling funds of Pease Brothers, was set for Friday next.

MINOR MATTERS. In Judge Davis's court yesterday, the habeas corpus hearing involving Jason Woodward, charged with failing to provide for his family, was set for Tuesday.

John Jacob Gostinoski, charged with grand larceny, will plead to the complaint the same day.

Walter Mayfield, assault with a deadly weapon, will plead next Thursday.

The case of Wong Yuey, a Chinaman, appealing from the decision of Police Justice Frederickson, who fined him $100 on the charge of a violation of the lottery ordinance, was taken under advisement. It was alleged in behalf of the accused that the evidence failed to show what offense had been committed.

THE INFERIOR COURTS

AMBITIOUS COP DISAPPOINTED.

DREAMS OF THWARTING EFFORT TO REOPEN TENDERLOIN.

Finds Door of "Crib" House Ajar, But When He Enters Discovers Only Ranch Hand Sleeping Off Jag. Son of Toil Released on Suspended Sentence.

Patrolman Browning, a plain-clothes officer, had visions of making himself famous early yesterday morning when he saw the door of one of the old "crib" houses standing ajar. When he entered, he thought he was going to have the glory of breaking up an attempt to open up the old tenderloin district, but he found only a ranch hand sound asleep.

Jim O'Hara came into the city to get a swollen tooth lanced. The operation was performed and he started to return to the rural district, when he ran across another son of the soil.

A beer sign invited them into a saloon, and they had many drinks. When they began to think about getting home in time to call the pigs for breakfast, O'Hara discovered he had no money, while his friend had just enough to pay his own car fare.

The rancher went in search of a place to sleep where he would not have to pay. He wandered around until he found the door of one of the notorious old houses standing open.

When Browning roused him up, he explained the circumstances, declaring he did not wish to go to jail, as his pet pigeon would miss him. But the officer insisted that he had better finish his sleep in a bed provided by the city.

O'Hara was taken before Justice Williams yesterday on a charge of having slept on property without the permission of the owner. The prisoner pleaded guilty, and told his story to the magistrate. The justice suspended his sentence, but told him he had better make it a rule when he came to the city again to go home before the lights began to glow.

NO MORE LENIENCY.

JAIL FOR HIM, THIS TIME.

E. W. McCullough, a young man, was sent to jail for 120 days, by Justice Williams, yesterday, for having violated his parole from a charge of misdemeanor embezzlement.

McCullough makes a business of selling patent lights and his sales frequently take him into saloons. He fell into the habit of imbibing more than was good for him. Although he was making good commissions, he spent more than his income. To make up the deficiency, he used money which did not belong to him and is also said to have passed worthless checks.

When taken before Justice Williams, his friends and men who had suffered through his acts asked for leniency for him. He promised to straighten up and was placed on probation, with the provision that he would refrain from entering saloons.

He called on the magistrate Friday and asked permission to call on liquor dealers. He stated that he had a patented light which he could sell to no one but saloonists.

"You've been drinking, now," the justice told him.

He admitted he had taken a glass of beer, declaring he had to do so in order to close a deal.

"You had better get into some other business, then, and keep away from these places, or you will get in trouble," the magistrate advised him.

Yesterday the police found he had been drinking and say that he had passed more worthless checks. When taken before the justice, he begged for another chance, but the court told him that he had already been shown too much leniency.

Speeders Fined.

William Haller and W. H. Cooper were fined $25 each, by Justice Williams, yesterday, for having violated the speed ordinance.

SO OBVIOUS.

SAY HAZING IS REAL BENEFIT.

SOME BUMPTIOUS YOUNGSTERS NEED DISCIPLINING.

Student Leaders at Stanford Give Reasons Why the "Ragging" in Vogue There Is Really Useful and Members of the Faculty Don't Say Nay—Sophomore Election.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 28.—The system of hazing now in vogue at Stanford is not harmful but a positive benefit, was the sentiment expressed by the student conference today. Not only are the student leaders friendly to the custom, but the faculty student committee indorses it, if the hazing can be so conducted as not to cause bodily harm and so as not to overburden the freshmen who are in need of discipline.

Prof. Clark, chairman of the committee, said he had no doubt that some newcomers were in need of training, but that "tubbing" in the men's dormitory was not supervised as it should be by the upper classmen.

Student Advisor Roth declared that some of the sophomores who gave the "freshes" the cold baths were more in need of them than their victims.

The student conference, however, expressed itself as opposing the kidnapping and bringing of students living off the campus, to the dormitory for hazing.

FULLERTON MAN LOSES.

R. C. McFadden of Fullerton was defeated by Leland Scott of Alameda for the presidency of the senior class by a vote of 113 to 80, yesterday. Miss M. H. James of Santa Monica was unanimously elected secretary.

H. L. Hubbard of Redlands was beaten by W. B. Cohen of Cleveland, in the fight for the presidency of the sophomore class. Miss V. M. Marchall of Riverside was chosen secretary, and M. F. Enderle of Santa Ana was elected treasurer.

The sophomore election was made interesting by the issuance of an anonymous letter addressed to all the members of the class, praising one candidate for the presidency and hinting that his rival was managed by an unscrupulous political ring.

The unknown politician was severely attacked in the editorial column of the daily paper today. The editor said: "The circumstance will be regarded only as the inane and vacuous attempt of a weak and cowardly mind. Such an anonymous writer, concealing his identity by the use of a mimeograph for his letters and a disguised handwriting for his envelopes, would be deserving of some severity, were it not that the ludicrousness of his attempt evokes pity for a distorted mind."

The annual minstrel show given in the assembly hall tonight under the direction of G. F. Morgan, '10, was an unqualified success. Forty students participated.

Paul Batkin, '10 of Los Angeles, J. E. Shelton, '10, and G. F. Morgan, '10, have been appointed to consult with a committee from the University of California regarding important changes in the intercollegiate debating rules. The Carnot contest is to be held at Berkeley, February 12.

George W. Dickinson, accompanied by wife, son and sister, will leave here Tuesday morning for the City of Mexico. They will remain there for about a month.

PUBLIC SERVICE---Courts and Offices.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The Police Commission announced no special meeting would be held yesterday, and it is believed a choice for Chief has been made, and will be announced tomorrow night.

A sleuth thought he had discovered a deep plot to reopen the old tenderloin district, yesterday, and was disappointed when he found the only occupant of a "crib" house was a ranchhand.

Thomas J. Brown brought an action in the Superior Court against the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, asking $1500 damages by reason of the alleged violation of a contract giving him the sole privilege of selling soft drinks during the aviation meet.

John Haley, an Eagle Rock man, told in Justice Summerfield's court, yesterday, why he was angry with Mrs. Emma Monroe, and expressed his opinion. It cost him $5.

AT THE CITY HALL.

READY TO NAME A NEW CHIEF?

POLICE COMMISSION NOT TO HOLD SPECIAL SESSION.

Expected to Announce Name of Galloway at Tomorrow Night's Meeting—Indications That Members Have Agreed Who Shall Have Place—Suspense of Others.

No meeting of the Police Commission was held yesterday or last night, and members declared none will be held until the regular hour tomorrow night. The members were emphatic in saying no meeting had been arranged, although the report was current that one would be held yesterday afternoon.

And this emphasis alarmed many of the candidates for Chief Dishman's shoes, for they construed it to mean that the commission has fully made up its mind for action Monday night. But this the Mayor and other members would not express an opinion about.

The belief is that Alexander Galloway, practically an unknown quality, has made the best impression on the commission, and will receive the appointment. Galloway has nothing to say about it, and the commission is silent. But the fact that the commission considers its work done, and is only awaiting Monday night's session, indicates that he has been chosen. Still, the politicians will not be surprised if some one never heard of is named. The friends of George Lyons, W. T. Harris, James Hanley and others are professing hope, and finding some, in the uncertain attitude of the commission—if it is uncertain.

The Police Commission has postponed most of its saloon permit troubles until February 14, and hopes to get through the coming week without an extra meeting. The saloon party St. Valentine's Day may be disastrous to many places, as the commission has taken abundant time to determine whether it may legally refuse permits to places which are controlled by breweries or under lease to breweries. Probably fifteen saloons hang in this balance, with a whole list more that may be in a similar situation any day. Discovery that saloons were being operated under permits standing in another person's name opened the door to the commission, and it is making no effort to close it. The advice of the City Attorney is expected before a decision is reached.

Raise Wilmington Streets.

Property owners of Wilmington will appear before the Board of Public Works Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock to discuss proposed changes of grade in a number of streets in the business section of the district. The change is necessitated by the requirements for sewers, and in most cases will cause an elevation of several feet. That portion of the district is now so level with the waterline of the ocean that sewer construction is not feasible. As the grades must be established some time, the board has asked the conference, so that it may be made as speedily as possible and permit the engineer to prosecute the sewer plans.

Desmond Asks Increase.

Because of the increase in the cost of meats, D. J. Desmond, contractor for the subsistence of the 3000 aqueduct employés, has asked to have his contract changed, so that he may charge 25 cents a meal straight, instead of twenty-one meals for $5. The change will increase his income 5 per cent. His request was made of the aqueduct advisory board, but has been taken under advisement. It is represented that the subsistence was without profit before the raise in prices, but is now positively a loss.

Oppose Park District.

The West End Improvement Association has protested against the condemnation of additional land for Sunset Park by assessment district plan, and urge the Council to authorize its purchase by the use of public revenue.

City Tree Planting.

The City Forester yesterday issued permits for the planting of 2500 young trees in the streets of Los Angeles. It is estimated they will beautify many streets five years hence, when they have gained full growth.

SORROW AND LIQUOR.

J. T. Ewing sought to obliterate his sorrow over the death of his wife, who was buried Friday, by indulging in his cups, yesterday. He submerged his equilibrium and as a result was taken to the City Jail. He told the officers that he had not imbibed for several years. In view of the mitigating circumstances, he will probably be gently dealt with in Police Court. Louis Cwreg called at police headquarters yesterday and requested the desk sergeant to lock him up. He declared he was "drunk." His request was complied with.

B'NAI B'RITH BALL.

The B'nai B'rith order of this city will give a grand ball next Tuesday evening at the Goldberg-Bosley Assembly Hall. Invitations have been issued. The committee in charge consists of Isaac O. Levy, chairman; M. J. Finkenstein, Irving S. Metzler, J. H. Birnbaum and Julius Salmonson.

STREET CAR DELIVERY.

Early Newspaper and Passenger Service.

To facilitate an earlier delivery of The Times in the southeastern and southwestern parts of the city, arrangements have been made with the street railway companies by which yellow car starts from The Times Office, corner First and Broadway, at 4 a.m. daily. It runs via Broadway to 12th, to San Pedro, to South Park avenue and Slauson avenue.

An interurban car, running via Hill street to 12th, to Burlington, to Vermont and to Santa Barbara, leaves The Times Office at 3:30 a.m., taking papers to the southwestern section.

Both cars carry passengers and will undoubtedly prove a convenience for many late night and early morning workers.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

DRINK VENDER HAS GRIEVANCE.

WANTS DAMAGES FROM AVIATION MEETING MANAGERS.

Complaint Alleges That His Contract for Exclusive Sale of Soft Thirst Satisfiers at Dominguez Was Violated and That His Business Was Hurt by Whisky Signs.

In the Superior Court, yesterday, Thomas J. Brown brought an action to recover $1500 from the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, for an alleged breach of contract, involving the sale of soft drinks during the recent aviation meet.

Brown shows, as "exhibit A," a copy of the contract signed by F. J. Zeehandelaar, secretary of the defendant company, and himself, in which it is stipulated that Brown was to have the exclusive sale of such merchandise by the payment of $600, the receipt for which is acknowledged.

The petitioner alleges that on the 5th inst. he purchased the sole privilege of selling lemonade, soda water and bottled soft drinks during the aviation festivities, continuing from the 10th to the 20th, for which he put up $600, but that for eight days of the term the defendants also allowed "Tom Thompson" to dispense soft drinks; also that Henry Behrens, an employé of the plaintiff, was not allowed to purvey the drinks for which he had purchased the privilege, and it is also asserted that the defendant took $10 from Behrens for the right to sell "Modern Brew."

Another count in the indictment is that the managers of the meeting refused to allow Brown's vending boys free admission to the grounds, as had been agreed upon, and that a saloonkeeper was allowed to display the signs of "Whisky" and "Beer," above the sign of Brown, thus making his place objectionable to the people to whom he was trying to cater—those who indulged only in soft drinks.

Brown asks for a judgment of $400 each for the "Tom Thompson" and Behrens episodes, while the balance of the $1500 claim is charged to the distasteful signs displayed over his place on the grounds at Dominguez.

Fred Rickert and Tom Thompson, who brought suit in the Superior Court against the Aviation Committee on Friday for alleged breach of contract, stated yesterday, that the action was not brought until they had consulted fully with their attorney.

"We allege that the contract for our restaurant concession was violated in several particulars," said Thompson. "By its terms, we paid $1200 for an exclusive privilege to sell viands on the grounds during Aviation Week. We can prove that twenty-eight other men sold edibles on the grounds.

"We also allege that the contract was broken in regard to selling liquor. A representative of the District Attorney informed us we were violating the State law in selling liquor with box lunches in the grand stand. As soon as notified we discontinued the sale.

"While we lost money on the deal, we are only suing to recover $1200, what we paid for the concession. As we did business with the Aviation Committee, our suit is against that body.

UNHAPPY JAPS.

SEWER FISH COST MONEY.

In Justice Ling's court yesterday, nine Japanese pleaded guilty to a violation of the county ordinance prohibiting fishing within a mile of the outfall sewer, between Playa del Rey and Redondo, and were fined $15 each and given a suspended sentence of 150 days.

The Japs said that white men had been doing the same thing right along and had never been molested, intimating that the little brown men of the Land of the Cherry Blossom and Chrysanthemum were being discriminated against, but the excuse had no influence on the court. They also alleged that Deputy State Fish Commissioner Pritchard had told them that they could catch fish for bait near the outfall sewer.

The Japs have a camp on the bluff near the electric railway track, and have been violating the law in other regards, according to the testimony of white men fishing along that coast. The accused are large contributors to the local fish market.

Justice Ling gave them a sound lecture on the necessity of keeping the food supply of the city beyond the suspicion of contamination of any character.

WHY HALEY KICKED.

AND NO WONDER HE SWORE.

John Haley, a bright Irishman living at Eagle Rock, was in Justice Summerfield's court yesterday on the charge of disturbing the peace. The complaint was sworn out by Mrs. Emma Monroe, a neighbor, who alleged that the defendant had used bad language in her presence.

It appeared from the testimony that Haley is the owner of a fast horse and likely-looking buggy; that on many occasions he had taken the Monroes, husband and wife, on driving excursions, but finding that it was a bit hard on Dobbins to pull a load of pleasure seekers around the country after a day's work, he concluded that he would quit treating the Monroes to any more joy rides. That conclusion, according to the evidence, seemed to anger Mrs. Monroe especially, and when Haley would brush by, the woman would not speak to him, presumably because he had cut out the country trips. At last, Haley thought that was the reason, and a few days ago he fractured the atmosphere in giving his vocal opinion of the woman. His arrest followed, and he contributed $5 to the conscience fund. The magistrate thought there were some mitigating circumstances in the case, but the majesty of the law must be maintained.

VICTIM OF DRINK.

PLEADS FOR HIS FAMILY.

The wife and three children of F. C. Shoemaker charged with forging a check for $9 on the C. J. Kubac Company, gave him a tearful welcome in Judge Willis's court yesterday, as he came over the Bridge of Sighs for sentence. The crime was committed on December 20, last, and the old excuse of drink was the only palliation in sight. The family sat closely huddled together during the proceedings, the mother and children taking in every word of the court.

Shoemaker acknowledged that he was a periodical drinker, but could remember but little of what had happened preceding the commission of the crime to which he had pleaded guilty. He declared that his greatest sorrow was on account of the innocent persons who had been disgraced by his act, and as he spoke he looked full into the faces of his wife and littles ones. He asked no clemency for himself but in behalf of those who were dependent upon him.

The court postponed action on the case until Friday, and said that tomorrow he would make arrangements by which Shoemaker would be enabled to take treatment for the liquor habit. Judge Willis expressed sorrow for Shoemaker, and thought that with the assistance of his friends he would be enabled to get on his feet. It is understood that when the case comes up again Shoemaker will be allowed to go on probation for the sake of his family, who seem strongly attached to him.

ACTION FOR DAMAGES. An action was brought by Charles C. McCarty and Mary L. McCarty against the Pacific Electric Railway Company in the Superior Court yesterday for $30,000 damages in account of injuries alleged to have been received by Mary L. McCarty, while a passenger on a car of the defendant company, near Oneonta Station, July 30, last, by the sudden starting of the car.

AFTER THE STOCKHOLDERS. The stockholders of the Wentworth Hotel Company were made parties defendant in the Superior Court yesterday in a suit brought by the Meyberg Company to collect an account of $3000, through the stockholders' liability.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT. The jury in Judge Bordwell's court found for the defendant in the suit brought by Mrs. A. N. Altman against the Pacific Electric Railway, to collect $50,000, alleged to be due on account of an accident resulting in the death of James Altman, husband of the plaintiff.

QUEER DAMAGE ACTION. A jury in Judge Bordwell's court yesterday began the consideration of the testimony in the action brought by Lydia A. Thomson against the Pacific Electric Railway Company to collect $5530, alleged to be due by reason of an accident that occurred on Temple street, August 15, 1907. The complaint sets out that the plaintiff was a passenger in a car of the defendant on that date, and that the car was allowed to collide with a four-horse team, running away with a load of hay, knocking her down and causing severe injuries.

THREW A BOTTLE. In Justice Summerfield's court yesterday, T. J. Cook was fined $5 for disturbing the peace, by throwing an empty beer bottle through the window of a passing car. Cook is a road supervisor in Supervisor Nellis's district, at Clearwater.

GIVEN PROBATION. Bert Cohen, who pleaded guilty to committing rape upon Opal Penn, aged 19 years, was given two years probation in Judge Willis's court yesterday.

The trial of N. J. Ocksreider, charged with embezzling funds of Pease Brothers, was set for Friday next.

MINOR MATTERS. In Judge Davis's court yesterday, the habeas corpus hearing involving Jason Woodward, charged with failing to provide for his family, was set for Tuesday.

John Jacob Gostinoski, charged with grand larceny, will plead to the complaint the same day.

Walter Mayfield, assault with a deadly weapon, will plead next Thursday.

The case of Wong Yuey, a Chinaman, appealing from the decision of Police Justice Frederickson, who fined him $100 on the charge of a violation of the lottery ordinance, was taken under advisement. It was alleged in behalf of the accused that the evidence failed to show what offense had been committed.

THE INFERIOR COURTS

AMBITIOUS COP DISAPPOINTED.

DREAMS OF THWARTING EFFORT TO REOPEN TENDERLOIN.

Finds Door of "Crib" House Ajar, But When He Enters Discovers Only Ranch Hand Sleeping Off Jag. Son of Toil Released on Suspended Sentence.

Patrolman Browning, a plain-clothes officer, had visions of making himself famous early yesterday morning when he saw the door of one of the old "crib" houses standing ajar. When he entered, he thought he was going to have the glory of breaking up an attempt to open up the old tenderloin district, but he found only a ranch hand sound asleep.

Jim O'Hara came into the city to get a swollen tooth lanced. The operation was performed and he started to return to the rural district, when he ran across another son of the soil. A beer sign invited them into a saloon, and they had many drinks. When they began to think about getting home in time to call the pigs for breakfast, O'Hara discovered he had no money, while his friend had just enough to pay his own car fare.

The rancher went in search of a place to sleep where he would not have to pay. He wandered around until he found the door of one of the notorious old houses standing open.

When Browning roused him up, he explained the circumstances, declaring he did not wish to go to jail, as his pet pigeon would miss him. But the officer insisted that he had better finish his sleep in a bed provided by the city.

O'Hara was taken before Justice Williams yesterday on a charge of having slept on property without the permission of the owner. The prisoner pleaded guilty, and told his story to the magistrate. The justice suspended his sentence, but told him he had better make it a rule when he came to the city again to go home before the lights began to glow.

NO MORE LENIENCY.

JAIL FOR HIM, THIS TIME.

E. W. McCullough, a young man, was sent to jail for 120 days, by Justice Williams, yesterday, for having violated his parole from a charge of misdemeanor embezzlement.

McCullough makes a business of selling patent lights and his sales frequently take him into saloons. He fell into the habit of imbibing more than was good for him. Although he was making good commissions, he spent more than his income. To make up the deficiency, he used money which did not belong to him and is also said to have passed worthless checks.

When taken before Justice Williams, his friends and men who had suffered through his acts asked for leniency for him. He promised to straighten up and was placed on probation, with the provision that he would refrain from entering saloons.

He called on the magistrate Friday and asked permission to call on liquor dealers. He stated that he had a patented light which he could sell to no one but saloonists.

"You've been drinking, now," the justice told him.

He admitted he had taken a glass of beer, declaring he had to do so in order to close a deal.

"You had better get into some other business, then, and keep away from these places, or you will get in trouble," the magistrate advised him.

Yesterday the police found he had been drinking and say that he had passed more worthless checks. When taken before the justice, he begged for another chance, but the court told him that he had already been shown too much leniency.

Speeders Fined.

William Haller and W. H. Cooper were fined $25 each, by Justice Williams, yesterday, for having violated the speed ordinance.

SO OBVIOUS.

SAY HAZING IS REAL BENEFIT.

SOME BUMPTIOUS YOUNGSTERS NEED DISCIPLINING.

Student Leaders at Stanford Give Reasons Why the "Ragging" in Vogue There Is Really Useful and Members of the Faculty Don't Say Nay—Sophomore Election.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 28.—The system of hazing now in vogue at Stanford is not harmful but a positive benefit, was the sentiment expressed by the student conference today. Not only are the student leaders friendly to the custom, but the faculty student committee indorses it, if the hazing can be so conducted as not to cause bodily harm and so as not to overburden the freshmen who are in need of discipline.

Prof. Clark, chairman of the committee, said he had no doubt that some newcomers were in need of training, but that "tubbing" in the men's dormitory was not supervised as it should be by the upper classmen.

Student Advisor Roth declared that some of the sophomores who gave the "freshes" the cold baths were more in need of them than their victims.

The student conference, however, expressed itself as opposing the kidnapping and bringing of students living off the campus, to the dormitory for hazing.

FULLERTON MAN LOSES.

R. C. McFadden of Fullerton was defeated by Leland Scott of Alameda for the presidency of the senior class by a vote of 113 to 80, yesterday. Miss M. H. James of Santa Monica was unanimously elected secretary.

H. L. Hubbard of Redlands was beaten by W. B. Cohen of Cleveland, in the fight for the presidency of the sophomore class. Miss V. M. Marchall of Riverside was chosen secretary, and M. F. Enderle of Santa Ana was elected treasurer.

The sophomore election was made interesting by the issuance of an anonymous letter addressed to all the members of the class, praising one candidate for the presidency and hinting that his rival was managed by an unscrupulous political ring.

The unknown politician was severely attacked in the editorial column of the daily paper today. The editor said: "The circumstance will be regarded only as the inane and vacuous attempt of a weak and cowardly mind. Such an anonymous writer, concealing his identity by the use of a mimeograph for his letters and a disguised handwriting for his envelopes, would be deserving of some severity, were it not that the ludicrousness of his attempt evokes pity for a distorted mind."

The annual minstrel show given in the assembly hall tonight under the direction of G. F. Morgan, '10, was an unqualified success. Forty students participated.

Paul Batkin, '10 of Los Angeles, J. E. Shelton, '10, and G. F. Morgan, '10, have been appointed to consult with a committee from the University of California regarding important changes in the intercollegiate debating rules. The Carnot contest is to be held at Berkeley, February 12.

George W. Dickinson, accompanied by wife, son and sister, will leave here Tuesday morning for the City of Mexico. They will remain there for about a month.

20 Extra Sales People---Sale Starts 8 O'clock

FOURTEEN of the many styles illustrated here. But no picture could give you an adequate idea of the fine quality, the correct and matchless styles, the perfect and painstaking workmanship conspicuous in every pair. Every man and woman in Los Angeles is vitally concerned in this sale, affording as it does an unparalleled saving on the finest grade of men's and women's footwear.

The failure of a large Eastern concern who had these shoes on order for spring selling, and the presence of our buyer in the market at the time, equipped with ready cash, are responsible for this extraordinary purchase.

The names alone of the makes involved are familiar to most every man and woman, and are sufficient guarantee of the highest quality in shoe making. Years of experience and an earnest endeavor to give the people the most for their money are back of every pair.

When you wear the shoes you buy in this sale you will have no doubt in mind about their style—no question as to their quality, because every pair is guaranteed—by the manufacturers and us. Nowhere else can you get equal assurance and equal value. BUY YOUR SPRING AND SUMMER FOOTWEAR NOW. SUCH NOTABLE SAVINGS ARE NOT LIKELY TO OCCUR AGAIN.

The Values

Actual $3.50, $4.00 and $5.00 Footwear. You are familiar enough with the makes to know that they have never before been sold for less.

THE STORY OF YOUR OWN FISRT NAME.

Its Origin and the Famous Folk Who Have Borne It.

PAUL PAULINE.

What the name has meant in liberty and in religion—Paul Revere and Paul Jones, two heroes who fought for liberty—Five Popes and some dozen saints named Paul—Santa Paula, the richest woman of antiquity—The name in art and letters Paul and Pauline mean small.

BY FRANCIS MARSHAL.

"For, borne on the night-wind of the Past,
Through all our history, to the last,
In the hour of darkness and peril and need,
The people will waken and listen to hear
The hurrying hoof-beats of that steed,
And the midnight message of Paul Revere."

Like the "hurrying hoofbeats" of the "steed" that took Paul Revere on his wonderful ride to waken the sleeping minute men of Massachusetts, messages from other great Pauls of history, "borne on the night-wind of the Past" for almost 2000 years, echo the world's greatest struggle for liberty.

The latest of these Pauls of freedom is one of the most picturesque—Paul Kruger. His whole life was a fight for what he believed to be the rights of his people. Born in a time of struggle, he died with his self-imposed task still unaccomplished and left as his last message an admonition to his people to fight to the end for liberty.

Another Paul who spent his life in the service of liberty stands side by side with Paul Revere himself in the hearts of all patriotic and romance-loving Americans. This is Paul Jones, the Scotch-born adventurer, who commanded the Bonhomme Richard in the moonlight engagement with the English sloop Serapis—an engagement that is one of the most picturesque battles of history.

Brother Paul Sarpi was another Paul who waged a fight for liberty. It has been said that "his master passion was freedom of thought and love of country." Pietro Sarpi, as he was christened, was the orphaned son of a small Venetian tailor when he entered the Order of the Servites in 1564 and took the name of Brother Paul.

Although he was bound by the laws of conduct and life that bound his brother monks, he was not bound by their laws of thought. He became, in fact, a champion of free thought, and corresponded with the foremost scientists and philosophers of the day—Bacon, Harvey, Galileo and others. It has even been claimed that Brother Paul antedated Harvey in the discovery of the circulation of the blood, but the claim has never been proved.

All this advanced thinking finally brought Brother Paul into conflict with his church, and as the champion of free thought he was involved in a famous controversy with the Pope, who, by the way, bore the same name—Paul V.

Brother Paul was never put out of the church, although he was not given the preferments and recognition to which he and his friends thought his attainments gave him just claim. His truly great discovery in the field of science had to do with the contractability of the iris of the eye. He also constructed a map of the moon, which, as it made the telescope of practical value, gave rise to the unfounded claim that he had invented the telescope.

The first Paul, and the greatest Paul who worked for liberty was the Apostle to the Gentiles. Freedom from the bondage of old religious beliefs, liberty and salvation for all the world, were the keynotes to all his teachings.

But Paul the Apostle is not the only man who has made his name a great one in religion. There have been some dozen saints of the name, and five Popes.

St. Paul of Thebes, one of the earliest of these Pauls of religion, was called by St. Jerome the founder of Monasticism, and he is the first well-known hermit of the Christian Church. There had been men before him who fled from the world to live alone, but little or nothing is known of them.

He was born in Upper Egypt in 228 A. D., and when he was about 15 he fled to the desert to escape the persecutions of the Emperor Decius. In the arid deserts of Egypt he lived for about 100 years, it is said, devoting his life to prayer and meditation. His habitation was a cave, and a near-by spring and palm tree supplied him with water, shade and dates for food. When St. Paul was an old man St. Anthony went to him, and from him received instructions and became his successor.

St. Paulinus of York, missionary to England in the seventh century, who converted the heathen King of Northumbria and baptized him and some of his followers in a little wooden chapel which later became the Cathedral of York; Paul of Ptolemais, the third century saint, who, with his sister, Juliana, suffered torture under Emperor Aurelian; St. Paulinus of Nola, who forsook a life of ease and wealth to spend his declining years in a cell, preaching, nursing the sick and visiting the poor; Paulus Diaconus, or Paul the Monk, whose history of the Lombard kingdom is one of the earliest and most authentic of medieval histories; and St. Paul of the Cross, who, in 1737 founded the Order of the Passionists—these are all names greatly honored in religious history.

One of the most interesting figures in the early church is Santa Paula. She was born in 347 A.D. in Rome, a descendant of the Gracchi and the Scipios, and inherited beauty, charm and great wealth. She has been called, in fact, the richest woman of antiquity, for she owned a whole city in Italy. After the death of her husband she became a convert to Christianity, and thereupon gave one-fourth of all her wealth to the poor, and went about nursing the sick and giving sympathy and help to the unfortunate. While carrying food to the hungry, she herself lived on bread and oil; while giving warm clothing to the poor, she dressed in sackcloth and the dress of a servant.

So great were the mortifications to which she subjected herself that St. Jerome—the admirer of St. Paul of Thebes—who was the secretary of the Pope, remonstrated with her, but she went on in her own way. However, it is said that "the woman was never lost in the saint." For all her fasting and self-denial, Paula remained a loving mother, a sympathetic adviser, a kind and helpful friend.

When St. Jerome decided to go to the Holy Land, Paula and some of her friends went with him. There they settled at Bethlehem, where Paula built a monastery, several convents and a hospital. And there they ended their days, Paula in a convent, where she studied Hebrew, the better to understand the Scriptures, and St. Jerome in a cave, where he wrote his greatest works—inspired always by the friendship and heroism of Paula.

There is a goodly showing of Pauls in arts and letters. Among them are the French artists—Dore, whose Biblical illustrations have made his name known all over the world, and Delaroche, whose historical canvases have brought him fame. The greatest Paul in art, however, is Paolo Veronese, the Venetian painter of the sixteenth century, who, as time goes on, is gaining higher and higher favor and appreciation.

Among the great writers of the name, besides Paulus Riaconus, already mentioned, are Paul Whitehead, the English satirist whose take-off of certain political lights in England in 1739 caused the author's arraignment before Parliament; Paul Scarron, the French satirist, chiefly noted, nowadays, as the first husband of Louis XIV's second wife, the famous Madame de Maintenon; Paul Lawrence Dunbar, one of the few members of the negro race to attain eminence in letters; Paul Leicester Ford, who will be longest remembered for his charming studies of Benjamin Franklin, and who was author of the first "best seller," Janice Meredith; and Carmen Sylva, known to her Roumanian subjects as Queen Elizabeth, but whose first name was really Pauline.

Paul Rojas, was a Venezuelan statesman who became President of his country about twenty years ago. Paul was the name of a Russian Czar in the latter part of the eighteenth century, whose reign was filled with intrigue and conspiracy, and which finally ended in his murder. Pauline Metternich was a member of that famous Austrian family, and herself gained fame as a leader of fashion at the court of the Empress Eugenie, where she went as wife of the Austrian Ambassador. Paul Plancon, the grand opera singer, today upholds the name in music.

The name is derived, probably, from the Latin Pauxillus, which means small.

No matter whether you have a single, double or navel rupture or one following an operation, my Method is an absolute cure. No matter what your age nor how hard your work, my Method will certainly cure you. I especially want to send it free to those apparently hopeless cases where all forms of trusses, treatments and operations have failed. I want to show everyone at my own expense, that my Method will end all rupture suffering and truss-wearing for all time.

This means better health, increased physical ability and longer life. My free offer is too important to neglect a single day. Write now and begin your cure at once. Send no money. Simply mail coupon below. Do it to-day.

Hundreds of Thousands of Deat From Insidious Kidney Disease

3,500,000 Persons Sick Every Day in the U. S.—a Large Percen of These Poor Unfortunates Stricken With Some Form of Deadly Kidney Ailment

A New York dispatch, under date of November 26, 1909, to one of the great leading daily newspapers of the country, states that—

As Consumption Lessens Kidney Troubles Grow

New York, Nov. 26.—The vagaries of disease are interestingly shown in a little pamphlet gotten out by a life insurance company, wherein tables of increases and decreases give some knowledge of how, when we are freed of one malady, another increases. For instance, in the whole United States consumption has decreased 49 per cent since 1880, but, offsetting this, kidney troubles have increased 131 per cent in the same period. Chicago's kidney troubles have gone up to 167 per cent, and Chicago is down for an increase of 35 per cent of deaths from pneumonia. There are every day 3,500,000 persons ill in the United States.

This is the grim record that confronts every man, woman and child, according to the figures and statements of medical experts and scientists.

What, then, are the conclusions to be drawn? Do not these facts constitute a condition calculated to strike terror to the stoutest heart—especially with any individual who has the slightest reason to suspicion that he or she is afflicted with even the mildest form or initial stage of any Kidney disorder?

And even when one has reason only to believe that he or she is predisposed to this class of ailments (through hereditary or other causes), can too great precaution and care be taken that the too frequent dire consequences of neglected Kidney Disease be averted?

Now, friends, let us stop and think for a few minutes. We must all do this—sometimes—if we have a proper care and consideration for our own health and happiness, and the welfare and happiness of the loved ones dependent upon us.

Have You Any Symptom of Kidney Disease?

You know what these symptoms are—if not, we will tell you:

That weak, lame and aching back—those sharp, stabbing, shooting pains and twitchings in groin and limbs—that inflammation, soreness and tenderness of the muscles—those scalding, burning sensations; inability to retain the urine; sediment and deposits from the urine; inflamed bladder and passages, etc.—that "all-gone," "played-out," dragging weariness and despondency—the dullness, lack of ability for concentration, restlessness, sleeplessness, unnatural nervousness and irritability, irregularity of the heart action, etc.

All These Mean Kidney Disease

if neglected—sooner or later—in some form or another, more or less deadly in characteristics.

If you have noted only such premonitory symptoms or indications as constantly recurrent "sick-headaches," unaccustomed languor or feeling of exhaustion, dragging sensation and tenderness of the back and groins, bloating of the extremities, sharp "stitches" when rising suddenly from sitting or stooping position, etc.,—you may be quite certain that all these are indications of in the system. There can hardly be any mistake about that. The great mistake will be if you wilfully neglect such symptoms.

For uric acid poisoning of the system invariably means diseased kidneys and bladder—then chronic inflammation of the kidneys, bladder and passages, inflammatory rheumatism, gravel and gall-stones, chronic nervous disorders, dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease, etc. Assuredly, these are matters serious enough to merit the instant attention of any man or woman.

And whenever there is the slightest indication of one's kidneys and bladder having "gone wrong," common sense should at once suggest the selection of a good, honest, reliable remedy for this class of nervous derangements. And such a remedy—one of thoroughly proven efficacy, in thousands and thousands of even the most desperate cases—is found in

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills

If any man or woman (or child) will give these Pills an honest and fair trial—and there is anything wrong with his or her kidneys and bladder—these Pills will speedily and surely benefit—unless the disease has been trifled with and neglected until all possible hope or chance of help is gone.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are especially recommended for all derangements of the kidneys and bladder, in persons of either sex. They are thoroughly antiseptic, soothing, healing and tonic in action, and cannot possibly do anything but benefit you.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills, as soon as taken into the system, commence their work of neutralizing and rendering harmless the dangerous uric acid poison which is playing havoc with the system of the victim. Then, by a perfectly natural process of elimination, they drive that poison out of the system.

It will thus be seen that DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are an absolutely dependable remedy and preventative for all of the insidious and dangerous ailments and diseases resultant upon uric acid poisoning.

And when it is positively known (as is the case) that these genuinely good Pills are a thoroughly reliable and efficient treatment for such conditions there seems no logical or sensible reason why any person should neglect taking advantage of an opportunity of making a

A POPULAR STUDY IN ECONOMICS.

HAT THE PRODUCER GETS, COMPARATIVE COST OF LIVING.

BY G. W. BURTON.

ERE is a double-headed discussion absorbing the attentions of retty nearly the whole population. e one hand is the assertion that producers of the country are not g enough for their products, and the other, the allegation that the mers are paying too much for necessities of life.

learned my trade as a newspaper on trade journals more than a ration ago, and since taking employment upon daily newspapers of al scope, my time has been very taken up with market reporting commercial editing. For the information of the multitudinous readers of The Times, I propose a little y under the above heads. What is sed is a comparison, as near as facts can be had, of the prices of ducts fifteen years ago and those ailing now generally throughout country. I shall take the principal ducts of the farms which enter largely into the uses of the people, and get as near the prices paid rmers as possible, and the prices of the same at large centers. Of course, the price of any farm product at New York is higher than at Chicago, if it from the western farms, higher Chicago than out in the country at towns near the point of production. The farther you get from the ary market the higher the cost. is because of the expense of portation in part, and more so the commodity having to pass ugh two or more hands, each time g a profit to the handler. No sible person will deny that the er of produce from small streams a large reservoir should be able make a fair profit. It will be as denied that the retailer who distributes these products to the consumer is also entitled to make his profit out of it.

idea prevailing at the present is that the middlemen who operate in a large way rob the producer ne end of the line and the conr on the other. The retailer is the object of so much adverse cism on the part of the general c. Yet few of us who have not in business realize the high perge of profit a retail merchant make in order to keep out of ruptcy. When you consider that e is less made in the handling of by the retailer than the cost of bution comes to, while in the case gar the consumer gets that comy by the pound for practically me price the retailer pays for it e barrel or sack, and that the of the wholesaler who buys by ndred or by the thousand barrels ly a very small percentage of original cost, then it is evident some other commodities must higher profit in order to make ds meet in a general way. How of those who read this article that it costs the retail grocer to 20 per cent. of the gross reof his business to defray the expenses thereof? Surely 5 per cent. is much net profit for him to The small groceryman may do iness on a little lower percentcost than the large one, but t get a proportionately higher percentage of gain or starve to h. For the groceryman, 25 per t. gross profit on his daily business hardly enough to justify him for nducting the enterprise.

With these preliminary remarks, I ll go on to the proposed study, taking the current month for the prices w prevailing and the same month in as far as possible (and that will nearly in every case) as the basis comparison.

KANSAS CITY PRICES, 1910.

Barley	.63
Butter	.31
Eggs	.31½

Steers	7.50
Feeders	5.60
Texas steers	5.50
Hogs	8.60
Sheep	5.50
Lambs	8.50

At 4½ cents a pound a 1500 pound steer is worth $112.50. Fifteen years ago it took a very good steer in the Kansas City market to bring two-thirds as much as that price.

Let us shift still nearer the primary market, and go to Omaha, where we find the following prices:

OMAHA PRICES, 1910.

Wheat	$1.04
Corn	.64½
Oats	.47
Barley	.61½
Steers	5.30
Stockers	3.80
Hogs	8.50
Sheep	5.75
Lambs	8.30
Butter	.37
Chickens	.14

Omaha, as compared with Kansas City or Chicago, furnishes us with an interesting basis for comparative study. Although closer to the range for cattle and a little closer to the corn and wheat belts than the other cities, it is a wholesale center for all kinds of commodities, and for live stock, both a primary and an ultimate market, as there are immense packing-houses there.

Let us shift farther afield, where these conditions do not prevail, and go to Minneapolis, where we find the following quotations:

MINNEAPOLIS PRICES, 1910.

Wheat	$1.10
Corn	.61
Oats	.46

Let us follow this with a still smaller city, still nearer a primary market. At Sioux City we find these quotations:

SIOUX CITY PRICES, 1910.

Steers	$7.75
Feeders	5.00
Hogs	8.50

The interesting point in the tables above is the small margin of difference between the prices of most commodities quoted at New York, Chicago and out to Minneapolis and Kansas City, from the point of ultimate consumption and of exportation to the edge of the range where the cattle are raised and right in among the fields where the grain grows. Attention is called to this slight margin of increase in price between Sioux City, Chicago and New York in order to show that these prices are practically those obtained by the farmers. At Sioux City, Minneapolis, Omaha and other points quoted the farmer can drive his own load of wheat or his own little bunch of pigs, bring his eggs and butter right into wholesale market and obtain the prevailing prices for anything he has to sell. These may in a broad way be taken as the prices the farmers are getting for their products. Compare them item by item with the average prices in the United States fifteen years ago, and it will appear at once why the farmers of the West, burdened with mortgages in 1895, are free from mortgages as a rule today, why the half-wrecked barns are now in excellent shape, painted and trim-looking, why the farmers' homes are places of comfort and luxury, why the farmers have deposits in banks and are themselves directors and presidents of many financial institutions.

We will cross the continent now and come nearer home. I am able to give now the comparative prices at San Francisco and Los Angeles for the year 1895 and the year 1910. First, San Francisco prices.

THE SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS COMPARED.

	1895.	1910.
Wheat	$ .87½	$ 2.00
Barley	.80	1.39
Oats	1.25	1.39

Potatoes	.75	1.50
Live turkeys	.12	.23
Poultry	.13	.21
Pink beans	.01½	.04¼
Limas	.04½	.04¼
Honey	.08	.12

We will now come directly home. But in order to get a comparison we must take Los Angeles prices for April, 1906:

THE LOS ANGELES MARKETS COMPARED.

	1896.	1910.
Beans, pink	$ .01½	$ .03¼
Limas	.04¾	.04
Barley	.75	...
Corn	.85	...
Oats	1.25	...
Wheat	1.25	...
Butter	.40	.32
Cheese	.12½	...
Apples	2.00	1.00
Oranges	3.00	2.00
Lemons	2.50	3.00
Hay, best	10.00	14.00
Honey	.04	.06
Walnuts	.09	.11
Potatoes	.90	1.25
Poultry	.11	.14
Turkeys	.14	.25
Steers	4.00	5.00
Sheep	4.00	4.00
Lambs	2.50	3.25
Hogs	[illegible]	8.00
Eggs	....	.26

In comparing the two dates above it will be important to note that in the one case it is April and in the other case January. This will materially affect eggs and butter, and also poultry. In the list for the current year cheese is eliminated for the reason that it is not made in quantity any more. The same is done with barley and wheat, which have ceased to be notable productions of the country. To compare in the local market the prices of live stock on the hoof with dressed meat, the following table will be of interest:

DRESSED MEATS.

Beef	$ .08½
Beef, hindquarters	.10
Beef, fore quarters	.07
Lamb	.14½
Mutton	.10½
Hogs	.12½

The above prices are for whole carcasses. The price quoted is per pound, whereas in the case of live stock the prices are by the hundredweight.

A careful study of the tables given above will be surprising because of the comparatively small increase in prices at New York from Chicago and out to small places like Sioux City and Minneapolis. When allowance is made for the cost of transportation and for the profit for handling two or three times, it is astonishing that the prices do not advance more rapidly. From the farm to the ship-side for export or from the primary market to that of ultimate consumption, the margin of increase in prices is not great. Another interesting feature in this study is the small difference in prices in the principal markets all over the country. Hogs, for instance, bring almost the same price in Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha and Los Angeles.

FARMER GETS MORE.

The statement that the farmer gets no more for products now than fifteen years ago is entirely disproved by these tables. Take for example beeves and hogs. A decent steer weighs at least 1000 pounds. At $5 a hundredweight a live animal is worth $50. Stockers and feeders are worth that amount at some points in the country. It is safe to say that on the range there are no cattle sold of full growth for less than $30 a head and up. Less than fifteen years ago range cattle sold anywhere in the United States at $10 and down. Here in Los Angeles a well-finished hog weighing 300 pounds is worth $24. In the earliest period studied here it took a very good hog to bring $12.

Talks ON Teeth

Alveolar Book Sent Free

The subject of the teeth is one in which every man, woman and child in this country is interested, and yet one might count upon the fingers of one hand the number of books that have been written upon this subject within the last hundred years, aside from the text books, which are only intended for the practitioner.

The discovery by The Rex Dental Co.'s Alveolar Method of Supplying Missing Teeth necessitated the writing of a book which would explain this radical departure from old-time methods in language so plain that the average layman would have no trouble in understanding the subject clearly.

The demand for this book, which is entitled Alveolar Dentistry, has been so great that it has run into many editions, and we venture to say that it has gone into every part of the civilized world. We want to send YOU a copy of this book, with our compliments. If you have children it may be the means of saving them a great deal of trouble in after years.

If you have lost any teeth or if your gums are in an unhealthy condition, or your teeth are loose from pyorrhea, it will be worth its weight in gold to you.

The Alveolar Method has blazed a new trail in dental science. It has revolutionized old methods.

One set of Alveolar teeth in a community will cause those who see them and who are wearing partial plates, or ordinary bridgework, to demand something better than these old-time makeshifts. Nobody is going to encumber his mouth with a large piece of rubber or metal if they can have teeth put in without these accessories.

We extend an invitation to the public to visit one of our offices and have a careful and complete examination made of their teeth without any charge or obligation. You will find, however, that the reading of this book in advance of your coming will be of great assistance to you. You will have a more intelligent idea of what the Alveolar Method is.

If you will send us your name and address or the name and address of some friend who might be interested, we shall be very pleased to send the book by return mail free of charge.

INSANE FEAR OF COMET.

Laborer Cuts Wrist and Is Found in Ditch Weak from Loss of Blood.

Driven insane by fear that the world will be destroyed by Halley's comet, George Fralich, a laborer, cut a deep gash in his left wrist, Friday night, while walking along the road near Calabasas. He laid in a ditch for more than twelve hours, with his life ebbing as the blood flowed from the wound, but was discovered in time for the surgeons to save him.

Fralich had been wandering about Calabasas for several days, mumbling about the terrible destruction which will be wrought when the comet comes in contact with terra firma. He was seen in a blacksmith shop late in the afternoon.

Shortly before noon yesterday, persons passing along the road saw him lying in the gutter. Word was sent to the Sheriff's office and an automobile was sent to bring him to the Receiving Hospital. He was weak from the loss of blood.

The officers have not been able to find the razor with which he inflicted the gash in his wrist. From the trail of crimson spots, it is evident that he walked for a distance after cutting himself, and probably threw the weapon in the weeds.

$100,000 Is Offered For Discovery of a Consumption Cure

Added impetus has been given the hunt of noted scientists and physicians in all parts of the world for a cure for tuberculosis by the announcement that a prominent Yale alumnus has offered a prize of $100,000 to the first person who discovers a cure for the victims of the great white plague.

It is understood that the Commission will meet four times a year in New York City and pass upon the cures that are submitted for the prize.

One of the conditions is that remedies must have been in use for at least five years, and that there must be testimonials from authoritative persons that cures of tuberculosis have been made with it.

(From Philadelphia North American, Nov. 23, 1909.)

Eckman's Alterative is good for throat and lung troubles and is on sale in Los Angeles at The Owl Drug Co.

Ask for booklet of cured cases. It can also be obtained at or procured from your local druggist. If not send this advertisement with $2 to the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., and we will send 1 bottle prepaid to your nearest express office.

PROOF For Eckman's Alterative

Not claims, not theory, but actual evidence of cured people shows what this wonderful remedy will do.

Better than experiment, better than theory, is the actual evidence of people who have been given up by reputable physicians, and who have been restored to health through the use of

ECKMAN'S ALTERATIVE

Not alone ordinary throat and lung trouble, but cases that have been pronounced actually tuberculosis (consumption) by authorities has yielded to the extraordinary virtues of this remedy, which is gaining world-wide attention.

HERE IS EVIDENCE:

Philadelphia, Jan. 28, 1909.

Gentlemen: About 10 years ago I began to be troubled with a cough. This gradually became worse. I was losing my appetite and had become thin and weak, so I consulted a physician, who pronounced my disease Tuberculosis or Consumption. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polyclinic Hospital, and they also pronounced my disease Consumption. I was then advised by the physicians to go to a Consumption Hospital. My nephew would not allow me to go until I tried a remedy he had heard of—Eckman's Alterative. I allowed him to get it for me, as it might be a temporary relief. This was about nine years ago when I commenced taking the Alterative. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks I had marked relief, and I commenced getting well until my health became normal. I have been in excellent health now over eight years, and I am completely cured. (Signed)

(Mrs.) MARY WASSON,
225 S. 4th street,
Colwyn (Darby,) Pa.

Philadelphia, Aug. 15, 1909.

Gentlemen: I was sick about a year and a half before I heard of Eckman's Alterative. My trouble began with a cold and affected the lower part of my left lung. I had cough at night and fever, but not in the daytime. Altogether, I had sixteen different openings that discharged. I was examined by several doctors who said I had consumption. I was so discouraged about myself that I wouldn't have kept on with the Alterative had not my aunt kept me at it.

After a while I got better rapidly. I took it for over a year, and since then I have no sign of the old trouble.

I am in perfect health now, and have been for eleven years, or since taking your remedy for Tuberculosis.

Amenia, N. Y., July 9, 1908.

Gentlemen: On February 9, 1908, I came to Amenia from Rochester, N. Y., suffering with Tuberculosis. My Rochester physician gave me one month to live. I was having terrible night sweats and midday chills, and was also losing flesh rapidly, having been reduced to 125 pounds, against 155 pounds, my average weight. I began taking Eckman's Alterative immediately. The night sweats disappeared in a few days, as did the midday chills, and I began soon to desire food. Instead of raising all night long, I found that the Alterative caused me to raise in the morning, thus affording me a good healthful night's sleep. My health is good and my lungs are strong and sound, and I am again weighing 155 pounds. I attribute my present healthy condition to Eckman's Alterative.

Sincerely yours,
E. H. COWLES,
Care of Rev. J. J. Cowles,

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

ONWARD RUSH OF ONE WEEK.

Making Educational History in Los Angeles.

New Constellation Added to Our Firmament.

Details of Large Buildings Provided for.

Events follow rapidly in the educational life and growth of Los Angeles! The history of the past week, along the line of educational expansion was: The apportionment of the $720,000 raised by voting bonds for the construction of and addition to school buildings of the city, which will give an entire new group of buildings for the Manual Training High School, an addition of two new buildings, Science hall and Art hall to the Polytechnic High School, a new Gymnasium building, and science laboratory to Los Angeles High School, a $30,000 new building on Normandie avenue, four additional grade buildings, additions to four schools, sites for three new schools, and additional ground for agricultural purposes at Gardena High School. At the same time, a new constellation is added to our educational firmament, with the annexation of Hollywood; and although she already has excellent school buildings, she has been kept busy, like ourselves, in living up to the demands of a rapid growth, so that before the new is worn off from an educational institution, it is necessary to increase the capacity. Hollywood comes in with an appropriation of about $100,000, for addtional high school facilities, as a result of bonds voted for the purpose, and $20,384 for a new grammar school.

Of the $720,000 of the Los Angeles fund, $480,000 is devoted to high schools, and the remainder to common or grade schools.

MANUAL TRAINING SCHOOL.

Of the high school fund, $245,000 is to be expended for the new Manual Training High School, at Vermont avenue and Fortieth street. The site, which comprises about ten acres, cost $48,000, the architects charges amount to $12,250, and the equipment and furniture, it is estimated, will cost about $25,000. The plan, which is handsome, calls for a large central building and two wings, one for general and one for domestic science. The shops will be located in a separate building, and will be extensive and well equipped. An auditorium to seat about 1500 is a part of the plan. There will be ample dressing rooms, and stage facilities. The gymnasium will be upon the most approved plan, and will contain commodious lockers, showers, and all modern equipment and paraphernalia. Dr. Everette C. Beach, in charge of physical training of Los Angeles High School, Olive street, Wilmington, Gardena and San Pedro, said, in speaking of the new Manual Training High School: "It will have the best gymnasium in the West, without a doubt. In addition to the usual features of a well planned gymnasium, there will be a large rest room, with an attendant in charge for the purpose of administering first aid, in case of injury or disability to any pupils, and the upper floor, where these rooms are located, in a sort of gallery, will also be used as audience galleries, where not only can the games be watched, upon special occasions, but from which any pupils not quite up to the work may observe and learn thus. There will be accommodation for about eight hundred girls, and the same for boys, the gymnasiums being entirely separate."

HIGH'S NEW GYM.

Referring to the plans for the new girls' gymnasium, at Los Angeles High School, Dr. Beach said: "It is the intention to make this a place of general meeting for the pupils, as there is no such place now, all rooms being devoted to special study purposes. The new Gym. at Los Angeles High will cost about $8500, and will accommodate 800. There will be plenty of showers and rest rooms, and the same feature in an observation gallery, as that incorporated in the plans of the new Manual Training High. The building will be located at the south end of the lot, directly opposite and removed from the boys' Gym. It is the intention to fence off the ground in the immediate vicinity, affording perfect seclusion for the girls to carry on their games in dress suited to the work, which they are modest about donning when exposed to the public gaze.

Other features of the new Manual Training High School will be an up-to-date domestic science hall, machine shops, foundry, forge room, two chemical laboratories—one for teachers' experiments—two physics laboratories—one for teachers'—a vacuum cleaning plant, heating and ventilating plant combined to furnish both warm and purified air, and athletic fields laid out after the most approved plans. A system of botanical gardens and parks is also hoped for. There will be a large library and two study halls for pupils. Parkinson and Bergstrom are the architects, and bids will be called for on February 4. It is the intention to rush the work, and to have the new Manual Training High School ready for occupancy by next September.

POLYTECHNIC ADDITIONS.

The appropriation for the Polytechnic additions amounts to $115,000. A Hall of Science and an Art building will be constructed, after plans upon which the boys in the architectural department of the Polytechnic have been working for about three years. These plans were experted by Mr. Burnham, who was appointed by the Board for this work, and were by him approved. The first plans made were for a temporary building for art purposes, but it was decided not to build this, but to await the time when a proper building could be constructed; so the department of architecture, under Mr. Faithful's instruction, concentrated upon the plans as they now exist.

The Art building will contain the departments of representative drawing, free hand from objects and casts, water color, pottery, weaving, special clay work, in connection with architecture, metal work, book binding, leather work, jewelry, stenciling, wood block printing, designing of fabrics, and will also afford an Art Exhibit Hall, for permanent exhibits. Other departments which will be amply housed and equipped are mechanical and electrical engineering, civil engineering, architecture comprising—design and structural engineering, all these branches being taught in such manner as to make them practical for use, while instruction is in progress. It is the plan to have exhibit halls for permanent display of work along all these lines, as well as in art. It is the plan to install testing machinery, in the basement, or ground floor rooms, for the purpose of testing materials, as to tensile strength, etc. Reinforced concrete will be used in the construction of these buildings, this being the first such school building on the Coast.

The present heating plant will be extended and improved, upon the plan proposed by Dr. Gulick, in his recent lecture before the Teachers' Institute.

Particular care will be given to the subject of lighting of the buildings, both by day and night. A new system of indirect light, which is said to obviate eye-strain, is being experimented with, for installation here. Much of the interior hardware will be designed by the pupils and will be made in the Polytechnic foundry. The halls and staircases, will be of plain concrete, and will later receive decorations in the way of especially designed tile, representing scenes and events connected with the school and its history. It is also the plan to, as time is found to do so, design and make bronze doors for the entrances to the buildings. The art building will contain a bronze tablet commemorative of President Taft's dedication of the ground, this tablet being the work of pupils, both in design and execution. Much of the plumbing has been designed by pupils in the Evening High School, which occupies the Polytechnic building at night. In addition to commodious rest rooms for pupils, these buildings will have something much needed and seldom planned, and that is two small rest rooms for teachers. They, more than any one, need an occasional breathing spell, away from the rush and stress of work; and they almost never have it. This thoughtful provision is worthy of commendation.

A new heating and ventilating system will take a part of the appropriation for Los Angeles High School, but just what form this improvement will take, is not yet decided. It was expected that at least $25,000 of the bond money would be devoted to Los Angeles High School, and as the amount set aside for this purpose is now said to be but $12,500, it is thought that probably the remainder will be drawn from the regular building fund.

OTHER IMPROVEMENTS.

Gardena receives $10,470, for the purchase of additional ground to be used for agricultural purposes, this being now an agricultural school.

The grade school at Normandie avenue and West Vernon, will cost $30,000. It will contain eleven rooms, with large kindergarten quarters, so arranged with rolling partitions that it can be incorporated with the hall, to form a large assembly room. Homer W. Glidden is the architect of this building, and it will be completed in April.

Bids will be called for, within a week for the following school buildings: At Sixty-sixth street and San Pedro, a new eight-room building to cost about $22,000; at Fifty-second and Hoover, an eight-room building, to cost about $22,975; Hooper-avenue addition, $22,000; Sixty-eighth street, new building to cost $22,000; Cornwall-street addition, $11,135.90. Fifty-first street will have a new building of four rooms which with furniture, will cost $9981. Main street will receive an addition of five rooms at a cost of $11,800. Bridge street will have four added rooms for $12,790.95. A new site on Euclid avenue, to cost $800; three lots on McKinley, $7500; a lot added to the State-street site, to cost $3800. In the central Arlington Heights tract a site consisting of ten lots to cost $25,000, upon which temporary structures will at present be placed.

HOLLYWOOD'S FINE BUILDINGS.

Now comes Hollywood, with her fine school buildings already constructed, and those planned or contracted for. About thirty days ago, Hollywood voted $100,000 for additions to her present High School. On Thursday the bonds were sold to A. H. Rollins & Co. of San Francisco at a premium of $7763, which additional amount Hollywood can add to the embellishment of her already fine plan for High School facilities.

A new grammar school, in the west end, at Gardner and Michigan, will cost $25,000, and will accommodate about 500 pupils. Reinforced brick will form the lower story, and the upper story will be shingled. The site comprises two acres. Homer Glidden is the architect.

Norman F. Marsh, the architect of the Hollywood High School, was materially assisted in the plans by Dr. Snyder, the principal, who knows particularly well the needs of the school. Dr. Snyder is an enthusiast, and several unique and original ideas incorporated into the plans of the Hollywood High School are due to his genius. The present High School building, with its substantial style of architecture, forms a worthy nucleus for the group which will be added. Built from a fine quality of cream brick, with heavy pillars at the entrance, the structure is perfect in symmetry, and looks—amid its surrounding of emerald lawn and rare plants and shrubs—a fitting neighbor for the handsome residences thereabout. The science hall and the art building will each be in keeping with the present High School, the same style of architecture being used.

The domestic science building, on the other hand, will be in the old colonial style, representing purely residential architecture, the home in fact—an embodiment of the teachings given there. This building will house the departments of art, pottery, weaving, metal work, etc., and all phases of domestic science will be provided for, even to a special department for hygienic cookery—first aid to the injured health—and a department of nursing which is quite a necessary adjunct to true home life! It is the intention to provide, in this domestic science building for everything needful to genuine home-making. And right in this line, comes one of the unique features of this institution, which is nothing less than a tiny flat, built at one corner of the second floor. It consists of four rooms, bath and kitchen; and it is a part of the curriculum, for each girl in the department to take her turn at furnishing and conducting this establishment, on the plan of a real home. The furniture will be set into the flat, as though the family had just moved in, and the little Miss will be called upon to exercise her judgment and good taste in placing things cosily and to practical advantage; and later, to run the miniature home. Plenty of chance here to exercise the artistic sense, and to show what has been absorbed in the cooking department. A chance to put into practice the principles of sanitation, and good taste inculcated in all departments. A new feature of the art building is the glaze room, situated upon the ground, or basement floor, where the kilns will be placed, and to which a dumb waiter will convey articles from the art rooms above.

SCIENCE HALL.

The science hall will have, in addition to the usual features of such buildings, laboratories for physics and chemistry, etc., commodious lecture rooms, with raised seats, a specially lighted room for microscopy, a room in the basement for testing agricultural sprays, and adjacent to these quarters, an experimental ground for agricultural and botanical tests, and glass propagating houses. Upon the roof, a meteorological platform will be placed.

The auditorium will consist of a main room, with stage; and at each side, a supplementary auditorium, one for use as a choral hall, and one as a class room for oral English. Each of the small auditoriums has a stage and is complete in itself; and perfectly isolated from the main auditorium as to sounds; and upon occasion, all can be thrown together, making an auditorium which will seat about fourteen hundred, giving an unobstructed view of the main stage. The overhead lighting system, through glass, will be used, and a system of prism glass will render the most obscure corners, even under the stage, perfectly light.

The twelve acres included in the campus will be utilized to best advantage, and the Hollywood High School will, when completed, be an institution of which any community may be proud.

Contracts were let yesterday for the construction of this building, and are as follows: General contract, Gotfred Hansen of Los Angeles; plumbing, J. Hokom; plastering, J. B. Murphy. Several other minor contracts are not yet let. Heating and ventilating will be by the force blast system, filtered air through steam coil. The cost of all will be, approximately, $100,000.

CHAUTAUQUA SOCIETY PICNIC.

A basket picnic will be held in Sycamore Park on next Saturday, February 5, by the Chautauqua California Society, to which all former residents of Chautauqua county, N. Y., are invited. Lunch will be eaten at 12 o'clock, and an election of officers will take place in the afternoon.

ATTEMPTS AT BLACKMAIL.

Negro Accused of Trying to Force White Women Into Compromising Positions—Warrant Out.

Serious charges have been made against William Johnson, a negro, for whose arrest a warrant has issued from Justice Williams' court, charging him with having disturbed the peace.

The police declare that complaint has been made to them that he attempted several times to blackmail white women, but that he did not succeed in carrying out his designs.

It is alleged that he carefully selected good-looking women as his victims, as they walked along downtown streets. He was partial to those who were employed, as he thought money might be an inducement to them to fall in with his plans.

It is said he followed them until they were some place where he would not be noticed speaking to them. He approached them with the statement that a rich man at the Alexandria desired to meet them and that he would accompany them to the millionaire.

The officers say his idea was to get them in a compromising situation and then extort money from them to keep his mouth closed.

Miss Ida Scott swore to the complaint upon which the warrant was issued. She said she was going to collect a bill for her employers when he stopped her at Fifty-fourth and Figueroa streets. He is alleged to have insisted that she go to the Alexandria Hotel. She told him she was married and he told her that made no difference.

She declares he told her he was to get some money for introducing her to the millionaire, who employed him, and that she ought to go so far that he could get the cash.

DOG BITES POUNDKEEPER.

Albert Cappell, a pound-keeper, was bitten by one of his charges, yesterday noon. A pointer, which had no tag and had been captured, had been quarreling with other canines for several days. She attacked a smaller dog yesterday and killed it. Cappell picked the beast up and started to put her in another cage. She grabbed him by the hands. He called at the Receiving Hospital to have the surgeons cauterize four puncture wounds on his right hand and two on his left hand.

ACADEMY OF SCIENCES.

Under the auspices of the Academy of Sciences, David Starr Jordan of Stanford University will deliver a lecture, free to the public, the coming Saturday evening in Blanchard Hall. His topic will be "Tusitala of Samoa," or "The Natural History of Samoa and Robert Louis Stevenson." Prof. J. Z. Gilbert will also present for inspection a large collection of the fossils recovered from Rancho La Brea, including the largest and finest of the discoveries.

TO FACE THE "WIVES."

Officers from Hoboken, N. J., started for home yesterday with Emil Karl von Muller, alias Von de Hagen, fictitious Count and alleged bigamist, in custody. When he reaches the New Jersey city, several of his wives will probably be waiting for him, but their welcome will not be in the way of a glad reception. They allege he not only toyed with their affections, but also untied their purse strings. The wife he left here is endeavoring to hastily sever all her legal ties to him and will try to forget he ever existed.

MARYLAND SCHOOL EXHIBITION.

A large number of parents and friends took advantage of "parents' day" at the Maryland School, No. 720 Beacon street, on Friday, and expressed great delight with the work of the little folks. Oral recitations were held in all departments, and there was an elaborate exhibition of written work done by the pupils. Much appreciation of the efforts of the teachers was shown by the parents.

Try This For a Severe Cough

Take a pint of granulated sugar, add half pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes. Put 2½ ozs. of Pinex in a pint bottle and fill up with the granulated sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. The taste is pleasant.

The prompt results from this simple home-made article will surprise you. It usually conquers a deep-seated cough in 24 hours, and is a splendid household remedy for hoarseness, whooping cough, colds, chest pains, bronchitis, etc.

The recipe above given makes a full pint—enough to last a family a long time—and costs only 54c. It keeps perfectly, and is easily prepared in 5 minutes. Children take it willingly.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway White Pine Extract. It is rich in all the well-known pine elements which are so healing to membranes.

None of the weaker pine preparations can compare with the real Pinex itself. All druggists have it, or will get it for you if requested.

Strained honey can be used instead of the syrup, and makes a very fine honey and pine tar cough syrup.

On page 13, part III, you will find our regular announcement for Monday's business. Numerous important events are recorded, which no one who values economy should miss. Several lines of new spring merchandise has just arrived and are told about in this regular announcement.

Display Samples Infants' Wool Coats

Special Purchase Tailored Waists at $1.95

In the picture a popular tailored style is shown, which we fortunately purchased from a prominent manufacturer at a ridiculously little price. They are made of all linen quality—in fact, the sale price Monday would hardly pay ordinarily for the material. There are several different styles—some trimmed with ⅛-inch tucks down front and with linen collars and cuffs. Still others with wide pleats down front and button trimmed. The minute you see these, you'll acknowledge them to be wonderful values at $1.95.

Beautiful Lingerie Waists, Monday................. $1.00

25 dozen of these fresh dainty waists which show the newest ideas for Spring. Made of batiste in several pleasing styles, with combinations of lace edging and insertion. All sizes. Choice $1.

Short and Long Styles at Half Marked Prices

We've gone through our stock of Infants' short and long coats and have selected all the garments that were used as display samples. Naturally, many of them will show slight traces of soil, but the biggest injury is to the price.

$5.00 to $15 Coats At Just Half

These are all high grade garments, handsomely made and trimmed, practical for infants from 6 months to 6 years. They're marked now from $5 to $15, you pay just half. Second floor Monday.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

To our customers and friends: We are about to inaugurate the most colossal book sale ever held in this city. Enormous stocks of fine de Luxe Editions of Standard Authors were recently thrown upon the market at forced sale by New York subscription publishers. We made heavy purchases and shall therefore hold a most extraordinary exhibition and sale of these beautiful books at about 25 cents on the dollar. Watch for our window display and full page newspaper announcement of this great book sale. Handsome illustrated catalogues now in preparation will be given free upon request when the sale opens. If you live out of town send order for catalogue now.

100 Misses Wool Skirts, each, $1.95

With these marked $2.45 to $5 there should be a remarkable response Monday, for the sale price, $1.95, hardly represents the cost of the material. There is a choice of serge, panama, voile, plain and fancy mixtures. All colors and sizes. Choice Monday, $1.95. Second floor.

HYDEGRADE DRESSES 79c

All sizes from 2 to 6 years. In a big variety of pretty patterns. Either Buster Brown or belted styles for children. We would have to ask $1.25 for these if bought under ordinary condition. Under value at 79c.

Children's GOWNS .. 50c

These are made of a heavy white flannelette that will wash and wear excellently. Silk wash braid trims yoke collar and cuffs. Ages 6 to 14 years. Marked 98c. Monday 50c.

Purchase of Women's Cloth Top Button Boots

Women's New Combinations $1.00

We believe you will say these are well worth $1.25 and $1.50. Choice of cover and drawers or corset cover and skirt combination. They are beautifully trimmed with wide embroidery or fine lace beading and ribbon. You should see these to appreciate them, Monday, $1.00.

Women's Drawers 75c

These are made of cambric or nainsook and trimmed effectively with deep ruffle of val. lace or embroidery and ribbon. Under value at 75c.

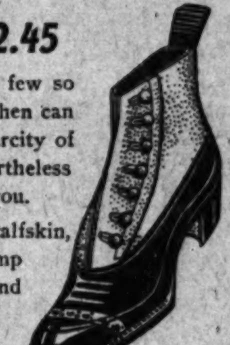
Nainsook Gowns $1.50

These are extra values at that price, made in slip over or high neck style, trimmed with fine val. lace and ribbon or embroidery. Priced $1.50. 2nd floor.

Allows Remarkable Price at, Pair $2.45

When we consider that there is no style more popular and few so popular as cloth-top button shoes for women, then and only then can you realize what this moderate price means. But for the scarcity of space we would go into details about this purchase, yet nevertheless it is the values themselves that make interesting reading to you.

The shoes are made of patent coltskin, or dull finished calfskin, finished with plain or tipped toes. Short, stylish vamp lasts. Strictly the most popular style of the season and one of the best values at $2.45.



Men's Buttoned Oxfords, Pair......................... $2.00

The bulk of these shoes are rebranded Regal $3.50 and $4 shoes. That is, the name has been torn out and the price remains. Slight defects caused this maker to remove his name. They are in patent coltskin with dull tops. Button styles are more popular than ever for men. Pair, $2.

Women's Juliets Rubber Heels...... 95c

Juliets are the queen of house slippers, they are most comfortable with their soft dongola kid leathers and rubber heels. Plain common sense or patent tip toes. All sizes, pair 95c.

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance, as follows:
"When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips."
Another from Newark, N. J.
"I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair anyone would want to have."

NOW at all druggists in three sizes 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle

Danderine enjoys a greater sale than any other one preparation regardless of kind or brand, and it has a much greater sale than all of the other hair preparations in the world combined.

Cut This Out

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO, ILL., with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.

BUNCH DORGAN DESERTS RANKS OF THE MEAT STRIKE.

Tires of a Hay Diet and Calls for Piece of Cow—Explains to a Puzzled Night Owl the Philosophy of the Thing and Shows Who Always Gets the Worst of It. Pertinent Comments on a Passing Fancy.

BY HARRY C. CARR.

A THICK, bloody beefsteak was broiling on the open range in the front of a quick lunch stand. Occasionally the chef came along and baptized it with a pinch of seasoning or turned its hot sides a little better to the coals.

On one of these culinary excursions he heard a dismal groan behind him and turned to see a young man with a sweater fling himself gloomily onto one of the tall chairs.

"Fer the love o' Mike," he said, "take that piece of cow off the stage or I'm going to do something fierce."

The chef laid down his fork. "Say, wha's the matter 'ith you, anyhow, Bunch Dorgan?" he said abruptly. "I believe you're going looney. On the level, I believe the shingles is coming off your cupalo."

Mr. Dorgan returned the chef's look with cold sarcasm. "Well," he said, "you call in the dish washer and ask him what he thinks about my mental condition, and whistle for the cop on this beat and consult him about it, and then, maybe, if you ain't real mad, you will sell me something to eat."

"You don't need to get sore about it," said the chef. "But when anybody comes around in the middle of the night and asks for breakfast food and makes monologues at beefsteaks, it's time his friends began to collect dope on his condition."

As the chef, at these informal establishments, is also the head waiter and all the other waiters, as well as the cashier, he gave a final jab at the beefsteak and crossly flung down on the counter in front of Mr. Dorgan the following tools:

A water glass that could have been used with impunity for breaking up paving stones and, to judge from the nicks, had been so used.

A rusty knife and a silver fork without any silver; a spoon so bent and dented that it seemed to have served to cut the teeth of an infant rhinocerous; and, with a final fling, a coffee cup that might some time have done valiant service as a coal scuttle.

"What'd you want?" growled the deeply-offended waiter.

Bunch's eyes involuntarily wavered back to the sizzling beefsteak with so comical an expression of woe that the waiter laughed.

"Don't ask me what I want," said Bunch with a rueful smile. "Ask me again and say, 'What are you going to have?' "

"Oh, I know what you're going to HAVE," said the waiter with bitter scorn. "You're going to have aigs."

Bunch shook his head. "You're wrong, Hortense," he said. "If I was to eat another egg, honest I'd begin to cluck. Just one more egg and you'll see me trying to go to bed in an incubator."

The chef went to the back part of the lunch stand and rumaged around among some pasteboard packages whose sides bore ornate pictures of very yellow wheat fields or very crimson-faced babies.

"Here is some of them Bubbles of Wheat," said the chef hopefully.

"Nix for the baby food," replied Mr. Dorgan pettishly. "I am weaned, anyhow."

"How about Dr. Spiglet's Trussed Rice?"

"Nothing doing, Hashimura."

"I have heard that Dessicated Oats is fine," suggested the chef, reaching about on the top shelf.

"Fine for cows," retorted Bunch. "I guess," he added, "that as long as I'm livin' the life of a horse I may as well go home and eat my bedding."

The chef suddenly planted his elbows on the counter in front of Mr. Dorgan. "Bunch," he said, with a pleading note, "Slip it to me. What's the answer? For a week everybody that comes in here shies like a yearling colt at the sight of fresh meat.

"If I offer a man chops or anything, he looks like he was going to faint off the stool. I sell enough of this breakfast food every day to stuff a mattress.

"If this thing keeps on I am going either to put in a manger here or rent a pasture; I dunno which."

"Don't you ever read the papers?" asked Bunch.

"I read the fight dope in the pink sheets," said the chef eagerly.

"Well, this is fight dope," said Bunch drily. "Not just the kind you mean, though."

"Aw, come on through; what kind of a grass festival is it?" pleaded the waiter.

"It's a meat strike," said Bunch, savagely.

"Oo," said the waiter suddenly, comprehending; "a strike. . . . Oo, that's it; a strike. What's the union?"

"It ain't any union," said Bunch. "It's the whole works. It's everybody that eats meat."

"What fer?" asked the chef, whose bewilderment was increasing. "What are y' striking fer?"

"We are goin' to show em," said Bunch hotly. "Every time one of them big guys in Chicago wants a new automobile, do you think he buys a dime savings bank and begins to shave himself to save up the dough? Nix. He telephones down to office to put up the price of beefsteak and us fellers buys him a flock of automobiles.

"Some Chicago girl hooks a furrin count in Europe some place, but the Eyetalian or Frenchy, or whatever he is demands an extry million on account of the size of her feet. Mrs. Pig Packer writes a cablegram to the old man down in the stock yards, and he skies pork chops a couple of cents, and we make him money enough to buy up the whole nobility and a couple of kings.

"We are going to stop eatin' meat until they pull down the prices. We are going to put them next to the fact that we ain't earning money enough to invest in any side line of bum counts. We are going to punish them good and plenty if we have to eat hay so long that they tie the babies out on the lawn with stake ropes."

"I see; I see," said the chef respectfully. And he added: "Well, prices is certainly fierce all right. Who is getting punished for it?"

"The big millionaire packers; we are going to show them," began Mr. Dorgan sullenly. He was suddenly interrupted.

Just then the door opened and a woebegone butcher boy came in with his coat collar turned up and a general air of dejection surrounding him.

"Say," he whispered to the chef, "kin I stand you off fer a cup of coffee? My stomach's so empty it's scraping agin me backbone."

"Sure," said the chef. "Wha's the matter; laid off?"

"Worsn that," said the boy, dejectedly. "Out fer good. The boss I was working fer had to quit. This here meat strike busted him. It was all right fer the big butchers. It gave them a chanct to freeze out all the little ones. My boss is on the bum, and I'm out of a job."

The chef gave the hungry boy a cup of coffee, but he was evidently struggling with a thought. He came back to Bunch and industriously wiped off the counter in front of him for a minute. "Bunch," he said, "I can't get this through me noodle. Who'd you say was getting punished fer this?"

Mr. Dorgan's face was very red. "Ask them," he said, jerking his head in the direction of two men who had just entered the place; they were excitedly discusing something. "Ask them," said Bunch, with a curious crooked smile, "They will tell you about it. Their specialty is telling all about it."

One of the two newcomers was an elderly man with long hair, bowed eye glasses and a socialist newspaper sticking out of his coat pocket. The other was a pompous individual with a black felt hat and a very obvious attempt at elegance that went not so very well with his worn coat and patched trousers.

"Are you in the meat strike?" asked the chef politely, when he had provided them with eggs and breakfast food.

And they both turned loose at him.

As soon as he could escape, he came back down the counter, and in his bewilderment put two eggs in the fire and tried to fry a lump of coal.

"Bunch," he said in an awed whisper, "I believe the whole world is going batty."

"Well, didn't they tell you about the meat strike?" asked Bunch, with a grin.

"Gee," ejaculated the chef. "Whew."

He bustled over the stove as though he dared not trust himself to speak; but presently he came back and asked softly, "Bunch, what is all this stuff about single taxes and pressing down the burden upon the bent backs uv the poor and the privileged classes and tariff and all them things?"

"That," said Bunch, "is the hoodoo talk that makes you eat mattress stuffing instead of cow."

"One of them fellers," said the chef, "told me that the high price of meat was the fault of the big packers; the other one says it is the fault of the butcher. Along side of him was another guy and while they were talking, he butts in and says it isn't the fault of the packer, or the butcher, either; he says it's the fault of the farmer. Gee. You ought to hear them fellers talk."

Bunch was leaning over his plate and his face was still red. A subtle change had come over his manner and he was furtively watching the hungry butcher boy with a peculiar expression.

The chef, who was evidently in a great state of mind, presently left the stove and came back to Bunch again.

"Bunch," he said, "this game has too much class fer me. When it comes to going up against all this single taxes and things, I have to give away too much weight. I pass. But just slip me this one thing; how is this going to end?

"You know I just gotta know. Those boobs down there—I can't get anything out of them; they just talk about Carl Marx—whoever he is. They said I had ought to know him; but if he eats here, I never seen him.

"Anyhow, all I want to know is how this is going to come out. If this is going to keep on, I want to sell out and start a feed store. Put me next."

Mr. Dorgan suddenly raised his head belligerently.

"Come out?" he repeated. "How do you suppose it is going to come out? How do strikes always come out? Huh?

"This is going to turn out like every other strike.

"It is going to give some of them packing-houses in Chicago a nice little vacation; give 'em time to clean out the shop and put in some new floors and fix up the machinery; they can go over the books and find out which was the grafting book-keepers.

"It will give the farmers a chance to fatten up the steers. It gives the big butcher a bully chance to freeze the little corner store without even having to show his cards.

"It will give some of them Congressmen a chanst to get off a lot of bum speeches about trusts and, fer the first time in his life, ol' Kid Single Tax, down there, gets somebody to listen to him fer a minute.

"That's all the good it does. Like all strikes, nobody get hurt but the striker.

"Gee whiz, man, for a week I've been so hungry that I go to sleep dreamin' of bloody beefsteaks, and it ain't safe fer any cow to be out alone with me around. I been going every night fer a week to a picture show on Spring street because they've got a slaughter-house scene in it. The other day I stood so long in front of a café window, looking at a piece of meat that the cop threatened to pinch me if I didn't move on."

"Anyhow," said the chef soothingly, "you must have done some good."

"Sure," said Bunch, witheringly, "I have helped make a good story fer the newspapers and I have helped to put on the bum the little butcher that let me have meat on tick when I was down here trainin' fer my first fight and didn't have the money to pay fer it.

"That was what his boss done fer me and that was what I done fer him," added Bunch nodding his head toward the hungry butcher boy.

"Well, it must have cost them big packers something anyhow," said the chef, insistently.

"That's right; you bet it did." Bunch replied sarcastically; "it cost them a lot. Do you know who's goin' to pay fer it? We are going to pay fer it.

"Pretty soon folks will get tired of a hay diet and go back to cow. Then the packers will figure out how much it has cost them and they will soak the wholesalers fer it and the wholesalers will soak the butcher shop, and the butcher shop will soak you and you will soak me.'

"What are you going to do about it?" asked the chef, doubtfully.

"I'll tell you what I'm goin' to do about it," said Bunch suddenly, "I'm going to eat that beefsteak on the stove. You slide it over here quick."

"That's fer another feller," objected the chef.

"That other feller," said Bunch, "hasn't been eating excelsior for two weeks."

Swept by the sudden impulse, the chef planted the steak over in front of Mr. Dorgan. Almost before it had landed, Bunch had it speared with the fork and sawed fercely into it with the rusty knife.

"This strike," began Bunch—— but the rest of his remarks were lost in a thick gurgle as his jaws closed on a big chunk of cow meat.

The meat strike had its first deserter.

DIES WHILE IN HER BATH.

Daughter Finds Lifeless Body of Mrs. Jennie Rannells—Funeral Services Tomorrow.

Mrs. Jenie S. Rannells, 64 years old, was found dead in a bath tub in her home at No. 1124 Harvard boulevard, Friday night. It is thought that her death was caused by heart failure.

Miss Evelyn Rannells, a daughter, feared something was wrong when her mother remained a long time in the bath-room and investigated. She discovered the lifeless body.

Mrs. Rannells was the wife of S. D. Rannells, head of the Rannells Land Company, with offices at No. 120 North Main street. She was the mother of Attorney John W. Rannells and of Dr. Alfred Rannells, who is now located in Mexico.

The body is at Bresee Brothers' morgue. Funeral services will be held tomorrow.

Psychology of The Courtship.

"We speak of man as the wooer," says a recent writer on women, "but falling in love is really mediated by the woman. By dress, behavior, coquetry, modesty, reserve, and occasional boldness she gains the attention of man and infatuates him."

Consider the predicament of the girl busy at such entertaining sport, who finds herself suddenly becoming fat. She knows by instinct that she can not infatuate long if she be fat, so to exercise and diet instanter to save the day. They may—but there is an easier way.

One can take off up to a pound a day without causing wrinkles, stomach disturbances, or the least bother. This can be done in old cases of overfatness as well as recent ones. A fine figure can be saved or a trim one regained. Simply send 75 cents to the Marmola Co., 235 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich., or, better still, tender the same to your druggist for a large case of Marmola Prescription Tablets. This elegant preparation can go with you everywhere in your satchel. Take a tablet daily; off comes the fat, nice and uniformly, from the fattest parts first.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

STATE POLITICS.

MOTT OF OAKLAND FAVORITE OF LINK ROOSTERS FOR GOVERNOR.

Will Bolt If Their Man Is Not Put Up—Increasing Belief That There Will Be Bitter Fight—Democrats Planning to Get Congressional Seats With Aid of the Roosters—Some of the Candidates.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 28.—Reports from different sections of the State indicate an early and heavy registration, which was to be expected, and also that the Democrats are registering as Republicans, which was to be expected. It is part of the game in every State suffering from the direct-primary craze for the Democrats to help decide Republican nominations. Probably 50,000 voters, with the intention of supporting the ticket, will assist in selecting it at the primary. Compare the registration with the election returns in San Francisco last fall, for illustration. Sacramento went Democratic a few weeks ago, but nine out of ten names on the new register are marked "Republican." who are registering as Repub- have voted the Democratic all their lives.

Candidates for State office, on the Republican ticket, have even engaged Democratic managers wherever they could, and pledges of support are being sought quite independently of party affiliation, it being understood that all will qualify for the primary by registering as Republicans. A very large proportion of the labor, or McCarthyite vote, will be so registered. So will the Link Roosters, of course, with the difference that the labor vote may stick, while the L. R. vote will not, unless its own candidates are successful.

The blame for this situation cannot be laid at the door of the Republican organization. It has nothing to do with it. This interference with the affairs of the majority party by the opposition is characteristic of the direct primary. The candidate who fails to seek all the votes in sight, whatever their antecedents and true affiliations is simply overlooking one of the big cards in the game. That all these Democratic votes in the Republican column will be cast for organization candidates—only the Lord knows how long any organization will be left to the party—is an absurd supposition. It was a Chamberlain-Bourne combination in Oregon that took control of the party there, and that is equivalent to a Bell-Rowell combination in California. The fact that the fight at the primary is really between Republicans, brings into the fray Democrats who favor either side, or any one of a host of candidates. And experience shows that most of these Democrats incline to the independent Republican, or anti-organization Republican faction.

These Democrats who are butting into the Republican game are every bit as honest and conscientious as the Link Roosters, who openly threaten to bolt if they do not win. Editor Rowell's efforts to elucidate the policy of the league of which he has become the autocrat, are curious, if not amazing. He has been at some pains lately to declare the league's loyalty to the party. At the same time, he intimates that its members cannot support Gillett or Curry if either is nominated. The inhibition passes also to every other candidate, present or potential, who has ever run for office or taken a hand in politics without the sanction of the league, unless, forsooth, he has renounced his evil ways and taken out a card of membership in a Goo Goo lodge of perfection. Rowell raises his right hand to swear to his Republicanism and has the fingers of the left crossed behind his back while doing it. As a sample, take this from one of his enlivening editorial utterances of the current week:

"There is, in fact, no such prospect. [A Democratic Congress or Governor.] A Democratic Congress is not probable, under any circumstances; a Democratic Legislature in California is unthinkable, and even a Democratic Governor is only possible in case of some Republican folly, which would drive a large part of the Republican voters unwillingly out of the party. The Democrats themselves hardly regard their party as more than a last-resort safety valve, and probably half of them will register as Republicans and vote at the Republican primary."

By "Republican folly," which will make possible a Democratic victory, Rowell means, of course, the turning down of the league's candidates at the primary. Mark what he says later in THE SAME EDITORIAL:

"The practical thing to do is to seek a victory FIRST in the place where, if it is won, it will be a real victory. THAT IS BY THE SUCCESS OF THE VARIOUS PROGRESSIVE OR INDEPENDENT REPUBLICAN MOVEMENTS, and of like movements on the Democratic side. IF THESE FAIL, THE TEMPORARY ALTERNATIVE MAY BE DEMOCRATIC VICTORY."

If that is not a threat to bolt I never saw one. But let me quote from another of Rowell's recent editorials—one headed, "Why it is Republican," printed January 2, in the way of comment upon an assertion that "the Lincoln Roosevelt League is a Republican organization, pure and simple":

"THE REPUBLICAN PARTY CANNOT WIN EXCEPT BY NOMINATING A TICKET WHICH WILL APPEAL TO ITS INDEPENDENT MEMBERS. It needs no Republican organization to organize an independent bolt. There should be provocation to jus- The Democrats can organ- it can bolt unorganized. Or, if it needs non-partisan organization THERE ARE NON-PARTISAN GOOD GOVERNMENT LEAGUES ENOUGH TO TAKE THE INITIATIVE IN THAT. Any or all of these may become necessary, but the Lincoln-Roosevelt Republican League is not organized to do them."

This throws a flood of light upon the situation. The league will not the bolt, but the Good Government clubs will. As Link Roosters we are Republicans, but as Goo Goos we are not. The league will be loyal to the party, but the Goo Goo clubs—to which we also belong—are under no such obligation. We remain Republicans if we win, but otherwise we march under the Goo Goo banner over to the enemy.

This is the confessed programme of the faction that seeks control of the Republican party of California.

A week from Monday, the complete executive committee of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League will meet in San Francisco, for the purpose, it is said, of considering the advisability of holding a nominating convention. At the Oakland meeting, late in November, when the league was reorganized, and State officers elected, it was decided unanimously to hold a convention, and even the apportionment of delegates, three to an assembly district, was determined. That there should be any thought of departing from this programme indicates how entirely the league is dominated by Rowell. Yet, with absolute authority to choose the entire executive committee, the members of which in turn, select the local committeemen, he has failed, seemingly, to weld together a homogeneous machine, even after the heroic suppression of the radicals. They don't know yet what they want to do. Rowell has held several caucuses since the November meeting. One this week was attended by Meyer Lissner, Marshall Stimson and little Dickson of Los Angeles. They powwowed for two whole days, and are still up in the air. One thing is certain, and this is, that no chances will be taken with a nominating conference, although its members are chosen at will by Rowell's committeemen. Rowell is a thorough programmer. It is well enough to denounce star-chamber caucuses in other parties, but he is too shrewd not to utilize the caucus himself. The league ticket and programme will be cut and dried before it is submitted for approval, and the Rowell machine will be in as absolute control of any convention or nominating conference that may be held as any political machine ever was.

There is no longer any doubt that Rowell has his eye on Mayor Mott of Oakland as the league candidate for Governor. The intense excitement in league circles when the foolish report that Gillett had offered Mott his support was printed, told the story. Pardee had a coniption fit, and denounced it as a vile Southern Pacific plot. There was not a word of truth in it. The fact is, however, that Mott and Gillett are very friendly. It is a peculiar circumstance that while the league is so bitterly opposed to Gillett, the candidate it wants to oppose him, will not run if Gillett does. Neither will Stanton, probably. The former Speaker has been feeling out the situation up north, and got little satisfaction. If Gillett were out of it, Stanton would delay no longer. And the strongest man the Democrats have, Senator Miller, will not run against Gillett. Curious, isn't it?

There is much speculation as to where Mott really stands. It is true that he was one of the original leaguers, but in a modest way. He was conspicuous by his absence when the league was reorganized last fall, although the meeting was held in his own city. At that time it was understood that he would be a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. Then Rowell put him on his executive committee, and tried to brand him as his own. But Mott still failed to identify himself with Rowell's machine, and his name does not appear among those present when it holds its frequent caucuses. Rowell's idea seems to be to beat Curry with Mott, if Gillett does not run, and take for the league the credit of the victory. He counts on the anti-Curry element in the party to join with the league, and he wants a candidate who can draw such support. But Mott is quite as shrewd a politician as Rowell, and perhaps shrewder. He is not committing himself while there is a chance that Gillett will run.

What is left of the Democratic party, after most of its members register as Republicans, will have the privilege of indorsing a ticket already selected, at the convention to be held in Los Angeles. Four years ago, the Democratic party in Oregon set the example, despite the direct primary. In March, 1906, a convention or "assembly"—used for euphony—met in Portland and named the entire ticket, including representatives in Congress, and it was indorsed at the primary, from top to bottom without a break. Bell will certainly lead the Democratic remnant in California this year. His enemies are more enthusiastically in favor of his nomination than are his friends. It's a safe and sure way of putting a quietus upon the rambunctious T'dore. For a while, the Bourbons cherished hopes of a big split in the Republican party through the Link Roosters. It is proof of the weakness of the league, that the Democrats have practically abandoned this hope. Who has heard of a Democratic candidate for State office, except Theodore? And he is simply being urged on to his destruction. The woods are full of Republican aspirants. Please note, however, that those who wear the L R label are about as scarce as Democratic candidates.

That the league will work with the Democracy to a large extent is well understood. The defeat of all the Republican Congressmen except Needham, Hayes, and possibly Smith, is planned. The Democrats had thought of making no nominations in these three districts, in return for support from the league elsewhere. But this is easier planned than done. Under the wonderful primary law, one vote would make a party candidate, if no one else received more.

Hayes will be opposed at the primary by either Senator Wolfe or Postmaster Fiske, according to reports. Superior Judge John Childs, of Del Norte, will make the contest with Englebright. Editor Lennon of the Santa Rosa Republican is picked to beat McKinlay—and a tough job he will find it. Knowland is sure to have a fight on his hands. The third district is almost as much a hot bed of leaguers as Los Angeles. Friend Richardson, the Berkeley editor, who has suffered him self to be mentioned for Governor and then for State printer, is now in the lime light as Knowland's antagonist. There are still a few offices that Richardson has not been mentioned for. Kahn and McLachlan are also marked for slaughter, but neither is supposed to be worrying much.

Among the recent announcements is that of Frank McGowan, former Senator from Humboldt, for Attorney-General. Webb, who has served so long and so well, will be a candidate again. But McGowan made up his mind years ago to be elected to another office, and he has not given up hope. In the convention that nominated Gage for Governor, he received 340 votes for Lieutenant-Governor. He was beaten for the nomination for District Attorney of San Francisco when Ruef was in his prime, and ran for the same office on the labor-union ticket two years ago with like results. He counts upon the labor-union support to pull him through this time.

The scrap for Curry's present job continues the center of actual operations. The three or four candidates from Southern California are expected to destroy each other and give Frank Jordan a walk-over. Jordan is generally picked as the winner, up here. The southerner who beats him must get a lot of votes north of the Tehachepi. Mouser has made an active canvas in some of the northern counties, and told the voters his low-down opinion of Jordan. This has had the effect of centering Jordan's conversation upon Mouser's qualifications for the office with similar frankness. Walter Wagner of San Bernardino has selected Jack Stafford, the popular sergeant-at-arms of the Assembly, as his agent in this section of the State, and this comes pretty near making Wagner second choice in the betting.

Soldier Buys Partnership in "Sucker" Realty Syndicate, But Gets His Money Back—Wants to Help in Prosecution of Principal. Clark Is Released on Probation.

H. B. Gerhardt, who fought under Gen. "Joe" Wheeler in the Civil War, called at the Police Station branch of the Deputy District Attorney's office, yesterday, to relate how he cut up Dolph M. Green, alleged head of a realty swindling syndicate, after he had been buncoed.

He declared his method of getting a settlement out of Green proved most effective and that he did not lose a cent by a transaction with him.

H. B. Gerhardt,

who sent Dolph M. Green, alleged head of a swindling syndicate, to the hospital, when he found he had been buncoed, and is willing to help prosecute him.

"He had sold me a partnership for $500," said Gerhardt. "I found out I was a sucker and demanded my money back. He told me he would shoot me if I didn't leave him alone.

"A little while later I found he had swindled another old soldier out of $300, the last money he had. He went back East on the charity of friends to die.

"That roiled me up. When I saw Green again, it was on October 10 or 11, 1906, and he told me he would shoot me. I dug into him with my knife. He went to the hospital for three or four weeks.

"They kept me in jail for awhile, but when Green got well he didn't want to prosecute me. Besides, he gave me back my money. If I can do anything toward helping in giving him what he deserves, I'll do it."

George Clark, one of the members of the "sucker" realty syndicate, made a successful plea for probation in Justice Williams's court, yesterday. He will be a ward of the court for a year.

Clark laid all of the blame for the criminal conspiracy on Green. He said he was without funds and that Green talked him into the proposition.

A Clever Coin Trick.

Ask a friend to put a quarter in one pocket and a dime in the opposite pocket. Tell him that the quarter represents 20 and the dime 5. Now ask him to triple the coin that is in his right pocket and double that which is in his left pocket, and then add these two products together, simply telling you whether the result is odd or even. If it is even, then the quarter is in his right pocket and the dime in the left; if it be odd, then the quarter is in his left pocket and the dime in his right. You may give any values to the coins other than 20 and 5, provided that one number is odd and the other even, the even number being given to the quarter. And you can, of course, use any other coins, so long as you give them odd and even values.—[Strand Magazine.

FRATERNAL PRESCRIPTION FOR NERVOUS WRECKS

(From "Medical Reports.")

Thousands of men, nervous wrecks, have found the following "fraternal prescription" a blessing and a boon. Such men lack aggressiveness, they are timid, nervous, easily discouraged, lacking in self esteem and confidence. They suffer from cold extremities, thin, watery blood, nervousness, sleeplessness, frightful dreams, trembling hands and limbs, unsteady gait and an absolute inability to perform the ordinary natural and rational acts or duties such as any healthy normal man can.

A vigorous man works, plays, eats and sleeps always with the keenest enjoyment. The greater his exertions are, the stronger becomes his appetite and slumbers.

The nervous man seems always tired and worn out. Retiring brings no relief. Sleep brings no refreshment, all because of an abnormal condition of the nervous system, brought about by—well, no matter what—the desire is for relief and freedom with rich, red blood surging through the body, supplying the sensitive nerves with all the power of sensation, so that sleep is refreshing, food is delicious, work is play and play is pleasure.

This treatment is thorough, simple and correct. The ingredients are used in filling various prescriptions and can be obtained of any well stocked druggist and mixed at home without any embarrassment or questions.

Obtain three ounces of syrup sarsaparilla compound in a six-ounce bottle. To this, add one ounce of compound fluid balmwort and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce of tincture cadomene compound (not cardamon), and one ounce compound essence cardiol. Mix, shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring until a vigorous, bounding new-health takes hold of the tired, exhausted nerves. Only a few weeks' treatment will astonish and rejuvenate, because the treatment is the right thing at the right time and contains no deceptive opiates.

THEIR HAMMERS SMITE MANY NAILS IN OXNARD.

Contractors Report Big Year With Prospects Good for Another Active Twelvemonths—Anti-Saloon League Plans to Make Town "Dry"—Board of Trade Banquet.

OXNARD, Jan. 29.—Within the last year many buildings have been erected in and about Oxnard. Local contractors are enthusiastic over the results of the past season and prospects for the present year. New buildings include: Brick store in Oxnard for Hobson Brothers meat market, $3500; Oxnard Furniture & Plumbing Company, $4500; Harold Dewey, $1725; L. W. Stewart, $4000· Lehman Brothers, $2000; Dr. Livingston, $625; Oxnard Garage addition, $2150; Peoples Lumber Company, office building, $700; garage and granary for T. R. Bard, $1200; brick block at Camarillo for Murphy and Weill, $5000; Camarillo Chapel, $1300; bungalows for Earl Carr, $1400; F. A. E. Camarillo, $3000; A. and H. Levi, office fixtures, $500; small jobs, $15,000. Under construction at the present time: Residence for C. F. Blackstock, $3500; brick store buildings for L. S. Beckley, H. H. Eastwood, John Steinmiller and M. V. Carr, $30,000.

AFTER THE SALOONS.

The Anti-Saloon League is preparing to drive the saloons out of Oxnard. R. H. Young, a field worker for the State Association, under orders from Dr. Champan of Los Angeles, State superintendent, is conferring with local members as to the best manner to handle the work. He says Santa Paula and Ventura people are anxious to assist in the proposed cleanup. It is probable that the question of a wet and dry town will be placed on the city ballot in April.

Oxnard is the only place in the county that licenses the sale of liquor.

Over 200 tickets have been sold for the Board of Trade banquet, February 22.

Plans will be formulated for celebrating the Fourth of July in Oxnard. All other parts of the county have signified their intention to assist this town in having a big demonstration.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS.

President Brown of the New York Central Railroad in a recent address to the students of Cornell University urged two propositions: First, the broadening of our methods of education in our schools and colleges, and second, the addition of a year's practical training at some useful trade. He advised the addition of a first-class manual training school to every high school, the increase of capacity of these schools to accommodate every child in the community, and that attendance be made compulsory. If we could accept Germany's system of technical training," he said, "her research and thoroughness, and combine them with our inventions the combination would dominate the world. Without these fundamental qualities it is only a question of time when this country must surrender its place as a leader among the great manufacturing nations of the world. The failure to increase the production of the nation's farms by increasing the number of bushels an acre is steadily and rapidly increasing the cost of living, and manufacturers, merchants and employers of labor of every class are scanning the future with an anxious eye, for the end does not seem in sight."

The editor of The Independent, speaking of the Sidis boy says: "There is usually a sad waste of time in the first seven years of the education of a child. By dead memory and hard work a child learns before he is 2 years old the words of a language. If he hears two or three languages he learns them at the same time. Plenty of children learn English and German, or English and French, or English and Arabic, before they are 3 years old. It need not be half the effort to learn to read, and when one can read the next steps are plain. A case like this of the Sidis boy does not mean precocity, but good education. If special attention is given to mathematics, as in this case, there is no reason why a boy of brains could not be expected at 12 to have reached calculus and to wander about in the fourth dimension. It is not pretended that he has made any mathematical discoveries; he has been busy learning. Nor is there any reason why health should be sacrificed. This is a perfectly healthy boy, and he has doubtless eaten enough, slept enough and exercised enough, the three conditions of a sane body to hold a sane mind. His is by no means a unique case."

The Boston Board of Education has a special Advisory Committee on school hygiene, which is to place open-air rooms in its schoolhouses. The health rooms are not to be confused with rooms for children afflicted with tuberculosis. They are for debilitated children, open air being considered the best for children below par. The committee recommends that these open-air rooms be a feature in future of all schoolrooms, and be located upon the upper floor. Every care in the way of extra clothing will be attended to, and it is hoped that the result will prove the efficacy of the plan.

A writer in Lippincott's Magazine believes that the reason so many children dislike to go to school is because the schoolrooms are but little more cheerful than a jail, and he says: "If some rich man would build a model public school in one of our large cities, especially in what are called the slum districts; if he would furnish and ornament it with the things of beauty which are consistent with good sanitation, he would make a little heaven for the children, and he would find that his reward would be ample. . . .

"We spend money on our homes and delight in any addition to their beauty or comfort, while we send the children to schoolrooms which we should consider uninhabitable for us older ones under any considerations. This is all the worse because as a rule we lazy parents expect the teachers to take all the responsibilities of the mental and moral uplift of our children. We are at fault more than any other factor in the whole situation."

many daring men engaged in it. The government officials in Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and San Diego are working hard to get these men and it is expected that arrests will be made in San Fransisco in a few days.

The opium is said to have been brought direct from China to the Mexican port of Guaymas and from there was smuggled on mules to Nogales, Ariz. Nogales is on the border and a part of the old town is on Mexican soil.

OPIUM FOR EXHIBIT.

The opium which was found in the trunks and suit cases belonging to Harris and Murphy will be kept until the trial, as it will be needed as an exhibit. After that it will be destroyed in accordance with the provisions of the Federal law.

If the men had been arrested in Arizona the trial would have been in the Territorial district, but the capture being effected within the southern district of California, the trial will be held before Judge Wellborn in the United States District Court.

As soon as a new Federal grand jury convenes, the cases of Harris and Murphy will be presented to that body. Meanwhile they are held by virtue of a complaint issued yesterday by Assistant United States District Attorney Stewart.

Unless some of their San Francisco friends come to the rescue, Harris and Murphy will probably remain in the County Jail until their cases are disposed of.

MILITARY BALL.

Officers and men of Co. B, Seventh Regiment, and Troop D, N.G.C., are preparing for the first and probably the only big military ball of the season which is to be held on the evening of February 18 at the Goldberg-Bosley Asembly Hall, Sixteenth and Flower streets. Invitations will be sent to more than one thousand persons, and it seems certain that the attendance will be close to this number. Co. B is the latest addition to the Seventh Regiment, and it seems to be proving itself the liveliest. Harry B. Light is the captain and the company now numbers sixty-three members. It was organized last August. Committees from the infantry company and cavalry troop are in charge of the arrangements for the ball.

Needed a Disease.

A young lady who appeared to be in perfect health, but who had a very worried expression upon her blooming face, entered the consulting room of a New York physician the other day. "Doctor," she said, "it is absolutely essential that I go to White Sulphur this summer." "Oh, perhaps not," the physician remarked, reassuringly. "Tell me fully your symptoms. What do you expect to cure at the springs?" "That is just what I came to you to find out, doctor," she confessed. "You see, I have got to talk with papa. What do you go to White Sulphur to be cured of?"—[The Argonaut.

Alcohol in Lozenge Form.

Alcohol now comes in solid form, in lumps like gelatine, and with it traveling alcohol lamps can be safely used—for making tea and so forth—on trains and in steamship cabins.

Heretofore it was difficult for the traveler to carry an alcohol lamp, as the liquid alcohol leaked out. Further, it was dangerous to fill the lamp while traveling, as the alcohol was apt to spill and to take fire.

But now the lamp is filled by simply dropping a lozenge of solidified alcohol into it, and with its help a cup of tea can be made in a sleeping car berth as safely as in a kitchen.—[Washington Star.

PASSING.

COWPUNCHERS DRIVE AUTOS.

Hurricane Deck of Cayuse Is Old-Fashioned.

Lassoing Cows from Machine Now Proper Thing.

Picturesque Southwest Life Slipping Away.

Relics of the Southwestern life of the old days are slipping away one by one into history. One of the latest innovations upon the ranches is the succeeding of the historic cow-pony by the automobile. In round-up it has proved satisfactory, for fence riding it is preferred and for jaunts into town it is acknowledged superior to the slow lope of the cayuse.

For some time the life and atmosphere of the Southwest of the old days has given place to the advance of civilization. First it was the overland railroad lines which succeeded the overland trails. Then came the barbed wire era to replace the reign of the open range, and now the automobile is the latest engine of civilization to break into the hitherto undisputed field of the range pony.

No longer are tiresome trips to the nearest trading post made upon the tough little horses. The cowpuncher of today rides to town in an automobile with a big-hatted range rider sitting in the seat which the towns and cities call the chauffeur's place, but this term the cowmen sniff at in disdain and continue to call it by the plain Western term of front seat for the driver.

Almost any day now in the towns nearest to the cattle ranges may be seen big red and green touring cars standing along the hitching rail where in former days meek-looking ponies stamped in the sunshine. It is no unusual sight to see a big car purring along over mesa and plain, the wide-brimmed hats of the cattlemen flapping in the breeze and alkali dust covering them from head to foot.

ROPING FROM AUTOS.

Not only do the cattlemen make their business and pleasure trips in automobiles, but they rope, tie and brand with them, using them for almost every purpose that the pony of the old days was trained to perform. Unruly steers and mavericks have met a new enemy. To see a racing runabout headed down the wind after a running maverick with the seat occupied by a man to guide the car at a forty-mile an hour speed, while the other stands well out over the hood, rope in hand ready to make the cast as the car passes the animal, has been one of the things that has turned the skeptics into followers in the cow country.

It was a difficult matter to convince the men who had ridden for years at round-ups on the shaggy ponies that nothing could take their place, but when once they have seen the automobile in operation, leaping across the plain they declare it is the only thing. Since the speed of the pony is made and there is not the fear of the stumbling of the animal or a fall when its foot is fastened in a prairie-dog's hole. It is safer, they admit, and faster, and then another machine is added to the range.

At the present time there are hundreds of automobiles used daily for the riding of fence and all the other duties formerly performed about the range upon the ponies.

CHAPS ARE DISCARDED.

While the innovation has done away with the chaps and spurs, which were, anyway, discarded by the majority of the cowmen and are more frequently seen in Eastern theaters than upon the range, the remainder of the costume of the man upon mesa and plain has not changed. The same red handkerchief is worn, the same wide-brimmed Stetson flaps as they spin across the stretches and the men insist upon using range horse language in the management of the machines. There is not a single thing that the pony can do that cannot be accomplished by the automobiles in the hands of competent men. They can make much better time in all the duties that were heretofore dependent upon the ponies, and by their use the number of men upon the ranches has been greatly reduced.

It is asserted that one machine can accomplish as much work in a day as six ponies and riders, and it is believed by those now using the motor car that it will be but a few years before every ranch of any importance will have them, and the picturesque cowpuncher of the early days will be succeeded by the unromantic chauffeur.

CERTAINLY ENDS KIDNEY TROUBLE

YOUR OUT-OF-ORDER KIDNEYS WILL ACT FINE BEFORE YOU REALIZE IT.

Any Backache or Bladder and Urinary Misery Vanishes After Taking Several Doses of Pape's Diuretic—Thousands of Men and Women Here in Los Angeles Will Realize What It Means to Have Perfect Health Again.

Hundreds of folks here are needlessly miserable and worried because of out-of-order kidneys, backache or bladder trouble.

If you will take several doses of Pape's Diuretic, all misery from a lame back, rheumatism, painful stitches, inflamed or swollen eyelids, nervous headache, irritability, dizziness, worn-out, sick feeling and other symptoms of overworked or deranged kidneys will vanish.

Uncontrollable, smarting, frequent urination (especially at night) and all bladder misery ends.

This unusual preparation goes at once to the disordered kidneys, bladder and urinary system, and distributes its healing, cleansing and vitalizing influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realize it.

The moment you suspect any kidney or urinary disorder, or feel rheumatism coming, begin taking this harmless medicine, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy, at any price, made anywhere else in the world which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a 50c treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Only curative results can come from taking Pape's Diuretic, and a few days' treatment means clean, active, healthy kidneys, bladder and urinary organs—and you feel fine.

Accept only Pape's Diuretic — 50c treatment—from any drug store—anywhere in the world.

RIVER'S ENERGY.

returned from a thorough inspection of the system.

THEY'RE ENTHUSIASTIC.

Their findings will not be made public until after the meeting of February 10. It is known, however, that all of these experts are enthusiastic over the possibilities they have seen. They see in San Francisquito Cañon, only forty-five miles from Los Angeles, one of the finest power sites offered by the fall of water from the lofty Sierras. It was this location that first interested the committee, consisting of John R. Freeman, Frederick P. Stearns and James D. Schuyler, whose report induced the coming bond election.

There are four attractive power sites on the line of the aqueduct, and the original estimate of their value is as follows:

	Horse Power.
Upper San Francisquito Cañon	25,000
Lower San Francisquito Cañon	11,000
San Fernando outlet	6,000
Haiwee reservoir	7,000
Total	49,000

These figures are based on the average power developed by 400 cubic feet of water per second, the amount that is expected to flow through the aqueduct regularly. The horse power on this basis extends through twenty-four hours seven days in a week. By estimating on the customary ratio, the horse power that it is possible to develop in the hours when a peak load is carried, the exact amount would be 93,000 horse power. There are already developed and in operation plants on Cottonwood and Division Creeks, supplying from 4000 to 5000 horse power, so that 100,000 horse power is regarded as a round figure for the electrical energy of the aqueduct. It is believed that some of the engineers of the consulting board see a greater amount in sight than this.

UTILITY AND MONEY-MAKER.

With the confidence that has been developed during the progress of the aqueduct, the enthusiasm of Los Angeles over its great project, the promise of a paying investment as well as a great public utility necessity, and the assurance of a competent board of engineers that it is all feasible, it is entirely reasonable to consider the coming bond election as a formality, and to regard the $3,500,000 as available for operations by April.

Already the city of Los Angeles is deriving virtual revenue from the Owens River. The three construction plants supplying power for the building of the conduit and tunnels are saving large sums of money. The Cottonwood and Division Creek powerhouses operate the three dredgers in Owens River Valley, supply power and light for the tunnels and camps for ninety miles south, and assist in the operation of the cement plant at Tehachepi.

This power is supplied at a cost of 1 cent per kilowatt, with a voltage of 440. This figure includes depreciation, all expenses of maintenance and such of the construction as is temporary. If the transmission lines and plants were all figured as permanent this figure would be greatly lessened. The base rate of electric power in Los Angeles is 9 cents per kilowatt. It is supplied, however, in large quantities at from 1 1-2 to 3¼ cents per kilowatt.

At the proposed site of the big permanent power plant in San Francisquito Pass, there is a fall of 1500 feet. At the outlet of the tunnel, in the upper end of San Fernando Valley above the proposed reservoirs, there is a drop of 215 feet. Fifteen miles below the big Haiwee reservoir there is a drop of 270 feet. It is possible that as the demand for power grows there will be plants at all of these points. The same work that is necessary to regulate the flow of water in the aqueduct will, in large measure, be also a factor in power development. The dams and storage basins would be necessary if there were to be no power plants. When these are constructed the development of power becomes merely a matter of machinery, equipment and lines for high-power transmission.

IN ENGINEER'S REPORT.

The early report of the consulting engineers is to cover the following grounds:

First—To investigate and study, on the ground, conditions as to the development and transmission of said power and its distribution in the city of Los Angeles and its vicinity.

Second—To make recommendations and assist in determining upon a complete general plan for the development, transmission and distribution of all power available along the line of the aqueduct, including locations of generating stations, number of units, types of machinery, method of control, transmission voltage, character of lines, etc.

Third—To investigate and make recommendations as to what portion of this power it would be advisable to develop first, havng in view the amount of available funds, the cost and reliability of the various power installations, and conditions as to distribution.

Fourth—to make recommendations concerning detail plans and specifications for the construction of power-houses and other structures, and for the machinery and equipment necessary for the purpose of generating, transmitting and distributing that portion of the power which is to be developed first, and to review such plans and specifications; also to make recommendations concerning the selection and purchase of said machinery and apparatus.

MERE BAGATELLE.

With information of this character, authoritative and exhaustive, the citizens of Los Angeles who are to capitalize the power project, will have a more satisfactory basis upon which to act than was possible when the Owens River project itself was undertaken. The sum of $3,500,000 for the development of 100,000 horse power is a mere bagatelle compared to the figures of power corporations engaged in similar enterprises. It will not take 100,000 horses long to earn back the $23,000,000 expended on the entire aqueduct system.

CREAM IS CONFISCATED.

State Inspector Gets After Dairymen in the Poplar District for Unsanitary Methods.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 28.—J. H. Severin, State dairy inspector, was here yesterday investigating conditions in the Poplar district, and he ordered 100 pounds of cream confiscated and destroyed. He stated the cream was being skimmed in unsanitary places.

No arrests were made.

H. P. Richards, an autoist, narrowly escaped injury near Exeter yesterday, when the stearing gear of the car broke. The machine turned turtle and the driver was pinned beneath the tonneau. He will be confined to his bed for some days.

Protests by the Transportation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce regarding unsatisfactory train service on the Southern Pacific have brought results. A letter was received today from E. W. Clapp, passenger agent of the road, in which he asks the opinion of the chamber regarding changes to be made.

Growers of the Sunnyside district, alleging that the Sunnyside oranges are the best grown in California, are now forming an organization to next year market all their fruit under their own brand. An attempt was made to establish a separate brand last year, but was not successful.

BARTENDERS "BUFFALOED."

Carrie Nation Cant Address Union; Members Are Afraid; Denounces Priest for Smoking.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BUTTE, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At a largely attended meeting of the Butte Bartenders' Union last evening the action of President Gallagher in extending an invitation to Carrie Nation to address the union Sunday evening was repudiated, the members declaring that if necessary a committee would be appointed to stand guard before the door of the union's hall ready to dispute the entrance of Carrie, forcibly if need be.

For fear of appearing ridiculous in the matter the bartenders voted to dispense with the usual Sunday evening meeting and thus thwart any effort Carrie might make to address the union. The bartenders refuse to tell when they will meet next for fear Carrie might descend on the session.

Mrs. Nation this afternoon publicly denounced a priest whom she found smoking a cigar upon the platform of the Great Northern depot.

"It's no sin to smoke," replied the priest, in answer to a stinging rebuke. He attempted to evade Carrie, but the latter in loud voice called for every one on the platform to look at the priest and then she delivered a bitter denunciation of the example set by the priest.

WORKING WOMAN IS RICH.

Husband of Aunt Leaves $400,000 and Good News Sends Heiress to Bed from Shock.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PITTSBURGH (Pa.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. A. W. Thompson, a hard-working woman of No. 213 East Erie street, received today a letter which informed her she had been left a fortune of $400,000 through the death of Richard T. Sulzenberger, a wealthy broker and real estate man of London. He married an aunt of Mrs. Thompson's husband while he was in poor circumstances.

The good news proved such a shock to Mrs. Thompson that she had to take to her bed. She signed the necessary papers and saw that they were mailed to England before she did so, however.

"I haven't any idea what I am going to do with all of that money," she said. "My husband and myself are going to keep right on working. We have worked all our lives."

Orrine Cured Him of Drunkenness

Her Husband Now Spends His Evenings at Home.

She bought Orrine from the druggist in her home town—she bought it after reading the Orrine Free Booklet. In the Booklet she read of the wonderful cures of drunkenness which were accomplished by the aid of Orrine. On page ten of the Booklet she read the liberal guarantee to refund all money paid for Orrine if it failed to effect a cure. After reading the Booklet she became convinced that Orrine was a remedy of unusual merit. She decided to purchase it and cure her husband of drunkenness. Orrine cured him. Now she is a happy wife in a happy home. Orrine helped to purchase the home. Read the following letter from Walter K. Schmidt Co., 84 Canal St., Grand Rapids, Mich.:

"For a number of years we have been agents for Orrine. During that time we have had occasion to be convinced, beyond a doubt, that Orrine is a reputable remedy, worthy of recommendation. One of the many cases coming to our attention, a mechanic earning $22.50 per week, who had not taken a full pay envelope home for over five years, was induced to try Orrine, a complete cure being the result. The man became worth more to his firm, receiving an advance in pay, and has purchased a home. The house stands there showing the merits of Orrine. We can not help but feel that we were most fortunate when we secured the agency for this reliable liquor cure."

Orrine is prepared in two forms. No. 1 a powder, absolutely tasteless and odorless, given secretly in food or drink. Orrine No. 2, in pill form, is for those who wish to cure themselves. Orrine costs only $1 a box. The guarantee is in each box. Write for Free Orrine Booklet (mailed in plain sealed envelope,) to Orrine Co., 919 Orrine Bldg., Washington, D. C. Orrine is for sale in this city by The Owl Drug Co., Inc., 320 So. Spring St.; Fifth and Broadway; 625 So. Broadway.

They know Orrine is a reliable and efficacious remedy for drunkenness and they will not offer you a substitute.

BY ANTONY E. ANDERSON.

Venetian Pastoral by Georgione.

Water, for anguish of the solstice—nay,
But dip the vessel slowly—nay, but lean
And hark how at its verge the wave sighs in Reluctant. Hush, beyond all depth away
The heat lies silent at the break of day:
Now the hand trails upon the viol-string
That sobs, and the brown faces cease to sing,
Sad with the whole of pleasure. Whither stray
Her eyes now, from whose mouth the slim pipes creep
And leave it pouting, while the shadowed grass
Is cool against her naked side? Let be
Say nothing now unto her lest she weep,
Nor name this ever. Be it as it was—
Life touching lips with immortality.

Holland Pictures.

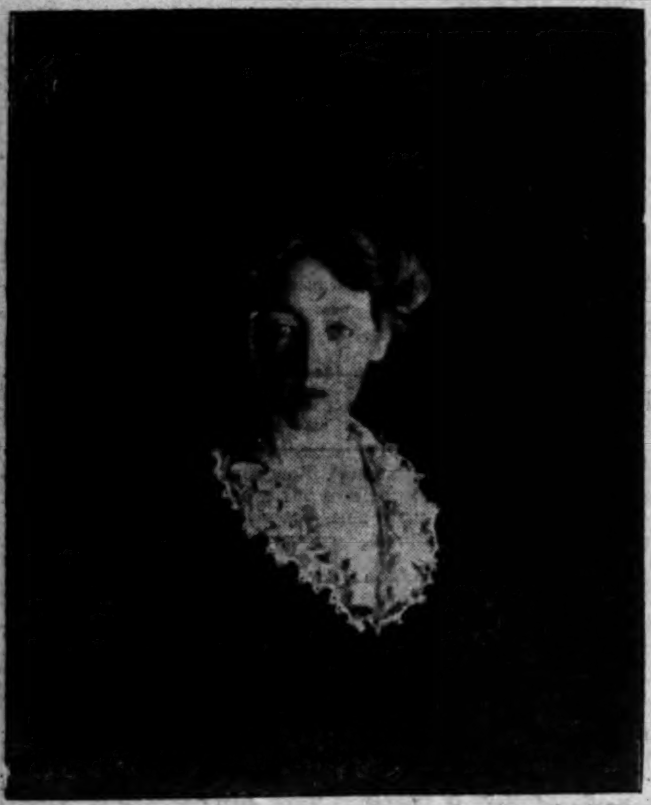
A collection of pictures of Dutch peasant life, painted in oils and water colors by F. Carl Smith, is now on view in the Kanst gallery. The exhibition will remain open to the public one week longer, when it will make way for an exhibition of California landscapes by Benjamin Chambers Brown.

By far the best of the present collection are the water colors, which are at once better in drawing and color than the oils. Most of these, indeed, have much feeling and harmony. Among them are: "In the Cabbage Patch," "Patience," "End of the Day," "Girl With Bowl," etc.

Among the best of the oils are: "Mother and Child," "The Shepherd," "The Fish Vendor," "Ironing Day," "Telling Her Beads," etc. There is much light in Mr. Smith's pictures. He paints interiors of the peasants' cottages, but he almost always places an open door or window at the back, and through this door or window he gives us sunlit glimpses of the out-of-doors which are charming.

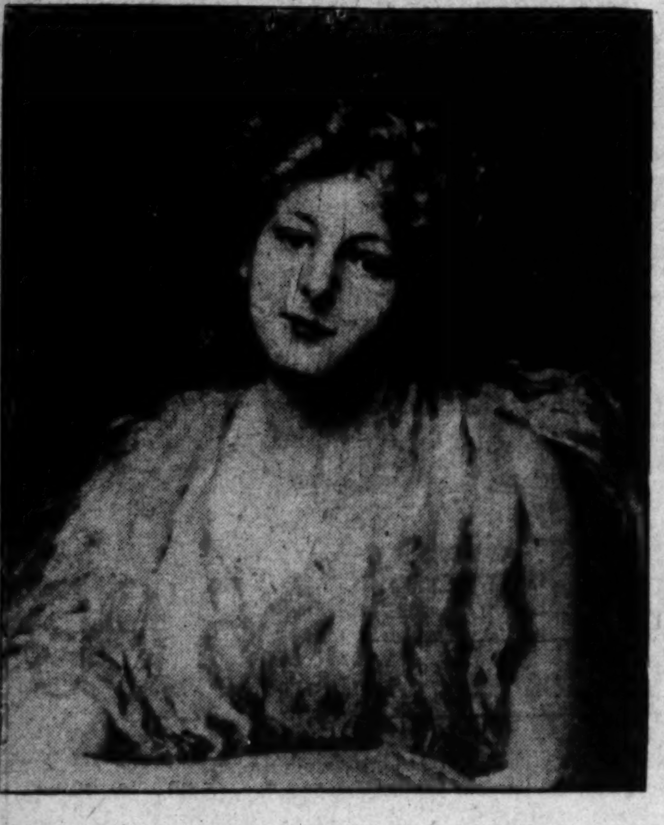
As a general rule his figures are not well drawn; they are lacking in construction. His handling, too, is a trifle disagreeable, and his color is somewhat garish. These faults adhere almost exclusively to the oils. His water colors, as I have said, are full of charm. The conviction is forced upon one that the oils were painted hastily, and for commercial purposes.

Mr. Smith is a painter of portraits as well as genres. He painted a portrait of Mrs. Fairbanks, wife of Ex-President Fairbanks, for the Daughters of the American Revolution, which now hangs in their new Continental Hall in Washington. His portrait of Speaker Cannon was purchased by T. B. Walker to hang in the public library of Minneapolis.



Portrait of Miss F.

From an oil painting by Walter Lewis Cheever.



Gertrude.

From an oil painting by J. Carroll Beckwith. This portrait is a noted model who married a prominent New Yorker is now on view in the Kanst gallery. Mr. Beckwith has been an instructor in the Art Students' League of New York for the past twenty years.

Mr. Cheever's Portrait.

"Portrait of Miss F." is one of the interesting recent canvases from the brush of Walter Lewis Cheever of Glendale. It is a strong portrait, excellent in drawing and full of character. Early in March Mr. Cheever will hold a small exhibition of California landscapes in conjunction with a special meeting of one of the literary clubs of Glendale.

The young artist came to California less than a year ago. He studied for eight years in the school of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, under Philip Hale, Frank W. Benson and Edmund C. Tarbell. In his last year at the school he won the Ayer prize for the best portrait done in the advanced painting class. He held scholarship during the last six years of his stay in the school.

A Protest.

Though the editor of Art and Artists cannot conscientiously agree with William Cumming Montgomerie on the beauty and importance of this artist's work, he is very glad to give some space to his letter of protest, regretting, however, that it is too long drawn out to be printed in its entirety. The editor has realized for some time that it is dangerous to be truthful—yet he keeps on trying to be so! His punishments are no doubt richly deserved—for truth is the very last thing wanted in the world so densely peopled by incompetent egotists.

"Sir: The perspicacity that you have shown in the illucidation [elucidation?] of the fonts from which I obtained the inspiration for the pictures now being shown by me at the Steckel galleries shows that you would have been at least as eminent as a detective as an art critic—probably more so. Detectives, however are sometimes wrong, and in this case, you, too, have shown that you are not always infallable [infallible?]

"You say that you are not prepared to say whether my pictures are 'harmonies' of color or not, and yet you have the audacity to talk about my technique. A person who cannot say whether a picture is harmonious in color is not very likely to know much about technique. N' est ce pas! [How literally Mr. Montgomerie takes the editor's English—and yet he himself uses French with the sinuous and suggestive fluency of a Parisian!]

"You say 'the conclusion is forced upon me that Mr. Montgomerie does not know enough. [Mr. Montgomerie should have completed the editor's sentence—'to try to say the almost unsayable things on canvas.'] Do you Mr. Critic, know enough to be my judge? I fear not. I am perfectly aware that my pictures have lots of faults—but you have not found them.

"The gallery was arranged as I would have had it arranged if I had had a thousand pictures to hang—not one more—not one less. You have described to a 'tee' exactly the effect I wished to produce. [An effect which the editor approved of, and said so.]

"I may say that your article in The Times is the only one that can have any pretense to be a criticism. The others were merely laudatory notices, unworthy of consideration and showing how little Los Angeles papers care for art. I mean, by having people in charge of their art columns who are not able to criticise, or are perhaps afraid to do so.

"I have come to the conclusion that art in Los Angeles is a joke—people here are not ready for it, they are too busy looking after the almighty dollars and discarding what they were brought up to wear, viz., gingham, for silks and satins. Yet, there is lots of art here, but it is all d——d bad. [Does Mr. Montgomerie include his own work in this sweeping condemnation—or is he the one and only shining example of the excellent painter?]

"Your little reference to the 2x4 picture showed the undercurrent of venom that characterized the whole of your article. A narrow canvas is much to be preferred to a narrow mind. Trusting that in the near future that [Sic] you will show us what real painting is, I am, Sir, your very truly, William Cumming Montgomerie."

ART NOTES.

An exhibition of the water color flower paintings of Paul de Longpré will be held in the artist's studio, Hollywood, from February 1 to April 15. One hundred and ten pictures will be shown, making an exhibition which will undoubtedly prove to be the most important ever held by the famous flower painter in the ten years of his residence in Southern California. Admission to the studio will be by invitation or personal card only, on afternoons from 1 to 5. The gallery is not open to the general public.

Elizabeth Borglum entertained a few friends at a pleasant little luncheon in her Sierra Madre studio last Sunday afternoon. This artist had some new landscapes to show, all of them characterized by a keener insight into nature and a truer feeling for form and color than Mrs. Borglum has hitherto displayed. She is certainly making rapid forward strides as a landscape painter.

An exhibition of old prints will open in Blanchard gallery on February 2, to close on the 12th. This will be followed by an exhibition of work from the brush of Detleff Sammann, the well-known decorator, now living in New York, but formerly an Angeleño.

GOOD-BYE TO SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

Lady Will Send Free to Any Sufferer the Secret Which Cured Her.

From childhood I was distressed and humiliated by an unwelcome growth of hair on my face and arms. I tried all the depilatories, powders, liquids, creams and other rub-on preparations I ever heard of, only to make it worse. For weeks I suffered the electric needle without being rid of my blemish. I spent a great deal of money on various things in vain, until a friend recommended a simple preparation which succeeded where all else failed.

This simple remedy enabled me permanently to find entire relief from all trace of unwelcome hair, and forever end all embarrassment. It is simple, safe, sure and can be used privately at home, without fear of pain or blemish. It makes the electric needle entirely unnecessary.

I will tell in detail full particulars to enable any other sufferer to achieve the same happy results as I did. All I ask is a two-cent stamp for reply. Address Caroline Osgood, 741 S., Vaughan Bldg., Providence, R. I.

Better than Spanking

Spanking will not cure children of wetting the bed, because it is not a habit but a dangerous disease. The C. H. Rowan Drug Co., Dept. 270, London, Ont., Canada, have discovered a strictly harmless, yet never failing cure for this distressing disease and to make known its merits they will send a Big Package securely wrapped and prepaid Absolutely Free to any reader of The Times. This remedy also cures frequent desire to urinate and inability to control urine during the night or day in old or young. The C. H. Rowan Drug Co. are an Old Reliable House, write to them today for the free medicine. Cure the afflicted members of your family, then tell your neighbors and friends about this wonderful discovery.

Cured His

Kidney and Bladder

Trouble At Home, At Small Cost. Will Gladly Tell Any Sufferer How.

Mr. A. S. Hitchcock, (Clothing Dealer,) 945 Carrier Bldg., East Hampton, Ct., says if any sufferer from a Kidney, Bladder, or Uric Acid Ailment will send him their address he will without any charge whatsoever, direct them to the splendid and harmless remedy he so successfully used at home in his own case.

We suggest it would be well to write him at once, before letters get so numerous he becomes unable to answer them all promptly. The information he so freely gives has proven of particular value to hundreds of suffering people.

THE extra-long and tightly-laced corsets of the prevailing type have made necessary the wearing of elastic belts to secure proper hygienic support.

These belts have been widely recommended by physicians, but are not as generally worn as they should be, on account of their high price (from $5.00 to $25.00, and even more), and the fact that these appliances are more or less bulky, uncomfortable and inconvenient.

The Lastikops Bandlet

—does all that the best abdominal belt can do—and more; yet it is neither inconvenient nor uncomfortable, and, instead of being bulky, it is the greatest figure-reducer ever devised. It is a greatly improved form of a Reducing and Supporting Band; made of the new Lastikops Webbing, which, being slightly elastic, adjusts itself snugly to the curve of the abdomen, giving firm support from underneath, with even greater ease and comfort than has hitherto been attainable.

Kind Hearts--Good Deeds

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Col. Anthony R. Kuser of Newark, N. J., has given the New York Zoölogical Society $60,000 to defray the expenses of an expedition around the world for the study of pheasants in their native environment. He has himself one of the best private collections of pheasants in the country.

Sir Alfred Jones, the great ship owner of Liverpool, made a princely gift to his employés at his death. By the terms of his will his entire business, including a fleet of more than 100 steamers, was left to his employés, the total value of which is not stated. His entire fortune was estimated at $15,000,000,000 to $20,000,000, and the executors paid into the British treasury $1,500,000 as death dues.

R. A. Long of New York recently gave $25,000 to Bethany College, Wheeling, W. Va., on condition that the college secure subscriptions of $100,000 to an endowment fund. The condition was successfully met. Mr. Long now makes a similar offer with the same condition, and will give $25,000 for every $100,000 up to $400,000.

John R. Walsh of Chicago, the banker who has gone to prison for violation of the national banking law, never wanted his charitable deeds known. Of this side of his character, Alexander H. Revell writes, in the Chicago Record-Herald: "In 1893 I thought it would be a most pleasant closing of the world's fair if during October a children's week could be especially arranged for the poor children in the schools to attend the exposition. It would be a pity, it was thought, if any child who desired to see the greatest of all expositions should be prevented from doing so on account of lack of money. As soon as the subject was mentioned to Mr. Walsh, he said: 'That is splendid. I like that, and, if it is accomplished, I would enjoy sending 1000 children to the fair during that week.' I remarked that with that start we would go ahead and present the matter to the board of directors, try to get the reduction in fares and have a week dedicated to the children. As I was leaving the office, Mr. Walsh called me back and said: 'Now, don't use my name in connection with this.' I protested, but he said: 'No, I insist; just put me down as a friend of the children.' The directors of the exposition had not a moment's hesitation, the fares were reduced, and, as many will remember, between 350,000 and 400,000 children, many who were very poor, enjoyed a visit to the World's Fair during that memorable week. After the death of President McKinley, when contributions were coming in in dimes and dollars for the McKinley national monument, I again went to see Mr. Walsh. 'Mr. Walsh,' I said, 'I have come around to speak to you about a contribution for the McKinley national monument.' With a smile as gentle as a child's, he replied: 'Sit down a moment; I want to talk about President McKinley.' He told me how the late President had impressed him and how thoroughly he admired him. I recall he mentioned the President's beautiful home life, also his strong attitude and great value to the nation during our trouble with Spain, etc. Without waiting for the necessity of another request, he touched his desk bell, and the secretary was ordered to make a check for $1000, to be charged to his personal account. This large donation, unexpected at that late day, gave the movement new vigor and encouragement. When the Walsh check was quietly shown, two or three other large contributions were made, and the fund quickly finished. Then, as before, John Walsh said: 'Mind, no publicity; just call it a friend of McKinley's.'"

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt is erecting tenements for tuberculosis people in the Seventy-seventh street and East River district in New York. They can only accommodate 328 people, but will serve as an object lesson for others who may take an interest in the work of helping the unfortunates. Over 10,000 consumptives died in New York last year, and over 28,000 remain uncared for in their tenement-houses.

A Long-Distance Business Man.

New York's champion long distance commuter is president of a big corporation in the city. He lives in an up-state town, which is almost four hours distant from New York. Every morning he gets the 7 o'clock express for New York. He takes his breakfast on board and reads the morning papers. At 9 o'clock his stenographer gets on the train, and comes to his seat in the Pullman, which he reserves by the year. She lives at a town only two hours away from New York. He dictates to her from 9 to 11 o'clock, and then they reach the office. There he goes through the usual routine while the stenographer transcribes her notes. At 3 o'clock they leave the office again, and from 3 o'clock to 5 he dictates to her. She gets off at her village and writes and mails the dictated letters that night, unless they are of such character that her employer wishes to look them over and sign them himself.

At 6 o'clock he sits down to a good dinner in the dining car, which has been ordered for him by his wife the day before. The car superintendent has purchased any articles he may not have in the larder during the day in New York. At 7 o'clock he steps down from the train, having dined well, and has the entire evening to dispose of at home as he wishes.

And you couldn't coax him to live in New York and save that eight hours a day of travel. He declares he actually saves time, because he isn't bothered by fool friends.—[Omaha Bee.

On Saturday afternoon, February 5 the Batchelder Craft Shop, Pasadena, will hold an informal reception and exhibition. The Craft Shop is at No. 225 Arroyo Drive, at the end of the California-street car

Gossip of Interesting People.

Gotham Society Backs Nebraska Girl With Voice.

Mary Lasalle.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Miss Mary Lasalle, a young singer from Beatrice, Neb., who has found influential friends among society women of New York who will send her abroad to study for grand opera, submitted to her first interview at the pretty home of John Centanini and his wife, Mme. Jane Noria, of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

"There is nothing remarkable about my early life," said Miss Lasalle. "My parents are dead. We lived in Beatrice, where the wind blows all the time and where the jackrabbit, the coyote and the wheat fields thrive. I sang in the village choir and my voice was then spoken of as one of the 'best in town.'

"Six years ago, when I was 14 years old, even the village blacksmith told me I should get a musical education. That sounded good, but I might have as well dreamed of wearing a pretty dress made out of summer clouds. Three years ago I saved a little money, went to Chicago and sang with a small opera company for a time.

"I was almost at my wit's end. I had to earn a living to keep both myself and my voice from going hungry.

"I made application to Henry W. Savage and obtained a position to understudy Miss Louise Gunning in the prima donna role in 'Tom Jones.' But that did not last long, and I came to New York, went to the offices of Charles Dillingham and was engaged to replace Miss Catherine Hutchinson in the prima donna role of 'The Hoyden,' in which Miss Elsie Janis was starring.

"I sang one night for Riccardo Martin of the Metropolitan Opera Company. He told me that I would waste time if I remained in Chicago, and that if I would come East he would see that I met the men and women who could give me a start toward a grand opera career.

"Mme. Noria (God bless her!) heard of me, sent for me to come to New York, and—well, you know the rest. I sang one night at the home of a Metropolitan Opera Company director and I have been singing ever since."

HEREABOUTS.

"MONTANA knows no greater city in the West than Los Angeles," said Charles E. Virden, president of the Merchants' Association of Butte, yesterday. He has been passing a few days at the Van Nuys. "The enterprise of the local business people in securing an event like that of Aviation Week has raised them high in the estimation of merchants throughout the United States," he continued. "It shows that they are wide-awake and willing to advertise. Particular comment was caused by the fact that Los Angeles slipped in ahead of New York, Chicago, and other big cities of the East in securing the aviators for their exhibitions." In addition to his delight in the city, Virden spoke enthusiastically of the manner in which the State has dealt with race-track gambling. "The problem of horse racing in Montana became acute, and the big business men all realized that it was essential to cut out the sport or regulate it so that it would be carried on in a decent fashion, and would not result in emptying the pockets of the population of the State. As soon as the racing men saw that the legislators of Montana were going after the problem, and intended to throw the game out entirely, they offered a counter proposition, which eventually ended in the present regulation of racing, allowing two-week meets and no longer in any county, unless the county passes individual ordinance against it." Virden is proprietor of a large wholesale grocery house.

News of the success of tobacco culture in Southern California has been rapidly disseminated, with the result that a number of extensive planters from various parts of the country are among the arrivals at the hotels, attracted here by a desire to see for themselves what is being done. T. G. Thompson, a planter from Florida, with home and offices at Tampa, has been passing a few weeks at the Van Nuys. "Realizing that the climate of California and Florida are nearly alike," said he, "we have frequently wondered in the South why efforts to grow tobacco had never been successfully carried out. From observations I have made in the past week, I should say that tobacco should in the near future become one of the most prolific crops of the southern part of the State. The income from this crop is much larger than is to be derived from hay and grain, better even than orchards of fruit, deciduous or citrus, for the reason that each year the crop can be harvested from the first year of planting right along."

The manager of one of the best-known tourist hotels in the West, Charles A. Brant of Grand Cañon, Ariz., is spending his annual vacation at the Alexandria. As head of the El Tovar Hotel, he has met many of the prominent people of the United States, who at one time or another desire to see the greatest scenic wonder of their own country. His reminiscences are very pleasing, and as a result he is always surrounded by a coterie of friends in the lobby of the hotel. For a fact, when asking for him at the desk, the clerk usually informs the seeker to pick out the man in the middle of a group seated or standing in some part of the foyer. Another well-known hotel man at the Alexandria is J. Lake, manager of the fashionable Vendome Hotel of San José, who is down on a recreation period.

Just where the money of the United States is held is a frequent subject for discussion among monetary men. William Hubers, a State bank commissioner of Iowa, who is registered from Davenport, at the Hollenbeck, can readily explain where some of the cash might be found. "Prosperity of the farmer has filled the vaults of every bank in Iowa, and the same is true of the other great grain States of the Middle West. Ten years ago, the farmers were practically penniless, dependent on each succeeding crop to help pay off the mortgages on the farm, or buy a little more land to bring the farm to a good size. That period of development has long ago passed, and we are now in the period of the farmer's affluence. The bank deposits of Iowa have increased more than 500 per cent. in five years. The farmers are not stay-at-homes, but may be found in all parts of the country during the winter months, when there is little to do at home, enjoying the fruits of their earnings. They are, indeed, a prosperous people."

H. Hirschberg, president of the Independent National Bank of Independence, Or., has been a guest at the Angelus during the past week. He is also at the head of the Independence-Monmouth Railroad, a short line in Oregon, tapping some very rich land, which through the railroad has been rapidly opened, and like most of the land in Oregon, is proving an agriculturists' paradise. Mr. Hirschberg is a man of many interests. He owns property in Los Angeles, and will leave here in a few days for Mexico, where he has interests in a number of mines and also small railroad properties. "It is the small railroads which join the big trunk lines, which should receive a good share of the credit for the increasing growth of the West," said he yesterday. "These lines are affording the farmer an opportunity of getting his crops to market, of enjoying the privileges of the man who is closely connected with the larger cities, by the fact that mail service is bettered with the coming of the roads."

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

JUDGE KENESAW M. LANDIS wants to be the Alpha and Omega of fine imposers. He has just mulcted an individual prisoner 1 cent. This is about one three-billionth part of the Standard Oil Company's sockdolager.

William Schaus, a son and namesake of the founder of the famous art galleries on Fifth avenue, New York, has recently presented to the government of the United States, through the Smithsonian Institution, a collection of about 200,000 butterflies and moths. He is now engaged with J. D. Barnes, his assistant, an Englishman, in classifying and installing them in the National Museum. It is the largest and most complete collection of its kind in the world, representing more than fifty different species. There are about 1000 new varieties from French Guiana alone; a thousand more, also entirely new, from Costa Rica, and a still larger number from Colombia, which Mr. Schaus says is more prolific than any other field.

Col. A. George Bullock of Worcester, son of Gov. Alexander H. Bullock, has resigned the presidency of the State Mutual Life Insurance Company of Worcester, Mass. Col. Bullock had been for twenty-seven years in that harness, and will continue to be a director of the company.

L. A. Young, a merchant of St. Paul, owns what is said to be the largest collection of matters pertaining to Balzac in existence. He has devoted his spare time for the past fifteen years to a still hunt among the dealers of New York, London and Paris for matters that had been printed in English, and to pictures illustrating the scenes or personages referred to by Balzac, or pictures to which he makes reference. The basis of the collection is the fifty-three-volume edition of the author's letters that have been published, including his love letters, magazine articles on the novelist and illustrations from old editions, the whole large enough to fill 200 volumes when the collection is ready to be bound. Altogether there are about 3000 portraits in the collection and the same number of other illustrations. It is said that the collection has so far cost Mr. Young almost $150,000.

Col. Charles Chaille-Long, soldier, lawyer, explorer, diplomat, and author, has been honored by the American Geographical Society, which has awarded him the Daly geographical medal for his services in Africa. The special work for which he was honored was the solution of the Nile-source problem. In 1874 Col. Chaille-Long explored the unknown Nile north of Urondogani, discovered Lake Ibrahim and supplied the final evidence needed to prove that the river issuing from Victoria Nyanza is the White Nile. Col. Chaille-Long served in the Civil War, later as chief of staff to Gen. Gordon in Egypt, and has been in the military and diplomatic service in several parts of the world. He now lives at Wilmington, Del.

Venerable Justice Harlan of the United States Supreme Court, at the conclusion of a lecture at George Washington University, one day last week, had a bad fall by accidentally stepping off the low platform, being precipitated down among the chairs of the classroom. "Everything is all right; no injury sustained," he assured members of the class who rushed forward to pick him up. He did not need their help, put on his overcoat and walked to the street car as briskly as when he came in.

John D. Rockefeller takes many precautions to prevent the forgery of his signature. For years he used to sign his own checks and letters. Now he does not write his name unless it is absolutely necessary, leaving the signing to his secretary. This is shown by the practice at his big Pocantico Hills estate. Mr. Rockefeller signs one draft which is sufficiently large to cover the running expenses of all departments for the month. This is then checked out as needed by the various superintendents.

POLITICIANS, STATESMEN.

EX-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has been elected president of the Harvard Alumni Association, succeeding Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University.

Gen. Edward S. Bragg of Wisconsin, who served many years in Congress, declares that the many outbreaks of rioting during strikes in this country show that the spirit of anarchy is gaining ground here. He thinks the government has done wrong in not stopping these riots, and predicts a bloody revolution or civil war if the mob spirit is allowed to grow in this way.

Mayor Kiser of Piqua, O., has appointed a woman clerk of the waterworks department, much to the indignation of a number of men who wanted the position. She has had ten years' experience in the office, and will have charge of all the business connected with it.

President Taft has reappointed Bill Sewall, President Roosevelt's friend and protégé, collector of customs in the district of Aroostook, Me., and Bill will continue his gumshoeing after illegal liquor sellers on the border line between Maine and New Brunswick.

Marvyn Scudder, who assisted Gov. Hughes in the insurance investigation, has been asked by Mayor Gaynor to be one of the two commissioners of accounts.

CHURCHMEN.

REV. HUGH M. BANNEN, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church of Rockford, Ill., was given an increase of $400 in salary at the recent annual meeting of the congregation. Rev. Mr. Bannen moved to amend the motion by making the increase only $100. The congregation was unanimously for the $400 increase, however, and he was obliged to submit. His salary will now be $2400 annually. He is credited with performing more marriage ceremonies than any other Rockford clergyman.

Rev. Watson Dana, 73 years old, of Ohio, has never raised his hat to a woman, and declares that he never will. "The Bible teaches us to uncover on entering the temple of the Most High," he said, "and this mark of respect I reserve for my God."

Bishop Charles Edward Cheney of Chicago, will celebrate next month the fiftieth anniversary of his installation as rector of Christ Church, and also his golden wedding. He went to Chicago in 1860 from the theological seminary at Alexandria, Va.

The Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, of New York, at a meeting of the congregation, unanimously called to its pastorate the Rev. John Henry Jowett, at present pastor of Carrs Lane Congregaional chapel, Birmingham, Eng., and offered him one of the highest salaries ever extended by a New York congregation to any man to become its pastor. Rev. Mr. Jowett nevertheless declined the offer, and told his congregation that he would remain with them.

EDUCATORS.

MR. HENRY VAN DYKE, Murray professor of English literature at Princeton University, has been elected an honorary fellow of the Royal Society of Literature of Great Britain. The only other American who has been thus honored is Joseph H. Choate.

Prof. David, who occupies the chair of geology in the University of Sydney, and who accompanied Sir Ernest Shackleton to the Antarctic, has been making some interesting remarks on his discoveries there. The fossil woods he had found showed that pine forests had nourished in the vicinity of the South Pole at a remote geological epoch. The coal seams he had discovered suggested the same conclusion. At that time there was more or less continuous land from Australia to the South Pole. The climate all over the world was at that period probably much milder than at present.

Miss Betsy B. Winslow of New Bedford, Mass., who began her thirty-fourth consecutive year as a member of the New Bedford school board recently, has a record career as a "suffragette," for she has not only served in public elective office longer than any other woman, but at each recurring election she has gone to the polls and cast her ballot for herself.

Dr. Charles Homer Haskins, dean of the Harvard University Graduate College, is one of four educators, whose names are under consideration for the position of president of the University of Minnesota.

After thirty-five years' service in one position at the University of Kansas, Prof. Ephraim Miller, head of the department of mathematics and astronomy, will retire and accept a Carnegie pension.

Albert Kamp of Alameda, whose researches into the life and customs of the prehistoric Indians has been carried on for more than fifty years, believes that the American Indians, especially the California aborigines, are descended from the ancient Egyptians. Kamp's chief foundation for his belief is the existence of the "throwingstick" among the California tribes living near the rivers of the State, which stick, he says, is the exact prototype of the throwing stick used by the ancient Egyptian fowlers in the delta of the Nile many centuries past.

OVER THE SEA.

PRINCE ALBERT of Morocco, said to be the most famous oceanographer living, has undertaken the office of peacemaker between France and Germany. His magnificent museum of oceanography will be opened this spring, and he intends to invite the German Emperor and President Fallieres to be present on that occasion, when he will endeavor to bring them together.

Princess Alice of Bourbon, youngest daughter of Don Carlos, a pretender to the throne of Spain, is visiting in this country, the guest of her brother-in-law, Luigi Ripamonti of New York, a prosperous manufacturer. She is married for the second time, her present husband being Lieut. Lino del Prete, a retired subaltern of Italian cavalry.

Capt. R. F. Scott has received word that the British government will advance £20,000 toward the expense of the British Antarctic expedition to the South Pole. Capt. Scott has resigned his position with the admiralty to supervise preparations for the expedition which is expected to start in August. Besides Capt. Scott, other members of the expedition will be Lieut. E. R. G. Evans, R.N., who will be second in command, a position which he also held in the relief expedition in the morning; Dr. Wilson, who, besides acting as chief of the scientific staff, will also be the zoölogist and artist; Mackintosh Bell, director of the Geological Survey of New Zealand, has also volunteered his services as one of the three geologists who it is anticipated will accompany the expedition; R. Simpson of the Indian survey department, will be the physicist.

ARMY AND NAVY MEN.

CAUT. F. J. KOESTNER, Fifth Cavalry, and Capt. Lucius R. Holbrook, have been ordered to Rock Island to superintend tests to be made there of improved equipment for foot soldiers, particular attention to be paid to ovens for baking bread which are adapted for field service.

Capt. F. A. Grant of the Quartermaster's Department has arrived at San Francisco from New York to take charge of the transport service. Last year Capt. Grant had charge of land and water transportation for the maneuvers at Boston, and has also had charge of the army transport service at Newport News.

First Lieut. Leo B. Dannemiller, Eleventh Infantry, has been placed on the retired list because of disability incident to the service.

Rear-Admiral Washburn Maynard, retired, has arrived at San Diego and will spend the winter in that city. During the Spanish War he commanded the gunboat Nashville. He was retired in 1902.

Promotions of colonels to brigadiers-general have been announced as follows: Col. Frederick K. Ward, Seventh Cavalry, vice H. M. Chittendon, to be retired February 1; Col. R. W. Hoyt, Twenty-fifth Infantry, vice Charles Morton, to be retired March 18, and Col. M. M. Macomb, Sixth Field Artillery, vice Albert L. Myer, to be retired November 14.

Brig.-Gen. Funston is expected to succeed Brig.-Gen. Charles Morton as commander of the Department of Missouri when the latter is retired in March. Gen. Funston is the ranking brigadier-general of the army.

Maj. Benjamin M. Harrod of New Orleans, who was a Confederate soldier, has accepted an invitation to deliver the next Memorial Day address at Harvard University.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

MRS. JACK GARDNER has done something within a fortnight to make her talked about, at least in Boston. She offered prizes to women in the crowded parts of that city who had the prettiest window boxes, and, needless to say, there was a great showing of pretty plants.

The first woman to preach in Hungary is Julia Vargha, whose sermons are reported most favorably in the Budapest papers. She is the daughter of a bishop and her sermons are delivered in Klausenburg.

Demetra Vaka (Mrs. Kerneth Brown,) author of "Haremlik," has been speaking on the life of Turkish women before various clubs in New York and Boston. She has been questioned several times in regard to her nationality, and each time has brought a more spirited reply—"I am a Greek, I was and I shall be Greek."

Dr. Emily H. Jones Barker recently resigned as resident physician at Wellesley College. Dr. Barker was appointed to this post in 1875 and was the last officer in academic service whose appointment dated back to the first year of the college. For more than twenty years she served as superintendent at Elliot College.

The first white child born in the site of Chicago, then Fort Dearborn, Mrs David D. Strock, is living at Grand Junction, Colo., at the age of 73 years. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs Francis Kessler, who had moved from Pennsylvania to Fort Dearborn, three years before their daughter Mary came.

Stony Wold Hall, Miss Blanche Potter's memorial to her sister, Miss Martha Potter, has been formally turned over to the Stony Wold Sanatorium of New York. This hall, with other buildings included in Miss Potter's gift, cost $75,000. Mrs. Walter Geer, a sister of the Misses Potter, has given an organ to the institution

A Screed.

To be earnest; to be strong;
To make light the way with song;
Slow to anger; quick to praise;
Walking steadfast through the days,
Firm of purpose, sure of soul,
Pressing onward to the goal,
Upright, even, undismayed,
Sure, serene and unafraid.

To be patient; to be kind;
To be purposeful, and find,
Sweetness all along the way;
Loath to judge, but firm to say
Truth with unrelenting tongue;
By no cavil veered or swung
From the right; and to endure
Hopeful, helpful, clean, and pure.

To be gentle; to forgive;
True to life and glad to live;
To be watchful and to be
Rich with boundless charity;
To be humble in success,
Strong of heart in bitterness,
Tender, gracious, thoughtful, good,
In our man-and-womanhood.

To be smiling; to be glad;
For the yesterdays we've had;
To be grateful all the way
For the beauties of today;
To be hopeful and to see
In the days that are to be
Bigger, better, broader things,
Robes of purple, crowns of kings.
—[N. D. Bismarck, in Collier's Weekly.

The Smile.

That set grimace we call a smile—
That queer contortion of the face—
'Tis said, has had its present place
In manners not so long a while.

Vienna made it first the style,
On meeting friends, those lines to trace—
That set grimace we call a smile—
That queer contortion of the face.

The Chinese, Arabs of the Nile,
Persians, and many a noble race,
In meeting, greet with serious grace;
We make—oh, custom senseless, vile—
That set grimace we call a smile—
That queer contortion of the face!
—[George Jay Smith, in Munsey's.

Wanted the Other Name.

"He is a cynic," said Senator Tillman of a politican antagonist. He mistrusts all things. He's as bad as the Chicago drummer.

"A Chicago drummer visited a prohibition State. A prohibitionist customer said to him proudly:

"'No, sir; the words whisky and beer are unknown in this town.'

"The drummer nodded and whispered:

"'I see. What does one ask for?'"—[Washington Star

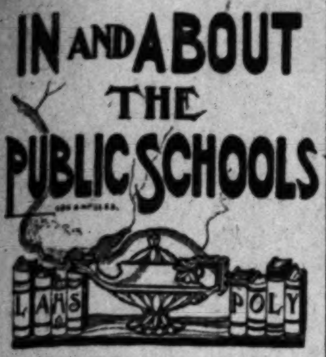
IN AND ABOUT THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS



Welcome, Hollywood, to the Los Angeles educational system! All know of the excellence of the Hollywood High School. We admired her from afar. Now we shall admire at closer range. And, as though donning festal array, to celebrate the great occasion of her union with Greater Los Angeles, an additional school blossoms as the result of the $100,000 bonds recently voted by Hollywood for the purpose of increasing her High School facilities. The bonds were sold on Thursday to a San Francisco firm, at a premium of $7763, making the fund to be expended $107,763. A new grammar school is also to be built, in the west end, at an expenditure of $20,384, exclusive of site and furniture.

Hollywood High School at present consists of the large cream brick building, constructed about four years ago, and the new gymnasium, at the rear of this, and in which at present the domestic science department is located. The grounds comprise a fine tract of 12½ acres, beautified with rare trees, shrubs and flowers, in keeping with the surrounding neighborhood. The near-by hills and views of distant snowy mountain ranges, make this a spot well calculated to inspire both teachers and pupils to good work. And Dr. Snyder, the principal, is full of enthusiasm for the school and for its improvements, and for education in general. Dr. Snyder is from Massachusetts, a Harvard man, having come to Los Angeles about a year ago. He has worked faithfully and intelligently upon the plans for the additions to the Hollywood High School knowing its needs as can only the person in charge of an institution. The present building is well planned, airy and light; but like every educational building around Los Angeles, it has outgrown the demands. In addition to the usual departments, the school has a well lighted shop, which will be more amply equipped from the fund to be expended soon; and domestic science quarters, which are to be still further enlarged. The commercial department is fitted up as for a regular banking business and is thoroughly practical. The art department, under Miss Goodwillie, occupies a real artist's nook, at the top of the building; and the work being done there is real artists' work. Little glimpses of hills and mountains, from high windows, help to arouse genius. The sewing department has very attractive quarters, over the gym, where the girls, under Miss Fordyce's teaching, are "building" mysterious garments and designing patterns, learning to fit, cut and make their own, and perhaps, other people's clothes. The gymnasium is good. It is roomy and well equipped. The main floor space is about 55x65, and well arranged lockers are located at each end of the building, for the girls and boys respectively. Large tennis courts and ball grounds are in use, and will be further extended under the new plans.

The new buildings, which will be in keeping in style with the present building, will contain some features unique and original. Altogether, the Hollywood High School, present and future, is an institution of which its creators and patrons may well be proud. The grade buildings are also of a beautiful style of architecture, and in keeping with their surroundings.

Welcome, Hollywood, and her fine school system! We feel a proper pride in her, and in our new relations to her.

Blue and White, the Los Angeles High School magazine, is a publication of which any institution might well be proud. From the clever cover design throughout the contents to the last page, the volume is extremely creditable. There is a wealth of portraits of the faculty and pupils, beginning with an excellent likeness of Prof. Housh. Even Mrs. Dorsey, who strongly objects to pictures of herself, could not refuse to allow her portrait here. The picture of the building and grounds, on Taft day, with all the beautiful decorations, comes out clearly, and the work from the art department, which is always full of character, is better than ever. Several prize stories, well written poems, and much clearly stated information regarding the school and its interests, makes the copy one worthy of preservation. A history of the finding and setting up of the fossils of Rancho La Brea, is most interesting; Mr Gilbert of the faculty and a number of enthusiastic High School students having taken a conspicuous part in the exploration and development of the La Brea fossil beds. Historically, the magazine contains great interest for any one who cares for matters educational. A sketch of self-government, as instituted and maintained by the Los Angeles High School, gives an excellent idea of this form of student body control. Sketches of the organizations of the school, including that of the Japanese students; and a strong figure drawing, personifying "Organizations," presents the student thought of the associations of the institution. Not only each individual article, sketch and department of the book is worthy, but the ensemble—paper, type and general make-up—is excellent, making a publication fit for a place upon any bookshelf.

An improvement in the grounds at the Los Angeles High School is progressing. A wide doorway is being cut to give access to the stage of the auditorium, serving the double purpose of facilitating the introduction of large pieces of scenery, and affording a convenient exit in case of fire. The new girls' gymnasium, which will be built with a part of the appropriation from the proceeds of the bonds, will occupy the south end of the present campus. It will be inclosed in a manner which will give perfect seclusion for the girls, and which will isolate them from the boys' quarters, as the present gymnasium will be retained for the use of the boys. One of the problems now confronting the management is whether or not to cut down the pretty group of pepper trees, which to a certain extent obstructs the playground, and will be still more in the way when the new gym is built. Conservation says retain the trees, and Los Angeles High School is strong for conservation. Reforestation says, however, that those trees grow very fast anyhow, and new ones planted in a less used spot will soon recover the loss sustained by the removal of the present group.

Monday evening next the debate between Los Angeles High School and Hollywood High School will take place at Hollywood. A special car will accommodate students and friends. The question is a large one: resolved that Congress should create a central national bank of the United States, with substantially such rights, privileges and powers as are now exercised and enjoyed by the Bank of England." The affirmative is taken by Hollywood. Oscar Werner and Harold Shepp represent Los Angeles upon the negative side. Miss Miriam Faddis, at the head of the department of expression, is training the debaters. Miss Faddis's quarters are very busy ones just now, as in addition to the usual work of the department, pupils are under training for debate and for the commencement affairs. Miss Inez Dunham has slightly altered the title of her paper for commencement, enlarging the subject to cover the question of "Regulations as to Child Labor."

Of special interest to this department, although enjoyed by the entire school, was the talk by Mr. Hanford, the actor, at assembly on Wednesday. "Lincoln's Literary Tastes" was his theme. He spoke of the great man's love for the soliloquy of King Claudius, which he considered superior to Hamlet's soliloquy. Mr. Hanford recited the selection and also two selections from "As You Like It."

"I wish to thank The Times," said Dr. Wilson, principal of the Olive-street High School "for the assistance rendered in our campaign against the stealing of school books. The publicity given the matter through the columns of the paper has been a decided help in wiping out the nuisance." Dr. Wilson has incorporated in the circular, which sets forth instructions to pupils as to scholarship, attendance, deportment, etc., rules for the prevention of the loss of books. It seems as though the adoption of these rules would assist other schools also. They are as follows: "Write your name, address, school and classroom plainly in ink in all your books. Place secret marks on certain pages by which you may identify your books in case of erasure of names. In case books change ownership, through exchange or sale, draw a line through the previous owner's name. Make no erasures in any case. Do not buy books in which names have been erased, from bookstores or individuals, as you may be harboring stolen property. Do not offer books for sale to bookstores without securing approval of the principal, who will stamp all books authorized for sale. Books left at school over night should be strapped and placed in lockers. The observation of these rules has practically stopped the theft of books in this school."

Prof. Francis addressed the Olive-street High School on Friday upon the subject of "Choosing an Occupation." Prof. Francis is always a welcome speaker, coming at once into accord with his audience.

Miss Helen Bosbyshell gave a series of four readings on Wednesday at assemby at Olive High.

Of the 450 outgoing pupils of the Olive-street High School the choice between Polytechnic and Los Angeles High School is about evenly distributed. An equal number of students will come in at the beginning of the term.

Closing exercises for Olive street will occur on February 4, when a musical and literary programme will be given, with Miss Grant in charge.

The architectural portion of the art department of Polytechnic, Mr. Winterburn, head, is in the limelight at present, owing to the fact that the plans so long dwelt upon, those of the new art and science buildings, are about coming into fruition. The boys under Mr. Faithful's guidance began about three years ago formulating tentative plans for what was needed in case of an appropriation, and later, when it looked as though the dream of a greater Polytechnic might be fulfilled, they went at the matter in earnest, and as a result, created a scheme of buildings, upon paper, which it would seem might meet every need for such an institution. Mr. Burnham, before his death, had experted and approved these plans, making few if any changes or suggestions. So, when the money for the bonds is expended, it will embody the work of these pupils and their teachers. Not only have the students furnished the plans, but much of the interior hardware will be designed by the pupils and made in the shops and foundry. The capacity of these establishments is not generally understood, it being the popular notion that the work done here is in miniature, but this is not so. It is an actual working factor, a money-saving one, for the school system.

The art department, which is under the same head as that of architecture, is doing some excellent work. In clay, Miss Teskey's pupils are modelling some beautiful designs and shapes in pottery; and when the new kiln is set the work will be completed right there. It is interesting to note the progress of a pupil in this work, from the first uncertain moulded shape through the varying degrees of imperfection up to the clear-cut, even form. All of the designs for pottery are first drawn by the student, whose eye and hand are thus cultivated, as well as his taste; the coloring and firing are the last touches. Many pretty and useful articles for the home are being "built" by the pupils.

Something new in school art work is the printing on blocks, of Japanese poster designs, under the supervision of Mrs. Burdick. Two colors are usually employed, and most effective pieces are created, with few lines. The Japanese students have become especially interested and proficient in this work, although few have every done such work. Possibly an illustration of heredity.

Useful and pretty work in leather and metals forms a part of the work under Miss Lowd's teaching. "It is our plan, whenever possible," said she, "to have the pupils make articles which can be completed here, without going outside for any part of the finish."

In the stenciling, Mrs. Burdick makes color as well as design an important study. Examples of harmony in shading are conspicuously beautiful.

The entire art department will be commodiously housed in the new building, and will have facilities which are much needed, as well as additional capacity for pupils.

Nominations for officers of the student body were made last week. For president of the associated student body, James Patten and Ralph Heyward; for members of the board of control, in charge of the finances, the following were nominated: Earl Henrichson, Ross Lewin, Walter Ham and Robert Thorburn. Election will take place next Monday by Australian ballot.

Commencement occurs next week, and the new term begins on February 7. The Junior Ionian gave "The Sleeping Car" on Thursday afternoon, under the management of Will Fairman and Miss Louise Dickson, instructor. Miss Constance Clark gave a solo, which elicited much favorable comment. This beautiful girl has a voice of great promise.

Prof. David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford, Jr., will give his famous lecture on "The Human Harvest," or "The Waste of War," under the auspices of the Southern California Peace Association, at Polytechnic, on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The lecture will be free.

Much interest is manifested by students and teachers throughout the city in the architectural exhibit held in the Hamburger building. No admission is charged, and a genuine missionary work is done in the way of showing good taste in this most essential branch of human activity. The rooms are open each day from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., and on Sunday from 3 o'clock to 8.

TRADE MARRIAGE.

MARRIAGE AS A TRADE. By Cicely Hamilton. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York. (Price $1.50.)

THERE are many ways of looking at marriage. To enumerate them would be unnecessary. To tell how I looked at it would be indiscreet. And while I believe in indiscretion as a most efficacious way of simulating innocence, this particular form of indiscretion would lead me only into difficulties.

Miss Hamilton has burdened her spinster soul on the subject, however, and it is with her viewpoint that I am interested at present. Her attitude toward marriage is not one of buoyant joy. Her nature takes on the qualities of vinegar when her thoughts run to conjugality. She sees in the hymeneal altar only the door to pain and suffering. A woman united to a man fills her with grief. She could weep long and copiously over the thoughts of the nuptial existence. And then she goes to work to point out the horrors of the double state. As an authoritative treatise on matrimony I prefer the music-hall comedian. Miss Hamilton is utterly unreliable. The picture she paints is illogical and absurd, and, so far as my purblind masculine eyes can see, without foundation.

Miss Hamilton looks at marriage from a strictly commercial standpoint. She assumes that there is only one trade open to women—that of marriage. (There is an implication, of course, of Mrs. Warren's trade, but only through silent suggestion.) Looking on matrimony as a trade, she finds it undesirable in all of its forms. The picture she paints will probably loosen the tear bungs in many of the unsophisticated and unreasoning. There is nothing in marriage for the woman—no romance, no poetry, no equality, nothing to delight or make her happy. She is a victim, a plaything of the man; a poor creature with her freedom gone, and, therefore, at the mercy of the male brute. She is the white slave of her employer. . . . All of which might be sad, if true.

For the sake of argument I am going to assume her hypothesis: that marriage is a trade. I do not intend to confess whether or not I agree with the assumption. I am merely going to look at it from Miss Hamilton's viewpoint. Let us see just what are its commercial advantages and disadvantages.

In the first place, let us focus upon the applicant looking for the position. A woman may use any kind of chicanery of which she is capable to swing the position her way. She may lie about her cooking and housekeeping abilities. She may pretend to much knowledge she does not possess. She is permitted any form of deception to obtain the position. After securing it, the employer has no redress. If he finds she has swindled and tricked him, can he (like the head of any other concern,) bring suit against the woman for being a fraud? Can he arrest her for obtaining money under false pretenses? Can he even discharge her for being incompetent? No. He must stand by his bargain. The woman may not know how to boil hot water or to sew on buttons, and she can draw full salary. In no way is her compensation regulated by her ability. Even if she is competent, she may simply curl up in the corner, refuse to work, and demand her salary—and get it. If the man refuses, she can call on the law. The law is particeps criminis to the whole marital swindle. It will see to it that the employer gets no justice.

And look at the salary! The employé gets half of everything the employer makes. If he tries to swindle her, again the law will see to it. And if, after employing a woman, the husband finds out that she is worthless, a shrew, a nuisance and an incompetent, he is not permitted to employ any one else to look after his domestic welfare. If he should attempt such a thing, the wife can have him thrown into jail. If he runs away, the police will chase him, bring him back and compel him (under penalty of State's prison) to turn over 50 per cent. or more of everything he makes for the rest of his life. Or, if he does other things to force his employé to get rid of him, to give her cause to go, he must pay a large and copious alimony to her the remainder of his days.

If, during this business arrangement of marrying, the employer should die, he is forced to leave her one-half of everything he has accumulated during the term of the swindle. Again, the law will see that she gets it.

Now, these are simply a few of the conditions possible in marriage when looked at from Miss Hamilton's standpoint. There is no other trade on earth with such advantages for the employé. She is at liberty to go at any time without harm or detriment to herself. It simply turns the world's venom on the man and the world's pity on her. If the man goes, the result is the same. He is a brute; she to be pitied. And then he must support her for life. Find me another trade like this, where every advantage is with the employed, where the law will connive at every turn to strip and squeeze the employer for the benefit of any incompetent and worthless employé that has obtained the position under false pretenses.

As I have said, there are many ways of looking at marriage. Miss Hamilton looks upon it as a trade. And as a trade, it seems to me to be a pretty soft snap.

We are not all, however, of Miss Hamilton's opinion.

A MODERN WOMAN.

THE ISLAND OF REGENERATION. By Cyrus Townsend Brady. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. (Price $1.50.)

KATHERINE BRENTON was a remarkable woman. Pray, don't take my word for it. Harken to the author: She had a gleaming figure "like an Olympian goddess." "She had studied anatomy." She was an author: "The world bought her book by the thousands, read it avidly, and regarded it as the last word of the last woman of the end of the age on the sex problem. Cleverly disguising her philosophy in the form of fiction, with one bound she leaped to the forefront." (Can it be that Rev. Brady knows Elinor Glynn?) She lectured and the halls were crowded. She was "at once so bold, so radical, so beautiful and so innocent." She was also a kind of sublimated suffragist, a "product of the highest education and a college graduate." She had received the illumination—the enlightenment of sex. She was strong for liberty—and practiced it. She and a wealthy man and a gasolene launch sailed the Pacific seas. (She set aside the petty conventions of the bourgeoisie.) But the gentleman with the money could not soar to her spiritual heights—the vulgarian! Imagine her shame and humiliation when he actually insisted on treating her as though she were his wife. Of course, this was insupportable. And when he drank too much, his domestic inclinations made the emancipated young lady fairly shudder. Was it a wonder that she should fracture his skull and sail away to a desert isle?

Upon this isle begin the real adventures—and the recountal thereof makes rich and racy reading. (The pictures, too, are wonderful affairs, and should not be placed in the hands of the young.) It is on this island that she finds a man-child who works wonders with her. He can't talk, is without sartorial adornment, is sore in need of a shave, and has a figure like the Apollo Belvidere. She looked him over appraisingly, and "concluded that the man was twenty-five, three years older than she at that moment, a proper difference in their ages for—her face flamed. She scarcely knew why, and she turned to the inspection of her rings." (I submit that this is strong language for a minister.) Then she becomes afraid, lassoes him, and binds him to a tree. Safe, she disrobes and ablutes in the sea. Her fears are ungrounded for he is a perfect gentleman. When he again appears to her he had had the modesty to encircle his middle with a palm-leaf girth.

Then the regeneration begins. The man makes a Christian out of the woman, and she "teaches him all she knows." The development of these conditions makes delicious reading. The book abounds in unconscious humor, and the love-scenes will make you chuckle with delight.

"UP THE GRADE."

UP THE GRADE. By David W. Edwards. C. M. Clark Publishing Company, Boston. (Price $1.50.)

BOOKS with morals do not make for light and bouyant reading There is something so deadly serious about morals. They are never amusing or diverting or entertaining. They are a kind of unpleasant necessity, like taking medicine and getting shaved. When I want relaxation I do not hie me to the apothecary's and partake of asafoetide. Nor do I seek out my tonsorial friends and have my chin mowed. When I want to read a book for pleasure I do not select "The Pilgrim's Progress," nor Sir Oliver Loge's "Science and Immortality."

Yet, we continue to combine pleasure and moral sermons for the young. A juvenile book that isn't a preachment masquerading as red-hot, genuine fiction is looked at askance. The young, unfortunately, cannot protect themselves. That which we have no use for ourselves we always give to negroes and children.

Still there are some juvenile books that have not overcome their preaching proclivities, which are very readable. Such a book is "Up the Grade." It is full of religious and ethical advice (Mr. Edwards is a descendant of Jonathan Edwards;) and there is far too much digression in order to moralize. But, as I have said, in spite of its apparent and unavoidable orthodoxy it has a wholesome and vigorous interest for the healthy boy who enjoys scraping and working hard for what he gets. Richard Williams, a first-rate admirable lad from the Badger State, is the central character, and Anne, who represents a certain type of conscientious trusting young woman, is next of importance. The story deals with William's struggle, with his final victory, and with the love for him which Anne holds even when appearances are against him.

A safe and interesting juvenile.

"BEYOND THE SKYLINE."

BEYOND THE SKYLINE. By Robert Aitken. B. W. Huebsch, New York. (Price $1.50.)

A BOOK, like "Beyond the Skyline," disarms the too critical reviewer. It is evidently unpretentious, making no claim to be more than it is; a collection of short stories and sketches—most of adventure in foreign lands. It is well printed, in large, legible type, on rough paper; and, unlike so many recent books, it does not require, on the part of the reader, the assimilative power of an elephant.

In fact, the book may be taken in sixteen doses of, say, fifteen or twenty minutes each, for it contains sixteen short stories, one different from another in locale, incidents and characters. One story takes place in Mexico; a second, in Brazil; a third, in South Africa; a fourth, in the isles of the sea (wherever they may be.) In one story lovers are happily reunited by a Mexican revolution; in another, an interloping millionaire is sent about his business—(Charming! Millionaires in modern fiction usually send other people about their business;) in a third, a negro dwarf sacrifices himself for the man who has befriended him.

There is enough plot, in short, to furnish forth a half-dozen novels and melodramas—not to speak of epics, high comedies, farces and other small meat of the quotidian fry. The characters are greatly varied, too, although the hero is usually a blond, blue-eyed Englishman, woh rides well, shoots well, damns the natives, and occasionally falls in love just as effectively. Yet the literary proposition that every young Englishman is a superman of capability seems to a skeptic (like myself) just as questionable as that every Irishman is a Bernard Shaw of wit.

The work of a master, whom "Beyond the Skyline" inevitably brings to mind, does not err in similar regards. In "Plain Tales From the Hills," Kipling's unflinching eye sees the failure and weaknesses of his characters, as well as their strength and success. What is more, he continually paints in background of the hills and valleys and rivers and jungles of India; and the teeming life is interesting as mere plot. But it is doubly interesting, as it seems to be a portion of a civilization with which the author is so familiar that he could have written a hundred more stories about it if he had so chosen. Mr. Aitken, on the other hand, seems to know one story about one place. It is this lack of background that one misses most in a book like "Beyond the Skyline."

Finally, as one must not forget the ladies, Mr. Aitken's heroines are just as bad as Mr. Rideout's. That is, they are too good to be true. One sighs for a Mrs. Hauksbee. Yet it is not strange that writers of adventurous stories should be unable to describe real women. Fine shades usually escape downright persons. Even Mrs. Hauksbee fared rather badly at the hands of Mr. Kipling. How could he be anything but a bit rough?

Comparisons in this case, however, are not only odious, but unfair. Not wishing to be either odious or unfair, I retire.

"ART OF LIFE" SERIES.

HUMAN EQUIPMENT. By Edward Howard Griggs. B. W. Huebsch, New York. (Price 50 cents.)

PRODUCT AND CLIMAX. By Simon N. Patten. B. W. Huebsch, New York. (Price 50 cents.)

MR. GRIGGS is widely and favorably known as a lecturer of note. We have learned to expect of him not keen research, nor originality of thought, but clear and convincing exposition of the research and inference of other men. Nor is this said in depreciation of Mr. Grigg's unique and valuable public service. Few men can hope to be intellectual leaders. Certainly, Mr. Griggs has aided powerfully in the diffusion of knowledge about the great poets and thinkers among thousands of people who might otherwise have been uninstructed.

The peculiar powers and limitations of Mr. Griggs are seen to advantage in the booklet, "Human Equipment." It is at all times marked with sincerity; its reasoning is generally acceptable, and its moral tone is unimpeachable. (Mr. Griggs is a red-hot moralist.) It is very likely true that the great American sin is extravagance, and probably just as true that the mere accumulation of material things does not exalt a nation. It is sound doctrine, I believe, that men should "hold wealth as obligation, and opportunity as duty." Yet, somehow, the ink-stained reviewer cannot think that America is going to the dogs, even though as a nation we are extravagant (when we have the money,) and not too selfish either with wealth or opportunity. That the race is morally sound is attested by the respected presence among us of thousands of leaders with whose voices Mr. Griggs is in complete harmony.

While I am at this kind of book (for which I have an inordinate antipathy) I might as well give Simon N. Patten his just dues.

"Product and Climax" is a sermon more than anything else—an earnest plea that men who are subjected to depression and degeneration should be given intenser motives; that the school and the library and the church should directly minister to their needs, instead of closing their doors at the time when they are most needed; that the "lives of the lowly" should be touched with that enthusiasm and courage and inspiration which together constitute "Climax," instead of being bowed down beneath the deadening burden of iteration in all things which goes to make "Production." Nobody but a Scotch-Irish Presbyterian could compose a pamphlet so fervid, and so religious.

PRISON REFORM.

CRIME AND CRIMINALS. By Griffith J. Griffith. Published by the Prison Reform League Publishing Company, Los Angeles.

"IF THE awful records given in 'Crime and Criminals' as facts are true, and if it is true, as you say, that newspaper reporters know them to be true, and have seen much that is even worse than anything chronicled in that book—have not the papers been remiss in their duty to the public in suppressing the facts?"

The speaker was a "reformer" of Los Angeles, a man who has been identified with every "reform" movement, political, social, and in a business way since "reforms" were started here. He was honestly shocked at the presentations in "Crime and Criminals" which I had requested him to read. I told him that every reporter of experience had seen many of the (to him) unbelievable things and knew of others fully as horrible. Then he burst out in his attack on the newspapers.

The truth is that this same man had been duly shocked at the same exposures when chronicled in the daily press, but some new fad arose and he forgot the lot of the poor prisoner in his all-absorbing crusade against machine politics, or his efforts to improve the civil service examination for the position of street sweeper. He could no more get himself down to practical reform than he could extricate himself from his smug holier-than-thou posing as a "reformer."

Newspapers have long harped on the outrages perpetrated in the name of the law, and the conditions that have made these outrages possible. Many good results have followed, not least of which are "Crime and Criminals" and the organization that publishes it. The day will come when the real reforms that are advocated in this volume will be realized; when the police will not have to be politicians to hold their positions; when a "reform" administration will not oust good police officials who are honestly striving to bring about real reform regardless of politics in order that some political henchman may have his share of political plums. The newspapers of the country are working toward that end, and the Prison Reform League is striving toward the same goal.

"Crime and Criminals" is a forceful presentation of the evils in American penology and the need of correction. It is not a classic, nor was it intended as such. It is a straight blow directed against what is generally admitted to be the blackest blot on the escutcheon of the United States. The book exposes outrages perpetrated by police and prison authorities that break the spirit of prisoners—the avowed object of brutal treatment accorded those who have transgressed the law or who have fallen under suspicion. It is an expression of the object of the Prison Reform League to develop the latent potentialities in wrongdoers. The system which is strongly attacked in this book has failed, insofar as released prisoners are rarely anything but a weight on the public neck. The hope of the league is evidently that these transgressors shall be changed into good citizens.

Los Angeles and California figure largely in the book furnishing many examples of wrongs committed by the authorities in the war against crime and criminals. The book is not socialistic or anarchistic—it is a rather mild portrayal of some of the evils of the present system. To newspapermen it presents nothing new; to the readers of newspapers it simply presents in one volume what has appeared piecemeal in the daily press. But it is well presented, and will give the public a comprehensive grasp of the horrors that tend to make criminals rather than reform them.

LITERARY CHIT-CHAT.

A good short story is a literary accomplishment, and when I see one (as I rarely do) I do not stint my praise. Julian Johnson, author of the play "Invasion," has written a good short story for the February Smart Set. Without crowding his structure, he has included in the "Soul of Sola," as much plot as is contained in the ordinary novel. By a few flat-brushed strokes and the use of high color he has set out several vivid differentiated characters, and in less than 6000 words has carried them to a climax of remarkable strength. By inversion, Mr. Johnson has proved my contention that a novel is generally a padded short story.

No arrangement has yet been made for the publication of such miscellaneous work by Swinburne as the poet may have left unpublished, although a paragraph by Clement Shorter, author of "Immortal Memories," in the literary columns of the Sphere, suggested that two volumes of miscellanies by Swinburne would soon be forthcoming. Various inquiries having been thereupon forthcoming, the poet's literary executor, Mr. Watts-Dunton, in a letter to Swinburne's publishers, makes denial of this news. "I have no idea at present," writes Mr. Watts-Dunton, "what I shall be able to do with regard to Swinburne's remains."

Justin Huntly McCarthy found in Chaucer the title for "The God of Love," his latest Harper novel, which tells a fictitious story of the love of Dante and Beatrice. To those conscious of the influence exerted by the Italian upon Chaucer, the choice is not without a certain poetic propriety. In "The Knight's Tale," Theseus, looking down upon Palamon and Arcite fighting in the garden, "spake these same words all on hight:"

"The god of love a benedicte,
How mighty and how grete a lord is he!
Again his might there gainen non obstacles,
He may be cleped a god for his miracles.
For he can maken at his owen giee
Of everich herete, as that him list deviac."

Henry James has said that he thinks the most interesting question in the world is that which asks, "Is there a life after death?" Recording himself thus, Mr. James adds: "I, myself, at least, in any case, find it increasingly assert its power to attach, and, if I may use the word so unjustly compromised by trivial application, to amuse." The sentences which follow are worthy to find their way into the midst of the memorable others which Mr. James has inscribed.

"It brings itself home to us thus in all sorts of ways that we are, even at our highest flights of personality, our furthest reachings out of the mind, of the very stuff of the abject actual, and that the sublimest idea we can form and the noblest hope and affection we can cherish are but flowers sprouting in that eminently and infinitely diggable soil. . . . It is to the personality! that the idea of renewed being attaches itself, and we see nothing so much written over the personalities of the world as that they are finite and precarious and insusceptible. . . . A renewal of being, we ask, for people who understand being, even here, where renewals, of sorts, are possible, that way, and that way, apparently, alone?—leaving us vainly to wonder, in presence of such obvious and offensive matter for decay and putrescence, what there is for renewal to take hold of, or what element may be supposed fine enough to create a claim for disengagement."

Women's efforts to adjust semi-public causes, such as the recent one of strikes are not always supported by their sex, particularly those members of it who are opponents of woman suffrage. Margaret Deland being one of the most distinguished as well as one of the most determined of these, her opinion of women's ideas on reform might be said to have a certain relish for everybody, including men. "Calculated to reduce the average suffragette to tears" was the way some one described a recent speech Mrs. Deland made in which this opinion was clearly expressed. Women, she declares, have a disregard for law which is appalling. They in effect make merry with it. Their ideas of reform are superficial and emotional and ill-considered. The abolition of the canteen is cited as an illustration by Mrs. Deland, who herself believes in the superiority of temperance over total abstinence. Women, she asserts further, are too prone to believe that they can alter human nature by legislation, and make people good by writing things down in the statute books.

The memory of Gen. Lew Wallace, whose "Ben-Hur" has never for a moment been displaced from its eminence in popular favor since first it was brought out nearly twenty-five years ago, has been further distinguished by the placing of a statue in the Capitol Hall of Fame in Washington. Present at the exercises that accompanied its unveiling by the author's grandson, Lew Wallace, Jr., were many representative citizens, the Governor of Indiana, who accepted the statue for the State, and James Whitcomb Riley, who read a specially-prepared poem. There was a notable reunion, too, of the Eleventh Indiana Volunteers, the general's old regiment. It was pointed out by certain veteran comrades that the representation of the general in uniform showed him bareheaded, whereas Gen. Wallace was always careful about wearing the hat; nor could some of them quite regard the statue as life-like with no headgear to be seen.

Among the authors who have again been returned to Parliament are C. F. G. Masterman, an under-secretary in the Cabinet. He is one of the big young men in present-day English politics. When his book, "In Peril of Change," was brought out a year or two ago by B. W. Huebsch, it attracted wide notice and unusual praise.

J. Keir Hardie is another reëlected member whose name is on many title pages. Of his books, "India—Impressions and Suggestions," lately issued here by B. W. Huebsch, has created the greatest general interest.

BOOK NOTES.

After publishing almost 100 books in the past year, A. C. McClurg & Co., enter 1910 with a strong spring list of twenty-five titles including half a dozen novels. Four of the stories deal with western themes, and a novel of American political life is also promised. Two of the earliest spring novels will be "Hopalong Cassidy," a story of the prairies by Clarence E. Mulford, author of "Bar 20," and "Dan Merrithew," a sea tale by Lawrence Perry. "The Cardinal's Pawn," a strong historical novel by a new writer, K. L. Montgomery, will be published in the firm's new series of 75-cent cloth books, the first of which, "The Woman and the Sword," was issued last summer. Among notable books other than fiction will be "Bygone Days in Chicago," a series of recollections of the "Garden City" in the 60's by Frederick F. Cook, and "In Closed Territory," by Edgar Beecher Bronson, a narrative of hunting in the closed lands of British East Africa, south and west of Nairobi, the same territory over which Col. Roosevelt is now hunting.

In good season for Lincoln's birthday, A. C. McClurg & Co., will publish a small volume from the pen of Hon. Isaac N. Philips, reporter for the Supreme Court of Illinois, which embodies an analysis of Lincoln's character in a distinctly original manner. The book will be issued in uniform style, with Col. Carr's "Lincoln at Gettysburg."

Edgar Beecher Bronson, the author of "In Closed Territory," which A. C. McClurg & Co. will publish this spring, was for seven months last year the guest of W. N. MacMillan at Juja, the same base from which Col. Roosevelt later hunted the same territory that Mr. Bronson covered. Mr. Bronson's adventures in big game hunting in this land, access to which is as a rule forbidden to all white men, were of an unusually exciting nature, and in this book they are told with marked narrative ability and the story will be the first detailed account of hunting in this territory.

In "The Autobiography of Henry M. Stanley," Lady Stanley contributes a good anecdote apropos of the discussion now raging in England on the fate of the House of Lords. She says: "John Bright frequently called on us on his way to the House of Commons. He seldom would take tea, preferring to pocket two or three lumps of sugar. One day, however, I handed him a very hot cup of tea; we were discussing the House of Lords, and I asked him: 'Now, Mr. Bright, what do we want with a House of Lords?' He made no reply, but carefully poured the hot tea into his saucer, to cool it. Impetuously I repeated my question, whereupon the great liberal statesman, smiling, gently tapped his finger on the saucer and said: 'This is the House of Lords.'"

The sale of Mr. Kipling's Jungle books has never been better than it is just now. A new edition of both "The Jungle Book" and "The Second Jungle Book" has recently been issued, printed on thin paper and in limp leather binding. These two popular books of Mr. Kipling's have been through the press forty-five times.

The Baker & Taylor Company announce new printing of the following books: "The Wistful Years," Roy Rolfe Gilson's new novel; "Longfellow's Country," by Helen A. Clarke; "God's Light on Dark Clouds," by Dr. Cuyler; "The Presbyterians," by Charles L. Thompson, D.D.; "George Muller of Bristol," by Rev. Arthur T. Pierson, and "The Art of Caricature," by Grant Wright.

By a singular coincidence two publishers lately lighted upon the same title for books very similar in contents. The Baker & Taylor Company announced in their January bulletin a compilation of verse by Temple Scott to be called, "In Praise of Gardens," and the Sturges & Walton Company, not having their attention called to this, he in the meantime sent out an announcement of a book by Mr. Bradley under the same title. The Sturgis & Walton Co. have, however, gracefully yielded the title, and the book published by The Baker & Taylor Company will be the only book issued this spring bearing the title "In Praise of Gardens."

The cooks of the Czar of Russia's household have a curious way of cheating their imperial employer at the expense of his guests. John W. Foster, in his "Diplomatic Memoirs," tells how he and the Spanish Minister were dining at the palace one day and the menu mysteriously disappeared after the first course. OUR EACH-AND-ALL GROUP—Sunshine Society—With The Young Folks

FROM THE PRESIDENT.

She Answers Many Queries in Her Chat—Each and All Society Matters.

Dear girls: Roxina's query comes first this week. Yes, it is of vital interest to know just what is the most essential thing to do in regard to obtaining pure food. I am answering your query simply from the standpoint of my own observation as a student of the "whys" and "wherefors" of the joys and ills of humanity. I consider the most essential bit of knowledge in regard to food is to know what you eat. This information must be obtained before the food enters the stomach. If, after the food enters the stomach there is an unpleasant aftermath in the mouth, or a distressing sensation in the stomach, that particular food or drink has no sympathetic relation with the body and it cannot be assimilated and is utterly worthless as a body builder.

One of the closest foods to human life is the egg. Cool water, grains and vegetables should constitute nearly 90 per cent. of the diet of laying hens. The beaten whites of vegetarian eggs in milk make perfect blood rapidly; the yolk should be cooked in boiling water until hard, then mashed and eaten with buttered bread; one egg served as above contains more nourishment than a half dozen soft boiled or fried. A vegetarian egg is laid by a hen who has had no meat fiber to eat in four weeks.

Pure milk is the next food, closest to human life. It can only be obtained where the sanitary conditions that control the supply are the best. Nearly a year ago, our Health Chapter was taught that eggs and milk were two exceptions to metabolism and cannot be classed as animal food. The egg being wholly separated from the activities of the organism in which it was formed and milk a mere food changed into a fluid in advance of being turned into blood, that is, (the first stage of nutrition after digestion and before it is turned into blood,) it is evident that milk as well as eggs cannot be classed as flesh foods, being entirely free from metabolism.

Milk absorbs poisons quickly, therefore sanitary conditions should prevail wherever this food, one of the greatest blessings, is used.

Eggs are the best of bone, muscle and blood builders, when procured under the best conditions and served in such manner as to supply the body with perfect food material, instead of supplying the palate with a morbid seduction. Wheat, and next rice, are the next best foods for humanity. Potatoes should never be eaten unless mealy when served, No foods should be disguised with sauces or relishes, if one wishes to attain long life. Know what you eat, and refrain from taking combinations of foods, such as sweet and sour reheated, and madeover foods should also be tabooed.

This question of pure food is a most pertinent one, this year, of distressing stomach ailments. I hope our girls will all enter the new Domestic Science Chapter, and take up the studies as outlined by Hilda.

"Ella C." wishes to know "if there is a business girls' directory in the Each and All Club. If not, it would be a good idea to start one. Each business girl to send in her business card and a directory then compiled and sent each member." Personally I think this a very good idea.

"Mary Belle" asks why people believe the foolish notion that birds devour insects and worms and help the farmer and the horticulturist, and says: "I want to speak right out, but suppose I'll be quashed. I like to hear the birds sing, but wherever birds fly there insects, worms and pests are on the increase. Birds eat many insects but do not prevent their increase. Birds carry typhoid germs to cows, and thus impregnate milk.

EACH AND ALL MOTTO.

Golden thoughts, golden deeds,
Rid life's garden of its weeds.

OUR PLEDGE.

"To make one another happy, to lighten one another's burdens, to share one another's cares, to be lifters, not leaners, to make the world a little sweeter place to live in, to be mutual encouragers, never discouragers of any one, to start songs, not complainings, and to do every day something beautiful, some kindness which will cheer and strengthen another."

"The excretions of birds are the only medium in which many small insects are bred, insects that carry the germs of disease wherever they go, therefore all bird life should be kept away from ponds and rivers that furnish water to mankind. The only remedy that is sure for preventing insects and other pests on trees is spraying. This is sure, as an hour's spraying would kill more eggs and offspring of insects than several thousand birds could eat in their lifetime." Mary Belle goes on to state that many fatal cases of diseases of children are traced to pet animals being allowed to run out-of-doors then in the home. Stray cats, dogs and other animals near homes are a menace to the health of the people. She asks if the Each and All Society cannot take a part in overcoming some of these things.

Another girl, Ida L., thinks our society should take up the cudgels of defense regarding marriage laws. She says a noble race of human beings should be the rule not the exception and that our lax marriage laws are caused by the apathy of the very people who best know that the law of the survival of the fittest should be in operation all the time. "The lowest third of humanity will be found to be fixed in criminal tendencies. They breed faster than the upper two-thirds as statistics show. The next generation they will number one-half. Where apathy rules nature revenges herself. Limitation of indiscriminate marriage should be voiced by every one who has the best interests of humanity at heart."

She asks the Each and All girls to inform themselves on this vital question.

"Altona" asks if any of the girls are interested in the planetary influences upon the earth, and if they believe in such things. There, Altona, if you know anything about it, do tell. The president is experimenting with the weeds in her back yard, pulling them up when the moon was in Gemini. But this planet was unkind enough to roll to some other part of the zodiacal path and she will have to wait until it is in Leo, or until a small boy with a liking for dimes and a mania for weed pulling comes to the rescue. In the meantime, she finds a lovely excuse for resting while the moon gets ready to roll into the proper sign for weeding.

It is one thing to know, Altona, belief and experimentation are different. It is decidedly convenient for lazy people to have a belief which lays all the responsibility of their many shortcomings upon something or someone else, upon some influence that beams from the moon or some far-away planet. Still the fact remains that each individual can accomplish more good for herself and others when her work is actuated from her own initiative, when she recognizes her own particular problem and solves it by the aid of good common sense. Not that I disbelieve in planetary influences for all of God's beautiful creation has an influence upon the unfolding of character. We are glad, Altona, you have the habit of study, it is an excellent habit; work and play are both good habits, to balance the habit of study.

"Rhetta W." writes that she would like to take up the course of study that Hilda offers and asks for a membership card.

"Mrs. H. S. C." writes: "As you vouch for Madame Canada, I am glad to help a fellow-country woman by adding my mite to the fund for bringing her to California, where you seem to think she will be much better off. Certainly some of the conditions of life will be easier for her and her little family." Two dollars was inclosed with this letter.

"A mother and daughter" send $1.50 from Alhambra, and write, "It is a pleasure to help one who is so worthy and deserving. Hope you will succeed in your great effort. Sucess to you always in your wonderful work."

The fund for Madame Canada is growing slowly. A little over one-fourth of the amount is in sight. The names and addresses of the donors are on file and if the amount cannot be secured the donation of each one will be returned. If we cannot help her to come here, it is not because we did not try. Those who are most interested in her are financially unable at present to advance the necessary amount. It will take at least $200, of which a little more than $50 is now at hand. What is done must be done quickly as the little widow with her three little girls will soon be homeless. She is living in an isolated place in New Brunswick. The long illness and subsequent death of her husband and child has impoverished her. With no work to be had and with herself and three young children to maintain, the outlook is discouraging even though she only wants the privilege of working for her dear ones. When she reaches here, she will have work and wil refund the amount sent her as soon as she can earn it. Will you each who read this help us to help her? If you send a money order make it payable to Mrs. Emily Daniels, address the envelope to the president, Each and All Society, care of Mrs. Mitchell, No. 345 Clay street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Now, Altona, if there's anything in the influence of the moon on human affairs, this appeal ought to bring in the rest of the Madame Canada fund, for the moon is in Cancer and you wrote that sign was the most productive, or does it relate only to what you plant in the ground? When you read this, the moon will be in Libra, according to your almanac sign. I know if we cannot raise that money for Madame Canada, it will be a very difficult thing for her to care for her children with no influence of work, or moneyed friends nearby. Our little local society is too far away to help her very much at such long range. If she and her children were here it would be an easy matter as we have a position she can fill waiting for her here.

Help us to help Madame Canada.
Lovingly,

PRESIDENT ARIEL.

FOR THE AUTHOR GIRLS.

Plan of Work Further Outlined—Interesting Programmes Will Be Feature of Meetings.

Marguerite Winnifred writes a second part of her letter, published last week, in which she further outlines the plan of work and programme for meetings of the Would-be Authors.

The first of these poetical readings will be, "O Lyric Master," from John G. Neihardt's volume of verse, "Man Song," just issued, and will be given as typical of the heart cry of the world of today to have its ideals understood. Several illustrative readings of poems which idealize common, humdrum things will be given. One of these will be Robert Louis Stevenson's pretty tripping verses, "From a Railway Carriage," that make a monotonous trip on the cars seem like a fairy's dream. Another poem will be, "In the Furnace City," from Charles Hanson Towne's recent volume of verse, "Manhattan," a passionate protest against the sufferings endured in modern sities by "God's pallid poor."

At later meetings interpretive readings will be given also from poets whose works are acknowledged classics, such as Milton, Wordsworth and Browning, one standard poet will be considered at each meeting.

Sarah Haggard Payne, the well-known and beloved composer of sacred songs, who has kindly consented to prepare a series of lessons on song composition for the Author Girls, and to aid them in every way she can by suggestions and criticisms, will, if she finds it possible to come in at night from her beach home, give one or two of her original songs, both words and music of which have been composed by her, the one, "My Song Boat," a bright little melody, being particularly appropriate to the writer girls,

Whose young hearts "in joyous rhyme
Beat to heaven's mystic time,
Golden every note."

And the other number, "Dear Heart, Take Heart," a song tenderly breathing courage, being a favorite with the Each and All girls.

In the study of the drama of today, readings will be given from portions of the love scenes of Israel Zangwill's "Melting Pot," and that of Joseph Medill Patterson, "The Fourth Estate." These two plays are prominently before the public at the present time and widely discussed by the critics; the readings will be concluded by a few verses from the English version of Schiller's "Joan of Arc," presented some months ago at Harvard Stadium, before an audience of 16,000 people by Maude Adams. She gave the play a higher, a more spirituelle interpretation than had any preceding actress. The thought that will be brought out in these readings will be contemporary playwrights' and actors' readiness to exalt right and duty above even the highest of pure passions—love—and the question will be put, "Are we, the people, willing for our playwrights and actors to give us the highest conceptions of life?"

At other meetings, probably only one contemporary playwright will be discussed in an evening, several of his plays being taken up together. If possible some consideration will be given, each time hereafter, also to some earlier dramatist whose plays have lived through the years.

Following the three readings from contemporary plays, and carrying out the thought of love, Miss Eleanor Strong, the talented young composer whose work in music is a constant inspiration to the author girls, is being asked to give "Doris," a love song, the melody of which was composed by Miss Strong and the words by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Strong.

Miss Scott, one of our new young girl members, whose fresh interest will add to the enthusiasm in the chapter's work, has been invited to select some author's essays or sketches to review. She has promised to read a paper on "The Attic Philosopher," a classic deserving the acquaintance and appreciation of every one who reads.

Usually the essay and sketch study will be divided into a consideration of one noted, present-day writer and one standard author of the past.

Ethel Carolyne Wiles, the little 11-year-old poetess of the chapter, will read some new, original verses written by her little brothers and sisters.

Several vocal and instrumental selections, the choice of which has been left to those who will render them, will be interspersed through the readings and papers on the programme.

Later on, it is hoped, papers of a general nature on some phase of music and art, or some musician or artist, can be arranged for, to add to the breadth of the glimpses of artistic expression which the programmes aim to give.

It had been hoped that time could be found at each meeting for a discussion of some topic of general interest, not entirely unrelated to the esthetic arts. For January the subject assigned was, "The Influence of the Play—How Great is it? To What Extent is it Good? To What Extent is it Bad?" "Mona" has prepared an earnest paper on the topic; one of the charter members of the evening chapter has written at some length upon the question; all members were urged to bring in a few paragraphs giving their views, or clippings from magazines to which they have added their own opinions. As much time as can be spared will be given to open discussion; papers on this topic will be turned over to the Each and All department for publication of those of greatest interest and merit.

While the aim of this Saturday evening programme, as of all the programmes given in connection with the Readers' and Writers' study work, will be primarily to give to the members a broader and more artistic appreciation of standard and current literature, the chapter will endeavor to make the programme also of general interest to every one, and inspirational to all as must be everything that carries out the Each and All spirit. The stiffness of a formal programme evening will be dispensed with so that the gathering may not lose the congenial, personal touch which distinguishes the Each and All Society and which gives it the warmest spot in the hearts of its members.

The study work for the first half hour, from 7:30 to 8 o'clock, covers a rather large number of points on word study, sentence structure, style, feature work, dramatic study, song writing, prosidy, verse forms, measures and their effect, figures of speech, studies in emotional effects and other composition topics, the study work having originally been prepared by different members and the chairman, for the afternoon chapter, which has two hours for discussion. Such part of the matter as time will permit, and as the members most wish to take up, will be considered.

Mrs. Runyan will try each month to give a good general criticism of one manuscript for each member, and will give her opinion of several sketches at the coming meeting. In the case of a long manuscript, or one needing more than a general glance, Mrs. Runyan may wish to take it home, where she can look it over carefully, and then report upon it at the following meeting.

The Growth of Sunshine Work in Alhambra—Where to Send Good Cheer.

State headquarters with the State organizer and president of the Los Angeles Branch, Mrs. William Wallace McLeod, No. 403 South Garfield avenue, Alhambra, Cal.

Los Angeles headquarters for donations, with Mrs. H. B. McKinney, No. 2303 Budlong avenue.

Monthly meetings on the first Thursday, at 2:30 p.m., with Mrs. Grace Geldreich, No. 438 Westlake avenue.

MOTTO.

"Have you had a kindness shown?
Pass it on!
'Twas not given for you alone—
Pass it on!
Let it travel down the years,
Let it wipe another's tears,
'Till in heaven the deed appears—
Pass it on!

"Sunshine" is taking the hearts of the young girls of Alhambra by storm. "The Alhambra Happiness Branch," organized some four months ago, is composed of girls from 12 to 16. They have worked with great enthusiasm along "Sunshine" lines, and already their influence is felt. For the next few weeks their special work will be the making of scrap-books for the children in the South Pasadena Children's Home, and crib quilts for the Children's Hospital of Los Angeles.

The other day, Rev. Francis Lawson ("Father Lawson," as he is lovingly called by every one in Alhambra,) had his 85th birthday. "The Happiness Branch" gave him the surprise of a call, presented him with a great bunch of fragrant violets and a note wishing him joy and happiness in the year to come. "Father Lawson" was delighted with the call, and gave the girls a splendid talk on the essentials for a well-spent life.

The young president of the branch, Bertha McKay, is ill with the measles, but her room is kept bright with flowers.

Mrs. John Wilferth, director of the Alhambra Happiness Branch, is planning a Washington's Birthday celebration for the Boys' Brigade of Alhambra. There will be a supper, followed by a patriotic programme given by the boys, who will be assisted by some of the best talent in town.

Thursday afternoon, Mrs. McLeod, Sunshine organizer for California, and Mrs. Cleone D. Bergren, former vice-president of Minnesota Sunshine Branch, met at the home of Prof. Hornby of Alhambra, and assisted Mrs. Hornby to organize another branch of Sunshine, among girls from 16 to 20 years of age. Of this branch Mrs. Hornby will be the director. The name of the branch, and the officers, will be announced next week.

Mrs. Bergren, who possesses a beautiful voice, will organize the girls of both branches into a Sunshine Glee Club, and train them to sing Sunshine songs. It will be their purpose to provide entertainment for the sick and for the "shut-ins," and "pass on" bright music where its influence will help to cheer the lives of lonely ones. The girls expect to receive great benefit themselves from the work.

The executive board of the Los Angeles Branch will meet hereafter on the third Wednesday of each month at 10:30 a.m., with Mrs. James Fox, No. 2801 La Salle.

The organizer has received a letter from an experienced kindergarten teacher in Massachusetts, asking her to help the writer secure a position to teach somewhere in Southern California. The references given are from a kindergarten training teacher, a superintendent of schools, and a well-known minister. Any reader of The Times who has the influence to help this eastern teacher secure a position can obtain her name, address, and references from Mrs. McLeod.

Miss Virginia Johns, assistant corresponding secretary of the Los Angeles Branch, entertained delightfully lately in the ballroom of "The Kaiser," on South Grand avenue, in honor of her sister, Mrs. R. Hitchcock of Vancouver. The room was beautifully decorated with violets and ferns, and the guests were the chairmen of the Sunshine committees. Whist was played, the prizes—a handsome Indian basket and a piece of Indian pottery—being awarded Mrs. G. H. MacGinnis and Mrs. Herbert C. Stone. At the conclusion of the games, a buffet luncheon was enjoyed.

The members of the Hospitality Committee of the Los Angeles Branch spent a pleasant afternoon on Monday with Mrs. McLeod, at her Alhambra home. The party was a courtesy extended the committee, to show the president's appreciation of the Christmas surprise party given her by the members, at which she was presented with a beautiful hand-painted fruit dish.

Up in Petaluma is a "Sunshiner" who is trying in every way to make money to get her back straightened. Left over from her Christmas sale she has three corset covers, a scarf, and some collars, which she will sell at a very reasonable price. Won't some reader of The Times purchase the same? It will be a real charity. Her name can be obtained from the president.

Dolly Moore of Horseshoe, N. C., is a crippled child for whom the Sunshiners secured a wheel-chair. She is 9 years old, but has never walked, and sadly needs cheer. Won't the children who read this write her and send her cards and paper dolls?

Miss Nellie Epps of Blandlake, Tex., is an invalid girl who would like to hear from Sunshiners. She will gladly answer any letter that contains a stamp.

"How nature smiles on me everywhere,
How bright the sunshine, the fields how fair;
A thousand blossoms on budding sprays,
A thousand voices on woodland ways."

The Artistic Girl.

The present-day girl of artistic tendencies has a hundred opportunities for success, where her mother had perhaps a fighting chance.

Her mother, of average advantages, may have worked out her art sense in cross stitch embroidery on toilet mats and slippers. But the girl of today may attend art schools and obtain good technical training without leaving home.

Photography and the new methods of illustrating books, magazines and newspapers have not only been factors in the expansion of art among the masses, but also present vast opportunity for art workers.

Illustration has proved a remunerative field for the woman artist, and in her competition with men she has the advantages of patient industry and facility.

Etching metal work, the various arts and crafts, enameling and designing, offer rich possibilities for the woman artist. Many women are earning good salaries in the studios of Tiffany and LeFarge.

Poster designing is another commercial branch of art which is remunerative and not beneath the attention of some of the best artists.

But women are in nowise relegated to the minor phases of art work. Their ability and place in the highest forms of art are firmly established and the large proportion of medals and honors each year conferred upon women give evidence of their achievements.

In a contention for the recognition of the work of the cause no longer cites alone the fame of Rosa Bonheur. Notwithstanding the illustrious Bonheur takes rank as the world's famous painter of animals, and was considered one of the greatest women of her century, it is no sacrilege to mention in the same breath the work of contemporary women artists in other branches of design today.

First, a girl must have talent. Then she must learn to draw properly. After that all depends upon her industry and artistic sense.

Staying Youthful.

Whatever your age may be, begin now to think of yourself as in the dawn of new developments. Say to yourself many times a day that you possess more vital power, more mental force, more magnetism and charm than ever before in your life. Say also that you are better loved and more fully appreciated for all your virtues and charms than ever before, and that your ability to give and receive happiness is unlimited. Then use moments which you have been accustomed to idle away or to employ in melancholy thought in improving yourself. Let this improvement be three-fold, until body and mind and spirit all radiate new brilliancy.

Give your mind new thoughts. Give your spirit new aspirations, and feed your brain with some new purpose. Keep up whatever accomplishments you possess; cultivate new ones. Begin at 40, 50 or 60, even, to study languages and music and art. And instead of continually thinking about advancing age, think about increasing qualities and charms; instead of worrying over added years, rejoice over added occupations and means of enjoyment. Encourage the young to seek your society. Amuse and interest them, and this can only be done by keeping in sympathy with their ideas.

If you find your thoughts running along the line of criticism and disparaging comparisons of the young people of the day, with those of your own morning time, keep your ideas to yourself. Do not utter them.

Babies and School Children—Striking Pictures and Points Here and There.

A DISOBEDIENT ACT.

How Gracie and Maybelle Got Into Trouble Through It—Repentance the Sequel.

BY HELEN DAVIS.

Gracie's mamma had gone shopping, and Gracie was entertaining her little friend, Maybelle, in the sitting-room. Outside it was raining and Gracie's mamma had forbidden the little girls to go out of the house during her absence. "You may play in the sitting-room or in the big attic room," she had said to Gracie, as she was departing. "But do not go in the parlor or library."

After Gracie's mamma had been gone about an hour the little girls grew tired of playing with their dolls and engaging in house games, and wished they might find some other amusement. "Oh, let's look at pictures in books," said Maybelle. "Where is that great big book with all those pictures of queer animals and birds? It will be great fun to look at that."

"Oh, that book?" asked Gracie. "Why, it's in the library, and mamma told me not to go into the parlor or library, you know. Otherwise, I'd go and get that book, for I love to look at the pictures in it."

Maybelle hung her under lip, saying: "I think it mean that we cannot have that book to look through. It wouldn't do any harm to go into the library just for a book, and to come right out again. Your mamma said we should not go in there to play."

Gracie thought it over and decided that perhaps it would be all right to go into the library to get a book, so said to Maybelle: "Well, we'll run into the library and find that book; but we'll not stop in there a minute." Gracie had never disobeyed her mamma in the slightest thing, and felt that it was just a bit disobedient to go into the library at all, even for just a minute. But Maybelle, her dearest friend, wanted the book, so Gracie felt almost bound to get it for her.

The two little girls went into the library, and while Gracie was down on her knees looking on the lower shelves of a big bookcase for the desired volume, Maybelle climbed upon a stool, which stood against the writing desk, that she might examine a print which hung on the wall over the desk. As she leaned over to look at the picture she lost her balance and fell against the writing desk, upsetting a bottle of ink. Gracie was on her feet instantly, and helped Maybelle to the floor. And then her eyes fell on the mischief that had been done by the meddlesome Maybelle. There on the fine Persian rug—which her parents had bought in Europe while traveling there the year before—was a great pool of black ink, the broken ink bottle lying beside it.

"Oh, what shall I do?" chied Gracie. "I never should have come into the library. Mamma told me not to do so."

Then she ran and got a towel and pan of water and tried mopping up the ink, but her trouble only exaggerated the size of the stain. Then Maybelle had an idea. "Set the stool over it, Gracie, and it will not show," she said. Gracie acted upon Maybelle's advice, and placed the heavy oak stool over the ink stain. Sure enough, it hid the spot. For a moment Gracie felt guilty, and was about to remove the stool from over the stain when the [illegible] door bell rang. Running into the hall, she saw through the glass door one of her mamma's friends. "Oh, it is Mrs. Bright," she said to the inquiring Maybelle. Run, take the towel and basin of water out of the library and I'll answer the door, for Nancy is busy in the kitchen making preserves, and mamma told me to answer the door during her absence."

Then Gracie opened the door to Mrs. Bright, who, on learning of the absence of Gracie's mamma, said she would not come in. Gracie took her card, bowed very prettily to her as she said good-by, and returned to the sitting-room to Maybelle. "Say, Gracie, why do you tell your mamma anything about upsetting the ink?" Maybelle asked. "She'll never see the spot—under the stool."

At first Gracie resented Maybelle's wicked suggestion, declaring she could not think of lying to her mamma about anything. "But that won't be lying," protested Maybelle, "for you won't be saying anything at all about it."

And so the seed of deception was sown and took root in Gracie's mind, and by the time her mother came home she had fully determined not to say a word about the accident to the library rug. So the evening wore away, and supper was over, and still Gracie kept the burden on her mind. Then 8 o'clock arrived and her mamma took her to her little room to put her to bed. Gracie, in nightie, knelt at her mamma's knee to say her good-night prayer, but after the first few words a lump grew in her throat and her guilty conscience was too much for her to bear. "Oh, mamma, I have been so very wicked today," she burst out with. "I cannot say my prayer till I have confessed to you something Maybelle and I did this afternoon while you were downtown shopping." Then Gracie poured out the whole truth, her head in her mother's lap.

After she had finished, her mother took her in her arms, kissing her and saying: "Dear child, see how hard it is to keep a load of deception on the heart. And you see how a second wrong does not cure a first wrong, but enlarges it, adding to the burden of the conscience. It was naughty of you to go into the library after I had told you not to do so, but it would have been doubly wicked for you to have withheld the truth about the ink stain on the rug from me. But now I know you have repented of your wrongdoing, and by confessing the truth to me you have wiped out the sin. And tomorrow we must talk seriously to Maybelle, showing her the error of her part in helping along the deception. And now, is your mind easy enough to go on with your prayers and to ask God to forgive you? for I have done so, my child."

LeRoy S. Burt,
a six-months-old automobile enthusiast.

A Remarkable Baby.

The picture of the chubby baby in automobile goggles reproduced today is that of LeRoy S. Burt, the 6-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Burt of No. 1813 West Twelfth street. This baby has been in an automobile every day of his young life; indeed, his daily ride is as necessary to his existence as his daily nap. When only twenty-one hours old, this youngster was taken for a six-mile ride; he has already ridden more than 5000 miles during the six months of his life. When he was five weeks old the baby accompanied his parents on a camping trip to Camp Baldy, remaining in camp three days, while there he spent much of the time in his little hammock, swung in a tree, while he cooed and laughed to the birds. His next trip was taken when he was just two weeks older; this was a hunting trip to Elsinore, where the party remained four days. While out on this trip the baby slept in the hay.

Baby LeRoy has practically lived out of doors all day since his birth; at night he sleeps near a large, open window. He has never had a sick day or taken a drop of medicine or had an ache or pain of any kind in his life. He is a chubby, happy little fellow, with rosy cheeks; he inherits his love and enthusiasm for automobiles from his papa.

How Money Is Lost.

Over half a million dollars in paper money is destroyed in a year in this country. Many complaints come to the Treasury Department concerning destroyed money from persons who think that the country should make good their losses. It is reported that one woman wrote a few days ago to the department, stating that she had dropped a $20 bill in a meat chopper, and that it had been ground to pieces. A larger quantity of greenbacks is eaten up each year by rats, who find the hiding places. One case is reported of a robin flying through a window and then flying out again with a $100 bill in its mouth. Enough of this greenback was found in the robin's nest afterward to warrant its redemption.

Fishes Who Remember.

Experiments recently made at Tortugas show that fishes have the faculty of remembering for at least twenty-four hours, according to an article in Harper's Weekly. The fish studied at Tortugas are gray perch, whose favorite food is the little silver sardine. The experimenters painted some of the silver sardines light red; then they offered them to the gray perch mixed with the unpainted sardines. The perch snatched the silver sardines and ate them, then very deliberately and cautiously they nibbled at the painted sardines. Finding that the fish were the same, whether red or silver, they devoured the red fish.

Having given proof of their intelligence, they were permitted to rest twenty-four hours. The experimenters offered them silver sardines, sardines painted red and sardines painted blue. The perch quickly devoured the silver fish, then without an instant's hesitation they devoured the red fish. Finally, gliding cautiously up to the blue fish, they took a bite and darted away. As the taste was favorable they returned to the blue fish, nibbled again, and devoured them.

The experimenters then tied sea thistles to the blue sardines. The perch nibbled, then, disagreeably surprised, darted away. For twenty-four hours not a fish approached the painted blue fishes. They remembered the sea thistles. But their memory is short; the day following again they snatched the blue fish.

FOR LADS AND LASSIES.

A Little Lesson in Table Manners. Points That Are Easily Remembered.

BY MARTA GOLDEN.

Very often at dinner have I noticed young men and women, supposedly well bred, grasping their knives and forks as they would weapons of defense. Old habits are indeed hard to break, and if children were taught the proper handling of table articles they would be spared many mortifying mistakes in after years.

The knife is held in the right hand and the forefinger should rest on the upper part of the blade. The fork is held in the left hand when used in preparing food, with its tines turned downward, forming a bowl in the middle. When conveying food to the palate it is held in the right hand with the position reversed, with the tines turned upward, and it is raised to the mouth gently and gracefully. Used for this purpose the fork is held between the thumb and forefinger as near to the end of the handle as possible and never should the fingers touch the tines.

Children are sometimes permitted to dip their bread in gravy and eat it with their fingers, but this is not permited at the table of refined people. A small piece of bread may be broken into the gravy and then should be eaten with a fork. Then, too, I have seen children butter a whole slice of bread and take bites from it, just as a pickaninny plunges his face into a huge slice of watermelon. Bread should be broken and each piece buttered as it is eaten. Biscuits and muffins should never be cut with a knife, but are broken open with the fingers. The lips should be closed while masticating food. Mouths opened unduly wide in eating cannot be excused even in little folks.

In passing the plate back for a second helping, the knife and fork should be placed on the right side of the plate with their handles together. Placing them on the table soils the cloth and gives a most untidy appearance. The only thing allowed to be placed on the tablecloth is bread. When bread is passed it should be taken from the plate with the fingers.

It is unpardonable to reach across the table for a piece of bread with your fork. I believe whales are harpooned in this manner. Bread and rolls are never cut, but broken with the fingers.

If asked to pass the dish, hand it carefully, but do not shove dishes along the table.

Well-bred children will not pack food on the back of the fork, nor will they take too much food on the fork, and be compelled to take more than one bite of it.

Even a little child can learn to smother a sneeze at the table; the trick is done by putting the finger to the upper lip and pressing hard. I have heard children speak of "loving" food. Love is not a power of food, but of the soul. We love people, but food we like or relish. I have also heard folks speak of "drinking soup," and then others say, "eating soup." "Taking soup" is the proper expression.

Spoons are used to stir the sugar and cream with tea and coffee. They are then placed in the saucer, not left in the cup.

After taking a sip of any beverage during a meal, one end of the napkin should always be used to wipe the lips.

Picking the teeth is a duty of the toilet and is not permissible in a refined dining-room. Some people pick their teeth at the table, using the napkin as a covering. This only attracts more attention and emphasizes the ill-bred action.

Wise Little Helpers.

We have all heard of the millions of little microbes that can find standing room on the point of a pin and which thrive in the water. Many of us have seen pictures of them and have heard all about the good and bad things they do in their short lives. But there is another class of minute living things, the bacteria of the soil, which we are far less familiar with, and of which we are just beginning to learn.

These soil bacteria, although very small, are very useful. Indeed they are so small that they cannot be discovered even with the aid of a microscope. They are busy little beings living in colonies like the bees and building houses for themselves. They build their houses on the branching roots of plants deep under the ground and in these houses they store nitrogen, just as the bees store honey in their hives. Nitrogen is two-thirds of the air we breathe, and is so necessary to the existence of living things that nothing in plant or animal life can exist without it. Farmers buy chemicals containing nitrogen because it is plant food, and feed it to the soil. It is only of very late years that the farmers have discovered that the little soil microbe is doing this thing for them in certain plants, such as clover, peas and beans.

Can You Guess 'Em?

Fourteen buried cities, European and American, are hidden in this story. See if you can find them.

Very few families have had as good a time on their vacation as did Papa and Mamma Brown, Baby Brown, Big Brother Brown, Big Sister Brown and little Sister Brown. In the first place, when the Browns got aboard the big ocean liner which was to take them to the other side, the first thing they all did was to buy the ship post cards to mail to their friends on shore. Big Sister Brown got the first post card and wrote on it: "Boat we sail on. Do not forget to write every day." This post card she intended for her best girl chum.

"Don't say 'sail,'" said Big Brother, who was looking over her shoulder. "This is a steamboat."

"Will papa rise early enough for breakfast without an alarm clock, I wonder?" questioned Mamma Brown, coming up just in time to prevent a dispute. "I meant to bring our clock and forgot all about it, and you know he is such a heavy sleeper."

"Speaking of sleeping," said Big Sister, pointing over toward the rail, where, already stretched out on a steamer chair, lay little Sister Brown, whose name was Isabel, fast asleep, as if she were in her own bed at home.

"Only on shipboard have I ever been able to sleep more than eight hours out of the twenty-four," remarked Papa Brown, whereat everybody shouted with laughter, for it was well known that Papa Brown would have overslept himself every morning if it hadn't been for the family alarm clock.

When they landed in England a tall man, looking something like a hussar, a toga of bright yellow cloth wrapped around him, was at the custom house to look over their trunks. He announced that he would be obliged to turn all the contents out on the floor in order to go over them thoroughly. A very decided rebuff alone prevented him from carrying out this programme.

"Isn't it royal, though, in the way it's fixed up," said Big Brother Brown, who had very little respect for anything. "I never have seen such beautiful clothes before."

"Mercy! Don't speak so loud, Charles," remonstrated Mamma Brown. "He'll hear you, and it will make him very angry to have you referring to him as 'it.'"

Charles, toning down his voice a little in order that the customs guard might not hear him, began to take an oral inventory of his attire from his boots to his cloak for the amusement of the younger Brown fry.

"Come; that's over," said Papa Brown, "and now let's get away from here as soon as possible; it's the kind of a mob I least like."

So the Browns made their way out of the custom house and were at last free to see Europe as they liked.

When it was all over and they were on their way home they decided that the things they had liked best were in a cave, nicely lined with rock crystals, in Switzerland; a bear's den, very popular with all children who visit the Alps, and a mad ride over the mountainside in a motor car. At every new port, however, they found something to enjoy; the girls played jacks on the steps of a French chateau, and Big Brother taught the little foreign children they met to play baseball, so that they had quite a good nine in places where they stopped a long time. Altogether they had a beautiful time, but, after all, they were glad to get back home and start in to go to school again.

Queen Alexandra has put a stop to the stories that she wears aigrettes by an official statement that she does not, and this is enough to make it a matter of discourtesy for any one else to wear the feathers of the osprey in her presence.

A SUNDAY SERIAL OF UNBROKEN INTEREST.

By J. B. Harris-Burland.

[Copyright, [illegible], by J. B. Harris-Burland.]

"I do not know how long I shall be away," he answered, "but it will be for some time—long enough for me to learn to control myself."

"I cannot live here alone. What will my father think? What will other people think?"

Tankerlane smiled. "I know you well enough, Laura," he replied, "to know that you care little for the opinion of others. As for your father, tell him the truth. He will understand and be silent. As for your neighbors—well, lots of men go away to shoot big game and stay away for a very long time."

"Are you not afraid of me? It will be a great temptation for me."

"No," he answered proudly. "I am not afraid. I believe you to be a good woman."

"But you must return some day."

"Oh, yes; I shall return. I shall forget you, and then I shall return."

A week afterward Sir William Tankerlane left the home of his forefathers to shoot lions in Central Africa. He had settled up all his business affairs, given his final instructions to his agent, and had booked his passage. The carriage was waiting at the door and his luggage had already been forwarded to Southampton. It only remained to say good-by to Lady Tankerlane.

He found her in the morning room, which looked out across the park towards Laverstone. From the window the spire of the little church could be seen through the leafless trees.

"I'm just off," he said carelessly, as though he were going up to town for a week.

She did not speak. She was standing by the window, and the spire of the church seemed to sway a little as she looked at it.

"Good-by, Laura," he said in a low voice. "Much may happen before we meet again. But before I go I want your forgiveness for all the wrong I have done you."

She was silent, and still looked out of the window at the church among the trees.

"You will not miss me," he continued; "on the contrary, you will be well rid of me. But I should like you to try to think that I am not altogether bad and that I have chiefly sinned because I loved you."

Still she did not answer, but the thin line of the spire quivered like a reed in the wind.

"I have fixed up everything for you. I know that while I am away you will not be worried with any unpleasant business. I should also like to know that you are thinking of me with kindness."

She did not reply, but he came over to her side and looked across the park.

"The only link between us," he said in a low voice, "is broken. Our child—I have often thought that if he had lived he might have brought us together. But he lies yonder. He is silent; he cannot speak for me. Yet, perhaps, when you think of him you will speak less harshly of his father."

She turned to him with a white face and held out her hands.

"Good-by," she said; "I forgive you, as I hope that God will forgive me."

"Thank you," he said simply, as he raised her hand to his lips. "That is all I ask—just your forgiveness."

He dropped her hand and left the room without another word.

And Laura Tankerlane still gazed out across the trees and tried to remember a single word of love that she had ever spoken to this man.

But in after years she was glad to think that she had forgiven him, not only with her lips but with her heart.

CHAPTER XI.

THE CANEWDON CASTLE.

"You want a change," said Dr. Hardy, as he sat in the library at Black Hall and looked at Shil's white, drawn face and trembling hands. "You must get out of this place at once. The air of these marshlands is not good for a man like you. I should advise a sea voyage."

"A change of scene, eh?" Shil replied grimly. "You forget."

"No, a change of air, my dear fellow. After all, there is nothing to see out in the ocean, and a blind man is as well off as any one else. Go out to the Cape and back. It will do you a world of good. Take your secretary and occupy your mind with light literature. This sort of thing," and he picked up one of Max Nordau's works, "is enough to kill any man. Read something more cheerful than Nordau."

"I admit that he is unsatisfying," said Shil. "Well, I'll try a change of air, doctor. This place is stifling all the life out of me. I can hardly breathe. I think I'd rather like to hear the swish of the waves, though I heard too much of them once."

And that very night Mr. Martin, the secretary, booked a deck cabin on the Canewdon Castle, which left for Capetown in a fortnight. John Shil realized the value of the doctor's advice. His health was breaking down under the strain. He required a change of air, and life on board ship would be tolerable. It did not matter to him where the ship was bound for. If she were to drop anchor off the Needles, he would derive just as much benefit from the voyage. There would at any rate be the sound of voices round him, and the cheerful bustle of life.

Nothing indeed could be more dreary than the lonely months at Black Hall. The eternal darkness was beginning to prey upon his mind, and he was faced with the awful prospect of madness. As Leonore had foretold, he was strong at first, but he had grown weaker day by day. The idea of suicide was becoming more and more definite in his mind. The immorality of the act was scarcely perceptible in his own case. He was helpless and useless, a mere burden on society. Life has no place for derelicts. They should be destroyed and sunk deep in the sea of death.

And self-destruction was so easy. More than once he had fumbled his way to the desk which held a loaded revolver, and had taken the weapon in his hand. He had only to place the muzzle to his temple, pull the trigger, and lo! there would be an end to all the darkness and all the pain. No magician's wand was more wonderful than that slender tube of steel.

Yet he had hesitated. He had not been afraid of death, but afraid of what his death might mean to Laura Tankerlane. Each time he had seen her face in the darkness, and her eyes and lips had pleaded to him.

"Well," he said to himself as Dr. Hardy left the room, "here is the last chance. I will see if a change of life is likely to do me good. If it does not, I shall know what to expect. I shall go mad and kill myself."

A fortnight later the Canewdon Castle steamed slowly down Southampton Water, and swung westward on her journey to the Cape.

John Shil stood on deck with Mr. Martin by his side. He looked toward the shore, and though sea and land were both alike to him, he felt the same emotion that comes to every one on board an outward-bound ship. In his mind's eye he could see the land fading into the distance, and the broad stretch of water before him. He could hear the throb of the engines, and realized that every stroke of the piston took him farther from home. He could even hear the flutter of waving handkerchiefs, and the last cries of those on shore, and then he heard the sob of a woman, going, perhaps, to spend her life in a land where she would never see her loved ones again.

He himself had nothing to leave, save darkness, but the sense of parting on board a liner is magnetic, and even the loneliest soul throbs at the touch of it.

Then suddenly he heard a voice that he knew—just a few words to a cabin stewart about some luggage.

He did not turn round, or speak, or even move. But his hands gripped the iron rail as though he would tear it from the deck.

It was the voice Sir William Tankerlane.

Tankerlane was not aware of Shil's presence on the ship until she was two days out from Southampton. Head winds and a rough sea in the Channel soon sent him to his cabin in the throes of seasickness, and for forty-eight hours he did not leave his bunk. Then he happened to peruse the list of passengers and saw the name of Mr. John Shil.

His first impulse was to remain out of sight in his cabin, and then he remembered that Shil could not see him, and he resolved to merely keep out of the blind man's way. He had only to be silent when his enemy was near to him, and all would be well. He did not know that Shil had already heard his voice. It was, indeed, a most unfortunate circumstance which had brought them together on the same steamer. But there could be no violent scene between them if they did not meet. Tankerlane was not afraid of a blind and helpless man, but he knew that long months of loneliness and gloom might have driven John Shil to the verge of madness.

Shil, on the other hand, was well aware that Tankerlane was on board, and the circumstance did not make for that peace of mind which was one of the main objects of his voyage.

"Martin," he said to his secretary, when they were alone in their cabin, "there is a passenger on this ship whom I know, for I heard his voice. His name is Sir William Tankerlane. I want you to find out whether his wife is on board, where he is going to, and all about him. You must do this without attracting comment. Get into conversation with him, if possible, but do so at once, before he finds out that you have any connection with me."

The faithful Martin, although he was nothing of a detective, accomplished his task, and Shil learnt that Sir William Tankerlane was going to Africa to shoot big game, and that Lady Tankerlane was not on board.

These two simple facts provided ample food for thought, and John Shil, who had left Black Hall to seek distraction from his thoughts of the woman who was lost to him, was compelled, by cruel chance, to think of her from morning to night. He wondered what had happened. Perhaps Laura had left her husband for good and all. Perhaps she had gone down to Essex. At any rate, they had parted, and probably for a long time.

He turned these thoughts over in the darkness, and they tormented his mind, till he almost resolved to send for Sir William Tankerlane and ask for the truth. But he was able to control himself in this hour of uncertainty, and he kept silence. He knew that Tankerlane must be aware of his presence on the boat, and that the man was purposely avoiding him. The voyage would only last three weeks. It would be better that he and Tankerlane should not meet. He could find out all he wanted to know when he returned to England.

And so, every day, the two men passed each other on the deck; and Tankerlane showed no signs of recognition, and Shil did not even know that his enemy was near to him, for he had told Martin never to mention the man's name again, and Tankerlane's voice never came to him out of the chatter and laughter of the passengers.

Yet each man was tortured by a knowledge of the other's presence, and Tankerlane shrank from the very sight of the man whom Laura loved. And John Shil lived in a hell of suspicion and uncertainty. Every footstep and every laugh might mean the approach of Tankerlane. He detected the presence of the man in every sound, in the scent of every cigar. The whole atmosphere of the ship seemed foul and loathsome, and even the salt breath of the sea choked him. There would be no pure air on the Canewdon Castle till the vessel reached Cape Town.

And all the time the great ship plowed her way southward, inexorable as fate, and as regardless of the loves and hatreds of the passengers as the circling of the earth itself. Her huge iron hull and her gigantic engines took no account of the small black ants which clustered between her decks. Southward and ever southward she drove through the calm seas—between long furrows of foam, the embodiment of all the life that human skill and labor can fashion out of dead steel and iron—a thing almost with a soul, and with moods of her own, as many a sailor could have testified.

The weather was glorious, and even Tankerlane would have enjoyed the passage under happier circumstances. Smooth seas and blue skies and soft breezes combined to make the voyage delightful to a crowd of laughing and flirting passengers. There were no dangers ahead, no rocks, no sandbanks, no narrow channels; nothing but the broad, deep sea, safe and smooth as a high road.

Yet there was death lurking in those safe and peaceful waters, a death that comes neither on the wings of the storm nor in the snarl of waves, nor in the threatening overhang of dark crags and boiling surf, but a death that lies silent, unmarked and unseen.

Two months previously the Thora, on outward-bound ship of 2000 tons, had been overtaken by a storm, had become water-logged, and had been deserted by her crew. She had carried a cargo of timber and iron rails, and whereas the iron tried to sink her, the timber just kept her afloat, and she lay in the sea, without masts, and with the water just awash of her deck—as solid as a rock and as nasty a thing as any vessel could expect to meet in the darkness.

CHAPTER XLI.

THE DERELICT.

"Please go to Sir William Tankerlane," said Shil to his secretary, "and tell him that I should like the honor of his company in my stateroom after dinner for a smoke and a chat."

Mr. Martin left the large deck cabin, and when he had closed the door, Shil rose from his chair to call him back. But he did not move forward or cry out, and after a moment's hesitation he resumed his seat.

For several days he had been contemplating the possibility of this interview, and had finally decided that it would be desirable if he could only control himself in Tankerlane's presence. He felt that he could not endure the suspense any longer. His health was breaking down under the strain, and so far the voyage had done him more harm than good. He did not trouble himself about Tankerlane's plans; but he wished to know what had happened to Laura. She might have left him for good and all; or she might even be dead.

No harm could come from such an interview so long as he could control himself. But it was the uncertainty of this that had impelled him to rise from his chair to recall his secretary. Then he had conquered his weakness, and resolved to see the thing through. It was, of course, possible that Sir William Tankerlane would refuse to meet him.

In a few minutes, however, Martin returned with a message from Tankerlane, saying that the latter would be delighted to accept the invitation.

John Shil dined, as was his custom, in his cabin, which was large, and fitted up as a sitting-room, and an hour after he had finished his meal, there was a knock at the door, and Sir William Tankerlane entered.

Mr. Martin at once left the room, to carry on an interesting flirtation with a young lady who was going out to the Cape to get married to the manager of a mine on the Rand.

"Please sit down," said Shil, politely, "and help yourself to a drink and a cigar."

"Thank you," Tankerlane replied stiffly, as he took a seat on the sofa which was subsequently to be converted into a bed. "Can I hand you a cigar?"

"No, thanks. I have given up smoking. It gives no pleasure to the blind."

"I have heard so. Very curious fact that. It shows that the pleasure of smoking is rather imaginary, does it not?"

"I heard your voice the other day," said Shil, after a long pause, "and I thought I'd like to have a word with you."

Tankerlane did not answer. He was studying Shil's face, and noting the terrible marks of pain and sorrow in every feature of it.

"I have been very ill," Shil continued, "and am taking this voyage for my health. So far, I'm sorry to say, it has not done me much good."

"I'm sorry to hear that. You don't look well."

"I wished to see you," Shil exclaimed suddenly, "because of Lady Tankerlane. I want to know how she is. You can be quite frank with me. I and Laura are never likely to meet again."

Tankerlane's face darkened with passion, and then, as he saw this wreck of a strong man before him, he felt ashamed of his thoughts.

"Laura is quite well, thank you," he replied. "She is very busy with her poor, and her schools, and cottage hospitals. By the bye, I could not allow her to make use of that gift of yours. It was kind of you, but you will understand that it was impossible for her to accept it, even to give it to others. I have allowed her more than its equivalent to use as she pleases."

"I'm glad to hear it," said Shil quietly. "I only wished her to take it, because I thought you couldn't spare it. When I was agent to the estates, there was little to spare for charity."

"There is plenty now. My father entertained a lot, and spent a deal of money in keeping up a great house in London. We do not entertain at all."

Shil was silent.

"This meeting is curious," said Tankerlane, breaking the silence with the first remark that came into his head. "We last met o nthe sea. Rather a different craft this, eh, to the Hope and Glory of Gorehaven?"

"Yes," replied Shil with a faint smile, "a bit safer in a rough sea. She wouldn't ever rock in the Darkwater."

"Yet you are unfortunate in your cruises," Tankerlane continued. "I was not pleased to see you on board. Some sailors would call you a Jonah."

Shil laughed harshly.

"There are Jonahs on land as well as on sea," he said bitterly. "There are some men who wreck the lives of all with whom they come in contact—" He paused, for he was speaking of Tankerlane, and he remembered that he had to control his feelings.

"I am one of them," he added, hastily, "but I fancy the Canewdon Castle is too large to feel my influence, I am only like an ant in her colony of passengers."

"It is a calm, dark night," replied Tankerlane, "and the sea is as smooth as glass. The barometer is high, and we shall be in Table Bay in five days. I don't think, Shil, that you will be able to wreck—"

His speech was broken by a shock which sent him spinning from the sofa to the floor. John Shil went flying from his chair, and everything seemed to fall at once from the walls in a shower of broken glass and scattered raiment.

Tankerlane sprang to his feet and made for the door across a floor that sloped upwards. Then he looked back and saw Shil on his knees, groping with his hands for something to catch hold of. He rushed to his side, and, raising him to his feet, placed his hands on a brass rail.

"Stay there," he cried; "I'll see what's happened."

John Shil clung to the rail with his hands, and stared wildly into the darkness. He was helpless as a child. Through the open port hole he could hear a voice yelling out those words which mark the last moments of a ship:

"The women and children! The women and children!"

Tankerlane rushed out on to the deck and found a struggling mob of people, who seemed to pour from all sides, and even drop down, from the velvety darkness overhead. Lights flashed and men shouted orders.

Then one of the crew came flying past, and Tankerlane caught him by the arm.

"What is it?" said Tankerlane.

"Derelict—seventy foot of sheathing ripped up. Let go, damn you! There are women to be saved."

"There is a man in here who is blind and helpless as a woman. Can you get him into a boat? I'll give you a hundred pounds."

"Your money be damned," yelled the man; "money won't save you and I; she'll settle in five minutes. She is ripped to pieces."

"He is helpless," cried Tankerlane; but the man tore himself from the iron grasp.

Tankerlane looked for one moment at the black mob struggling in the light of a few oil lamps, and then he rushed back to the deck cabin. John Shil was still grasping the brass rail with his hands.

"Ship's going down," cried Tankerlane; "they're getting the women and children into the boats. Here, quick, I'll look after you."

He gripped his enemy by the arm, and dragged him out on to the deck.

The sailors had done their work smartly, but only half of the boats had been launched. Those that were full were being taken as far from the ship as possible. The others were picking up the people who kept dropping over the side into the water. It was quite evident that not half of the passengers would be saved.

PETITE.

ALICE LLOYD A PRETTY VETERAN.

LITTLE STAR IS DISAPPOINTED OVER MATINEE AUDIENCE.

Prize from the English Halls Asserts She Was Original Julian Eltinge Booster—Distinguished Record of William H. Crane, Reliable Frohman Prize Winner.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

Diminutive Alice Lloyd, notwithstanding the baby way she wears upon her songs, and the artlessness of her smile, and the sparkle of her eyes, is a veteran of vaudeville. Whatever's to be known about the 'alls, from the London Palace to the Orpheum right here in Los Angeles—she knows. And whatever salary stardom holds is hers likewise, you can bet.

In San Francisco they made a great fuss over her. Here her night audiences have warmed up, but the matinée houses have taken her lackadaisically.

Miss Lloyd is the original Julian Eltinge booster. At least, she says she is, and from a lady, the word's enough.

"Tell me," she asked somewhat timidly, "did you like Eltinge, when he was here with Lauder?"

"The hit of the show, without any doubt," I assured her.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" she gurgled, clapping her wee hands. "He's one of the finest fellows in the business, and we've had lots of nice talks together. Whenever I'm in town where he's playing I never fail to see him, and he always comes to see me, too.

"He's the one fellow doing female impersonation on the stage today who's at all—well, you know—possible! The rest of them are so unbelievable, with their false manners and false voices. Eltinge is so natural—he gives you such an impression of wholesome reality."

And after awhile: "A long time ago I told him to do a country girl impersonation—just a simple country girl, without any fanciful clothes or grand manners. I wonder if he took my suggestion?"

Those who have seen Eltinge's "Elly Riley," a beautiful picture of feminine simplicity which is really his best performance, will surely believe that he did.

Miss Lloyd says that the greatest difficulty in her performance is the securing of suitable songs, even though she confesses to wading through the tons of trash which are submitted to her month by month.

All her songs except the "Splash Me" are of English origin. This, though it sounds the most English of all, was, strangely enough, written by an American, and was Anglicized by Miss Lloyd herself.

I waited for her the other day at Paul Paulsen's iron door.

"Wot's the use?" she remarked wearily to her maid. "Hi don't think they want me!"

"Yes they do," responded a managerial bystander, "but you mustn't mind the vagaries of an audience of women——"

"Well, I don't get 'em, and there's an end of it!" she concluded.

Which shows that even a star feels what seems to be a slight upon the part of any audience, anywhere, just as much as the young amateur, bursting with fond hope and a longing for great applause.

When Alice Lloyd lets down she drops into cockney. Her cockney songs are inimitable. When she is talking absent-mindedly she is like her songs.

Presently she forgot the troubles of that matinée audience, and came up into clear and delightful English as she talked of her western trip.

"This is my third year in America," she said, "but I think it has been the most enjoyable, for I have had the pleasure of travel. I am seeing the big American country—the great outdoors. I didn't think it was so vast. I had never been west of the Mississippi River, and I thought that the country on this side was about the same in extent as that on the other. Really, I couldn't form any idea of it.

"In my tour so far I have visited Mt. Shasta, several famous resorts, and on my way back I am going to do the Grand Cañon and hope to see the Yellowstone, although I fear that the season may greatly interfere with that."

William H. Crane, one of the foremost American character actors, was born at Leicester, Mass., April 30, 1845. His family soon moved to Boston, and there, at the old Brimmer school, which overlooks the entrance to the Hollis Street Theater, the boy was educated.

From the first he showed a fondness for, and a decided skill in mimicking his fellow-pupils, and his teacher, and he did not apply himself to his books with any great ardor. During one of his vacation periods he obtained a position as clerk in a music publishing house, and it is recorded that his coworkers idled away so much time watching his antics that he was finally dismissed.

His education was interrupted when he was apprenticed to Mrs. Harriet Holman, who had formed a little company of her own and was touring the country in a repertoire of plays, farces, pantomimes and operettas. In this company were three of Mrs. Holman's own children, also Perugini, William Davidge, Jr., Charles Drew and others who afterwards became famous on the stage.

Mr. Crane made his first bow to an audience at Mechanics' Hall, Utica, N. Y., on July 13, 1863, as the notary in "The Daughter of the Regiment." For eight years he continued with the Holman players and it was eight years of hard work, for the bill would usually include a short farce, a pantomime, a one-act operetta and a few specialties.

Between seasons with the company Mr. Crane went to Boston, and he was the first of many comedians to appear as Le Blanc in "Evangeline." After serving as low comedian in the old Hooley stock company in Chicago and San Francisco, Mr. Crane assumed a role in a play called "Our Boarding House," produced at the Park Theater, New York. In the company Mr. Crane met Mr. Robson, and at the end of the season the two decided to star together. This was the beginning of an important connection. For twelve years they continued to appear together and staged a number of classic plays, among them "The Comedy of Errors," and "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

At that time the best theaters in the country hesitated to ask more than a dollar for any seat, but Crane and Robson decided they should have more when they produced "The Comedy of Errors," and they advanced the price to $1.25 for the best seats. One of their best remembered successes was "The Henrietta." The two actors remained together until 1889, when they dissolved the partnership.

Since that time Mr. Crane has devoted himself for the most part to producing American plays by American authors. Among his vehicles have been "Newport," by Clinton Stuart; "The Senator," by David D. Lloyd and Sydney Rosenfeld; "On Probation," by George H. Jessop and Brander Matthews; "For Money," by Clay M. Greene and Augustus Thomas; "The American Minister," by Paul M. Potter; "Brother John," by Martha Morton; "A Fool of Fortune," by Martha Morton; "A Virginia Courtship," by E. W. Presbrey; "The Head of the Family," by Clyde Fitch and Leo Ditrichstein; "Peter Stuyvesant," by Brander Matthews and Bronson Howard; "A Rich Man's Son," by Michael Morton; "David Harum," a dramatization of the novel; "Business is Business," by Octave Mirabeau; "The Spenders," a dramatization of the novel; "The American Lord," by George H. Broadhurst and C. T. Dazey; "The Price of Money," by Alfred Sutro and "Father and the Boys," by George Ade. He is now in his third season with the last-named play.

With the opening of "The Man of the Hour" at the Belasco Theater tomorrow night, the extensive season of George Broadhurst's plays, that was planned last season when Mr. Broadhurst visited Los Angeles to produce "The Dollar Mark," will commence. Both Mr. Blackwood and Mr. Broadhurst selected "The Man of the Hour" as the opening play, as it is undoubtedly the most successful of the Broadhurst pieces, and one of the biggest dramatic hits that has been written in the last ten years. It gives opportunities to the various members of the Belasco company for exceptionally strong acting. This will be the first time the play has ever been produced by a stock organization, as three companies are still playing it throughout the country.

Following "The Man of the Hour" such Broadhurst plays as "The Mills of the Gods," "What Happened to Jones," "The Easterner," "Why Smith Left Home," "A Fool and His Money" and "The Wrong Mr. Wright." Besides these plays three of Mr. Broadhurst's pieces, notably "The Last Chapter," "An International Marriage" and "The Crown Prince," will be made known. "The Dollar Mark," which broke all stock company records at the Belasco Theater last fall, and which ran with uninterrupted success for 100 consecutive performances, will be another important link in this chain of plays and will receive a revival during the Broadhurst season.

Two of the important attractions of this season will be "The Garden of Lies" and "The Captain," two new plays from the pen of Mr. Broadhurst, which will be produced under his direction for the first time on any stage.

Under the auspices of the Galpin Shakespeare Club, Frederick Warde will lecture at Simpson Auditorium on Friday evening. His subject will be, "The Wit and Wisdom of Shakespeare's Fools."

George Broadhurst's "The Man of the Hour" will have its first stock presentation on any stage at the Belasco Theater Monday night. The role of Alwyn Bennett, the young mayor, will fall to Lewis S. Stone. Thais Magrane will have the role of Dallas Wainwright. The two Tammany politicians, Horigan, the boss, and Phelan, the alderman, will be respectively played by James Corrigan and William Yerance. Mr. Corigan has been brought to Los Angeles especially to interpret the role of the political chieftain of the play. Richard Vivian will have the part of Thompson, the private secretary, while Mr. Ruggles will have the part of Perry Wainwright of the performance. Howard Scott will enact the role of Charles Wainwright, while Mr. Giblyn, Mr. Andrews, Mr. Camp, Mr. Applebee and the other members of the Belasco organization will be seen in roles of importance and much dramatic work. Scenic Artist Brunton has prepared a series of stage pictures that promise to add very materially to the artistic attractiveness of the presentation, and "The Man of the Hour" in the hands of Mr. Stone and his associates of the Belasco company should prove one of the most important events of the Belasco season.

"All on Account of Eliza," hilarious farce first made known to the American public by Louis Mann and Clara Lipman, will be presented at the Burbank Theater during the week beginning this afternoon. The play will be the last stock revival to be seen at the Burbank for the present, Manager Oliver Morosco having decided to begin his series of plays new to stock with the presentation of "The Ringmaster," February 6.

Leo Ditrichstein, who wrote "All on Account of Eliza," is already favorably known to Burbank patrons, who have enjoyed many a hearty laugh over the absurdities of "Are You a Mason?" a piece Mr. Ditrichstein adapted from the German. The scenes of his current play are laid in the little New York village of Hemlock. Its central characters are Miss Elizabeth Carter, the village school teacher, and Franz Hochstuhl, a lovable old German, president of the board of school trustees. Eliza is a charming girl—so charming, in fact, that without in the least trying to bring it about she has all the men in the village in her train. As a matter of course this does not make her popular with the women of the place, and when one of them oversees the pretty school teacher in the embrace of a stranger it doesn't take long for scandal to circulate. The women try to have Eliza discharged from her school, but Hochstuhl remains her friend and in the end it develops that the unknown man was really the teacher's brother.

Miss Frances Nordstrom will play the role of Eliza, Clara Lipman's old part, and Harry Mestayer, whose skill in German character delineation already is well known to Burbank patrons, will play Hochstuhl. Others of the Burbank company will be appropriately cast, the programme showing the names of John W. Burton, David Landau, Henry Stockbridge, Willis Marks, H. S. Duffield, Peter Clancy, Norman Heap, Louise Royce, Lovell Alice Taylor, Ethel von Waldron and Claire Woodbury.

The engagement of "The Virginian" at the Majestic this week will doubtless afford much satisfaction. This play has already proven one of the most successful dramatizations, for it has captivated even those unfamiliar with Owen Wister's novel.

"The Virginian" is refreshing in its characterization, in its heartiness, in its roughness and in the picturesqueness of cowboy life on the western plains, with its romance, its real comedies and tragedies, its home life at the ranches, and the cattle-stealing episode.

The Kirke La Shelle company has the reputation of selecting players who will portray each character true to life, and this season has engaged a cast including William L. Gibson, who will be remembered for his work as Joe Brooks in "Paid in Full." He will be the Virginian, and Marshal Farnum, brother of Dustin Farnum, will play Trampas.

Charles Frohman will present at the Mason Operahouse for the week beginning tomorrow evening William H. Crane in George Ade's comedy, "Father and the Boys." The play ran for four months at the Empire Theater in New York and has been meeting with success throughout the country. Mr. Crane comes to Los Angeles direct from the opening of the new Columbia Theater in San Francisco. His last visit was in the all-star cast of "She Stoops to Conquer," and previous to that he was seen here in "The American Lord" and in "David Harum."

Ade has studied the style, methods and characteristics of Mr. Crane. The result is said to be a play affording the star large opportunities for character study and a display of his unique gift of comedy.

Father, a self-made man, has taken his two boys into partnership. One, a society butterfly, is enamored of a married woman with a penchant for youths of this type while the other goes in for athletics. Both, like many wealthy men's sons, are not in the least interested in business. Father decides to awaken them to a sense of their responsibilities, and under the tutelage of Bessie Brayton, a clever young woman from the West, he does it very effectively and incidentally has the time of his life. He invests in a motor car, buys the sportiest of clothes, plays the races and even disappears for a few days on a private yacht. The boys are awakened very perceptibly.

Margaret Dale, who originated the role of Bessie Brayton, is again playing it this season. Louis Massen, well known on the Coast, has a strong role, and others well known in the cast include Percy Brooke, Forrest Orr, Sidney Blair, John P. Brawn, Elsa Payne, Vivian Martin, Mildred Beverly and Adele Clarke.

Ferris Hartman and his company will this week be seen in a production of "The Wizard of the Nile." This famous musical play did much to create the fame of Frank Daniels, who starred in it for many seasons, and it is no stranger to Mr. Hartman and his company, being one of the most satisfying musical successes of their long list of productions. The libretto is by Harry B. Smith, while the piece contains some of the most beautiful music written by Victor Herbert.

The scene is laid in Egypt some few thousand years ago when the henpecked King hopes to properly punish a Persian wizard, Kibosh by name, who has overplayed his hand in bringing about a belated rise in the Nile, and it is on this pivot that the action of the piece revolves.

Mr. Hartman will have fun-making opportunities in the role of the nonsensical wizard, Kibosh, a part which he has played many times. The production will also introduce for the first time to the patrons of the Grand, Catherine Edmond, the new prima donna of the Hartman company, who will be seen in the role of Cleopatra, the Princess who knows naught of love. Miss Edmond is a well and most favorably known Los Angeles woman, who has recently returned from many triumphs abroad, and who possesses one of the most brilliant soprano voices ever heard on a local stage. She will have excellent opportunities in the role of Cleopatra.

"Muggins" Davies, Walter Catlett, Joseph Fogarty, Josie Hart, Walter De Leon, Myrtle Dingwall and the other members of the Hartman company have all been cast to advantage.

With Alber's famous troupe of trained polar bears heading the programme, Sullivan and Considine will open a diversified new bill at the Los Angeles Theater Monday matinée. Prof. Alber now has the only group of trained polar bears in this country, carrying ten specimens of these Arctic animals with his act and offering one of the most interesting trained animal acts seen.

Jimmy Wall, well-known minstrel man, will be one of the principal funmakers on the new bill, with his fifteen minutes of funny talk, and Robisch and Childress should also offer much comedy in their operatic eccentricity, "A Strenuous Pupil." Hill and Sylviany will have a number of evolutions on the unicycle. Other novelties will be Leon Rogee, who terms himself the "human orchestra," and the Nat Nazarro troupe, who are not only tum-

George Broadhurst, whose season of plays at the Belasco theater will start tomorrow night with "The Man of the Hour;" Marshall Farnum, who has succeeded his brother Dustin in "The Virginian," but who plays Trampas, the bad man; Lovell Alice Taylor, of the Burbank company, and Hilda Childress, Los Angeles.

blers, but clever comedians. Exclusive of these six acts there will be a new selection of motion pictures.

Franklyn Underwood and Frances Slosson, both known on this Coast, will head the new Orpheum bill. They will present a comedy sketch called "Dobbs's Dilemma," which is constructed solely for laughing purposes. Mr. Underwood is remembered hereabouts as leading man with Florence Roberts and Nance O'Neill on their Coast tours, and both he and Miss Slosson have appeared in this region in stock companies.

The Basque quartette is considered one of the best singing acts in vaudeville. Its members all left a grand opera company in 1903, and have been singing together since, so that in both ensemble and solo work they are far ahead of the ordinary. They dress in Tyrolean costumes and have scenery to match, and their appearance is thus in accord with poetic operatic standards.

Belle Davis and her "crackerjacks" are a representative act exploiting the old-time negro dances, songs and pastimes. Miss Davis herself is a "coon shouter" of excellent ability. The act has toured Europe and met with success.

Mme. Panita is a woman who has taken that difficult instrument, the flute, and become a soloist on it. Her manipulation of the flute is unusual and she obtains beautiful runs, trills and staccato work.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

By Julian Johnson.

Three seems to be the magic number of the celebrated women visitors this year. Sembrich and Schumann-Heink were each allotted three recitals here, and Mme. Tereza Carreno, who comes the second week in February, will have three appearances in all.

She will play at Simpson Tuesday evening, February 8, at the same place on the following Saturday afternoon, and on February 11 will appear as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra.

Carreno is a veteran pianist, one of the most celebrated living—and she is an America product both in birth and development, her earliest artistic triumphs having been achieved in this country.

On Friday evening the First Congregational orchestra under the direction of William H. Meade will give the opening concert of its fifteenth season. Among the numbers to be given by the orchestra are the "Forza del Destino" overture, Delibes's "La Source" ballet suite, Elgar's "Love in Idleness" serenade, a group of airs from "Martha" and Sousa's newest march.

The soloists will be Myrtle Oullet, harp, and Kie Julie Christin, contralto, who will sing "Oh, Thou That Tellest," from "The Messiah."

The orchestra now numbers fifty members. The newly-elected officers of the organization are Dr. C. LeRoy Lowman, president; Paul Simons, vice-president; H. G. Elliott, treasurer, and Louis Parker, secretary.

The Municipal Band, Harley Hamilton directing, will play in Central Park this afternoon, weather permitting. The programme to be delivered includes "La Czarina," two Entr'actes by Herbert, the Moszkowski Serenade, Tschaikowsky's "Slave March," Adam's "The King of the Dwarfs" overture, Losey's "Frivolous Cupid," Rollinson's "The Hunting of the Snark," excerpts from "Cavalleria Rusticana," and Teike's "Staunch and True" march. Will E. Bates will play as a cornet solo Knoll's "Southern Cross" polka.

Archibald Sessions's eighty-second organ recital will be given at Christ Church on Wednesday evening, with Abraham Miller as soloist. The organ programme will include Widor's Organ Symphony No. VI, Op. 42, and the Dubois Cantabile.

Mr. Miller will sing a recitative and aria from Handel's "Jeptha."

Frank H. Colby dedicated the new organ of the First Presbyterian Church of Ventura last Wednesday evening.

Bruce Gordon Kingsley will give a Beethoven interpretative lecture-recital at Symphony Hall, Blanchard building, this evening. The programme will include the Rondo in C, "Adelaide," and selections from the Sonata Pathetique, the C Minor symphony, the Pastoral Symphony, the Seventh Symphony, the Choral Symphony and the Moonlight Sonata.

Moore's Fidelia band, at Eastlake Park today, will give a programme including Musso's "Military Review," a selection from Tschaikowsky's "Eugen Onegin," the "Stradella" overture of Flotow, the "Rigoletto" quartette, Brockete's "Picador" waltz, Sousa's "Glory of the Yankee Navy" march, the Wedding March from Nessler's "Rat Charmer of Hamelin," and the minuet and gavotte from "I Pagliacci."

The Matinée Musical Club will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hunter, No. 1125 Magnolia avenue. Miss Henrietta Geiger will act as hostess, and composers to be studied are Rossini and Godard.

Miss Clara E. Thomas of Buffalo recently gave a largely attended reception in her studio, in that city, in honor of Miss Carrie Tallman of Los Angeles.

Bruce Gordon Kingsley and Mrs. Bertha Vaughan, under the co-direction of Miss Kathryn Stone and L. E. Behymer, will give an interpretative lecture recital on "Tannhauser" at 4 p.m., February 10. Mr. Kingsley will explain the work, in talk and at the piano, while Mrs. Vaughan will illustrate with principal airs. The affair is an educational concert for the school children, at Simpson Auditorium.

Elocution pupils of Laura Wilson White will be heard in recital at the Ebell Club House next Friday evening. Participants in the programme will be Misses Bessie Beatrice Sparks, Ina Decker, Edna Smith, Norma Dennison, Cleora Owens, Carlotta Dannebaum, Florence Francisco, Helen Sargent, Florence Spengler, Lelia Morrison and Viola Spengler, Mrs. Camille Meining, Mrs. Deacons, Mrs. Adelaine Le Blonde and Harry Gwynn.

ON RAYMOND DUNCAN.

Editorial Writer Scores Apostle of the Classic and Calls His Art Views Impractical.

Raymond Duncan, writes John C. Freund, in Musical America, arrived on American shores on a mission which involves a radical change in the musical structure of the entire civilized world. He would repudiate the tempered scale, as we know it on the piano, in favor of various forms of natural scales formed of the various combinations of the natural overtones of a given note.

The modern tempered scale in general use today was a departure from the older, natural modes, in the interest of a compromise between them which would allow a free modulation throughout all the keys. When this departure was made it was well understood that a single note on the piano must stand, let us say, for both F sharp and G flat, although in nature these are different notes, a "quarter-tone" apart. The system of natural overtones and the scales based upon them was perfectly understood by the Greeks.

Mr. Duncan does not say precisely that we should throw away our musical scale and imitate the ancient Greeks. What he does say is that if we pursue the employment of musical intervals as nature provides them, and thus shatter the modern system, which is unnatural and a compromise, we will necessarily find ourselves basing such a system upon the same eternal system of natural overtones which the Greeks understood so well and employed.

Mr. Duncan is a pure idealist, and the knowledge which he has of natural scales, not only of Greece, but as employed by primitive folk throughout the world, is positive and accurate. That the employment of such a musical system would dispose at once of all pianos, orchestras and organs in existence—the entire medium, in fact, through which we have our music today—does not disturb Mr. Duncan in the least. All this is false—unnatural—he says. If, therefore, we know what is true and natural and accept it, the loss of all this that is false amounts to nothing.

It is such an attitude of mind that has produced some of the greatest revolutions which the world has known in commerce, science, art, religion, and, in fact, all forms of human activity and endeavor. If a man has something better than that which exists, and demonstrates it, everything, in the long run—and sometimes with exceeding rapidity—must give way before him.

There is no doubt but that Mr. Duncan's ideas are deserving of a serious hearing. Certain things are in his favor. Important among these is the fact that modern music inclines to depart from the usual conventional modern scale, as is evidenced by the music of modern France. Although the Gregorian chants, which have strongly influenced modern French music, are not a direct legacy of Greece, yet there is a kinship between the Greek modes and the Gregorian chants. Moreover, composers here and there feel the necessity of a freedom which is not to be found in our modern scale, and are devoting serious thought to the direction in which scale evolution may go in the future. It is by no means impossible that the civilized world will Tea Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer H. Smith of West Adams street entertained yesterday afternoon with a smart tea party.

Have Returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Frisbie, who have been spending the last two week at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, returned home yesterday.

Whist Matinee.

Mrs. Edward Hornaday entertained members of the Tuesday Afternoon Whist Club at her home, No. 3693 San Pedro street. The guests were Miss Grace Mee, Mrs. Gertrude Watts, Mrs. Etta Allen, Mrs. Mary Scarce, Mrs. Hattie L. Smith, Mrs. A. Santter, Mrs. M. Hoefle, Mrs. H. Perry, Mrs. F. Burkhardt, Mrs. A. P. Kuder and Mrs. Fannie Reid. Prizes were won by Mrs. Hornaday and Mrs. Watts.

Pleasant Outing.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Sherer of Arapahoe street with their son, Sherman, are guests at Hotel Potter, where they will remain a few days. Wednesday last Mrs. Sherer had as guests members of La Golondrina Bridge Club. Luncheon was served, and later bridge was played. Lavender and gold were the colors used in decorating, violets being arranged in brass bowls. Tiny spring hats filled with violets marked places for Mrs Charles B. Nichols, Mrs. Frank A. Bowles, Mrs. H. E. Miller, Mrs. Carl Doron, Mrs. Miner, Mrs. Alice Reilly, Mrs. George H. Rector, Mrs. A. T. Jergins, Mrs. Thomas Wright, Mrs. Rudolf Mausard and Mrs. Ford.

House Guests.

Mrs. Ira Warner Phelps, No. 1542 Ingraham street, has as guests at her summer home at Catalina, Miss Mildred Bray, Miss Manson of San Francisco, and Mrs. George Phelps of Eagle Rock.

Club Dance.

Members of the Orvieto Club gave their second annual dancing party last evening at Kramer's. Gold and white, the club colors, were used in canopy effect. The patronesses were Mrs. P. J. Chase, Mrs. N. V. Doig, Mrs. B. Harmon and Mrs. J. H. Whomes.

Informal Luncheon.

An informal luncheon was given Wednesday by Mrs. W. O. Randolph at her home, No. 2756 Raymond avenue.

Miss MacKay Hostess.

Monday afternoon Miss Gladys MacKay entertained at her home, No. 124 East Avenue 40, a number of school friends, in celebration of her birthday anniversary. Singing and dancing were among the pleasing features of the evening. Those present were Miss Bernice Ellis, Miss Leona MacKay, Miss Katherine Sanbourn, Miss Edna MacKay, Miss Ruth Kimball, Miss Gladys MacKay, Clarence Mead, Frank Simpson, Allan Box, Fred Reed, Ewing Shumaker, Jack Preston and George Warner.

Into New Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Fleishman are now occupying their new home at No. 127 Westmoreland avenue.

Coterie Club.

Miss Florence Bartlett of "Vista del Mar," Hollywood, presided at a party Monday afternoon with which she entertained members of the Coterie Club. Miss Ludeman was awarded the first prize. The afternoon was enjoyed by Miss Juanita Lane, Miss Stella Lane, Miss Leta Crane, Miss Freda Ludeman, Miss Louise Hauser, Miss Emmie Luentzel, Miss Mayme Cliff, Miss Ethel Dubbs, Miss Marie Macmanus and Mrs. Harland W. Clatworthy.

Sorority Entertained.

Miss Freda Ludeman of No. 1217 Elden avenue entertained members of the Sigma Chi sorority one day last week. Games were played and prizes fell to Miss Ethel Dubbs and Mrs Robert K. Wilson.

Have Returned.

Miss Mae and Ruby Kimball og No. 1839 Third avenue have returned from a seven months' trip abroad. Miss Estelle Rockwood, who was also a member of the party, is at present in Oakland where she will remain several days.

Miss Coon Honored.

As a courtesy to Miss Mary Coon of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. May Bell of West Thirty-sixth street entertained last week with an afternoon party. The function was also in honor of Miss Eula Pemberton of Fulton, Mo., and Mrs. Lida Harbaugh of Ohio, all of whom are spending the winter in Southern California. Miss Hazel Ludwick gave an interesting musical programme. The guests were Miss Fanny Lenox, Miss Fanny Hunter, Miss Minnie Joughin, Miss Louise Slick, Miss Laura Thompson, Miss Edna Cocks, Mrs. Ann Joughin, Miss Eliza Hunter, Miss Jennie Cocks, Miss Emma Osborne, Miss L. West, Miss Hattie Cocks and Miss Evelyn Paulsen.

Merry Shower.

Miss Lucille Potts of No. 1161 Douglas street gave a linen shower Friday for Miss Daisy Beavin, who is soon to marry Cecil Dalton. Garlands of hearts were arranged about the rooms and orchids in oriental vases completed the arrangement. The afternoon was planned as a surprise to Miss Beavin, who was invited in for a little chat with the hostess. The other guests were concealed in the den and as Miss Beavin was seated they sang "Wedding Bells." Luncheon was served and places marked with hand-painted cards and bags of rice.

Birthday Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbot Kinney were host and hostess Friday evening at a large dancing party given at the Venice Pavilion in honor of the birthday anniversary of their son Sherwood. Three hundred guests responded to invitations. The ballroom was attractively decorated and supper was served in the ship Cabrillo.

Debutantes Honored.

In compliment to Miss Katherine Stearns and Miss Elizabeth Wood, Mrs. John G. Mott entertained with a luncheon at her home on Portland street Monday. Other guests included Mrs. Hugh Stewart, Mrs. Jefferson Paul Chandler, Mrs. Nat Myrick, Miss Grace Rowley, Miss Sada Johnson, Miss Katherine Graves, Miss Inez Clark, Miss Florence Wood and Miss Kyle of Indianapolis.

Charming Luncheon.

Miss Rose Carnes entertained with a luncheon at her home Tuesday. A mound of violets on a mirror graced the center of the table, and hand-painted cards, decorated with the same flower, marked places for the Misses Clara Parmelee, Ada Sawyer, Ada Sellers, Mrs. Laura Heffner and Mrs. Margaret Ball.

Enjoyable Evening.

One of the thoroughly enjoyable affairs was a week-end party which had for its host and hostess Gen. Harrison Gray Otis and his daughter, Mrs. Franklin Booth, who entertained a number of young buds at the home of Gen. Otis on Wilshire boulevard. A dinner dance was the feature Friday evening and covers were laid for Miss Lucille Gage, Miss Lillian Rand, Miss Frances Chandler, Miss May Chandler, Miss Constance Chandler, Miss Marion McPherron, Miss Arnie McPherron and Miss Eleanor Booth.

For Bride-elect.

Yesterday afternoon members of the Entre Nous sorority of the University of Southern California gave a shower for Miss Nell Vale at the home of Miss Florence Speicher on Vermont avenue. The gifts were concealed in a large ball covered with violets. Miss Vale was educated at Simson College, where she was a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority. She later graduated from the University of Southern California. Miss Vale will be married Wednesday evening to Ralph Core.

Violet Luncheon.

January 26 Mrs. J. Alexander of Denver, Colo., gave a violet luncheon, having as guests Miss Greenbaum, Miss Metzger, Miss Straus, Miss Adams and Miss Lipsher.

Farewell Party.

One of the most enjoyable affairs of recent date was the slumber party given by Mrs. Robert Maxwell at her home, No. 2190 West Twenty-ninth Place, as a farewell courtesy to her friend, Miss Elizabeth G. Paxton of Kansas City, Mo. The home was converted into a bower with violets and ferns. Cards were enjoyed the first evening, and at midnight a feast was served. An automobile jaunt to the country and a dinner party were features of the second day. The entire home was lighted with lavender Japanese lanterns. The guests were Miss Mae Armstrong, Miss Aurora Armstrong, Mrs. Blewett, Miss Harriett Collins, Miss Gene Cox, Miss Blanche Jenness, Mrs. Miner, Miss Franque Raiff, Miss Gertrude Mulvane, Miss Gertrude Hanlkla, Mrs. Edwin Mooers and Miss Bernice Healy.

Tuesday Morning.

Miss Bess McPherson became the bride Tuesday morning of Harry E. Kelso, the service having been read in this city by the Rev. W. H. Fishburn of the Grand View Presbyterian Church. The bride is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. W. B. McPherson of this city and she has a rich contralto voice. Mr. Kelso is a prosperous business man of Los Angeles. At the conclusion of a brief trip they will be at home at No. 1234 Magnolia avenue.

Dancing Party.

A number of young ladies of West Adams Heights entertained Friday with a dancing party at the home of Miss Leona Houk of No. 1550 West Adams street. Palms, ferns and pink hearts were used to enliven the ballroom. The hostesses, who were members of the L.D.C. Club, included Miss Leona Houk, Miss Carolyn Hayward, Miss Edna Hayward, Miss Laura Greenwood, Miss Gladys Bennett, Miss Fay Daniels, Miss Muriel Howe, Miss Tirell Long and Miss Myrtle Brown. The guests were Miss Mildred Bailey, Miss Ruth Best, Miss

OUT-OF-TOWN SOCIETY

Pasadena.

FOREMOST among several delightful social functions last week was the afternoon tea given Monday by Mrs. Charles D. Daggett at Columbia Hill, complimentary to her daughter, Mrs. Byron Harvey, who is spending a month here. Peach blossoms and banks of Parma violets adorned the drawing-room and palm fronds and potted plants were used in the reception-room, where salad was served. In the dining-room Chinese lilies ornamented the table, which was presided over by Mmes. Albert Sherman Hoyt, James H. McBride, John B. Miller and Edward R. Kellam. Others assisting were Mmes. David Blankenhorn, William C. Burns, William R. Staats, Charles Cranz Perkins, John W. Hugus, Fred Elmer Wilcox, John E. Jardine, A. S. Halsted, Henry T. Fuller, Arthur A. Libby, Edward H. Groenendyke, Misses Bolt, Robbins, Stimson, Rowland and Passmore. Orchestra music added to the afternoon's pleasure.

Miss Cora Auten of North Madison avenue was the hostess Tuesday afternoon at the Valley Hunt Club of one of the largest bridge parties of the winter. She was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Phillip Auten, and Miss Angie Holmes, who served punch. The affair was given for Mrs. Walter Schuttler of Chicago. Mmes. Guy Barham and Fred Meyer of Los Angeles presided at the table when refreshments were served. The prizes were won by Mmes. Harrison I. Drummond, Henry T. Fuller, G. G. Guyer, Henry Doty and Lewis Farlow. There were 100 present.

Miss Patty Phillips of Bellefontaine street gave an informal tea Wednesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. David Blankenhorn, a December bride. Mrs. John Bakewell Phillips assisted her daughter in receiving the guests and other unbonneted women assisting were Mmes. B. Marshall Wotkyns and George F. Granger, who presided at the refreshment table, and Misses Anne Patton, Jane Rowland, Gladys Percy, Hildreth Markham, McKinney and Mrs. Bishop of New York.

Mrs. William B. Merwin of South Pasadena avenue entertained with a small tea Wednesday afternoon, given for Mrs. Moseley, who is a guest of her mother, Mrs. C. P. Williams of Buena Vista street. There were thirty present.

Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor of North Michigan avenue entertained friends Tuesday evening in commemoration of the birthday anniversary of Robert Burns. Scotch songs and stories afforded entertainment and refreshments were served. Many Scots were present, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. William Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Denier, Mr. and Mrs. William Ley, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. David Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. William Filer, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Crimmin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Spalding, Misses Minnie Bateman, Bella Taylor, Helen Zeyner, Elizabeth Johnson, Dorothy Filer, Louise Crimmin, Emma Ley, Adele Hauxhurst, Jessie Irene and Flora Taylor, Messrs. Humphrey, Swanson, Johnson, Crimmin and Taylor.

Miss Alice Earley of South Marengo avenue gave a luncheon Wednesday in honor of Miss Helen Sickler, announcing her engagement to Ernest Wight of Denver. Covers were laid for twelve and the color scheme of decoration was rose pink. Pink sweet peas and maidenhair ferns adorned the table which was artistic with pink shaded candles, pink tulle bows and pink bonbon favors at each place. Miss Sickler and Mr. Wight will be married in March and will live in Denver.

Mrs. George W. Gilbert of Magnolia avenue was the hostess Wednesday afternoon at a thimble party given for Mrs. McAmulty of Maryland, who is a guest at Hotel Guirnalda. Miss Camilla Bunte of Chicago added to the pleasure of the afternoon by several solos. Those present were: Mmes. E. W. Kolner, J. B. Brown, J. H. Boyd, Fred Rockwell, George Carpenter, Oscar C. $5 Auto Strop Razor Outfits... $2.50

The AutoStrop is the only razor having a self-contained stropping arrangement. This is automatic and it so conveniently sharpens, that any one can readily restore the smooth, keen edge essential to a pleasant shave.

Strops itself sharp in half the time it takes to place a new blade in any other razor. It is not unscrewed or taken apart for stropping or cleaning—Even the blade is not removed for either purpose.

Users of the old-style straight razor will especially appreciate the automatic stropping, absolute safety, and fine barber's edge all combined in the AutoStrop.

OUTFIT, complete, consists of Quadruple Silver-Plated, Self-stropping Razor, 12 AutoStrop Blades, One Horsehide Strop. All in Handsome Leather Case. Size 2x4 inches. Sold under a guarantee which protects purchaser absolutely. Regularly $5. On sale tomorrow at $2.50.

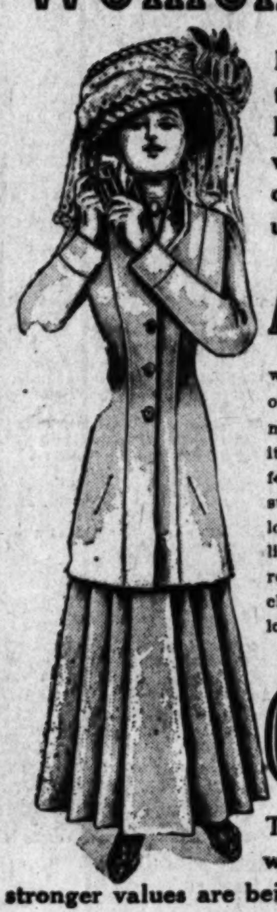
BEAUTIFUL EARLY SPRING SHOWING

Women's Tailored Suits



Large daily express shipments are arriving—representing the smart early designs, according to the most acceptable Paris models, with just the little Americanizing touches which make the Parisian suit adaptable on this side of the ocean. See them all, but see these two special classes particularly:

At $30 Over a dozen varieties of suits in brilliant, mannish worsteds, vigoreaux, feathery diagonals, whipcords, epingles, armures, serges, herringbones, granite weaves, etc., in self-striped effects or dainty pastel tones. Also staple shades and black. The tailoring is the notable feature. Smart little straps and buttons on cuffs, revers and pockets. Skirts are cluster plaited—coats 30 to 42 ins. long. Taffeta or messaline lined.

At $18.50 Fifteen different suit styles worthy of special praise because they should sell at $25. Here are shadow stripes and plain colors, novelty mixtures, pastel tints and black in such non-crushable, dust shedding fabrics as herringbones, serges, prunellas, panamas, camel's hair velours, soft diagonals and others. Short and medium length coats, satin lined, with moire silk or Oriental trimming on collars, which have the long, medium or short roll. Skirts are full plaited—just the fashionable kind.

Coat Sale Continues

To effect an absolute and immediate clearance of all our women's and girls' fall coats, still more attractive and still stronger values are being added daily. There are three-quarter and seven-eighths fitted street coats of various styles; loose evening coats with satin folds or silk braid trimming; high collar auto coats, and full length, three-quarter length and short coats of black and colored broadcloth, novelty mixtures, worumbo covert and pretty plaids and stripes.

Reg. $12.95 COATS $5.95

Only the absolute rule of not carrying goods over a season forces these out at less than half price. Right up-to-date.

Regular $25 COATS $9.95

They're of broadcloth or worumbo covert with guaranteed satin lining. Also novelty plaids and mixtures. Quite a variety.

Regular $35 COATS $14.95

CLEARANCE SALE

This has proven the most sensational sale of high-class footwear ever attempted, being based on bona fide reductions on new seasonable models of the most approved designs, including boots, oxfords, pumps and evening slippers. Not a single pair of special purchase shoes has ever come into this shop, and it is our aim never to carry over any shoes from one season to another—to make periodic appearances in ficticious sales—as "a remarkable value."

The point is this: The boots, oxfords, and evening slippers we are clearing now at $2.85, $3.85, $4.00 and $4.85 are new fresh goods, values to $8.50, and offer an opportunity to purchase

THE social season here has begun with a great deal of spirit. Following the grand masked ball at the Gillespie villa on the 15th inst., were the cotillion given by Mrs. William Miller Graham at "Villa Belloguardo" on Tuesday and the café chantant at the Country Club in Montecito Thursday. This annual affair proved as gay and fun-making as its predecessors have been. The numbers on the programme included: Tableaux, statuary, "Ariadne Deserted," Mrs. F. T. Underhill; "Pudicita," Miss Campbell; "Apollo Citharordos," Miss Johnson; "Dancing Girl," Miss McLaren; "Life," Mrs. Bartlett.

"The Little Girl in Blue"—The Little Girl in Blue, Mrs. J. R. Fithian; Messenger Boy, Edward S. Field; chorus girls, Mrs. Armsby, Mrs. Fowler, Miss Newbold; chappies, Frank Frazier, George Armsby, Raymond Armsby, Earl Graham.

Tableau—"Over the Desert," Mrs. F. T. Underhill.

Musical Mokes—Miss McLaren, Stewart Edward White, George Baker.

Fantasy in one act, by Austin Strong—"All by the Light of the Moon;" Pierrot, Mrs. W. M. Graham; Night Watchman, Earl Graham; Punchinello, Edward S. Field.

"Villa Bellosguardo," the Montecito home of Mr. and Mrs. William Miller Graham, was the scene of a brilliant cotillion Tuesday night. The court was covered over for the occasion, the ceiling being hung with pepper boughs, from which gleamed vari-colored lights. The figures of the cotillion, led by Edward Greenway of San Francisco, were danced around the fountain in the center. Potted plants and vines covered the two booths where Mrs. Robert Cameron Rogers and Mrs. James H. Biddle dispensed favors.

Mrs. Graham was radiant in a gown of white net, embroidered in Rhinestones, and trimmed with spangles of mother-of-pearl. The most beautiful figure danced was a Russian effect, in which Mrs. Stewart Edward White and Mrs. Joel Remington Fithian, in the glare of a blue calcium light, were drawn on a Russian sled by eight men, harnessed with white ribbon. In a cake-walk figure, a number of little, grinning negroes hopped out of watermelons and danced gleefully about. In a sunflower figure, pretty faces appeared, singing, in the hearts of the flowers. Guests included Dr. and Mrs. Harold Sidebotham, Mrs. Sidebotham being gowned in a pale blue chiffon cloth and an overdress of spangles, her ornament a pearl pendant; Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. Underhill, Mrs. Underhill in a spangled gown over pink silk, and wearing a diamond crescent; Mrs. H. M. A. Postley, in a dull jet-black creation; Mrs. Burrill wore a pale yellow satin Parisian gown, trimmed with lace of the same shade, the gown being en train, and a diamond tiara the ornament; Mr. and Mrs. Steward Edward White, Mrs. White gowned in white chiffon, trimmed with blue and edged with pink roses, her coiffure caught with a pearl band; Mrs. Isobel Strong wore an exquisite gray lace dress over shimmering silk; Mrs. Frank Morris was a color symphony in golden yellow embroidered satin, gold slippers, and gold bands in her hair; Mrs. Worthington Ames of San Francisco, in a pink chiffon, trimmed with real lace, with a diamond tiara; Mrs. William Ford Blake of San Francisco wore a handsome black velvet gown; Mrs. John Edward Beale was striking in a gown of cloth of gold; Mrs. W. W. Burton wore a gown of black net, trimmed with jet; Mrs. Hugh Vail wore an electric blue satin, with pearl garniture; Mrs. Edwin H. Sawyer appeared in a black jet and lace gown, with diamond ornaments; Mrs. James Biddle wore a silver gray brocade, trimmed with point lace, and her jewels were pearls; Miss Bispham was in black satin, trimmed with jet passamenterie, her ornaments being pearls; Mrs. Francis Wilson of Los Angeles was attired in black satin, embroidered in green and gold; Mrs. Louis Jones wore a pale blue crepe de chine, trimmed with lace, her ornaments being pearls; Miss Johnson wore a white chiffon gown, trimmed with gold, a filet of gold in her hair, and a pearl pendant; Miss Ynez Dibblee was in a Greek Parisian dress of light blue, bordered with a conventional Greek pattern, and in her coiffure she wore a pearl tiara; Miss Delfina Dibblee was gowned in a black empire mode; Miss Fernald wore a handsome white lace gown; Miss Sarah Redington was attired in a silver gray liberty satin; Miss La Barre of Scranton, Pa., who is spending the winter with her aunt, Mrs. Edwin H. Sawyer, was gowned in white.

GOSSIP OF THE FOREIGN STAGE.

BY MALCOLM WATSON.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Fred Terry, poor fellow, has had a particularly bad time of it lately. During the past few years he has been an intermitten sufferer from gout. But six weeks ago the enemy fairly laid him by the heels, compelling him to desist from all work. The attack this time has been of an exceptionally painful and severe character. Only those who have experienced something of the kind can realize what Terry has had to go through. It really seemed at one moment as if he would have to abandon all hope of appearing with his wife, Julia Neilson, at the New Theater, which they have again leased from Charles Wyndham for six months. Happily, Terry just managed to squeeze through last Monday evening when the popular couple once more resumed operations with "Henry of Navarre." Terry had almost entirely lost the use of his right hand and was obliged, consequently, to do all the fighting with his left.

It was really painful to watch him endeavoring to invest the part of Navarre with all his accustomed gaiety, exuberance and high spirits. Somehow, however, he managed to finish the evening, and as the doctors say he has seen the worst, there is every hope for a successful season. Julia Neilson returns to London with all her mannerisms more accentuated than ever. She practically sings her dialogue and every sentence is adorned—although adorned is hardly the most fitting word, perhaps—by little trills and quavers and musical cadences that upon many of the audience, myself included, have the most irritating effect. Nor does "Henry of Navarre" improve on acquaintance. It is quite of the machine-made order of plays and from start to finish one discerns the hand of the author pulling the strings by means of which his puppets are constrained to dance. Still there apparently is money in the piece and before they have done with it Fred Terry and Julia Neilson will doubtless have realized a profit of something like a hundred thousand dollars.

Its author, William Devereux, has decided to embark again upon his earlier career as an actor. He never was a great favorite, either with managers or with the public, but now that he has made a bit of money by playwriting, he can afford to gratify his fancy in this direction. He has just arranged, therefore, to go on the road with "Sir Walter Ralegh," the play in which Lewis Waller is now appearing at the Lyric. Waller's business, by the way, has just taken an upward bound, the house being crowded nightly with holiday makers. The circumstance has placed him in rather a difficult position. He had arranged to produce C. M. S. McLellan's piece, "The Strong People," on or about the 25th inst., but by his agreement with William Greet, who runs the Lyric jointly with himself, Waller can only remove "Sir Walter Ralegh" from the bill if it has played for two consecutive weeks to something below $4000. The recent improvement is perhaps merely a flash in the pan; nevertheless, unless some arrangement can be come to between the parties concerned it involves the retention of "Ralegh" in the programme for at least four weeks to come.

The fear of the disturbance likely to be caused by the coming general election is prompting managers to hold back their novelties until, at any rate, the end of the month. With an empty theater on his hands, Frank Curzon, however, is actively pushing on rehearsals of "Captain Kidd" at Wyndham's. The piece was to have been produced tonight, but Seymour Hicks is hardly ready, and the first performance now stands adjourned until Wednesday next. Two days ago Cyril Maude also called his company together with the view of starting on Michael Morton's version of "La Petite Chocolatière," which he has finally decided to christen "Tommy." To Marie Löhr has been assigned the role of the heroine, more or less identical with that of "The Richest Girl" sustained on your side by Hattie Williams. Chatting yesterday with Maude I asked him how he liked his present work at the Coliseum. "The audiences," he replied, "are simply splendid to act to, but the size of the house is just a little terrifying. I was speaking to Bancroft about it and he summed the matter up rather neatly. 'I suppose,' he said, 'it is rather like standing at one end of Berkeley Square and trying to make yourself heard at the other.'"

The Coliseum is, indeed, a wonderful place, although in any of the big cities of the United States it would not, I daresay, be considered by any means astonishing. It holds some 3000 people, and with two performances a day the receipts total up to $3500. The circumstance explains how Oswald Stoll, the manager, is able to offer popular actors or actresses $1500 a week to come to him. Even paying such large salaries, he shows, I believe, the handsome profit of $6500 a week. The Empire Theater of Varieties is, too, under the controlling hand of Walter Dickson, whose real business is that of a wholesale butcher, an exceedingly prosperous concern. It has paid as much as 80 per cent. on the year's workings, and rarely less than 40 per cent. Dickson informed me the other day that the year just ended has been a particularly good one, the average receipts amounting each evening to just over $1750. That being so, he ought to be in a position to pay an unusually good dividend.

The burning question of the censorship has broken out again. It is the Society of West End Theater Managers which has revived it. They held a meeting this week, at which certain resolutions were unanimously passed, and a copy of these has since been forwarded to the Lord Chamberlain. That high official has certainly no reason to be dissatisfied with the contents of the communication. In it the managers openly declare their extreme displeasure with the recent recommendation of the Joint Select Committee, which, if adopted, would take the power of licensing plays out of the hands of the Chamberlain. They add that from him they have always received the greatest courtesy and support, and that in their judgment nothing could be more satisfactory than the working of the department controlled by him. To transfer the powers now vested in him to the London County Council would be, they declare, a foolish and iniquitous policy. All this is very nice for the Lord Chamberlain, whom West End managers not unreasonably regard as their natural protector against the advanced school of playwrights who demand for themselves and the stage absolute freedom of action. It is a pretty little quarrel as it stands, but, like so many other controversies, it is destined, I fancy, to end in smoke.

The new Somerset Maugham play, to be produced at the Garrick early in February by Arthur Bourchier and Charles Frohman, is shortly to be put into rehearsal. The author has just christened it "The Tenth Man," a fairly apt description of the principal charaancter, specially designed to suit Bourchier. It is modeled upon the lines of Whittaker Wright, that amazing financier, who eventually came to complete shipwreck. Bourchier is delighted with his part, and tells me that the piece is the best and most ambitious Maugham has yet done. In one sense the conclusion is tragic, the hero, if one can call such an unprincipled scoundrel a hero, dying just a few moments before the news arrives that his laetst big coup has succeeded beyond all expectation, and that in place of being, as he believes, a pauper, he is now a millionaire. Such is the irony of fate.

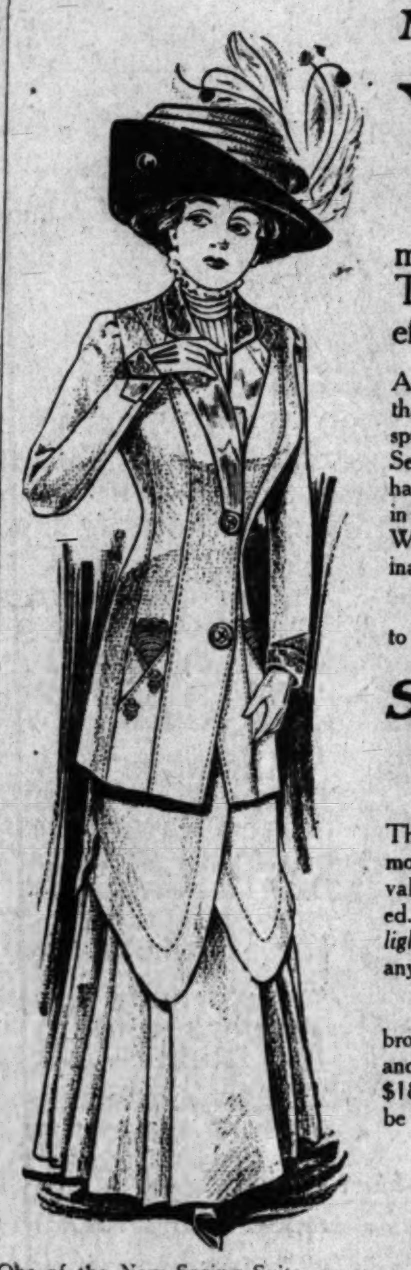
The financier's wife will be represented by Mrs. Bourchier, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, to whose personality, however, it is admittedly by no means well suited. Bourchier tried to get Evelyn d'Alroy for the role, but Tree, to whom she is under contract, would not part with her. Miss Vanbrugh has made it a condition of her acceptance of the part that she shall be free to relinquish it after six weeks, and as she has a tempting offer to go elsewhere, it is more than probable that she will insist on carrying the condition into effect.

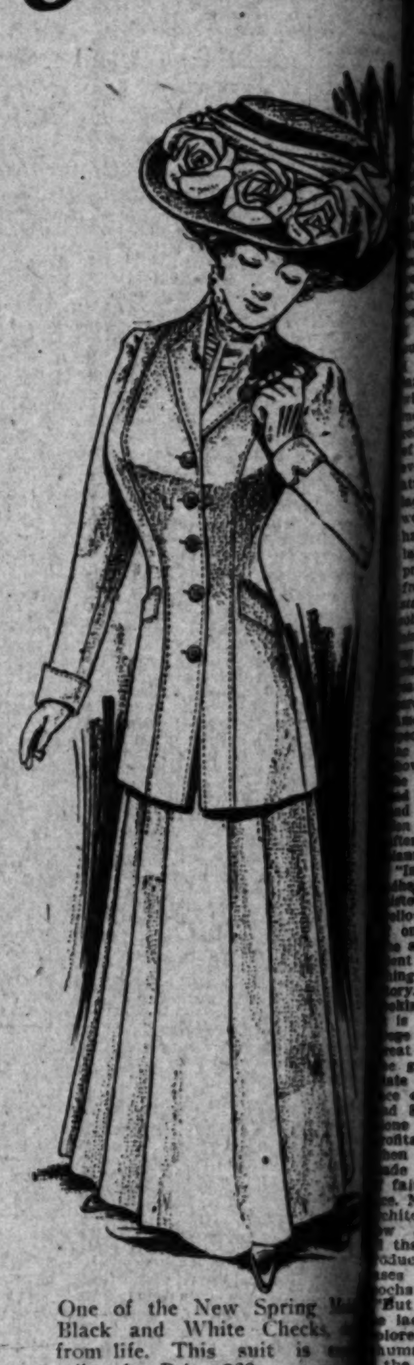
William H. Crane and Margaret Dale.

Mr. Crane will appear at the Mason Operahouse this week in George Ade's comedy, "Father and the Boys." Miss Dale is his leading woman. Mr. Crane is one of the most distinguished American stars, and, from his veteran's position, may look back upon a long and honorable histrionic record.

The Boston Girl's Reserve.

A Boston girl the other day said to a souther friend who was visiting her, as two men rose in a car to give them seats: "Oh, I wish they would not do it." "Why not? I think it is very nice of them," said her friend, settling herself comfortably. "Yes, but one can't thank them, you know, and it is so awkward." "Can't thank them. Why not?" "Why, you would not speak to a strange man, would you?" said the Boston maiden, to the astonishment of her southern friend.—[Cleveland Leader.





First Showing Spring Suits

New Models for "Juniors," Misses and Women

WE announce for tomorrow our First Showing of Spring Suits—and desire to extend to every woman who is interested in "new wearables" a special invitation to visit our Women's Department. The new models represent the correct ideas in Tailored Wear for Spring. Styles are authoritative and effects are exceedingly attractive.

Among the new fabrics is a collection of smart Black and White Checks—a weave that will be much worn this season by Misses and Women. Soft, beautiful Homespuns are also shown—light, creamy effects in tones of gray, green and tan. Navy Serges will again be fashionable—also White Serges, of which we are showing a handsome assortment in plain tailored models and in fancy trimmed novelties—both in plain white serges and in hairline stripes. Our assortment of Suits in Spring Worsteds is also extensive—the variety of tone and color will appeal to the discriminating.

Prices for the New Models—$20, $25, $30, $32.50, $35, $37.50, $40, $45 to $75.

Special Monday and Tuesday Women's Suits

150 Models In All—Values Up to $40.00

John McCormack, the Irish tenor of the Manhattan Company, is one of six children—four girls and two boys—who still lives with his father and mother in his native Athlone. Every one of them, Mr. McCormack says, can sing.

After a long siege of illness, which was so severe that fears were entertained as to his recovery, Johan Svendsen is again appearing as conductor in public performances in Copenhagen. The Norwegian composer endeared himself to the public by his long service as conductor of symphony concerts and Danish operas in Copenhagen, and his recovery has been made the occasion for much rejoicing.

Although Maurice Rénaud, now of the Manhattan, has been under contract to both New York opera companies, he takes little interest in their rivalry. "I am here to give my best to the public from an artistic point of view," he said the other day, "and I never trouble myself as to what one or the other of the operahouses is doing. In fact, I never even read a word of what may be happening between the two managements."

"My idea of a concerto is something like this," said Mischa Elman the other day to a Boston Transcript interviewer. "There are the orchestra, the conductor, and you. The conductor is supposed to follow you, and, on the other hand, you are supposed to pay some attention to him. But there are lots of things which you can do better if you can deal directly with the orchestra. I believe that when an artist plays a concerto, some power, some—how do you say it?—magnetism ought to go out from him and control all the playing—everything to sound as one. And when a feeling like this comes over me during a concerto—that we are all one voice—then I know I am playing as well as I can. One way of doing this is my making direct signals to the orchestra. Sometimes I turn to the players when the concerto comes to a certain point, and they respond with an effect—of cellos or violins—without which my playing would lose half. You see, by the time you get word to the conductor, and the conductor gets up his stick and the men catch the message, the music has gone on and it is too late and the effect is lost. It is better, if you can, to signal the orchestra and the leader at the same time, and when this goes well I often feel as if they were following me even more than the conductor.

At the First Congregational parsonage, Wednesday evening, Rev. Shelton Bissell united in marriage Miss Mattie L. Rogers and Burr W. Baker.

MR. FRANK B. LONG—Dear Sir: The piano purchased of you five years ago has given entire satisfaction. It is sweet in tone and durable in make; in fact, more satisfactory the longer it is used, and where I to purchase again it would be a Frank B. Long piano.
Respectfully yours,
B. D. ELLIOTT.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

witness significant changes in the development of musical scales.

Against all this tendency is the enormous practical musical machinery now in existence—all the existing musical instruments—which are based on the tempered system. The inertia which these present to any such change is incalculably great, and the momentum of their present use is both tremendous and increasing. The question of scale evolution resolves itself, almost, to the old question of an irresistible force coming in contact with an immovable body.

What will Mr. Duncan accomplish? He comes here, a Californian, metamorphosed into an ancient Greek. He clothes himself in a homespun tunic of his own making, wears sandals and goes without stockings. He wears his hair longer than any musician who has yet appeared on these shores. He finds himself laughed at and joked about by the press on every hand, and finds no tribunal where he can gain a serious hearing.

Hair Grows Five Inches

In One Month

Medical science has been much interested in the remarkable case of a little girl whose hair has grown over five inches in one month. It seems that for some time her hair had been falling out so badly that her mother feared that she would become bald. At last, in her despair, after all else had failed, she went to her chemist and had him prepare a simple formula which had been recommended by a friend. Much to her surprise, the little girl's hair at once stopped falling out, and in one month's time had actually grown over five inches.

Gray-haired men and women who have tried this remarkable preparation state that it has produced a new growth of hair of natural color, and in numerous cases it is said to have produced a luxuriant growth on heads that were entirely bald. Physicians who have investigated the subject declare that the almost miraculous properties of this simple tonic are due largely to the juice of an Ecuador plant, found in Lavona de Composee. As is almost universally known, the natives of Ecuador are famous for their beautiful glossy hair, and this, together with their freedom from dandruff, gray hair and baldness, are said to be due to the free use of the juice of this plant.

The formula is as follows: Bay Rum, 6 ozs., Lavona de Composee, 2 ozs., Menthol Crystals, ½ drachm. The above can be put up by any chemist, and should be well shaken before using. If you desire it perfumed, add from one to two teaspoonfuls of To-Kalon Perfume, one of the few perfumes which unite perfectly with the other ingredients, and imparts a most pleasing odor. Apply freely night and morning to the roots of the hair, rubbing in thoroughly with the finger tips, or use a stiff brush.

So great has been the demand for this preparation that many druggists have made special arrangements to fill the formula quickly, and it is understood that a company has recently been formed to put the completed preparation on the market.

NOTE.—Ladies' publications are privileged to copy the above formula.

A representative of Dean Drug Co., the well known druggists of this city, states that they can fill this formula complete.

Mrs. James Pinchot.

e of the Grand Dames of Washington Society and a Woman of Wide Culture, Unusual Intellectual Power and Delightful Personality.

BY MARGARET B. DOWNING.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—"I have s been fascinated by fine lace," rked Mrs. James Pinchot, discus g her recent magnificent gift to the ional Museum in this city. "It is e acme of industrial art, the finest g which human hand can pro in the industrial line. The era of ful achievement in this art is ing away and for this reason the y of lace and the collecting of it omes in a way a duty to posterity. have always been engrossed in the ject and more than forty years ago, visited Ireland and became famil with the exquisite varieties of lace ch are making that country fa and better still, proving an ex nt source of income. The looms f Belgium, France and Italy had n before that period claimed my ation and I became a student of e and collector of it in my early anhood. The National Museum ad ready an excellent collection of at the task of getting it into er order chronologically as well as m the industrial and historical point has been one which caused itude. I am devoting much of my e to this pleasant duty and with own collection to regulate this k will last far into the coming st I have selected my lace in re to epochs. I desire that the erican people should have a good imen of all the exquisite lace of e earliest artists and a specimen to w the evolution of the art down e ages to the present. With this d in view, I have purchased carefully d from reliable agents. My collec is not so large, but it is complete r the order for which it has been ned.

In cataloguing my collection I have ed to technical description and ry. Of course, every older bit of low lace, has an entrancing history only lace could speak. But when specimen is genuine and from an houses, it is the most difficult g in the world to get the true y. But imagination can aid and ing at the rare old Venetian point, is not difficult to drape it on the e or some of the fair ladies of the t republic, when they stepped into e gondola or figured at the grand e ceremonies. So it is with the e of Italy, of Flanders, of France d Spain. The ecclesiastical lace e could occupy a lifetime most itably. I am always reminded en examining the exquisite work e for sacred purposes that the age faith has passed, like that of fine e. Nothing typifies faith any longer, hitecture, art, music or poetry. It w comes a duty to gather together that can be collected of the [illegible] ducts of those days, just as can ses and buildings of the same chs are sacredly guarded.

But in lamenting the passing of lace, I must explain that while I lore it artistically, I rejoice from umanitarian standpoint. It is one the penalties which art must pay nature. In the early days of the tless point lace, it had to be done damp, dark cellars by poor labor whose very lives were sacrifices their art. The thread was spun in e vaults, such thread as now ld bring thousands of dollars an e, and which it might be said d be bought at any price because, the end, it meant the price of a life. e fingers of those who spun the x were so soft and delicate from the darkness and the dampness that they seemed superhuman in their agility. when the lace was fashioned in darkness and in the mold of the under-world, it still remained in the cellars, because bringing into the light or dry atmosphere ed its texture. It is easily perceived that under such conditions ern humanitarianism would not ve fine lace, even if it could be obtained.

"I have no hope that this country l ever become a lace-producing one that the art here will be ever any ing more than imitative. In New k some Italian girls are making ly good lace after the patterns ught from their own country and re are good schools of lace in other s in connection with the arts and fts association. But labor is too h here and the patient, heroic ef to make lace is not one which s in with the energetic American racter. Many of the great pieces lace which one finds in the Vatican ection or in the British Museum e begun by one generation and fin d by another. The Indians are ing to make lace and I believe ing creditable progress. They are ing weavers and there is no rea why they should not master the of lace making. Not of course the finer weaves or in the point or loom in it perfection. But the ic patterns and the woven flat n and the lace made with a knit needle possess great possibilities. ave been in connection with my collection gathering a library on subject of the early fabric arts embroidery which is the mother of n and of the ancient art of cos ry which is perhaps the parent of h. I have taken the library of my and and here I am getting to er everything of value or interest costumes, laces and embroidery. subject is tremendous and begins the very twilight of civilization. t to collecting laces, I think that getting reliable books about them e most fascinating.

re are few things in Washington e pleasant than a visit to Mrs. In the big bright room which s the entire south and west the Rhode Island-avenue home ord Pinchot she may be found d by big boxes of yellow and some rare old books on . Hour after hour she reads pares her lace with the de of the best masters and be times, she will give dainty little ences of her own experience history. The gift in the mu of her entire collection of lace ancient embroideries is one of the valuable and practical donations ever received. It was made in early autumn of the past year and Mrs. Pinchot had spent the entire er searching for old Gothic pat and some genuine Valenciennes old French lace. She succeeded getting some rare old bits of Honi and of early Brussels point. With y years or more of devoted pursuit knowledge about lace, her cata of it will be in every way as ble and useful to the museum as lace itself. Until she gets her en collection property labeled and en into the lace book which she con plates arranging, the display will e available for the general public. ll require months and months yet Mrs. Pinchot properly identifies principal treasures, and then she to take in hard the large col of laces and embroideries al in the museum and get them proper epochs and technical divi Pinchot is the ideal grande and a visit to her will explain of the love of nature and of ful things which is so character of her son. The entire house is filled with growing things and the pictures represent nature in her wildest moods and in the softer aspects of cultivation. The forests primeval are side by side with gentle slopes of pastoral scenes and the dainty scenes where irrigation has made cultivation possible. All along the great hall which leads from the English basement to the drawing-room floor are azaleas and poinsettias, making the home seem like a garden in the Riviera. After flowers on tables, stairways and in odd nooks and scenes from nature which cover the walls the great profusion of books is what impresses the visitor to the Pinchot mansion. There are books everywhere, from the basement where the servants linger and the casual guest waits, to the library, the drawing-rooms, and up on the third floor where Mrs. Pinchot's unique collection has found temporary quarters, all kinds of books are to be enjoyed. The big drawing-room has been forced into service and books line the walls ten feet to the ceiling on one entire side. Mr. Pinchot has collected from his early boyhood, not only nature studies but all the kindred themes, and this apparently takes in books from all the ages and the best books in any age.

On the big library table blooms one of the lovely oriental lilies in a costly cloissonne vase, and the perfume fills the entire apartment. Here the former forester receives his friends and holds conferences with those interested in his work and here also his mother delights to show her guests some of the vast projects which her son has evolved. She delights to dwell on his early life and how soon the love of growing things developed and how soon he realized the sacredness of all that has been created for good and wise purposes and the duty of preserving it for its destiny. No home in Washington is more handsomely furnished and none is more characteristic of the tastes, one might almost say more permeated with the mission of its occupants. On the wall as the principal stairway is ascended is a large canvas by Cabanel representing Mrs. Pinchot in the bloom of early matronhood. Her son, Gifford, rests his arm on her shoulder, and her daughter, now Lady Johnstone, wife of Sir Alan Johnstone, British Minister to Copenhagen, is on her other side. She is especially proud of this portrait, and it is the only painting of her in existence.

Mrs. Pinchot has resided with her son ever since he built the fine mansion which adjoins the old home of Gen. Philip Sheridan on the east. She has taken a dignified though not an obtrusive part in society, and has been more identified with those who were working with her son than with the frivols of Vanity Fair. Lady Johnstone pays an annual visit to her mother and during her visit the home is gayer than at normal times. But Mrs. Pinchot delights in having guests, those with whom she can converse on congenial topics, not the passing throng which invades the official home. She is punctilious in attending to the duties which she holds by her own right, as a member of Gotham's most exclusive set. She was before her marriage Miss Mary Eno of New York and all the great houses of the metropolis are allied to her by kinship or by marriage. She visits New York frequently as the guest of her son, Amos R. E. Pinchot and his wife. But she has elected to make her home with her bachelor son, and she is devoting her remaining years to aiding him in the vast projects which he has undertaken and in supporting under such disappointments and opposition, which come to all who attempt reform.

"I used to be much amused,' said Mrs. Pinchot, "when I first came to Washington that I was an object of interest, only because I was Gifford Pinchot's mother. Mothers as a rule may be proud of their children, but they do not wish to be completely overshadowed by them. But I soon became reconciled and now I record as the paramount blessing of my life, the fact I am Gifford Pinchot's mother and in a way one who helped to form his ideals, who has always and ardently sympathized with all that he hopes to do. As I have found in my lace collecting. Knowledge comes slowly and appreciation is still more tardy. But even to get one person interested in something which is elevating and useful is worth living for and is worth many disappointments. I am deeply engrossed in the gospel of right living and of right thinking and by the sacred duty which evolves on us of stretching out a hand for those who will come after us.

"I spend much time in studying conditions at first hand, and as exposed through the various scientific departments of the government. The progress which scientific agriculture has made in the past decade even, makes the future seem hopeful. There seemed a time when the responsibilities of life crowded in every branch of learning. Sometimes it appears that my fad about laces is not a very practical one. But the refining influence of such study cannot but appeal even to the most material. Some one must gather these treasures and preserve them before they pass away. Then the spirit of modern humanity which refuses the price of flesh and blood for mere personal adornment makes me hopeful that he world is growing better."

Wanted a Postoffice.

There is more than one joke concealed among the dry statistics of the United States Postal Guide. For instance, there is the name of a postoffice in a little hamlet in Lincoln county, West Virginia.

The inhabitants of the neighborhood made the usual petition for the establishment of an office, and the department after determining to grant the request made inquiry as to the name which the petitioners wished the office to bear.

"We don't care what you call it," came the reply, "only we want a postoffice."

And Wewanta it remains to this day.

A Thought.

Today the whole broad world so strange doth seem,
I wonder am I real or some one's dream.
Who'll shortly wake—and then, dread mystery.

Oh, what, indeed, will then become of me?
I know but this; if such should be the case,
And I am but a phantom out of space,
'Twere well to seize the moment, drain life's cup.
Before the chap that's dreaming me wakes up!

HOW TO OWN A HOME

BY THE INVESTMENT BUILDING COMPANY'S PLAN

FIRST.—If you own a lot outright anywhere in Los Angeles, we will accept your lot as a payment on any bungalow or house we have built, and you can pay off the balance in small monthly payments.

SECOND—If you own a lot and want a home built on it, we will build the style of house you wish and accept your lot as cash payment, and you can pay the balance monthly.

THIRD—If you don't own a lot, and want a home, you can select a lot anywhere in Los Angeles or suburbs and we will buy the lot for you and build your house, and you can make us a cash payment down, and pay the balance like rent.

FOURTH—If you own your lot and want to pay cash to have a home built, we will design it free of charge and only charge you the usual contractor's fee for building it.

FIFTH—We are building 30 artistic bungalows in the Ingomar tract, West Hollywood that sell for $3600 each, on Prospect boulevard, 5 blocks west of Hollywood Hotel, near car line and school, with street work done, and with gas and electricity, which you can buy for $360 cash down, and $36 per month, including interest, taxes and insurance. These bungalows adjoin the finest foothill homes in Hollywood.

To reach tract office, take Hollywood car, get off at Gardner street.

If you will study the above propositions you will realize the folly of paying rent, as we do not confine our building operations to any one district, and can build you a home anywhere.

We are planning to sell a number of bungalows furnished (absolutely ready to commence housekeeping) which we will sell on a small cash payment down and small monthly payments like rent.

Come and talk it over with us or address—"Sales Manager."

RAPID PROGRESS ON EDGE OF ANNEXATION.

New Development at Gateway of New Los Angeles—Glendale, Tropico, Burbank All Take Faster Pace. The San Fernando Valley.

BY ROBERT H. WILLSON.

FIRST DOOR north of Los Angeles—this is the new address of Tropico, Glendale and the San Fernando Valley. Since the annexation of Hollywood a straight line drawn from the northwest corner of Los Angeles to the southeast extremity would include a section of the famous valley, peopled by 5000 suburbanites.

Los Angeles is going out to meet the Owens River on its way down from the mountains. Whether or not the city boundaries shall spread over the hills to absorb more territory, the spirit of municipal progress is already there and the entire valley is witnessing the dawn of a new day of development.

The building of a populous suburb along the Glendale electric line during the past four years has been one of the marvels among the scenes of rapid development in California. But now, in the atmosphere of expectancy that prevails from Tropico to Chatsworth Park, it is apparent the real era of progress is to begin with 1910.

Homes are being built so rapidly that there is no numeration. Business centers are developing in half a dozen locations. New lines of transportation are planned and industrial plants are building. Ranch lands are increasing in value so rapidly that there is not enough agricultural area in the vast and fertile valley to meet the demands of those who wish to settle there. Conservative holders of farm lands predict that every acre in the valley will be worth $500 when the Owens River water is delivered.

San Fernando Road is the main artery of the valley and its improvement as part of the good roads system will have a marked influence toward immediate activity. Tropico stands as the gateway between the valley and the city. At this point there are many signs of a new and substantial impetus. The Baumeister-Salyer piano factory is being built a little north of the center of town, G. H. A. Goodwin is opening a large subdivision, the Tropico Art Tile Works are being enlarged and the old Richardson ranch, where strawberries have been raised for years, is about to be transformed into a fine residence district, with cement walks and curbs, oiled streets and $4000 to $5000 houses and bungalows. A bank is one of the proposed features for the center of town and new business blocks will soon be erected.

Bert Richardson is an enthusiastic promoter of the new Tropico. He is a son of the pioneer Richardson, who was one of the first American ranchers in the valley and whose lands are now worth a fortune.

NEW STATION.

"As soon as my brother arrives from Chicago," said Mr. Richardson yesterday, "and I expect him any day, we shall undertake the improvement of about twenty acres lying at the intersection of San Fernando Road and the Glendale electric line. This is the heart of Tropico and lies between the present business center and the electric line. We are waiting for the grade of the Good Roads Commission on San Fernando road to put in our street work. Then we shall set a high standard of building by putting up a number of fine houses.

"Arrangements have been made for the building of a handsome mission-style electric station just north of San Fernando Road. The old berry station is to be moved away and the grounds in front of the new grammar school will undoubtedly be parked.

"Improvements will be extended along the trolley line toward the river and Griffith Park. It may be that a business center will be established at the stations now known as Richardson and Cascajo."

Speculation as to the route of the electric line to Burbank and San Fernando is one of the doubts that is holding the trend of northward development in a certain degree of uncertainty. Sometimes it is proposed to have the line follow the river, and at other times it is planned to extend the present line from the Casa Verdugo along the beautiful foothill section that is being improved with the country homes of wealthy people.

Two new transportation factors have entered the situation. A daily motor-car service is maintained between the town of San Fernando and the city by the Southern Pacific. Motor-car service is promised on the Salt Lake road, running through the old section of Glendale and entering Verdugo Cañon, where extensive improvements are under way.

The independent electric road connecting the Pacific Electric line at Glendale with the Los Angeles Railway line in Eagle Rock Valley has been operating on Fourth street for ten days and opens a route to Highland Park, Garvanza and Pasadena without coming into the city.

GROWING FAST.

Glendale itself is growing more rapidly than ever. Where lots were sold by the hundred during the real-estate activity houses are now going up. Real-estate dealers say that [illegible] per cent. of the present customers are buying to build and that the 10 per cent. buying for investment are securing acreage to be divided for homes.

Three years ago the trolley service to Glendale consisted of a small car run every half-hour, and except for one or two trips a day half of the seats were vacant. Now the big three-car trains are crowded and the trolley officials are at a loss to take care of the traffic on a double-track line.

The business section of Glendale, in that time, has grown from a corner grocery store to half a mile of modern buildings. A business block is now under process of construction on the old High School site at Fourth street and Brand boulevard. A brick building has just been completed on the opposite corner, and these, with the solid block of stores from Fourth to Third streets on the north, give the town a metropolitan aspect. Business houses are gradually crowding out the residences on Fourth street, and are grouped in another nucleus at Fourth street and Glendale avenue, where a brick building is now in process of construction.

NEW PALACES.

The development north from Glendale to the Verdugo Mountains is likewise impressive. Some of the most costly residences in the valley are being built in that district. The Pacific Electric Company has recently acquired a large addition to its park at Casa Verdugo and is beautifying the grounds. General Manager McMillan is laying out one of the cañons for a private country estate that will rival the famous homes of Southern California. From his residence for two miles along the foothills stretches one of the most magnificent districts for country homes in the world. John Brockman, a millionaire, who has recently come to Los Angeles, is completing a palatial residence in the midst of a tract of nearly a hundred acres. Running far up into the mountains, he has fenced off a deer park, and his scheme for landscape architecture in the lower part of his grounds promises one of the show places of the Coast.

Frank P. Fay has purchased seventy acres adjacent to this place for $10,000, including Fox's Cañon and a large tract of mountain land, valuable only for its landscape features. Along this same natural terrace, covered with orange groves and fruit orchards and commanding a view of the valley for thirty miles, with mountain ranges on every hand, are the residences of Neal Dow, F. L. Keller, George Mitchell, Dr. S. S. Black, Dan Campbell and L. C. Brand, ranging in value from $20,000 to $100,000. Kenneth Road, the thoroughfare, figures as the "Orange Grove avenue" of the San Fernando Valley.

Glendale already is built nearly half way to Burbank. Burbank itself, with a location having certain advantages over any other part of the valley as a residence district, awaits the coming of a car line. It has been promised often and sometimes the movement has gone as far as securing a large proportion of the right of way. Property in Burbank has advanced beyond reasonable agricultural values but is being bought up by those who appreciate that it is still cheap for the suburban residential sites when the car line comes.

In the upper end of the valley there is a new interest in ranch lands. It has sometimes escaped the attention of Los Angeles people that one of the richest and most fertile districts in the world is in the valley of the Los Angeles River. For miles about Toluca, Lankershim and San Fernando there are orchards and alfalfa fields that produce modest fortunes. With the Owens River water it is anticipated that the higher lands will also be developed. There is not a more active agricultural district in the county in plans for development than this territory at the present time.

PROSPECTS.

The logical claims of San Fernando Valley to more serious and general attention are many. As a place of suburban, foothill homes it is the location most accessible from the center of Los Angeles. The electric service, because of its favorable route in leaving the city, is the best out of Los Angeles. Glendale cars are run without city stops to Tropico, making extremely quick time. The climate has the advantages of being dry because of the altitude and of being cool because of a constant draught of air through the thirty mile trough of the valley in the summer time. Much of the soil is extremely rich and the upper end of the valley is said to contain some of the best orange land in Southern California. Its prospects are among the most promising in or about the city as it is the natural direction in which population and improvement will spread.

There has been no boom in San Fernando Valley. It has been very little advertised and has never enjoyed any special efforts of promotion. It has reached its present impressive development through the appeal of its own particular merits and anticipates a steady and more rapid growth from the momentum it has gathered.

NEW HOMES DESIGNED.

Architect Frank M. Taylor has drawn plans for a seven-room frame residence to be built at the corner of St. Andrews Place and Ingraham street for H. G. Hamilton and for a nine-room house, which G. W. Sherman will erect on Alta Drive, just off of Pico. The first dwelling will be of a Swiss type; the latter of rustic effect. J. W. Roberts has prepared plans for a two-story twelve-room house, to be erected for A. Joughin on Twenty-fifth street, between Arlington street and Second avenue. The exterior will be in brick and plaster. The cost will be about $7500. Train & Williams are designing a two-story eight-room residence of Colonial style to be built at Hollywood for Dr. C. V. Baldwin.

TO BUILD ON SPRING.

Victor Ponet will at once begin the erection of a one-story brick store building on the west side of South Spring street, between Seventh and Eighth streets. The structure, plans for which are being prepared by A. L. Haley, will occupy a lot 45x165 feet, and will cost about $10,000. The front will be of white tile, the windows being of plate glass.

METROPOLITAN.

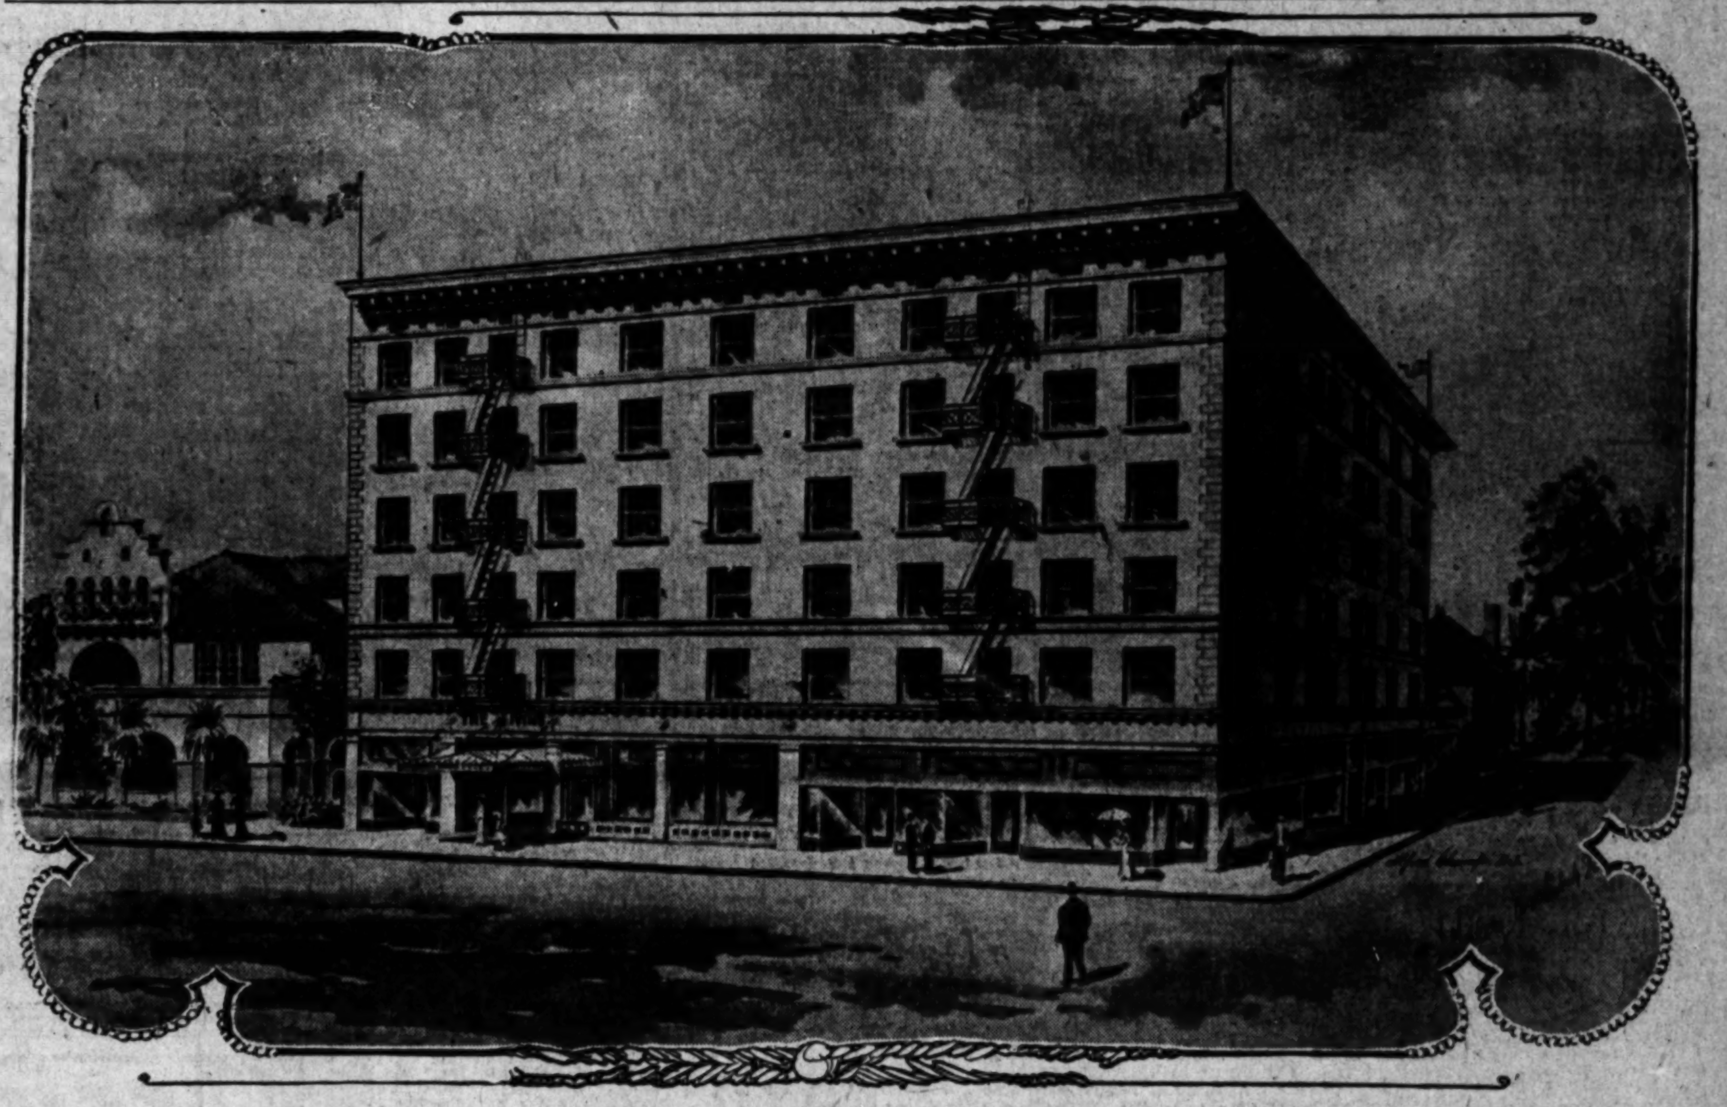
COSTLY BLOCK FOR W. TENTH.

Six-Story Apartment Hotel on Old Vineyard Site.

Will Front Hundred and Thirty Feet on Figueroa.

Construction of Building Will Begin at Once.

J. C. H. Ivins will within the next thirty days start the construction of a six-story brick apartment-hotel building at the northeast corner of Tenth and Figueroa streets. The structure, plans for which have been prepared by A. L. Haley, will be ready for occupancy about September 1. It will be one of the most attractive and up-to-date buildings of the kind ever erected in this city, combining everything in the way of modern arrangement an appointment. Its cost, with equipment, will be in the neighborhood of $100,000.



Attractive apartment-hotel building for J. C. H. Ivins at Tenth and Figueroa. A L Haley, architect.

The structure will have a frontage of 130 feet on Figueroa by 100 feet on Tenth. There will be a yard space on the east side of ten feet clear, with an interior light court eighteen feet wide extending westward for fifty feet. The north side will have the line court prescribed by law. The building will be built in strict accordance with the city ordinances and the new Brunett Tenement-house Act. It will be known as Class "C" construction.

The main entrance will be on the Figueroa-street front. There will also be an entrance extending out to the Tenth-street side. The former will have stone columns, with a large porch, protected by an ornate marquise of iron and glass. The lounging-room will be of liberal dimensions, and elaborately treated in scagliola. The ceilings, which will be heavily beamed, paneled and decorated, will be supported by columns of steel, incased in scagliola. Back of the lounging-room will be a large billiard and smoking-room, together with a café, which will have a mezzanine music balcony. The space on the ground floor which is not used for the hotel proper will be divided into stores.

The basement will contain a large ballroom, card rooms and retiring rooms, in addition to the heating plant, hot water and vacuum systems. On the second to the sixth floor, inclusive, there will be eighty apartments, twenty of them consisting of two rooms, kitchen, bath, also private hall each. The other sixty apartments will contain one room, with kitchen and bath.

Every modern device has been planned for the building. Hot and cold water, steam heat, vacuum sweeping, gas and electricity and sanitary concealed wall beds will be installed.

The owner of this building is the son of Jacob Ivins, one of the oldest pioneers of Los Angeles county, who acquired the site twenty-eight years ago, when it was used as a vineyard.

ALTERING STORE ROOMS.

About $10,000 will be expended in alterations to the first story of the Hellman building on the northeast corner of Second and Broadway, and a large sum in addition will be spent by R. J. Busch, the lessee of the stores at that site, in interior fittings and furnishings. Plans for the work have been prepared by Morgan & Walls. The frontages will be improved with art glass, and pressed steel ceilings will be put in. The building will be greatly strengthened by the installation of steel columns and beams.

ATTRACTS THOUSANDS.

Architectural Exhibit in Hamburger Building Largest Held West of Chicago.

Those in charge of the exhibit of the Architectural League of the Pacific Coast on the fourth floor of the Hamburger building reported at the time of the closing of the galleries at 10 o'clock last night that a total of between 17,000 and 18,000 people had visited this attractive display of sketches and paintings. It is estimated that the attendance today will be the largest of the exhibition, and that the total will be brought close to 20,000. This will lead the attendance at the San Francisco exhibit, in November, 1909, by fully 5000.

The sketches of Edwin Howard Blashfield are probably attracting more art lovers than any other one feature of the exhibit, although great interest has been displayed in the etchings of Joseph Pennel and the pen and pencil drawings of Vernon Howe Bailey. The sketch and water-color work of a number of local artists and draftsmen have met with most favorable comment. The purely technical exhibits of local architects probably form the finest collection of this kind ever shown west of Chicago.

No effort has been spared by the management of the exhibit to make the 1200 or more feet of galleries educational. All pictures and sculpture works have been plainly labeled, and the best work of the best architects and landscapers in the East and in England, as well as in the West, is available to those interested in architecture and the allied arts. The exhibit has already been visited by hundreds of school children.

RAILROAD MAKES PRICES SOAR.

POMONA, CLAREMONT, UPLANDS AND ONTARIO ACTIVE.

Land That Has Laid Idle for Years Now Cleared, Homes Being Built. Big Power Plant Planned—Los Angeles Suburbs to Be Increased by 30,000 Persons.

Real estate values near Pomona, Uplands and Ontario have increased with the report of the proposed extension of the Huntington lines.

As a result of this extension from Pomona to North Pomona, Claremont and Uplands, there has been more activity in the district bordering the right of way than has been shown since the building of the Salt Lake road through this section.

East of Pomona College at Claremont, there has been a district more than a mile in width and at least two miles long that has never been reclaimed, up to the present time.

The fact that the grading for the Pacific Electric extension is completed has caused twenty teams to be put to work clearing this land of rocks and sagebrush.

Part of the ground already has been cleared, and twenty-five acres already have been set out in orange trees since the first of the year.

The fact that the site for the power-house has practically been decided upon, south of San Antonio, has placed the water now used in operation of the present turbines upon the market, where it can be picked up for irrigating purposes.

In one mile along the proposed line fifteen new bungalows have been built within the past five months, and land is being cleared for a half-dozen more.

C. E. Woodside, who recently went over the line of the road, preparatory to selling construction bonds, states that the connection of the Pomona line with the Covina branch of the Pacific Electric will mean the addition of 30,000 persons to the suburbs of Los Angeles.

EVER BUSY.

THE KAISER'S CAMPAIGN TO "GERMANIZE HIS GERMANY."

Has Cleared French Words Out of the Kitchen and the Army and Now Is Tackling English in Sport. "Netzballspiel" Is His Way of Saying "Lawn Tennis" and He Wants German Word for "Bobsleigh."

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—To the average mortal an allowance of $4,000,000 a year would pass uncriticised if the giver insisted on describing it as "alms," "tips," or even "shoe money." That, however, is not the point of view of Kaiser Wilhelm II, who has announced to Baron Rheinbaben, Prussian Minister of Finance, that his annual $4,000,000 allowance from the State is no longer to be described as "Civil List," in German "Zivilliste." "Civil list" is a foreign expression, for which there is a better German equivalent in "Koenigliche Haushalt," in English "The King's Household," and "Koenigliche Haushalt" it is henceforth to be. It will not add even one dollar to the four million. But it will add an honest Teutonic phrase to the German language, and that, says Wilhelm II is worth a good many dollars.

The war which Wilhelm II has now begun upon the Anglicisms which defile the tongue of Luther and Goethe is in logical sequence with His Majesty's triumphant campaign against the corruptions from unfriendly Gaul. For nearly twenty years this war has been waged with unwavering success, and now from the Vosages to the Vistula you will not hear a word of French. The triumph is entirely due to the Kaiser's strategy. Remembering the cynical remark that the path to heart and brain lies through the imperious stomach, the Kaiser raided his Gallicised kitchens in the year of his accession to the throne. When he found Teutonic translations for all the finicky French on the menu, he pounced upon "menu" itself and renamed it "speisekarte," which means "eating card."

Next the palace authorities, with their rococo French traditions from the days of Friedrich the Great were discovered to be calling the Imperial kitchen a "cuisine." Henceforth it was German "kuche." Apparently the association of ideals led from "cuisine" to "kusine," a barbarous Gallicism used by degenerate Germans to denote their cousins. The word appeared even in the court circulars. In 1890, there burst upon the astonished world the mysterious appellation "muhme." It drove "kusine" out of the court list. Unscholarly individuals asked themselves what was the meaning of "muhme," and learned men from Heidelberg and Goettingen when posed with the puzzler tried to look their wisest. But the mysterious "muhme" had nothing to do with "mummy," except that it was a mummified, antediluvian, immemorial, obsolete, but honest German word, which Wilhelm II had disinterred from the dead past. Nowadays, all really smart Germans talk about their "muhmes," and only sham-smart Germans, who live in small flats at suburban Lichtenberg and think they know French, talk about their "kusines." They say to their rich relations: "My kusine is in the cuisine." And their rich relations look at them stonily, and say in the manner of Kaiser Wilhelm: "Your muhme, you mean, is in the kuche."

Having expelled French from the "kuche," William II cleansed a less important institution, the army. Twenty years ago most ranks, and all technical, above all, all fortification terms, were French. In 1889, Wilhelm II issued a decree ordering them to be translated into German. The cacophonous Teutonicisms nobody understood at first; and had war broken out two decades ago the beating of the French might have been sadly hampered by the lack of French words. It took at least ten years before the German military language was purified. Finally, in 1899 French had its coup de grace. "In order to purify our speech," ran a decree issued by William II, all the remaining French army ranks were to be turned into German.

Offizier—Aspirant became Fahnenjunker.

Porte—Epée Faehnrich became Faehnrich.

Second—Lieutenant became Lieutnant.

Premier—Lieutenant became Oberleutenant.

Nothing, unhappily, was added to the officers' pay, and a full-blooded German "Faehnrich" was required, like mere ordinary Gallic "Porte-épee Faehnrich," to look smart, and support a wife and four flaxen-haired infants on forty dollars a month.

Now the time has come for the invading Anglicism. Here the war of emancipation is a hundred-fold harder. Of late English words have poured into German ten at a time. A century ago there were twelve words of English origin in the German dictionary. Thirty years ago there were 150; today there are some 700 and there are dozens of English words in German dress, or English words translated into German. There are "dogge" and "Frack," and "punsch," and "scheck," and "buchmaker," and "schrittmacher" for "pace-maker," and "wolkenkratzer," for "skyscraper;" and even "nervenschoc." A learned etymologist, Herr Duenger, has just written a book about them, and sent it to Kaiser Wilhelm. And Kaiser Wilhelm, in thanking him, declares that h "is more interested than ever in the purification of German from neologisms and foreign words." And not without reason. Even classics like Sudermann use such barbarisms as "struggle-for-lifeertum"—which is enough to give less sensitive men than the Kaiser a genuine Saxon "nervenschoc."

Apparently Wilhelm II has chosen to begin with Anglicisms in politics, because in addition to sneering at his four million dollar "Civil List," he has declared that "address" is no longer to be used in the sense of petition or congratulation; and that the Anglicism "meeting" is to be banned from the political reports which are daily drawn up by his Civil Chancellory. In the domain of sport, however, the Kaiser is helpless, and it is here that the all-conquering Anglicisms come in their serried hosts. Wilhelm II is not an all-round sportsman. He is therefore making use of the Crown Prince, who is. The future Friedrich II cares as much about philology as he does about metaphysics. But that does not prevent him standing up as his Imperial father's champion in the lists of Germanism. During his last year's visit to Oberhof in the Turningian Forest, the Crown Prince made himself beloved by the natives by the enthusiasm with which he entered into their winter sports. The natives, preparing for his return visit, started a "Bobsleigh Club," and asked him to become president. "With pleasure," answered the Crown Prince. But in a letter from his Hof-Marschal he suggests that "verein" is a better word than "club," and that it is desirable to find a purer Teutonic word than "bobsleigh." The letter mentions the Germanising of "lawn tennis" terms as a worthy example. "Lawn-tennis" is now officially, "netzballspiel," or "net ball game," and if that does not help the perspiring Teuton to get the ball over the net he consoles himself with the thought that it is better to fall in German than in English.

According to Dr. Peschel, who was received lately by the Kaiser in connection with a scheme for popular universities, Wilhelm II, spoke with disapproval of American and English technical terms used in German text-books. Here there are dozens of undesirables of the nature of "horse power," "elevator" and "compound-machine." For the last the Kaiser suggested "verbund-machine."

"The genius of the German language, and the plasticity with which it lends itself to the creation of compound words, are such that there is no possible English word for which an equivalent may not be found," he says.

"Had the first William been as dead against foreign words as his grandson," comments a comic paper, "he would never have become German Emperor. He would have preferred to remain Prussian 'Koenig,' which is good German for 'King' rather than German 'Kaiser' which is merely the corrupted Latin 'Caesar.'"

VALUABLE ALASKA

BY WALTER J. BALLARD.

California's increasing interest in Alaska lends interest to the statement that the population of the Territory consists of about 32,000 whites and about 35,000 natives. The population in the placer camps has apparently passed the maximum and is at present decreasing. This decline, however, is largely offset by an increase along the southern coast, where railroads to the Bering River and Matanuska coal fields and to the Chitina Valley are under construction, reports Gov. Hoggatt. The population is engaged almost entirely in mining, railroad construction, fishing and occupations incident thereto.

FOR TAXATION.

The towns of Alaska have $9,855,034 worth of taxable property according to the assessed valuation, a surprising total. By towns the assessed valuations are:

Town—	Assessed valuation.
Fairbanks	$3,225,000
Nome	2,350,000
Juneau	1,287,000
Skagway	687,429
Ketchikan	594,395
Valdez	541,000
Chena	500,000
Douglas	400,000
Eagle	150,000
Wrangell	140,000
Total assessed valuation	$9,855,034

No assessment was made in the town of Treadwell. The rates of taxation run from 1 to 2 per cent.

The Governor says: "There is no means of determining the taxable property value outside of the towns, but it is safe to say that it will approximate in value the property within the towns." In other words, Alaska has a total taxable property value of about $21,000,000—not far short of three times what we paid for (as alleged) "Seward's iceberg"—to say nothing of the very many millions of dollars in gold, fish, furs, etc., taken out since that memorable purchase was made.

COMMERCE.

Alaska bought of us in 1909 fiscal year:

Provisions	$5,730,885
Hardware and machinery	4,812,230
Liquors	760,667
Lumber	611,110
Coal	172,238
All other goods	5,119,285
Total purchases in 1908-9	$17,196,445
Total purchases in 1908	15,957,576
Increase in 1909	$1,238,869

We bought of Alaska in 1909 fiscal year:

Gold produced in Alaska	$17,782,498
Silver	19,383
Salmon, canned	9,972,314
All other fish	352,634
Furs	527,162
Copper ore	455,113
Whalebone	132,192
All other products	1,044,928
Total purchases in 1909 fiscal year	$30,857,221
Total purchases in 1908 fiscal year	28,421,581
Increase in 1909	$2,435,640

In addition in 1909, $3,464,200 in foreign gold and $14,004 in foreign silver was sent us through Alaska.

Total commerce with us in 1909:

Merchandise sent us from Alaska	$13,055,355
Alaskan gold and silver sent us	17,801,876
Foreign gold and silver sent us through Alaska	3,478,204
Merchandise sent Alaska by us	17,196,445
Total commerce	$51,531,880

A yearly trade more than seven times in value what the whole Territory originally cost us, namely, $7,200,000.

TRANSPORTATION.

On the Seward Peninsula, the Council City and Solomon River Railway and the Seward Peninsula Railway continue in operation.

The Copper River and Northwestern Railway is still constructing up the Copper River Valley. On July 25, 1909, this railroad began operating the first fifty-five miles of its road extending from Cordova to a point above Abercrombie Rapids on the Copper River. By the close of the season it completed about 100 miles of railroad. During the summer the company employed about three thousand men on construction and maintenance.

The Alaska Central Railway, under direction of the receiver, laid twenty-one miles additional track during the summer, and has now seventy-five miles of road completed.

The Tanana Mines Railway continues to operate its road successfully from Chena and Fairbanks to the outlying creeks and mining camps.

The Yakutat and Southern Railway is a short road running from Yakutat Bay to the salmon streams south. The railroad has fifteen miles of track, but its only use is to transport fish from the salmon streams to the cannery located at Yakutat.

Increased transportation is very necessary for the Yukon and Susitna valleys and the interior of Alaska.

The future development of the valuable Territory will depend very largely upon all-the-year-round easy communication between the coast and the interior. Urging government aid for certain needed roads, the Governor says:

"If the government does not assume a part of the burden of interior transportation (by railroads) permanent development of the interior will have to wait until such time as discoveries of phenomenal mineral deposits will justify private capital in the construction of railroads."

With the completion of the Copper River and Northwestern Railroad and a summer communication to the Bonanza mine, a large permanent camp will be established on the south slope of the Alaskan range of mountains, from which men can prospect for copper in this range of mountains, and north to the headwaters of the White River, where very promising indications of copper are already known.

Railroad construction from the coast to the Yukon Valley is pressingly needed, but it cannot be had without Congressional aid for building and for maintenanme for ten or fifteen years.

It is urged that the government should secure railroads to Alaska in some such way as is being done in the Philippine Islands.

AGRICULTURE.

The agent of the Department of Agriculture has been conducting experiment stations in various sections of Alaska with satisfactory results. The new station near Fairbanks, where there are large areas of rolling ground, will be of great value in demonstrating the agricultural possibilities in that large valley.

Oats and wheat are reported to have fully matured at Rampart and in the Tanana Valley.

The Manly Hot Springs in the Tanana Valley and the hot springs near Nome continue to grow a large variety of vegetables and plants with success.

STOCK RAISING.

Several experiments in raising cattle on the islands of the Aleutian group are being made and bid fair to be successful. The government is experimentingg with raising sheep and Galloway cattle on Kodiak Island.

GOLD.

Gold is successfully mined throughout the whole district. The development of recent discoveries of veins carrying high-grade ore have been very encouraging, and there seems to be a revival of interest in gold-quartz mining throughout Southeastern Alaska.

Discoveries of quartz carrying high values have been made in the Fairbanks mining districts, and a limited amount of development work has been done with encouraging results. High-grade gold ores have been discovered on the Kenai Peninsula near Moose Pass and on Willow Creek, and the best of these prospects are being developed.

Placer mining continues in a small way in Southeastern Alaska and the beach at Cape Yaktag and in Cook Inlet. This character of mining continues throughout the Yukon Valley, and activities in the Fairbanks district continue unabated. Increased interest is shown in the prospecting in the Susitna and Kuskokwim valleys, and encouraging reports are made of these districts. A large number of prospectors and miners are there. On the Seward Peninsula drift mining is giving way to dredging and hydraulic mining. Decreasing opportunities for the individual miner and prospector on Seward Peninsula have been followed by an increase in the prospecting for lodes and veins carrying precious metals. Reports of promising discoveries along these lines are being made from time to time.

COPPER.

Continued low price of copper prevented much development of prospects for this metal. With the completion of the Copper River and Northwestern Railroad to the Chitina Valley, and the extension of the Alaska Central to the Matanuska Valley, and with a moderate increase in the price of copper, a renewed activity in prospecting and the development of the valuable copper mines of the Territory can be expected.

COAL.

Coal is widely distributed throughout Alaska and is found to be of very high grade in the Matanuska and Bering River valleys. Workable deposits of coal are also found on Seward Peninsula. No titles having been secured to any coal lands in the Territory, development of the deposits has not been made. Once title to the coal lands in the Bering River and Matanuska fields is given to the locators, development will follow rapidly, as transportation seems to be assured to these fields.

Coal mining can be made a permanent and profitable industry in Alaska and the establishment of [illegible] will aid materially in the development of the great, latent resources of the Territory.

OTHER MINERALS.

Other minerals under development are marble (increasingly so,) gypsum, petroleum, tin, silver, antimony, graphite, bismuth, cinnabar, and talc.

NATIONAL FORESTS.

During the year the national forests were extended in Southeastern Alaska. The administration of the forests is meeting with general approval. The timber is being conserved and its liberal use provided for, without hampering the development of the country. Shipments of small lots of timber to points east of the Rocky Mountains in the United States, have begun. The mines usually have their own sawmills, and other mills supply local needs. A large percentage of the timber in Southeastern Alaska is overripe and should be removed to give way for a new growth.

	Acres.
Tongass	15,480,388
Chugach	11,280,640
Total acres	26,761,028

The Alaskan national forests are:

EDUCATION INCREASING.

The people of Alaska continue their interest and pride in the public schools and they were administered with gratifying results during the year. Schools in the incorporated towns are supported largely by license moneys and are under the control of school boards and town councils. Schools have been successfully maintained at Chena, Douglas, Eagle, Fairbanks, Juneau, Ketchikan, Nome, Skagway, Valdez and Wrangell.

Twenty-one other small schools, established under the "Nelson Bill," had 684 pupils and cost $40,762 to maintain.

Government schools for the education of natives increased from sixty-two to sixty-nine. Pupils increased in the year from 3067 to 3725, a gain of 21 per cent. These are now in charge of the Federal Bureau of Education, whose efforts, extending also to adults, are already beginning to show results, with good prospects of further efficiency.

TRIBUTE TO MISSIONS.

The Governor says: "The Presbyterians, the Roman Catholics, the Moravians, the Swedish Evangelical, the independent missionary, William Duncan at Metlakatla, and the Orthodox Greek church, which has been generously maintained and supported in Alaska by the Russian government, continue their good work, and the influence of their schools and missions is very apparent among the natives. Where the missions have been established for a considerable length of time, the natives have greatly advanced in civilization through their influence. This influence covers a wide field, and their continuance should be encouraged in every way possible."

LABOR IN GOOD DEMAND.

There was profitable employment for labor throughout the year. The supply has about equaled the demand, except at Cordova, where there has been an extraordinary demand for labor in the construction of the Copper River and Northwestern Railway. Wages were maintained at the old standard.

PROSPERITY ELSEWHERE.

The night and day forces at the locomotive building plant in Schenectady, N. Y., now number 4200 men. January will see an output of fifty completed locomotives, and seventy will be turned out in February. The company has orders enough to keep the plant busy for some months.

"The Northwest is full of activity," says Howard Elliot, president of the Northern Pacific. "Banks have lots of money to loan and everything points to a busy year. Lots of snow now indicates plenty of moisture in the spring and good crops. It means water for the irrigation projects and mining operations."

The tremendous activity that is expected this year (following the great activity of last year,) in the movement of Lake Superior iron ores, is indicated by the announcement that the steel corporation has chartered vessels to move 15,000,000 tons, while it will move about 12,000,000 tons in its own vessels, thus making the immense tonnage of 27,000,000 tons this year for the one leading interest. Independent interests will move 23,000,000 tons, making a grand total for this year of 50,000,000 tons, says the Iron Trade Review. It is worth repeating again—"when iron is busy, all other trades are busy."

Ten million dollars' worth of Western Telephone Company bonds were offered to the public in New York on Monday, and were all sold by early Tuesday. A good sign of increased financial prosperity.

Cambria Steel Company stock is now paying 5 per cent. annually instead of the former 3 per cent.

"At the head of the oil-producing fields of the United States stands California, with a lead of 10,000,000 barrels a year over its nearest competitor, the Mid-Continent field. The production of California in 1909 amounted approximately to 58,000,000 barrels, an increase of about 10,000,000 barrels over the previous year," says the Daily Mining Record of Denver, Colo.

Mexico's copper production in 1909 was 125,982,688 pounds, against 89,576,464 pounds in 1908. Most of it is smelted in the United States, making more business for us.

Five million dollars' worth of gold produced in this country in 1909 than in 1908—from $94,000,000 to $99,000,000. The chief gains were:

Nevada	$3,219,000
California	1,941,600
Alaska	1,088,600

For the first time in its history, the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad—the "Nickel Plate"—pays dividend on its common stock—3 per cent. per annum. The general business prosperity brought that happy result.

One shipbuilding company on the lakes reports orders for thirty new vessels, the cost of which will be at least $10,000,000.

Some recent mining dividends:

Company and Date—	Amount.
Phelps Dodge, December 31	$2,012,507
Goldfield Consolidated, January 1	1,800,000
American Smelting, January 15	1,875,000
Calumet and Hecla, December 22	900,000
Nevada Consolidated, December 31	750,000
United States Smelting	630,773
Osceola, January 26	578,000
National Lead	687,488
Guggenheim Exploration, January 1	425,000
Nipissing, January 20	450,000
El Oro, December 30	413,100
North Butte, December 23	400,000
Copper Range, January 1	384,185
Utah Copper, December 31	342,975
Yukon Gold, December 31	350,000
Tonopah Mining, January 1	250,000

And so on—some forty or fifty other mining companies.

Some export increases in 1909:

Cotton	$22,300,000
Copper	2,000,000
Tobacco, leaf	4,300,000
Upper leather	4,100,000
Cotton cloths	6,200,000
Lubricating oil	3,000,000
Coal, anthracite	800,000
Furs and fur skins	2,700,000
Boots and shoes	1,400,000
Iron pipes and fittings	1,900,000
Rails for railways	2,500,000
Electrical instruments	1,500,000
Typewriters	1,100,000
Automobiles	2,300,000
Wire	800,000
Paraffin	700,000
Locks, hinges, etc.	500,000
Coal, bituminous	900,000
Sole leather	600,000

Ten million barrels of cement will be the output this year of the Universal Portland Cement Company.

Eighteen thousand tons of structural iron and steel were ordered last week in this country.

Five thousand, five hundred freight cars were ordered last week by only three roads. Orders pending for 15,000 tons more.

Two Important Date

Monday, January 31st

Last day to purchase stock at $3.05 a share and participate in our 56th quarterly cash dividend.

Tuesday, February 15th

The day when this cash dividend amounting to

Over $90,000.00

will be paid to the stockholders (now over 3600) in this the Largest Co-Operative Building Co. in the World

All stock purchased for cash, or under our payment plan, up to Monday night, January 31st, will share in this dividend.

A Few Important Points

regarding our stock as an investment.

Dividends (payable quarterly) advanced from 24% to 26% a year.

Besides drawing the regular dividends, the stock advances in value each quarter, as the assets and surplus show large gains each quarter.

Small stockholders absolutely protected against loss in case they want to sell their stock, by a guarantee fund held by the Globe Savings Bank.

All stockholders participate, share and share alike, in all profits of the Company, including the big profits on Real Estate.

At Riverside, California

In the Last Large Tract of the Land That Made Riverside Famous

Land and Water

This land is a part of and equal in all respects to the soil that has made Riverside famous the world over as an orange-growing district.

There is more water than the cultivators of the land can use, which will be supplied at cost. A storage reservoir and lake with a capacity of 130,000,000 gallons is located close by.

The high price of producing oranges has been prohibitive to many in recent years. Here is your opportunity to secure at the price of ordinary acreage the best orange land in California. And there is none better for lemons.

Bear in mind that La Sierra Heights is a part of Riverside, with its schools, churches, shops and cultured community, and close to a profitable market.

This is a ground-floor, sub-cellar proposition if there ever was one. For home-making, cultivation or investment, La Sierra Heights presents an opportunity that will probably never be equaled in Southern California, and such as has not been available in recent years.

Grasp Quickly This Great Opportunity to Secure Proved Orange and Lemon Land, With Water Rights, at the Price of Ordinary Acreage.

WE HAVE THE WATER NOW.

Price, Per Acre, from $300 to $450, With Co-Operative Ownership of Water System, Insuring Water to Land Owners at Cost. No Profit to Water Company.

To Homemakers and Investors

The half is not told, in this advertisement, about La Sierra Heights. We want you to grasp its magnitude; to know what will be done to make it the best and most profitable property in a section famous the world over for the superiority of its products and the enormous profits made from them.

We shall retain and cultivate 2500 acres of La Sierra Heights ourselves for the profits to be made. That is what we think of the property.

Call, and make a personal investigation. It will be time well spent.

There are many who would own an orange grove, but who have not the time to cultivate it; perhaps they are non-residents.

For the benefit of these, we have established a horticultural department of the Riverside Groves and Water Company, which will upon the most approved plan, plant, water, fertilize and care for the trees, under the personal superintendence of an expert orange culturist, for any desired period.

This work will be carefully and economically done, at the lowest possible charge for the service rendered.

DIGGING FOR OLD MEXICO.

re Relics Found Under the Streets of Capital.

ch Workers Uncover Many Piles of Bones.

ientists and Authorities to Further Industry.

CIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

EXICO CITY, Jan. 24.—Dig a ditch Mexico City, and you will find some of a past age. Oftenest it is ly a rag and a bone and a hank hair, but it inevitably stirs up a sion. Sometimes it is a god and ld ring. The god goes to the mu and the man with the pickax times gets away with the gold So much of ancient history re s to be wrought out here that n needs to be surprised that the ar logists are jealous of all finds.

t who would suppose that an arch p, buried only sixty-four years would come up to create surprise, to say consternation? Yet this what actually happened a few s ago, when workmen delving into earth to put a new foundation un the magnificent main altar of the edral, brought to light the life features of the Rev. Manuel Po y Gardufias, who was the first an archbishop after indepen e's alive! He's alive!" exclaimed workmen as they dropped their and scrambled out of the ditch. gathered about and said it miracle. Possibly so, far al the coffin in which the distin prelate had been buried had rotted away, his body lay in t state of preservation, with ad inclined slightly to the left in a blissful slumber.

wise ones were sent for, and they came, they chattered a , looked up some documents and embered that an archbishop really been buried at the foot of the altar thing that does not stretch much d the middle of the last century ually easy of solution, but when or other relics that date back the sixteenth century or beyond are arthed they allow more play to the gination.

EVERYBODY IS INTERESTED.

ybody here takes to archeology or less. Father Tim O'Connor, is a recent arrival, is able to Spanish because he is well school in Latin. When he read in a morn paper the story of the unearthing the remains of the archbishop he greatly interested, and when he told about other discoveries of a ar character recently made, he his cane down emphatically in the e of the street and remarked nly: "Ten feet below this as the dead and forgotten ages are and remembered."

Father O'Connor is right. The g of a modern city on the site that was founded nearly six red years ago necessitates many ations, and almost anywhere in the older parts of the city when the man with a pickax goes ten feet deep he must keep his nerves with him and not be afraid of ghosts.

It has recently become necessary to run a large trench through the entire length of the city, sealed on all four sides with reinforced concrete, through which is to be laid a strong, earthquake-proof water main four feet in diameter. This trench, or tunnel as it becomes after it is covered over, passes immediately in front of the cathedral. There such a conglomeration of human bones was found, in various States of decay, that it was impossible to tell how many persons the bones represented; but there were enough to make a fair-sized country graveyard if they had all been laid out in decent order.

The archeologists and croneologists from the museum were summoned, and the first opinion expressed was that these bones were the remains of Aztecs. Possibly they were those who were salughtered in sacrifice on the Teocali, or possibly those who fell when Cortes's cohorts stormed the stronghold of Moctezuma's valiant defenders.

TEMPLE ON HISTORIC SITE.

The cathedral is built on the very spot where the heathenish temple of human sacrifice stood. It is the second one that has occupied the site, the first proving to be too small. The present cathedral was begun in 1573, thirty-four years before the English made their first settlement at Jamestown, in what is now the United States. The pile of bones found in front of the grand building might date back so far that students of ancient things might be excused for doing a little guesswork before they get their bearings. It has been found, after a careful investigation and the digging up of some ancient documents, that the bones were not those of ancient Aztecs, but the remains of pious people which once had had a semi-decent burial in a cemetery that was attached to the cathedral.

The custom that was in vogue then in regard to graves still prevails in Mexico. You must buy your burial lot outright and mark "Perpetua" on your tombstone if you want to rest there forever. Otherwise, if you only rent a lot, your bones will be dug up when the lease expires and thrown out into a heap with the others who have sought only a temporary resting place. So it was with these bones found in front of the cathedral, which puzzled the scientists for several days. They were only a heap that had been thrown out and afterward put under ground again when the church authorities wanted to make some improvements about the premises.

Gods and golden rings were dug up several years ago back of the cathedral in la Calle de las Escalerillas (street of the little steps, stairways, ladders.) Nothing of value except bones—and they are valuable only in an instructive way—have been found recently. Possibly this year, and certainly not later than next year, the International College of Archeology will be established here, a scientific institution, in which at least six great nations are interested. When the professors and experts from Yale, Harvard, Oxford, Heidelberg, Liepsig and other institutions of learning gather here with the Mexican authorities we probably shall know more.

GROPE ALONG WATER MAIN.

In the meantime, we are merely groping along the water main. Six blocks to the west of the cathedral the ditch has brought to light something that proves that even though you may have carved on your tombstone the word "Perpetua," you are not sure that the asphalt pavement and the electric street cars will not run over you. At least, it was so two centuries ago. Near where the steel frame of the big national theater is being filled in with concrete and sheathed with Italian marble, the ditch diggers unearthed a tablet on which was carved the name of "Doña Cathalina de Peralta." Beneath this was found two skulls, and near by were the remains of a monument. Historians have dug up some ancient documents to match the find, and inform us that Doña Cathalina (the name was spelled so in the seventeenth century) was the founder of the Santa Isabel convent.

Indeed, the street in which the remains were discovered was known as Santa Isabel until last year, when it was changed to Teatro Nacional. All trace of the convent has disappeared. How her tombstone came to be in the middle of the street has not been very satisfactorily explained, but in the days of the Reform, streets were cut ruthlessly through convents and monasteries, and not all the details of the demolition that started the building of the modern city were recorded.

Father O'Connor must be right. "Ten feet below this asphalt, the dead and forgotten ages are alive and remembered." Farther down there is something else we would like to look into—and so would the engineers. It is possibly the crater of a very ancient volcano, which has been filled to the depth of 300 feet with mud. But we must wait for the geologists to solve it. For the present we must be content to talk of tombstones and epitaphs.

DIAZ WILL BE CHOSEN AGAIN.

A THIRD TERM FOR PRESIDENT.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 22.—This is Presidential year in Mexico, yet a quieter campaign year could scarcely be imagined. President Diaz's seventh term of office expires November 30, and in June there must take place an election for President and Vice-President for the succeeding term of six years. The election this year will be the second in which a Vice-President is included. The constitutional amendment providing for the election of a Vice-President was adopted in 1904, at the same time the Presidential term was extended from four to six years.

The man chosen for the position of Vice-President was Ramon Corral, formerly Governor of the State of Sonora, but at the time Secretary of the Interior. Unlike the Vice-President of the United States, he is not a figurehead. Sr. Corral still holds the important post of secretary of government, which means more than the position of Secretary of Interior in the United States.

It was believed at the time that Corral was selected for the position of Vice-President that he was slated to succeed President Diaz, and that presumption may yet hold good. The plan might have gone through smoothly had not a terrific campaign been opened last year, some fourteen months before the actual election was to occur, which was directed in a large measure against Corral. Nothing definite or worthy of serious consideration could be said against him, but the opposition made its fight on the question, "What has Corral done?"

What he had done was nothing flashy or heroic, but was efficient work in a business and progressive administration, which did not appeal to a large portion of the populace as qualifying him as successor to the great Gen. Porfirio Diaz. It was this opposition, most probably, and the character of the men who were put forward as its leaders that determined President Diaz again to consent to the use of his name as a candidate. The developments of the early campaign showed that if the administration candidate for the Presidency was to be Corral, there would be an intense opposition; if it was to be Diaz there would be almost none. So the supporters of the administration proposed again the ticket of Diaz and Corral and the continuation of the period of peace and prosperity.

WANTS REAL POLITICAL PARTIES

It undoubtedly was the desire of President Diaz to retire from public life at the close of the present term, and it may be difficult for people living in the United States to understand just why he did not keep to this determination. His action may be explained by the simple fact that his desire to see organized in Mexico real political parties failed to materialize. The campaign that developed rapidly and hotly showed that the politics in Mexico is still almost wholly personal. One is either a Porfirista, Corralista, Reyista, or something else with somebody's name attached to it, and the platform on which either of the leaders might stand counts for little. It is the man, not the measure. Disappointed in this respect, Gen. Diaz entered the race again, and his name carries a weight that overbalances all the rest, so he and Corral will be elected.

It is true that the leading supporters of Gen. Bernardo Reyes, at that time Governor of the State of Nuevo Leon, were willing to enter him as a candidate for Vice-President in place of Corral, but there are several reasons why the supporters of the President could not accept him as such. Let it be understood that Gen. Reyes is a military man. His name would not have been put forward had he not won great renown as a military commander. On this score, too high praise cannot be given him; but into his work of civil administration he carried the daring and domineering spirit that made him successful on the battlefield, and this brought upon him the distrust and enmity of the party of Peace. "La Paz" here is always to be spelled with a capital letter, for it is worshiped by the multitudes as a sort of deity of modern Mexico. No less was Gen. Diaz a great military leader, but his administration brought the Peace, and it is in this victory that he prides himself more than in the capture of Puebla from the French invaders.

REYES BETRAYS CONFIDENCE.

At the beginning of the century, Reyes was invited by President Diaz to accept the portfolio of Secretary of War. The great confidence thus placed in him by the President was betrayed. It was found that Reyes was organizing the army in his own behalf. Furthermore, when he found that the President desired Mexico's great financier, José Yves Limantour, to take the reins of government, a bitter newspaper campaign was opened against Limantour, which was traced directly to Gen. Reyes. Following this exposure, Reyes left the Cabinet—resigned, the official report says.

Such things made it impossible that Reyes's name should be used on the same ticket with that of Porfirio Diaz. The Reyista campaign went on, however, and soon some dangerous elements were developed. It is highly probable that Reyes was more the victim of his "friends" than of his ambition. The people who supported him were largely of the new generation—young men who have never seen a war, but who would like to mix into some kind of a fight. In the United States it has been found necessary to have a war about every thirty years in order to satisfy the militant feeling of every generation as it arises. Here in Mexico people have been born and grown to be more than thirty years old without having an opportunity to shoot at anybody—all because of Diaz's peace.

People who wore the red carnation of Gen. Reyes prided themselves on being "hombres de sangre." Whom they wanted to fight was not made clear, except that it included anybody from Guatemala to the United States. The immediate developments indicated that they preferred to fight Mexicans, and after a serious riot at Guadalajara and one at Guanajuato, Reyes and Reyism was suppressed. Pressure was brought to bear to induce Reyes to resign his position as Governor of Nuevo Leon. Not an inconsiderable part of this pressure proceeded from the citizens of that State. After a visit to President Diaz, Gen. Reyes left for Europe. At no time was he under arrest or physical restraint.

Of his treatment, Gen. Reyes cannot consistently complain. The use of force to secure an election was not a new idea with him. In his State there was a large opposition to him, and on April 2, 1903, when the opposition defiled a long procession through the streets of Monterey to the main plaza, where speeches were to be made for the opposition candidate for Governor, there was considerable shooting and six persons were killed. Who started it cannot be said as a certainty, but the affair was immediately followed by the arrest of all the leaders of the opposition, after which Reyes was elected almost unanimously. Since then nobody has been killed in an election row in Mexico, but the Reyistas were making a beginning in that direction when precautions were taken to prevent it in the latter part of last year.

With the departure of Gen. Reyes, there appears to be little opposition to Diaz and Corral, or what opposition there is, does not seem to be able to center upon a candidate. Efforts are still being made to organize the Democratic party, and it may be able to make a beginning in this campaign. Probably six years hence parties will have been organized for the campaign, much as they are in the United States. The development will find its principal field, however, in the chambers of the national Congress, and not around great generals. Already in State campaigns, with the better education of the people, there have been shown freer and more enlightning discussion of State policies and a gratifying absence of personalities.

Will President Diaz resign after he is elected?

This is a question frequently asked, but no definite answer can be given. While he is in his eightieth year, he is still strong, mentally and physically. There is nothing to indicate that he will not be able to serve through another term of six years. But there is a belief that he will find an occasion to turn over the reins of the government to Ramon Corral some time after his inauguration, December 1.

Corral is an able man, well versed in affairs of government and in harmony with the peaceful and progressive policies of Diaz. President Taft has said that, during the interview with President Diaz at Juarez, the latter intimated to him strongly that he would visit him at Washington. This is taken as a confirmation of the belief that President Diaz will take his first opportunity to voluntarily end his long public career.

RAILROAD INTERESTS.

The Panama Railroad Company, which is controlled by the United States government, shows a surplus for the year, after all deductions, of $1,522,780, an increase over 1908 of $493,923. The net earnings of the steamship line amount to $104,996, as against a deficit the year previous of $179,811.

"Exactly three years ago James J. Hill made his famous declaration that the railroads would require $5,500,000,000 new capital in five years to cope with the country's needs," says the New York Journal of Commerce. "The financial panic interfered with borrowing and likewise modified necessities, so that the ratio of $1,100,000,000 per annum has not been quite maintained. Including the amounts raised for refunding purposes, separate statistics not being practicable, the railroads issued $957,000,000 new securities in 1907, of which bonds contributed $440,000,000 and notes $268,000,000. In 1908 the railroads floated almost a billion dollars ($999,115,376) new issues, including $604,000,000 bonds and $274,000,000 notes. Last year Mr. Hill's figure was nearly attained, the total being $1,015,000,000, consisting of $653,856,900 bonds, $52,786,580 notes and $309,064,800 stocks. Had the upheaval in Wall street not occurred, Mr. Hill's estimate would have been wonderfully near the mark."

Figures prepared by the management of the Harriman lines show that the number of colonists taken into the Pacific Coast region last year greatly exceeded the number for any previous year, being about 70 per cent. over 1908. The period of colonist rates was only half as long last fall as in previous years.

The western railroads terminating at Chicago have decided upon a uniform mileage book, which, beginning March 1, will replace all other forms of mileage books. The books will be sold at a flat rate of $40, to cover 2000 miles, and will be issued with slightly varying conditions. One coupon will be taken for each mile in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Northern Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Wisconsin and parts of South Dakota. Five coupons for four miles, or 2½ cents per mile, will be taken in Missouri, Wyoming, Texas, Montana and South Dakota, west of the Missouri River. In New Mexico three coupons for two miles will be detached.

The Railroad Age-Gazette presents figures showing that in the United States and Canada there were 96,419 cars and 2887 locomotives built in 1909, exclusive of what were built in the railroad companies' own shops. As compared with 1908, which was very dull, cars show an increase of little more than 18,000 and the locomotives 545. But look at the figures for 1907—namely, 289,645 cars and 7362 engines built. In 1906 there were also very liberal orders—thus, 243,670 cars and 6952 engines. We must turn back to 1904 to find car figures below 168,000 and engine figures below 5400.

The New York Central has concluded traffic arrangements with the Western Maryland Railroad, which will give the former entrance into the coal regions of West Virginia. A connecting line of eighty-three miles is to be built, the funds for which will be furnished by the Rockefeller interests, which dominate the Western Maryland.

THE ART SPARK.

SOUL OF THE WORKMAN.

Wonderful Exhibition of Pictures by Men Who Work Hard for Their Daily Bread Brought Together in Berlin.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—One would hardly imagine that the conditions of life the modern workingman, even in a country where social legislation is so advanced as in Germany, would be calculated to bring out that leaning toward the artistic which is within every man and woman in one form or another. Highly educated and independent-minded as the majority of German workmen are, it might excusably be supposed that creative art would only find expression in that small minority of their number whose work brings them into daily contact with the more refined crafts. Owing to the inventive activity of the press agent and a glut of prodigy tenors, the world has become a little skeptical of the talent that blooms modest and alone until its possessor is discovered, by some chance, and stands revealed to publicity as an accomplished although untrained artist. This skepticism is disarmed, however, in the case of an exhibition of pictures which has attracted considerable attention in the German capital. It is nothing less than a collection of paintings and etchings by absolutely untrained German working men, got together from the four quarters of the empire and hung in gay disorder, the very good by the side of the very bad, the inspired cheek by jowl with the tasteless and banal.

The collection, which is the first of its kind, has been formed by Dr. Adolf Levenstein, a psychologist, who has made a special study of the mentality of the German workingman. The 655 pictures the exhibition comprises are housed in the upper rooms of a beer restaurant in the busy Potsdamer strasse, in the heart of Berlin. The exhibitors include canal workmen, shoe makers, carpenters, weavers, mechanics, compositors, saddlers, masons, lithographers, locksmiths, upholsterers, painters, miners, bricklayers, gardeners, cigar workers, tailors and a score or more of trades with their infinite subdivisions. All the artists are Social Democrats, for the collection was got together under the auspices of the Red party, and, indeed, it is not hard to recognize from the tendency of nearly all the pictures the class hatred and discontent preached by the world reformers.

There is no catalogue of the exhibition but by the side of every exhibit or group of exhibits is a printed slip giving the workman artist's name and details of his conditions of life. It is wonderful how a few bare facts about the personality of the artist illuminate the work of one of these proletariat painters. Here is the slip of the author of some charming colored illustrations, in picture poster style, for children's fairy books:

Name, Heinrich Schultz.
Age, 31.
Married? Unmarried.
Trade, printer.
Education, national schools.
Average weekly wage, $8.

The work of this humble printer is full of energy, and, as an exception, reveals an eye susceptible to the beauties of nature, the blue sky and the green fields, little of which he must see earning his $8 a week in the noisy composing room. Nearly all the talent seems to lie in the printing and lithographing trades, although a chainmaker, a baker's apprentice, a chair carver and a carpenter all display signs of unmistakable talent. The chainmaker, with a weekly wage of $4.20, contributes some exquisitely finished etchings of some of the cities of the Rhine, his natal region. The chair carver is represented by some charming water-color sketches of scenery on the shores of Lake Michigan. This man was discontented with his life in Chicago, and returned to Berlin and $5 a week, after five years of the United States. One lithographer, whose travels must have taken him to England, has sent in a series of most artistically finished pen and ink drawings of St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey in London, and a delightful water-color study of a typical London costermonger selling cabbages off a handbarrow. Here is the card of Frederick Pellmann, bookbinder (in German a generic term including the pasteboard and boxmaking trades,) whose clever work in pen and ink and in sepia illustrations to German fairy tales, stands in such glaring contrast with the grim legend of poverty: "Wages, $1 a week, with free board and lodging."

The gems of the whole collection are, however, unquestionably the work of a 20-year-old stone-carver of Dresden, who is earning $5 a week. His are some marvelously suggestive sketches in pastels of nooks and corners of the pearl of the Elbe, his native city, a flying buttress of the church, a projecting gable of the palace, simply drawn but full of all the dignity of age, the stately repose of ancient buildings. It seems hardly credible that a youth, brought up in the national schools and toiling in the masons' shops from morning till night, should have been able to cull from his every-day surroundings these insignificant features and lend them such notably artistic expression. His talent is real. It is clearly manifested in some delightfully humorous drawings of foremen and fellow-workmen, "The Architect and the Baron," two mates thus nick-named in a cheap restaurant, rough sketches of faces seen in the streets, policemen, postmen, sailors. He has a rare command of line.

Analyser of the Soul of the Workman.

But a visit to this workman's art exhibition is worth while, if only for the sake of the insight it affords into the psychology of the German workman. Here is a whole series of caricatures; evidently dashed off for the amusement of the compositors, of the staff of a newspaper foundry. The spectator, though he does not know the originals, feels that these are living caricatures, these droll sketches of the dandy of the works, the beery master printer, the greasy little Polish Jew who pays the wages, and so on. Their author, himself a compositor, is obviously quite unaware of his talent as is evidenced by the rough texts appended to the caricatures; he found he had a gift which made his fellows laugh and brought a little sunshine into the greyness of industrial Berlin and he used it as God gave it to him.

But the majority of the pictures are of the grey, depressed impressionist school. There are some exhibits by men employed in the great steel and electricity works, showing accidents; a little group of horror-stricken workmen about a huge swiftly-revolving machine, waiting in thrilled silence for the Behemoth to render up the victim it has sucked into its jaws. There are three mournful sketches in chalks, which one feels, reproduce all the terror instilled into the heart of a sensitive man by the vast problem of life, the unanswered question why some may idle while others must work. These deeply impressive pictures are by a carpenter, who, in a sketch of his carpenter's workshop, shows himself plunged in thought while his fellow-workmen sleep away the lunch hour. How does religion reveal itself in the worker? Look at this rather garish oil painting—"Death and Life" its author calls it. He is a baker and painted this picture night after night as he tended the bread ovens in a cellar bakery in Berlin. It represents all the fruits of its creator's bitter night reflections, the thought that he was sacrificing health and a mind striving after higher things in nightly labor that the rest of the world might eat.

On the imaginative side one of the most remarkable and interesting exhibits in the entire collection is a big frame containing sepia sketches made during his years of retirement after he had got past his work by an old coal miner who had spent forty years of his life underground. These pictures are naive and unpretentious, but they show the workings of the miners' imaginations; the faces and fantastic forms which the shining masses of coal, the trickling streams of water, the grimy supports, assume in the distorted visions of the toilers in the bowels of the earth.

GOLD PRODUCT OF THE WORLD.

The Total Increase for 1909 Was $14,122,753, or 3.2 Per Cent.

[Engineering and Mining Journal:] The different gold-producing countries of the world in 1909 not only kept up the great output of recent years, but again increased it in a marked degree. The return from the gold mines was greater than had ever before been recorded in a single year. Gold mining was successfully prosecuted in many countries and most of them increased their returns, by the opening of new mines, by the intensive working of old ones or by close recovery of metal from the ores in some cases by a conjunction of all three methods. The total increases in the world's production in 1909, as compared with 1908, was $14,122,753, or 3.2 per cent.

GOLD PRODUCTION OF THE WORLD.

Country—	1908.	1909.
Transvaal	$145,819,016	$151,900,000
United States	94,560,000	96,500,000
Australia	73,314,671	71,980,780
Russia	30,944,881	34,100,000
Mexico	24,318,548	26,000,000
Rhodesia	12,278,394	12,605,600
British India	10,424,067	10,566,500
Canada	9,550,274	10,750,000
China, Japan, Korea	10,615,850	11,000,000
West Africa	5,773,546	4,625,000
Madagascar	1,126,856	2,400,000
Other countries	24,488,752	25,000,000
Total	$442,434,527	$457,557,280

The figures for 1908 include the corrected official returns. For 1909 for nearly all the prominent countries—as Transvaal, Australia, Rhodesia and India—we have the official returns for eleven months, from which it is possible to estimate the month of December very closely. From Mexico and Russia there are partial returns and from several other countries information showing the general course of production. In all cases where estimates are required they have been made on a conservative basis, so that we believe the revisions later will increase rather than diminish, the total given.

The second table gives the total gold production of the world for twenty years past, during which period it has increased nearly fourfold.

1890	$118,848,700	1900	$258,829,706
1891	120,650,000	1901	260,877,429
1892	146,292,900	1902	298,812,493
1893	158,737,551	1903	329,475,401
1894	182,509,283	1904	349,088,293
1895	198,965,741	1905	378,411,654
1896	211,242,081	1906	405,551,022
1897	237,842,984	1907	411,294,458
1898	287,827,933	1908	443,424,527
1899	311,505,947	1909	457,567,290

This shows an almost continuous growth, with only a setback during the years of the Boer war, when the Transvaal production was cut off almost entirely.

The additions made to the world's visible stocks of gold in 1909 were, as nearly as can be ascertained, between 65 and 75 per cent. of the total production: that is, not far from $300,000,000. This includes gold actually coined and passing into circulation, and gold appearing either as coin or bullion in the bank and government reserves which form the basis of circulation and credit. The uncertain elements in the disposition of the gold mined are the quantities used in the arts, for which no definite figures are attainable; the quantities directly hoarded or concealed; and the quantities needed to replace gold lost. These losses arise from actual destruction, as by fire or wreck; from concealment in private hoards; from actual disappearance in the many minor forms which are constantly recurring and always escape record.

Large as was the increased monetary stock provided, it seemed hardly sufficient to meet the commercial demand, and there were at times during the year calls for gold from the important financial centers which could not be promptly supplied. European markets had the call, and took gold from the United States instead of sending it there, as in some previous years. That the new supplies of gold helped the general improvement in business there can be no doubt. That the betterment in conditions ran ahead of the increase in those supplies is another refutation of the theories of those who believe that the production of gold is the sole or the chief factor in commercial prosperity.

The gold reserves of the great banks of Europe were reported as follows in the closing weeks of 1908 and 1909. It must be understood that these sums practically represent the banking reserves of the respective nations, the custom being for them to hold the gold owned by private bankers, as well as their own. In the table the amounts are reduced to dollars:

	1908.	1909.
Bank of England	$ 153,082,010	$ 167,160,405
Bank of France	697,445,445	701,397,600

NICKELS IN CIRCULATION.

[Success:] This last summer 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 people made 20,000 trips to Coney Island. There they spent $40,000,000, most in nickels and dimes, and the total sum was three times what the nation paid to Napoleon for Louisiana, or six times what we paid Russia for Alaska.

There are in Coney Island peanut stands the size of a broad top desk which rent at $1500 a season. The men who sell frankfurters pay enormous sums for the right to stand where they do and get their money back in the nickels of the 20,000,000.

On week days the attendance is large, but on Sundays and holidays it rises to a point where each visitor has room only to be happy standing still. On the Fourth of July 400,000 people crowded into the little island, bathed, shot the chutes, were photographed, and ate "red-hots." It was believed then that Coney would not hold a single additional visitor, but on August 15, a new 100,000 came, making 500,000 in one day.

INSURANCE WORLD.

The New York Court of Appeals has handed down an interpretation of an accident insurance policy in the case of Clara Schumacher against the Great Eastern Casualty and Indemnity Company. The court holds that the company is liable under the wording of the policy for one-half the principal sum for death by septicemia, although the ultimate cause of death was not due to bodily injury. The company issued a policy to William Schumacher insuring him against the "effects of bodily injuries caused directly and independently of all other causes by external, violent and accidental means, which bodily injuries or their effects shall not be caused wholly or in part, directly or indirectly, by any bodily or mental disease, defect or infirmity," and against loss of life "when resulting from such injuries alone." Following this and in a separate paragraph it insured against "loss of life only, resulting wholly or in part from sunstroke, freezing, septicemia, hydrophobia or the involuntary or unconscious inhalation of gas," the amount payable under this clause to be one-half of the principal sum theretofore named. The insured died of septicemia, but not as the result of any bodily injury.

Atty.-Gen. Holcomb of Connecticut holds that foreign or non-Connecticut companies are in exactly the same category as the Hartford companies with reference to the insurance statute of Connecticut, which provides that no fire insurance company doing business in that State shall expose itself to loss on any one risk to an amount exceeding 10 per cent. of its paid-up capital and surplus. The Attorney-General holds that a violation of this provision, though done in another State, places such a hazard on the company that the safeguard to the holders of its policies is weakened to the same extent if these risks are assumed outside of the State, as if they were assumed within the State.

Gov. Fort of New Jersey recommends that the State authorities establish their own insurance fund and take from brokers the policies now held on State property, which amount to about $3,900,000. He takes the unique stand that because the State has suffered from no severe conflagration in the last few years there is every reason to believe there will not happen, for several years at least, any such destructive fire. If the average amount of the premiums paid per annum for the next ten years were transferred to an insurance fund, he says, we would have an abundance to make it reasonably safe to cease to insure the State's property.

A legislative committee has been appointed in New York State to investigate and examine the business and affairs of fire insurance companies doing business in that State. The committee is directed to conduct its inquiry especially with reference to the investment of such companies, the relations of their officers to such investments, the relation of such companies and its subsidiary corporations, the government and control of said companies, their contractual relations to their policy holders, the cost of fire insurance and the expenses of said companies.

Some twenty-five billion dollars of life insurance in various forms are in force in the United States, with accumulated assets of $4,000,000,000, of which $2,500,000,000 are held by the legal reserve companies. From fifteen to twenty million dollars a year is the toll paid by the life insurance policy holders of this country as a result of the lack of uniformity in State insurance laws and practices, declares L. G. Fouse, president of the Fidelity Mutual Life.

Acting under the forced-sale clause of the Armstrong law of New York, the Mutual Life Insurance Company has made profits of $11,000,000 on stocks in the last year and still holds stocks in other financial institutions that would bring a handsome profit. Its holdings in Guarantee Trust realized a profit of nearly $4,200,000, while on the sale of its United States Mortgage and Trust stock it made a profit of $3,300,000.

48 Miles East From Los Angeles—on the Santa Fe—at Rialto

In buying orange land—or any other land, for that matter—it is important to consider location—both as to its desirability as to place of residence, and its proximity to good markets. The Fontana citrus lands are adapted for orange grove homes, or for growing citrus fruits on a more extensive scale. Local packing houses pay top prices at all times.

Now on Sale, With Water, at $200 to $250 an Ac

If you are a prospective land buyer, and are unacquainted with the Rialto District—where Fontana lands are located—we want to say right here and now that you positively can not afford to buy before investigating this proposition. Not only is the land extremely productive, but there is water in plenty. The water goes with the land—one share of water stock with each acre purchased. The rights of the Fontana Company in Lytle Creek Canyon are perhaps the most firmly established of any water rights in Southern California.

This land is being sold on payment of one-fourth cash—balance one, two and three years, at 6 per cent. interest on deferred payments.

In the Great Orange Belt—Fine for Lemons and Grape F

There is no better orange land in Southern California—which in the world. Improved orange groves in this district are worth $1500 to $2000 an acre—and higher. Much of the land here is bearing lemon groves—which, almost without exception, are their owners splendid returns on the investment. Many of the ers in late years are devoting a great deal of attention to gra—another profitable industry. We shall be glad to furnish in parties with statistics and names of successful growers in the District, which is adjoining the lands of the Fontana Deve Company.

Call at the office of the company in Los Angeles, and see interesting of products from the Fontana citrus lands, or, if inconvenient to call, for illustrated map, which gives valuable information and descriptive tails of the property.

RUM, WHISKY, OR WHATISIT?

Puzzling New Production of Californians.

The Continued Lay-off of Senator Perkins.

Reclamation Service Dam in Modoc County.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—California, which is seldom satisfied to produce anything that does not rank as the best of its kind, has brought out another article of commerce which, by competent government experts, has been pronounced the finest of its class. It is a distillate from the refuse of the beet-sugar factories—what would probably answer to the molasses resulting from the manufacture of cane sugar. This dark-colored, rather unpleasant liquid, has been used to only a limited degree heretofore. It is of some value as stock feed, but on the whole was considered a waste by-product. The commercial genius of this utilitarian age is not, however, balked by precedent in utilizing waste, and the chemists of the western distilleries found a way to distill from this despised material a natural spirits resembling grain alcohol, but of even better quality; in fact, of the very highest quality and in a classification by itself. The latter statement found its justification when the difficulty arose as to the classification that should be given the spirits by the internal revenue department. According to the decision of President Taft in the whisky case, these spirits could not be called rum, although a by-product of the manufacture of sugar, because the material from which they were manufactured was not molasses. The spirits could not be called whisky, and there seems to be no classification which just fitted. The matter was taken up before the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in Washington, and John E. ngberg came on to represent the distilleries. It was urged that while the spirits merited a distinct classification, the cost of introducing a new article and acquainting the trade with its merits would not be justified, and, therefore, the best thing the manufacturers could hope for would be to call the new product "spirits," "alcohol," or "pure distillate." The stuff is used as a basis for whisky, for making explosive powder, in mixing paints and varnishes, by hospitals for medicinal purposes, and by druggists in compounding medicines. At this writing the Commissioner of Internal Revenue has not reached any decision except that the new distillate is not rum.

OUR ORATORICAL CONGRESSMEN.

We have referred at various times to the gifts of oratory possessed by several of the Congressmen from California. That they are in pretty constant demand should be proof of their popularity on the rostrum, but that they should receive public praise in the local press after they have delivered their orations, sort of clinches the matter. Recently Congressman Duncan E. McKinlay delivered a speech in New Britain, and the next day the New Britain Herald (January 12) contained the following:

"Like the wedding feast of biblical history in Cana of Galilee, the best wine was served until the last at last evening's feast of reason. Congressman Duncan E. McKinlay of California delivered one of the most interesting, instructive, and in every way enjoyable addresses heard in New Britain. He has a genial personality, fine presence, commanding figure and is equipped with a fund of information which is practically inexhaustible. A traveler who has studied all phases of life in the countries he has visited, he speaks with authority on nearly all subjects. 'American Manufactures' was his theme last evening. An abstract of his address is herewith printed:" (A report of the speech followed.)

ARCHITECTS WILL VISIT COAST.

The next annual meeting of the American Institute of Architects will be held on the Pacific Coast. The institute has not yet decided whether it will meet in San Francisco, Portland, or Los Angeles. Invitations have been received from all three cities. It is apparent that the majority of the members favor meeting in San Francisco. However, Los Angeles has made very strong inducements, and the meeting may go there. In any event, says [illegible] Brown, the secretary of the institute, the visiting architects will charter a train and visit the entire coast. They want to see Seattle and Portland, and they could not be induced to miss San Francisco and Los Angeles. The latter city is a center of special interest to architects. One feature which has been developed there to perfection is the bungalow type of detached house. "California bungalows" are known the country over for their quaint, picturesque, comfortable and moderate-priced characteristics. Being so near the southern city, the architects may decide to take a run down to San Diego, and so complete their coast tour even though no official invitation has yet been received from the beautiful city of "bay and climate."

BIG CALIFORNIA DAM.

Clear Lake dam, another large structure of the government Reclamation Service, is now practically completed. The dam is located on Lost River at the outlet of Clear Lake, in Modoc county. Its purpose is to form a reservoir impounding water for use in connection with the Klamath irrigation project. Excavation at the outlet was begun during the fall of 1908, and actual construction of the dam was begun in June, 1909. The dam is of the earth and rock-fill type, with concrete outlet works and spillway. Its extreme length is approximately 940 feet, and its extreme height, thirty-three feet. The reservoir has a surface area of approximately [illegible] acres, and a capacity of [illegible] cubic feet. The Klamath project involves perhaps the most unique engineering work yet undertaken by the government. A considerable portion of the lands to be irrigated are now covered by the waters of navigable lakes. This water is to be drawn off and the lake beds turned into agricultural lands. When completed the project will embrace nearly 200,000 acres of

VALUE OF ADVERTISING.

Some time ago the Los Angeles Times published an item about Farmers' Bulletin No. 203, and remarked that it was one which every woman ought to have and read, or words of similar import. At any rate, the women of California, and some who lived outside the State, having great faith in the judgment of The Times, took the advice to heart and acted on it. The net result was that Senator Flint, who seems to be looked on as the patron political saint of the good people of California—and especially of that part of the State south of the Tehachapi—began to receive letters with femininely inscribed superscriptions, asking in polite terms for Farmers' Bulletin No. 203. The Agricultural Department was asked for a consignment of the bulletin, which proved to be a scientific dissertation on jellies and jams. The consignment was soon exhausted, and as the letters kept right on coming, another consignment was asked for and a clerk was assigned to send them out, each with a polite personal note to the lady preferring the request. The letters came in increasing numbers and the clerk kept busy answering them. They are coming yet, and it looks as if a special appropriation will have to be set aside to get out a new edition of Bulletin No 203. There would seem to be a good prospect of a greatly increased output this year in California of high-grade jellies and jams of domestic manufacture.

WOULD MAKE OLEO STRONGER.

All sorts of correspondence passes through the Congressional mill. Many of the requests seem trivial and some of them foolish, yet intermingled with these are keen comment and wise suggestion. The conscientious man who is representing constituents in either branch of Congress neglects no one, but sees that every communication receives personal attention. One Congressman from California spent the better part of two days recently digging up information on a legal point in order to make an intelligent answer to a query from some correspondent who might have looked the matter up for himself. Sometimes the queries are distinctly humorous. One man wrote a short time ago from Stony Point to Senator Flint. He said that he had noticed some talk about modifying the laws relative to the manufacture and sale of oleomargerine. "Don't do it!" he exclaimed italically; "make it stronger!" Whether he meant the law or the oleo was not perfectly clear from the text of the letter.

MRS. BIDWELL HERE.

Mrs. John Bidwell, widow of Gen. Bidwell of Chico, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Alexander, with whom she will soon make an extended trip to Egypt. Mrs. Bidwell is well known in Washington, where her business talents as well as social graces are understood and appreciated. Californians here recall how Mrs. Bidwell when left a valuable, but involved estate by her husband, not only cleared it of incumbrances, but gave much to charity, built and dedicated a church, and gave to the city of Chico a park. The Bidwell estate has been famous from early days for its wonderful fertility and high state of cultivation. Very many varieties of fruits were introduced and acclimated in the United States by Gen. Bidwell on his princely estate.

SENATOR PERKIN'S ACCIDENT.

It took some time for people to realize that Senator Perkins had sustained really serious injuries when he slipped and fell on the icy pavement in front of the palatial apartment house, Stoneleigh Court, where he has lived ever since it was built. It seems that the management of the house had caused sawdust to be sprinkled on the sidewalk that morning, and when the Senator saw it he thought the footing was good and stepped briskly out to catch a car, being already five minutes late on his way to his office. The Senator is always out early and is as punctual as any clerk who has to punch the time on a recording clock. It happened that the sawdust still lay lightly on the surface of the ice and when the Senator stepped firmly on the glassy surface his foot shot out in front of him and he fell squarely and solidly on the flat of his back so suddenly that he could not even throw out his hands to save himself. The muscles of his back was consequently most severely wrenched and bruised, and the Senator's course two or three days later in sitting up for four hours at a stretch caused him to suffer a relapse from which he recovered most slowly and painfully. He received every attention possible, and tried to reassure his family. Mrs. Baker, who was Pansy Perkins, finally insisted on coming to Washington to see her father, although the latter tried to dissuade her from doing so. While the Senator seems to be making slow progress toward recovery, it is steady and the physicians in attendance declare that there is no cause to feel apprehension of complications which might delay his recovery.

HITCH IN THE COPPER TRUST.

Nevada Consolidated Control Not Obtained.

Phillips Asks Stockholders to Refuse.

Utah Copper Not Worth the Amount Asked.

The huge copper merger which the Guggenheims have planned has not been entirely successful, for the majority of the stock of the Nevada Consolidated has not yet been acquired, and President Phillips of the Nevada company has been doing everything in his power to prevent the control from passing into the hands of the syndicate.

Reports from New York show the announcement officially made that the merger of the Boston Consolidated Copper Company has been completed. The entire capital stock of the Boston company has been delivered to the Utah company, which turned over 310,000 shares of its own stock to Boston holders.

Shareholders representing nearly 50 per cent. of the Nevada Consolidated tendered their shares to the Utah Copper Company, and received shares in return for the same on the basis of one share of Utah for each two and one-quarter shares of Nevada delivered.

James Phillips, Jr., president of the Nevada Consolidated, in a strong letter to stockholders, claims that the Utah consolidation would not be for the best interests of the company, and claims that Nevada Consolidated is much better than the Utah company.

This letter has led to the refusal of the majority of the stockholders of the Nevada Consolidated to turn in their stock for that of the Utah company, and the fight for control of the Nevada will have to be waged at private sale or on the open board.

THE LETTER.

In part, Mr. Phillips wrote: "This consolidation was brought about by directors of the Nevada Consolidated, who also were heavily interested in Utah, and was not a fair proposition.

"We urged that the Utah company should pay for its own necessities; that the Nevada company should not be called upon to pay more than the real value of Boston Consolidated, which the Utah company was forced to buy, owing to the physical conditions at the Utah mine.

"Attention was drawn to the absurd claim that Utah and Boston Consolidated could pay their proportionate share of future dividends, and we demanded that proof of their ability to do so should be submitted to the board for examination. In connection with this it is extremely interesting to note that the Guggenheims' head engineer stated at this time that it will take from two and a half to three years to put the Utah company in a position to increase its production. Nevada today is paying dividends at the rate of $2,000,000, and Utah at the rate of $1,.00,000 per annum.

GUGGENHEIM PROMISE.

"Messrs. Guggenheim declared definitely and positively that unless these statements as to dividend earnings could be substantiated, the deal would fall through and no further attempt would be made to combine the Nevada with the Bingham properties. Without the fulfillment of one of these promises, the Utah offer was forced through the Utah board on the following Friday on the terms presented. Nor has your president had any proof that any of these promises made at the meeting have been kept.

"Even against the conviction and wish of some members of the Utah board, this trade was made on figures practically handed in by the Utah people, and on this date the agreement was carried through, notwithstanding the chief engineer himself could not certify as to the correctness of the Utah ores and assays."

The letter contends that an effort is being made to compel the stockholders to barter away the "most successful porphyry mine in the country, one of the largest smelters in the world, and a railroad which alone is conservatively valued today at $10,000,000 to $12,000,000, for a small minority in a mining property that possesses neither of these advantages, and to reach a determination upon the unverified figures of the engineers based upon the unchecked assay charts of the Utah company, all combined to force me to draw a comparison between the two companies."

Mr. Phillips declares that an investigation by competent engineers familiar with porphyry mining has brought out the following facts:

FROM ENGINEERS.

"(1.) The contour of the ground at Bingham is not adapted to steam-shovel work, while at Ely it is.

"(2.) The capping to be moved at Bingham is nearly double the thickness to be removed at Ely, and at a much greater cost.

"(3.) The Utah company is obliged to purchase surface rights from outsiders for dump room, while at Ely there is abundance of room for dumping waste.

"(4.) The cost of transporting ore at Bingham is much higher than at Ely, Nevada Consolidated owning its own railroad.

"(5.) The steam-shovel ore at Bingham is limited and short-lived without combination with other properties.

"(6.) Underground mining costs at Bingham very high. A large expenditure of money is necessary to enable the company to reduce these costs.

"(7.) The percentage of copper in the ore at Bingham is much lower than at Ely, and the extraction of the copper is more difficult; the net extraction per ton at Ely will be 50 per cent. greater than at the Utah mine.

"(8.) A greater amount of ground has been prospected at Bingham, practically defining their ore bodies, while at Ely only a small area has thus far been prospected. Nevada Consolidated has many times the Utah acreage.

"(9.) The Utah mill is in poor condition, requires an army of men to operate it, and in the near future large expenditures for railroad and mill equipment.

"(10.) The Utah Copper Company is obliged to pump all the water used in the mill at Garfield and suffers from a scarcity of water at their Copperton mill.

"(11.) The railways and mill are now crowded to the limit, and any increase in production means either sinking a shaft with at least an 8000-foot tunnel, or an agreement to use a tunnel of another mine, extending the same from the present face of the workings approximately 1500 feet and tapping Utah's ground about 750 feet below the present workings, thereby necessitating driving an upraise after the tunnel is extended.

"(12.) Utah's copper is costing it 10 cents per pound; Nevada Consolidated's, 6½ cents, both including overburden charges.

"(13.) Utah's present drainage tunnel is less than 100 feet below steam-shovel ground and there is a big flow of water underground. Prosecution of work 100 feet below present excavation means either expensive pumping plant or new drainage tunnel.

"(14.) A lawsuit is now pending against the company, involving heavy damages, as a result of caving.

"(15.) Utah has no smelter—simply a concentrating plant. The Nevada Consolidated owns one of the largest smelters in the world.

CUMBERLAND ELY.

"You are familiar with the conditions at Nevada Consolidated as given in the annual report issued on November 1. Since that report, however, we have taken over about 97 per cent. of the Cumberland-Ely Company.

"Nevada Consolidated and Cumberland-Ely ores blocked out are estimated at 32,000,000.

"Nevada Consolidated, therefore, under full capacity of its present plant, can ship 70,000,000 pounds of copper during 1910. At a cost of 6½ cents and on a basis of 13½ cents per pound of copper sold, our profits would amount to $4,900,000. On a basis of 14½ cents, the profits would be $5,600,000, or at 16½ cents the returns would be $7,000,000. An additional unit to the smelter would add at least 20 per cent. to these figures. We are paying out today, on a basis of $1.50 per share, $3,000,000. It can easily be calculated that by July, 1910, this dividend can be increased to $2 per share, or $4,000,000. It is entirely reasonable to expect that by January, 1911, we can pay $2.50 per share, or $5,000,000, with strong possibilities of $3 during that year, or even $4 in the years to follow. On the present basis of $1.50 per share a year on Nevada Consolidated it would require $7,000,000 to pay a proportionate dividend on 2,100,000 shares of Utah, which would be outstanding if the merger was effected. On a basis of $2 per share by Nevada it would take $9,400,000; and on a dividend of only $3 a share by Nevada, $14,000,000 would be necessary if Utah paid its proportion."

CALUMET AND ARIZONA.

SLUMP IN STOCK REPORTED.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Jan. 29.—Thirty-five men are being worked on the Calumet and Arizona, under Superintendent R. J. Hooper. The main shaft now is down 600 feet, and a drift is being run to cut the ore body, already well developed on the 400 level.

If the sulphide ore body at the greater depth is found to have maintained its value and size, the company will build a concentrator at once. Upon this will depend to a degree the building of a railroad from Winkelman.

Though there has been a slump in the stock, the mines at Bisbee are reported to be in even better shape than ever before, as well as the mines of the associated Bonanza Circle companies. East of the Cole shaft, drifting is being pushed into a particularly promising bit of ground hitherto unexplored.

Fine ore has been struck on the 1300 level and now a drift is being pushed through 100 feet deeper down, to get at the ore more economically from below.

No water is in this shaft, but in the near-by Briggs shaft there has been trouble in large quantity over the tapping of something like an underground lake. Powerful pumps had to be lowered and operated before drilling could be resumed at the shaft bottom.

STOCK IS JUGGLED.

ARIZONA COMPANY GUILTY.

From reports of the late annual meeting of the stockholders of the New England and Clifton Copper Company, which has just been held in Maine, it is learned that another effort is to be made to put the corporation on a paying basis.

There was some juggling with the stock, the par value being reduced from $5 to $1 a share by putting $1,000,000 in the treasury and then increasing the capitalization by 1,500,000 shares of treasury stock. This gives an apparent working capital of $2,500,900.

John R. Erskine, president of the Standard Consolidated Copper Company, made a bid for the company's property, but it was rejected. Acceptance would simply have meant abandonment of the money the stockholders already have put in.

The company has about eighty claims, but most of the work done has been upon the Antietam and Copper King mines, within which very large bodies of good ore have been developed.

DEVELOPING.

U. S. TREASURE TO WHITE EAGLE

WORK IN THE CLHORIDE DISTRICT IS PROGRESSING.

Connections to Be Made Between Treasure and White Eagle on All Levels—Rich Ore Struck and Quantity Shows Need of Milling Plant—Notes of the District.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

CHLORIDE (N. M.) Jan. 29.—Level No. 1 in the U. S. Treasure mine has been completed to connect with White Eagle shaft No. 1, about 200 feet north, and the upraise from the end of this drift has broken through and connected with the bottom of White Eagle shaft No. 1.

This work places in sight a block of ground which will yield, according to engineers' estimates, between 50,000 and 60,000 tons of milling ore of a gross value of $500,000.

This connection gives the mine plenty of air and an excellent circulation, permitting additional sinking.

The botom of the U. S. Treasure shaft No. 1 is now close to the 200-foot point, where a station will be cut and exploration will be begun to determine the extent of the bonanza ore body encountered at a depth of 108 feet, and which yielded high-grade values from the first shipment.

The sinking of the shaft will be continued steadily until the 300-foot point is reached, and then level No. 2 will be driven north to connect with the White Eagle shaft. After the completion of this work, which, according to estimates, will bring in enough ore for four years, the company expects to erect a treatment plant.

Level No. 1 has shown steady values ranging from the low-grade milling ore to $75 per ton. The ore in the main shaft shows richer as depth is gained.

Much interest has been aroused by the repeated finding of bonanza values in the district. A recent assay of a sample taken from the White Eagle shaft, from ore disclosed on the foot-side of the vein while timbering, gave returns of 385.60 ounces silver and 120.8 ounces gold, or a total value of $2608.80 per ton.

Not long ago, while enlarging the "mill hole" at the 108-foot level of the main U. S. Treasure shaft, values were encountered showing 215.40 ounces silver and 18.2 ounces gold, total value, $471.70.

Neither one of these bonanza ore shoots is under development at present because the operators of the properties are sinking their shafts with a view to exploring at greater depth by means of crosscuts and upraises rather than by gouging at the point of discovery.

Willis G. Moore, consulting engineer for the United Treasury Company, is here making his annual examination of the company's properties and conferring with the company's local representatives, Allen Falconer and Edward James, relative to the work for the next year.

Machinery for Keystone.

Byron L. Morrison of Colorado Springs, who holds a lease on the Keystone in the north end of the district, has arrived with his entire plant of machinery after having lost everything except his crusher in a freight wreck.

New boilers, engine and other machinery was immediately purchased at El Paso and this has arrived at the property

Production is expected within a few weeks as the Keystone property shows a fine body of ore and the operators on the adjoining property on the north ars sacking $200 ore almost at the Keystone end line.

Mr. Morrison is testing a crusher which, if successful, will probably be an important factor in the operation of many properties in this district.

Mining Notes.

Charles Schiele of Colorado Springs is in the district making a general examination of the mines and conditions.

C. R. Boyeton, a mining engineer from Montana, is at Fluorine looking over some properties in the north end of the camp. It is understood that he expects William D. Blackmer soon. Mr. Blackmer was formerly superintendent of the Tramps' Consolidated property at Rhyolite, Nev., and was associated with some of the present directors of the Ray Consolidated Company and other of the big "porphyby" copper properties.

It is understood that Colorado parties have taken an option on the Polar Bear group near Fluorine.

John McConaghy and associates have succeeded in getting titles straightened out to certain properties in which they were interested and it is understood they will begin work soon.

SEARCHLIGHT REPORTS.

New Pumps Installed in the New York-Searchlight Properties—Notes of the District.

SEARCHLIGHT (Nev.) Jan. 29.—Elaborate preparations are being made by the New York-Searchlight Mines Company to combat the flow of water in the main shaft. The smaller pump, operated by compressed air, has been supplanted by an Aldrich triplex, having a capacity of eighty gallons per minute, operated by electricity.

This pump is to be used for sinking, while a Dow, throwing 200 gallons per minute, will raise the water from a station reservoir to the surface. To accommodate the pumps, a roomy station will be cut on the 300-foot level.

With the new pump in operation, the full head of compressed air is available for the machine drills, and faster progress will be made in the opposing drifts. When the new pumping arrangement is fully installed President W. W. Hurt will be prepared to sink 500 feet or more.

A sensational strike was made this week at the old Empire, twenty miles south of Searchlight. In driving in the main tunnel a streak of high-grade was encountered. One piece, in particular, measuring four inches square by fully eight inches long, was literally plastered with the yellow metal.

With connections made on the lower level of the New Year's Gift, the Crittenden Development Company will be ready to start taking down ore and making shipments.

Smith and Crowley have commenced operations on their lease on the I. X. L. They have a block of ground adjoining the Cook lease.

At the Duplex Extension, the situation is much improved by results obtained in the south crosscut. A number of small feeders have been cut, all of which horn freely. P. V. Schermerhorn of Los Angeles, who is in charge of operations, is at the mine.

Joseph White, former resident of Santa Barbara, has been appointed manager of the Quartette Mining Company to succeed G. B. Wilson. He has bee nwith the company for six years, and hhs risen from the ranks to his present high position.

GRIZZLY BEAR.

MAKES RICH STRIKE.

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) Jan. 29.—Three authentic strikes in one week have been reported. The last is one that leaked out this afternoon through activity on the Grizzly Bear.

A ledge has been opened up at a depth of 865 feet. This is as remarkable as the find on the Goldfield Annex, operating on the Poleverde claim of the Jumbo Extension, where the operators were going to a depth of 1300 feet, but ran foul of a ledge of 775 feet.

The Grizzly Bear lease was started by capitalists from Paris, France, with the assumption that they would catch the Clermont ledge between 1000 and 1200 feet. That they opened up what looks like a very promising ledge at 865 feet is a surprise.

This means that another zone of ore enrichment has been opened and the possibilities of the Goldfield district intensified to a degree that presages an awakening in mining circles, and an increase in leasing operations.

New Road Ready.

CLIFTON (Ariz.) Jan. 29.—The new Shannon Railroad, between lower Clifton and Metcalf, a distance of about ten miles, through the roughest of mountains, is to be in operation within a couple of weeks, handling all the Shannon ores and freight, which heretofore has been carried by the Coronado Railroad of the Arizona Copper Company.

EUCALYPTUS
ONLY ONE WEEK MORE
AT $100.00 PER ACRE
Planted and Cared For
Two Years
Price Will Positively be Advanced to $125.00 Per Acre After This Week

Now is the time for you to buy Eucalyptus at Murrieta. Don't neglect this opportunity. Go down with us to Murrieta on our excursion next Tuesday and make your selection now while the $100 per acre price holds good.

You will never again have an opportunity to buy Eucalyptus at such a low price. Other eucalyptus companies are asking $200 to $800 per acre for eucalyptus land no better than, if as good, as ours.

Just ask any of those who have seen our lands what they think about Murrieta. Ask any of those who have purchased and the answer will be convincing. It is a significant fact that with but one exception every one who has accompanied us on our excursions has purchased.

Isn't that conclusive evidence that our proposition is right—that it is one which appeals to all who take the trouble to investigate?

Three Excursions to Murrieta This Week
Make Your Reservation Now

Fare for the round trip only $4.50. We leave in the morning via Santa Fe at 7:30 a. m. and return at 6:30 same day. Fare refunded to purchasers.

This is absolutely your last opportunity to secure any of this land at this exceptional price. Doesn't 25 per cent. increased valuation on your property appeal to you? At least it's worth an investigation. No matter what some others may tell you, you have eyes to see and ears to hear. Go with us and be convinced.

Frostless Orange Land
—The best proposition in California today—at

Yorba Linda
"In the Valley of Success"

There's no use in considering orange land that is in danger of frost damage when you can buy at Yorba Linda and escape all this risk and worry. Yorba Linda made a great record this year, going through the entire season without a trace of frost.

The soil is perfect, the rainfall bountiful and the irrigation supply sufficient—and more.

Two-year-old ranches in the district are held at $1200 per acre. Why, then, isn't it good business to buy unimproved land at the prices we are quoting.

OIL FURNACE FOR MAMMOTH.

Bag House Will Be Installed at Once.

Balaklala Copper Produces Much Copper.

Spring Garden Gravel Shows Increased Values.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

REDDING (Cal.) Jan. 29.—The Mammoth Copper Company has completed its experimental oil-burning furnace and will place it in commission within a few days. The furnace is twelve feet wide by thirty feet long, and is designed to make a lower-grade matte and effect a larger saving of gold and silver values.

California crude oil will be used in the place of coal and the experiments thus far carried on indicate that better results will be obtained than by the usual methods. It is likely that other oil-burning furnaces will be installed before the end of the year.

Grading and other preliminary work for the new bag house has been finished and it is expected to have this annex in operation early in the spring. This will remove the cause of the smoke annoyance and enable the company to treat a higher percentage of the arsenical ores from Nevada mines.

Immense shipments of ore from these properties are being received, and its reduction is an important revenue to the big company.

At present the Mammoth is treating an enormous tonnage of copper ore and producing blister copper at the rate of 3,500,000 pounds per month. Besides the copper values the various properties of the company are yielding thousands per month in gold and silver, the Mammoth being among the heaviest silver producers in California.

Five blast furnaces are in commission and the company has no difficulty in maintaining its position as the largest copper producer in California, and one of the largest in the West.

The company is employing 1000 men in the mines and smelter and the monthly pay roll exceeds $80,000.

Besides operating its extensive group of copper claims near Kennett, the company is working the Quartz Hill gold property at Old Diggings, under a long-term bond, besides developing several promising gold properties at various points in Shasta county. The property is controlled by the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Company, the Mammoth Copper Company being one of its subsidiary corporations.

Balaklala Copper.

The Balaklala Copper Company, controlled by the First National Copper Company, continues to produce at the rate of 1,500,000 pounds of blister copper per month, with the gold and silver yield running high. The Guggenheims recently acquired an option on the controlling stock, and are expected to take over the property within a few weeks. They already hold heavy interests in the original Balaklala company. Two blast furnaces are in commission, and it is understood that the third will be blown in as soon as the copper situation shows consistent improvement.

The management has practically decided on the device that will be employed to eliminate the escape of the dangerous fumes from the smelter, and is confident that no further trouble will result from this source. It is reported that the device has been successfully demonstrated both in the East and at Coram, where the company has been conducting extensive experiments. The management has little faith in a bag house, believing that the device it has practically adopted will overcome all objections, at a comparatively low cost of construction and maintenance.

Spring Garden Gravel.

The new company which recently took over the Spring Garden gravel property, in the Forest Hill district, Placer county, is cleaning out the old shaft and arranging for extensive development work. It is planned to run an adit from Black Cañon to Gas Cañon, which will cut both the white and blue channels at an approximate length of 2000 feet from the portal of the tunnel.

Both of the channels have been opened in the Gray Eagle and Peckham Hill properties, lying to the north and east of the Spring Garden, and have produced phenomenal riches. Extensive prospecting indicates that the channels traverse the greater portion of the Spring Garden estate.

The Spring Garden has a productive record extending over several years, but has not been worked in a large way owing to the financial circumstances of the former owners. The new company is composed of Southern California, Nevada and Arizona people, with ample capital for the carrying on of the projected extensive operations.

A new plant of machinery has been installed and the working force is being increased as rapidly as room can be made for the men. C. A. Palmer is manager.

Rich Strike in Modoc.

The Hoag mining district, Modoc county, in which many Southern California people are interested, is again in the public eye as the result of a discovery made in the White Quartz property by the Broaches, Brown & Trusk lease. The ledge is ten feet wide, carries excellent milling values, and was encountered in the shaft at a depth of forty-five feet.

The leasers have opened it for several feet with the vein giving every evidence of persisting to great depth. Developments are centered on this vein and the lease is pushing work steadily.

The Fort Bidwell, and several other properties in the Hoag district, also are showing steady improvement with depth, and the coming spring promises to place this section among the most animated gold-mining regions in the North.

Nearly all the properties have opened excellent reserves of good-grade ore, values in many instances running into bonanza. The unfavorable winter has prevented the completion of the custom mill and developments are naturally retarded for the want of milling facilities.

Mining Notes.

After a period of idleness extending over two years, operations have been resumed at the Prudential, formerly the New York-Grass Valley, in the Grass Valley district. A three-foot ledge, running over $15 per ton throughout its entire width, is being developed and twelve stamps have been placed in commission. Twenty men are employed and the property is more than paying expenses.

The drift on the 1750 level of the Bunker Hill at Jackson has encountered several bodies of ore and is expected to intersect the main vein within a few feet. A heavy flow of water has been encountered. As soon as it has been opened a drift will be extended from the 1950 level to cut the vein at that point. The December clean-up of the mill was more than $22,000. The company continues to declare regular monthly dividends of 5 cents per share.

The west drift from the 2300 level of the Kennedy has cut an ore body appearing to be the footwall ledge. The ore appears to be of the same general character as that found in the upper workings.

The Victor Power and Mining Company, owning the Bonanza, Mud Springs, Surprise, Golconda, Mountain View, Yankee Doodle and other properties at Knob, Shasta county, has decided to install a five-stamp Nissen mill in the early summer, and the plant will be so constructed that extra stamps may be easily added.

The Stahl brothers of Arizona have leased the Lankerman mine near Marysville and are planning for work in an extensive way. The mine is a new property and considerable ore of milling grade has been opened a short distance from surface.

BELMONT STRIKE GROWS.

Rich Values Found Effect Tonopah Stocks—Ore Zone Evidence. Tonopah Notes.

TONOPAH (Nev.) Jan. 29.—The activity of the leading stocks of this silver camp reflects the improved condition of the mines. Notably has this been the case with the Belmont which continues to grow daily in the estimation of the owners.

The showing on the 100-foot level is the absorbing subject of conversation. Without doubt, it is the most important discovery made in the history of the camp.

Last week it was reported that the ledge was good for eight feet. Since then the face of the drift has widened out to sixteen feet and for the last ten feet every pound of the ore will go better than $40 to the ton, just as it is broken down.

This body is now exposed for a distance of 165 feet.

Preparations have been made to continue sinking the shaft below the 1000-foot level. Should the present ledge continue at a dip of 45 deg. it will be caught again at a depth of 1500 feet.

This system of development will save an enormous sum in tramming, as it is necessary now to tram the ore 700 feet to the hoisting shaft. The distance will be reduced to between 100 and 200 feet. No attempt is being made to increase ore shipments, the usual 680 tons weekly being sent to the smelter, but the values are slightly higher than ordinary milling ore.

In the face of the above showing it does not require much figuring to show the importance of the Belmont strike to the property, and the entire camp, inasmuch as the ore body was found in virgin ground east of, and deeper than anything yet discovered in the district.

GOLDFIELD NEWS.

Jumbo Extension Has High Values Showing—Great Western May Be Sold.

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) Jan. 29.—Another body of ore, bigger and better than the one passed through in the shaft last week, was opened in the Goldfield Annex shaft on the Poleverde claim of the Jumbo Extension yesterday, at a depth of 790 feet.

The new streak is three feet thick and the average values are higher than in the streak above, the gold values having perceptibly increased.

This is apparently the footwall streak.

There was some evidence that the shaft was entering another zone of mineraliaztion, and this was substantially borne out by the developments today. This streak stands at about 35 deg., whereas the other was much flatter, being about 20 deg.

There is a probability that the two streaks will come together a short distance above where the first one was encountered, and a very strong ore shoot at that point may reasonably be expected. The new streak is somewhat softer and carries alunite in greater quantities. Silver values are more pronounced.

It now appears more certain than ever that this is a new vein, and not the Mohawk or Red Top, and the lease has the same chance for opening on the Red Top at a depth of 100 feet that it had when work was begun.

BOUSE ACTIVE.

TOWN IS GROWING.

Bouse, Ariz., claims place as one of the more important mining towns of the Southwest. It has two large stores, two hotels and sixteen other business places, inclusive of thirst alleviation parlors.

An ice plant is under construction and an electric lighting system will be built at once.

Already there is a population of 500, busy mainly with things that have to do with mines, though much of the activity is consequent upon the construction of the new Swansea railroad, which is to be complete within a couple of months.

Then the town will become the transfer point for the freight of a great smelter and of a score of large mines, including the Clara, Planet, Pay Car, Little Butte and Heart's Desire.

Marvin Strikes.

Chairman W. E. Marvin of the Yuma County Board of Supervisors is the main owner of ground in which lately has been found silver assaying up to 166 ounces to the ton.

The strike is in the Castle Dome Mountains, about seven miles north of the Thumb Butte mine. The claims were staked last summer, consideration being given only to the gold values, the silver assays being a sort of afterthought. With Mr. Marvin is associated Don S. Rae, a Polaris miner, who has filed upon a large number of claims himself.

Arlington Find.

Eighteen miles southwest of Arlington, Ariz., on the Agua Caliente road, M. A. Baysinger, at the depth of twenty-five feet, has uncovered a notably rich deposit of gold ore.

In this same locality, fully thirty years ago, Sam F. Webb discovered a knife-blade seam of almost pure gold. He dug into it with feverish energy, to find nothing at all of value below a few feet of depth.

Occasionally a prospector brings in a piece of marvelous float from that locality, probably from the Webb lead, and there is local belief that somewhere around that point will yet be uncovered a bonanza.

Arizona-Morenci Strikes.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Jan. 29.—At the depth of 180 feet, fine peacock copper ore has been struck by one of two churn drills now being worked on the Celtic claim of the Arizona-Morenci Copper Company.

Four more drills are to be brought in at once, and a specific plan of development work followed up. The Arizona-Morenci is the group for which ex-Senator Stephen A. Dorsey lately secured in Europe a large amount of money for development.

IN THE EARTH.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY AND CHEMISTRY.

To Correspondents:

This Department is not conducted for pay. Its object is to convey reliable information of interest and value to the public, and it is not for the private benefit of any miner, collector, speculator or prospector. Correspondents are particularly cautioned to take careful note of the statements and injunctions contained in the paragraphs below:

(1.) Specimens must be small and bear a tag giving name and address of sender, and the general—not the exact—locality from whence the specimen was taken, also the name of it as nearly as the sender knows. Send, also, with the specimen a clearly-written letter briefly describing the find and what the finder wishes done with it. The letter must be properly dated and plainly signed.

Letter and specimen must be in one package, not in separate inclosure.

(2.) No attention will be paid to anonymous letters or to letters signed, merely with initials.

(3.) No examinations of samples or specimens will be made in cases where The Times may decide that the specimen and inquiry are not of public interest. This office does not undertake to perform the work of an assay office.

Radium Not Element.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1, 1910.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will you kindly inform me through your columns if the enclosed specimen is pitchblende; if not, what is it? If it is pitchblende, how may the radium be extracted from it on a commercial scale? The specimen is from a large deposit in Fresno county. Thanking you, I am,

Yours truly, W. P. G.

ANSWER: The blackish sample is amphibole, and the greenish one hornblende. Uranium is not present in the samples.

Under date of January 20, 1907, the following matter was published in these columns:

"Long ago this department of The Times set forth the fact that the so-called element radium was obtained from the tailings of the pitchblende of Austria, and from which tailings all of the uranium values had been previously extracted. . . . Eventually, and in time, it will be proven that radium is a compound, and not an element."

Notwithstanding the ipse dixit of many scientists: "Generally, a substance possessing radio-activity and carrying salts of radium must contain uranium." There is a vast difference between radio-active substances and minerals, "carrying salts of radium."

Our experiments since January 20, 1907, cover a wide field, and it is an indisputable result that salts of radium are obtainable from baryte (heavy spar,) gypsum (selenite,) and minerals carrying calcite and strontium; and it is probable that in the near future the manufactured salts of radium will be obtained from hundreds of minerals carrying no uranium values.

When it comes to radio-active minerals (those from which photographs can be obtained in dark rooms by contact on sensitive plates) pitchblende and carnotite lead them all.

Particularly note, that the Austrian pitchblende tailings from which the Curies obtained radium chloride carried no uranium or barium values, and yet, after their chemical manipulations, barium was present.

Now, to illustrate our work, we must refer to a few, very simple, illustrations.

What gives the white silver-chloride its darkened color? You answer, sunlight; well and good.

Why is it that from the waters of Salt Lake, Utah, sodium sulphate separates and precipitates on to its shores? And, why is paraffine so easily separated from petroleum? Observation teaches us that at the freezing point sodium sulphate so separates out; and at the same temperature paraffine gets together, as it were, and can be squeezed from the petroleum through muslin or flannel.

We have all, further, observed that a strong solution of chlorine water in a glass generator, if exposed to the sun's rays, is liable to explode, and that the same solution if exposed to freezing, separates crystals.

A pharmacist mixes up so-called digestive agents, and combines them with cheese, raisins, beef, nuts, etc., in a glass tube. By the digestion of the "mess" in such glass tube he arrives at the wrong conclusion by asserting that a like result will obtain in the human stomach (?.) There is a vast difference between the glass tube and the "innards" of mankind. The wonder is, that such a pharmaceutical preparation does not digest the stomach itself, which would result, positively, were the great principal of life not present.

Radium chloride is on a par with the theory of the pharmacist, it is a product of the glass-tube and reagents.

There is a something in the formation of radium salts which we cannot find by material chemistry and the five human senses. What is this something?

We shall endeavor to show that salts of radium are obtained from many substances by repeated sulphating and carbonating, in the presence of air, heat and water.

It will probably be shown that waters—radio active—are formed naturally, and can be duplicated artificially by this something—repeated sulphating and carbonating as stated. Why?

In obtaining the salts of radium, pitchblende—or other mineral—is powdered and subjected to a roast (oxidized) with admixture of sodium carbonate, the resultant mass is then washed with water, followed by treatment of sulphuric acid; the sulphates are now converted into carbonates by boiling with strong sodium carbonate added. The residue now contains the exceedingly insoluble salt known as radium sulphate. The soluble sulphates are washed out and the insoluble portion is treated with hydrochloric acid, which takes out, among other matter, polonium and actinium. Radium sulphate remains unattacked, associated with barium sulphate usually. The two mixed sulphates are once more converted into carbonates by boiling in a strong solution of sodium carbonate and the resulting carbonates of radium and barium are again dissolved in hydrochloric acid, and once more precipitated as sulphates. The sulphates are now purified and converted into chlorides. A very small fraction of the mixed chlorides is radium chloride.

Are we sure that the same by-product (radium chloride) would not be obtained by carbonate of soda, water, sulphuric acid, more soda, boiling, and hydrochloric acid, without any mineral substance being added?

With Lord Kelvin we believe that radium is a compound of a metal with helium, which would explain the supposed transmutation of radium into helium. "This opinion has much in its favor. If from a metallic oxide, wrongly supposed to be a pure metal, we should extract the oxygen, we would also say—reasoning exactly as we have done with radium—that this metal was turning into oxygen."

We are now experimenting with other radio-active matter in the production of radio-active photographs; using one radio-active substance as a positive, with a non-radio-active material as negative; and we hope to give full results of the experiments during 1910; meanwhile we believe that the "fraction" of radium chloride obtained from pitchblende soda, acids, boiling, etc., is but a by-product from the hundreds of pounds of salts and acids used in the process.

Nickel Not Present.

PHILIPSBURG (Pa.) Jan. 1.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Does the inclosed sample with green streaks in it carry nickel? It comes from a lead eleven miles northwest of this town.

Yours truly, C. C. R.

Sericite.

ORANGE (Cal.) Jan. 1.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will you kindly publish what this inclosed specimen is, and whether it is of any commercial value?

There are large quantities in big blocks near here in Santiago Cañon.

Yours truly, S. P. H.

ANSWER: The sample is named at sub-heading. It is on the order of Damowrite, mica like, and carries silica, alumina, (low in potash,) some soda and organic matter trace. Of doubtful commercial value.

It would be well, however, to powder some of the friable material; throw the powder into water; stir the mixture for ten minutes; let settle for a moment only, and then pour off the supernatant milky liquid into another container. Allow this second (chalk-like) material to thoroughly precipitate and offer the precipitate to dealers in fine clay.

Impure Dumortierite.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Am sending you two specimens of rocks—one a brownish, blackish granular—looks much like iron; the other a purple or violet (which?) with a red streak like hematite. Please have the kindness to tell me what they are. They both come from the West Ord Mountains, about twenty-five miles east of Victor. As I will not be in town to read your answer in the columns of "In the Earth," but somewhere in the neighborhood of Little Lake on the line of the aqueduct, will you please send an answer by letter to my address? I should be very much pleased to have your analysis of the rock.

Yours truly, S. S.

ANSWER: Your request for a personal answer has been complied with as an accomodation to you, under the circumstances stated in your letter; such requests, however, can but seldom be complied with.

The small blue color in one of the samples is occasioned by dumortierite—a silicate of alumina.

The brownish black specimen is a mixture of iron oxides (magnetite, hematite and limonite) with traces of zinc.

Gold Stone and Cobalt.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2.—[To the Editor of The Times:] (1.) Will you please state in your paper whether this so-called gold stone (gold stone jewelry one sees in the jewelry windows) is a true mineral or a composition? If a mineral, where mined? If a composition, what is it made of? I have never seen it mentioned in any mining books. (2.) Is cobalt mined in the United States, and what is it used for?

Respectfully, B. H. W.

ANSWER: Much of the gold stone you refer to is manufactured under an Italian secret process; and it cannot be successfully imitated. It does not occur native.

Cobalt mining in the United States is rather a doubtful proposition. Comer, Or., and mines in Idaho produced some concentrates in 1906 and 1907 in the form chiefly of cobalt arsenide.

"Cobalt is used mostly in the form of the oxide, largely for coloring purposes; but this use does not create a large demand."

"Cobalt steel," so far, has not been favorably looked upon by metallurgists.

During 1906 it was announced that "Thomas A. Edison had perfected a new storage battery, much lighter and more efficient than the older forms, which was, in part, made of cobalt; it is further stated that the manufacture of this battery has been given up owing to the high price of cobalt."

Rhodochrosite.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Under separate cover please find three samples of rock from near Alta and Como, Colo. What I particularly desire to know is: Can No. 1 (massive) be carbonate of manganese? Does No. 2 carry any platinum? What variety of pyrite is No. 3?

Thanking you in advance for an answer in the "In the Earth" column.

Yours very truly, G. B. M.

ANSWER. No. 1 sample carries spherical reniform and massive rhodochrosite (rose-red manganese carbonate.)

No. 2 is the same old "platinum quartz?" containing streaks of copper and iron sulphides, with absolutely no platinum present. It looks like Como "stuff." No. 3 is leucopyrite—in part arsenical pyrite—and made up of, approximately, 65 per cent. arsenic; sulphur, 2 per cent., and iron, 33 per cent. "Soluble in nitric acid, with separation of arsenious acid."

San Joaquin Valley—The Paradise of the Pacific

Soil Results In Dollars

At Delano—Not Simply Figures

Delano relies wholly upon its soil production in presenting its claims upon the landbuyer. These statements regarding its soil fertility, climate and superior agricultural and horticultural advantages are facts taken from the fields, vineyards, orchards and gardens of Delano growers.

This crowning evidence is readily verified by a visit to the ranches where these products are being raised.

You want tangible proof before you invest your money—Delano will supply abundance of proof—What other industrious Delano ranchers are doing you can accomplish—and we say advisedly that you can find no section in the irrigated districts of the West where $125 to $200 per acre will buy greater assurance of a competence than these foothill or bench lands of San Joaquin Valley at Delano.

Soil products that grow any place will thrive and produce prodigious yield here—because of unique situation they mature earlier than any section of California.

No Where In All The Realm of Real Estate Investment Can You Surpass Delano's Opportunity

Here is prime orange land—perfect in climate, absolutely free from smut, scale, severe cold and other destructive elements. Here is evidence of superiority. In 1905 Mr. C. O. Cowles bought an 8 1-3-acre orange grove at Lindsay, paying $1000 per acre. The 1906 crop was sold for $9677, or $1177 per acre; the 1907 crop sold for $9181, or $1147 per acre; the 1908 crop sold for $14,500, or $1812 per acre, or, a total of $33,258 for the 3 years, which is better than 400 per cent. on his investment, and last March (1909) he sold this grove to Mr. Arthur Willey of Denver for $32,000, or $4000 per acre. There was no buildings on the land. A visit to the district will convince you that Delano Lands at $125 to $200 have the same potentialities as this orchard just quoted.

Lands $125 to $200 Per Acre—Read These Estimates o Earnings—Also Profits from Increase of Value

Delano Lands are adaptable to scores of soil products. Bermuda onions, sweet potatoes, Irish potatoes, tomatoes or alfalfa and poultry raising. Suppose on a 10-acre tract, you set 5 acres to oranges, while they are coming into bearing you can produce $250 net per acre on the other 5, from sweet potatoes; $300 an acre or better from onions; own 3 or 4 cows, send your cream to market at good profit. Delano alfalfa runs 7 cuttings per season—two tons per acre each crop and sells in the windrow at $8 to $9 per ton, which at $8 is $112 per acre.

Now we will show you these very things if you will come with us and see this fruitful country. We will show you an absolutely perfect irrigation system which makes these things possible and why $125 to $200 per acre is exceedingly cheap for this land.

THE OIL BUSINESS

Is the Most Profitable Business in This State.

Millions of Dollars Have Been and Will Continue to Be Made Producing Oil. Will You Get Your Share of the Profits?

The Los Angeles-Kern Oil Company is now offering undoubtedly the safest and best opportunity you will ever have to invest in the Oil business. The Los Angeles-Kern Oil Company is a mutual Company organized by a number of well-known successful local business men, who put their money in the proposition and produced the oil (as you can see by the cuts below) before offering any of the Company's stock for public subscription.

Oil From Well No. 1.

Oil From Well No. 2.

Partial View of Los Angeles-Kern Oil Company's Oil Properties.

This Company has under lease for 20 years, 40 acres of oil land in the Kern River oil fields. In fact, the 20 acres on which the above wells are located has producing wells on all sides, making it impossible to put down a dry hole on this property. We have one of the best and most complete plants in this field, with two good producing wells just completed, which produce from 100 to 150 barrels of oil per day, also a fine water well, tanks, pipe lines, etc. No trouble to market the oil, as the pipe line crosses our property and the demand is greater than the supply. In order to continue development work more rapidly, this company is now offering for public subscription, a small block of treasury stock at 25 cents per share. Considering the fact that this company is capitalized for only 400,000 shares, this is a very low price for the stock and is made subject to change without notice. Don't put your money in undeveloped wildcat propositions, when you have a chance to invest in a first-class producing company, backed by some of the best men in your community, where you can't help but make money. The fact is, if you see our property or the pictures of same, we can count on you as one of our stockholders.

Any other information desired will be gladly furnished at the office of the company. No subscriptions accepted for less than $100.00. Make all checks and drafts payable to the company.

BIG SALES ARE REPORTED.

Santa Gertrudis Bought by British Company.

Guggenheims Have Interests in Chihuahua.

Mexican Mines Show Increased Activities.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 29.—When Ex-Gov. Charles S. Thomas of Colorado, general counsel for the Camp Bird Company, Ltd, of London, on January 24 handed the former owners of the Santa Gertrudis mine, Pachuca, a modest looking slip of paper he closed the last chapter in one of the biggest deals in Mexico for many a year, not only involving a considerable sum of cash, but meaning a campaign of vigorous development and trades to be negotiated by British interests.

The modest looking slip of paper was a check on a Mexican bank for $9,144,825.32, Mexican currency, equivalent to $4,572,412.66 in United States money. The total consideration, in Mexican silver, for the mine was $9,000,000, and additional to this was a side payment of $344,825.32 for the new mill and cyanide plant which has been finished since the Camp Bird crowd secured their option, expiring January 26.

The sum of $200,000 has already been paid down as a forfeit on the option, applying finally upon the purchase price. On January 14 the Camp Bird gave formal notice that it would exercise its option. The property was turned over to the new management January 22 and the cash delivered to the former owners January 24. This left four days of leeway on the option period.

Demonstrated on the Santa Gertrudis is a pay chute 2500 feet long and averaging fifteen feet wide, with an average value in the lower workings of over $23, United States money. Blocked out are ore reserves estimated to be worth $4,500,000 gold. The new mill will treat 150,000 to 160,000 tons annually. This month the mine paid a dividend of $2.22 per share.

Guggenheims Buy.

Current in Chihuahua is a persistent rumor to the effect that the Guggenheim interests, of the American Smelting and Refining Company, have about closed a deal for the purchase outright of the famous properties of the Chihuahua Mining Company and El Potosi Mining Company in Santa Eulalia district, eighteen miles east of the city of Chihuahua, the consideration being $8,000,000 gold, and the physical transfer to be effected not later than April 1.

It has been impossible from this end to fully verify the report, which came straight from New York, but it is accredited by mining men near the inside.

The Potosi is a great zinc-silver-lead property, proved to a depth of 2000 feet. Control of this proposition and also of the Chihuahua Mining Company is vested in Grant B. Schley of New York and Dennis Sullivan of Denver. These two men also control the famous zinc mines at Calera, west of Chihuahua, and a few months ago sold the Chihuahua and Pacific Railrod to the Dr. F. S. Pearson syndicate. Only eight years ago the Potosi mine went begging at $125,000 gold.

Dividends Paid.

Dividend records of the famous Pachuca and Real del Monte Company, a regular distributor of profits, were broken this month when bread money at the rate of $200 per share was handed around. The Real del Monte is recognized as the geratest silver mine in Mexico, and one of the foremost in the world.

Mining Notes.

Rapid progress is being made in the installation of the first 250-ton unit of the 1000-ton cyanide mill being built at the mines of the Alvarado Consolidated Mines Company at Parral. This parent company, controlled by American interests, bought from Pedro Alvarado the fabulous Palmilla mine, which by crude methods of operation has been made to yield millions in the past, and is hardly yet touched. Subsidiary to the Consolidated corporation is the Palmilla Milling Company, which is building the plant and will own and operate it. The first mill unit will go into commission about June 15.

The Prieta mill at Parral will be ready for service about the first of February. Within four months it is expected that the Veta Colorado Mining and Smelting Company, operating at Minas Nuevas, Parral district, will start wheels turning in its 500-ton mill. The Parral Consolidated will be operating its new concentrator within thirty days The Minas Veta Grande is making heavy shipments of low-grade siliceous silver ores to the smelter of the American Smelting and Refining Company.

The Exploration Company of England and Mexico, Ltd., has bought two groups, each of four claims, known as the Esmeralda Anexas and the San Gregorio y Anexas, in the heart of the richest section of Santa Eulalia. Power facilities are being increased, and two more furnaces are being installed at the Chihuahua plant of the American Smelting and Refining Company, whose daily capacity will thus be enlarged from 450 to 750 tons The new furnaces will be blown in next June.

James Moffett of Oakland, Cal., has bought for $25,000 the Verdiana mine Ameca district, State of Jalisco. Extensive operations will begin soon. The diggings of the Amparo Mining Company are showing a production upward of $100,000 a month.

The San Carlos Gold Mines, Ltd., of London, is making ready to remodel its fifty-stamp mill and cyanide plant at Mezquital del Oro district, State of Zacatecas, and to resume work on a larger scale than ever before. The property was years ago a steady gold producer and has paid handsome dividends.

Guanajuato is shipping high-grade bullion and concentrates at the rate of about $125,000, gold, a week. Concentrates go to the smelter at Aguas Calientes, and bullion to the refinery at Mexico City. A new ore strike in the Canales mine of the Guanajuato Development Company shows truck that runs as high as 100 grams gold and ten kilos silver the ton.

A famous gold mine of the State of Sinaloa is known as the Minas de Tajo, at Rosario, a little north of Mazatlan. From the diggings fortunes were taken by the Bradbury family of Los Angeles, and in the last year the property milled 70,000 tons. The deepest shaft is down 600 feet.

The coal combine of Coahuila has secured control of the C. P. Diaz Coal Company, whose estates show three million tons of good coal.

There are 130 taxpaying quicksilver mines in fourteen States of Mexico, 44 of these being in San Luis Potosi and the next largest number, 24, being in Guerrero.

Sylvanite Described.

BISHOP, Jan. 4.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will you kindly inform me what mineral, and of what value, the inclosed sample contains?

It comes from about twelve miles southeast of Bishop, from a lime and porphyritic formation. Some say it is sylvanite ore. By replying, you will oblige.

Very truly yours, W. P. Y.

ANSWER. The sample is calciferous rock, with pyrite (iron disulphide) and manganese dioxide present.

It is probably well to give a description of sylvanite for the reason that many correspondents very often believe they have such material in claims and prospects.

Sylvanite (of Kirwan) "was originally native tellurium, from its being first found in Transylvania."

Sylvanite of today is telluride of gold and silver (or graphic tellurium,) often in cuneiform characters forming triangular figures like letters; it "generally occurs in indistinct and minute crystals, modified at the edges and angles, and often grouped in rows." Cleavage in two directions—"nearly at right angles." Color steel-gray to tin white. Of metallic luster—"sometimes with a slight tarnish." Yields easily to the knife. Soft, sectile and brittle. Hardness, 1.4 to 2. Specific gravity, 7.95 to 8.30. Approximately, "silver, 13.8; gold, 20.5; tellurium, 59.7, which equals 100 percentages, respectively."

Dissolves in aqua regia, with separation of silver chloride, "and forms a solution which gives a white precipitate on dilution with water."

B. B., on charcoal sylvanite fuses into bubbly metallic globules of gold and silver, "exhibiting incandescence at the moment of solidification." The volatile element, tellurium, is vaporized b. b., gives off tellurous acid fumes and covers the charcoal with a white coating.

Heavy Shipment.

The California and Paradise Company in the Chiricahua Mountains is getting into the producing class. Forty-seven carloads shipped from the Leadville shaft on the company's property gave average returns of 40 per cent. lead and 9 ounces of silver to the ton, gross value of $42 C0 a ton.

New Mining District.

New gold-bearing ground has been discovered twelve miles east of Harqua Hala, Arizona, by Gabriel Garcia and "Indian Jack," who found free gold in a bit of rock idly broken from a ledge. The ore is of the same character as that of the famous Bonanza mine at Harqua Hala. Prospectors have been flocking into the mountains and scores of locations already have been made in the district that has hitherto been almost unexplored for mineral.

Shipments Increased.

The Shattuck and Arizona property has increased its daily ore shipment to 160 tons. An upraise has been started on the 700 level, to meet a winze which has been sunk thirty feet through a new and rich ore body. The company's annual meeting is to be held in Duluth February 17, when the question of building an independent smelter, ground at Douglas already secured, will be taken up.

Case Dismissed.

In the settlement of the accounts of the defunct corporations controlling the Humboldt smelter, the Bank of Arizona and Cecil G. Fennell refused to accept payment on the basis of 90 per cent. of their claims, and secured judgment in Prescott.

The smelting company appealed to the Territorial Supreme Court. Its attorneys, however, seemed to be ignorant of the methods for perfecting an appeal in Arizona, so, on motion of the plaintiff's attorney, E. S. Clark, the Supreme Court has just dismissed the case.

Sulphur Springs Water.

Still better returns with depth are being reported from the Heffron claims, with notably rich gold ore on the 400 level.

The company is preparing to build a water storage dam, from which to supply the mines of the district and, as well, to irrigate about 20,000 acres of the Sulphur Springs Valley.

Good Production.

About 700 tons of ore a day have been handled by the Old Dominion at Globe, Ariz., lately in two furnaces the supply having been cut down by the late accident to shaft A. During this slack period about fifty tons of old slag have been put through the furnaces daily. It is probable that a third furnace will need to be warmed up in a week more, when the mine will again be on its normal production basis.

Mill is Complete.

The Copper Creek concentrating mill, near Dudleyville, Ariz., has been completed, and was to have been started this week. The mill cost $50,000, and is a model of its kind. Attached is a power plant that has cost $45,000, which is furnishing electric light and power to the mines of the locality.

The amount received from the Calumet and Arizona and other customers fully pays the cost of operation, the Copper Creek thus getting its light and power without expense. About forty men are employed at the mine.

New Mill, Old Site.

Gov. R. E. Sloan and E. L. Tomlinson, owners of the Venezia mine in Crook Cañon, Yavapai county, are said to have decided upon the erection of a ten-stamp mill.

It is told that more than $100,000 worth of ore already is available for milling. A number of years ago this mine was profitably worked by J. B. Tomlinson, and it had a mill, which was destroyed by fire. The ore will run up to $20 a ton in free gold, while parts of the vein have given assays of $100.

Better Values Shown.

Gold in the quartz that was broken yesterday on the Campbell lease of the Diamondfield Black Butte was coarser than it has been up to this time. One large piece that was brought in has a face that is almost covered with free gold, and an assay from a picked sample ran $16,000.

A shipment of fifteen tons was started to the sampler today, and this will be followed by frequent consignments.

It is reported that the high grade has widened to nearly three feet.

The ore has been opened for more than twenty feet and looks persistent. The vein is well defined, and has been traced 500 feet on the surface.

Great Western Sold?

A sale of the Great Western mine at Hornsilver is en tapis and at any moment the property may be transferred.

The Great Western was located by the Russell brothers, who developed it to the depth of 250 feet, when their funds became exhausted and they could no longer continue operating.

They had an immense ore body, but were eight miles from the nearest railroad station, and seventeen miles from Goldfield by wagon.

The ore carried a value of $30 to $50 per ton, but it could not stand under the long haul, with railroad and smelter charges piled on top of that.

Six months ago it was reported that Baltimore people had taken an option, and the rumor gained color from the fact that the mine was suddenly shut down. The new people who are interested have arranged to mill 150 tons a day at Goldfield, if the deal is perfected, and also to construct a spur line of the Salt Lake branch road from Cuprite to the mine on a guaranteed tonnage.

This would solve the problem of transportation and enable the low-grade silver ore to be marketed.

Arizona Stirling Re-opens.

The old Sterling mine in Big Bug district, Arizona, is to be started up again, the management intending to ship ore to the Humboldt smelter. The mine will be operated by Marshall S. Taft, a well-known mining man who has just returned after five years' absence in the East.

Arizona Notes.

Ten-stamp mills have been ordered for the Golden Age and Desert View mines in Pima county, southwest of Tucson.

James Higgins of Butte, Mont., has been appointed general manager of the Twin Buttes mines near Tucson. He is a son of former Manager Higgins of the Amalgamated mines at Butte, and himself has been in charge of Heinze properties near that camp.

Miners are flocking into Arizona from Nevada and the Northwest and the supply at Bisbee is reported much larger than the demand.

In order to repair the mill and to do some development work, the King of Arizona is to close down production for a month or more. During this time some of the company's newer ground is to be thoroughly explored.

Tonopah Notes.

South of the Midway shaft, and close to Red Plume claim of the Tonopah Mining Company, it looks as though the Midway had encountered one of the strongest bodies of ore yet found in the mine.

A strong body of quartz has been encountered, which carries fair milling values. For eight feet the winze has been in solid mineral, assaying from $12 to $20 per ton, showing an increase as depth is attained.

The character of the ore is identical with that recently opened in the Tonopah, being partially oxidized. It is more than probable that the Midway has ore that runs through its big neighbor.

Calciferous Iron Slate.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Enclosed herewith I hand you specimens of ore which came from Douglas county, Or. It is my opinion that it contains some high-grade cement rock, but possibly there is something more valuable in it. Will you kindly advise through your "In the Earth" column what is the most valuable substance it contains, and oblige a constant reader of your valuable paper? A. L. E.

ANSWER. If time permitted, a thorough analysis of your sample would be given you, but, as it is, a qualitative test only can be had.

The sample is a calciferous, iron slate, with pyrite; rather an odd combination for cement. Not treated for gold or platinum.

Gypsum.

SAN BERNARDINO, Jan. 4.—[To the Editor of The Times;] I cannot decide whether the inclosed specimen is crystallized limestone or gypsum. It comes from a narrow ledge on my claim in the New York Mountains. What is it? How do you distinguish between limestone and gypsum? Can a layman successfully test such material. Please answer in The Times.

Yours truly, C. W. D.

ANSWER. Gypsum does not effervesce in nitric acid. B. B., gypsum melts into a button. Calcite is infusible b. b., and gives off a brilliant flame. Calcite effervesces in acids.

A Great Dinosaur Found.

Dr. W. J. Holland, director of the Carnegie Museum, announces the discovery in Utah of the bones of three specimens of the sauropod dinosaur, and also that Andrew Carnegie has provided the means for exhuming the skeletons and putting them together.

The animal discovered by Carl Douglas in Utah is perhaps related to a huge reptile, atlantosaurus. The vertebrae of the neck are four feet high. Douglas has found the sternal or breast bones, never before discovered except in a fragmentary state. The work of exhuming the first skeleton led as it proceeded to the discovery, of two others, which are small. The largest is eighty-four feet long.—[Pittsburgh Dispatch.

MODELING BUGS SAVES NATION MILLIONS.

Making Bugs

for exhibition to farmers that they may be known for what they are.

That a woman saves Uncle Sam many millions of dollars each year by making models of bugs, is another illustration of the various and novel ramifications of government at Washington not known to the country at large. Yet Mrs. Otto Heidemann, a sculptress of note, is employed in the Bureau of Entomology of the Department of Agriculture, and fashions the likenesses of many bugs and creeping things that are wont to infest the fields of the nation and destroy each year crops worth vast sums of money. These models are used by the government in instructing agriculturists and students of entomology that they may distinguish between insects that are injurious to crops and those that are harmless.

Mrs. Heidemann finds in this utilitarian work a necessity to use all her skill as a sculptress that the insects she portrays may be true to life and not misleading. They are made on a gigantic scale, in comparison to the life size of the insects, and are exact fac-similes of the originals, even to the most minute detail. The shape, color and lines of each insect is studied under a microscope before the work of modeling is begun. Mrs. Heidemann uses thread, celluloid, papier-maché, wire, wax and rubber, along with the necessary coloration pigments in making these models, and when her task is done the giant of all his tribe stands revealed.

To enter her studio and be confronted suddenly by a huge house fly as large as a cat, is startling to say the least. When the claws of this appalling monster are seen to be big enough, almost to rend and tear, an impressive recognition of the amazing variety of nature displayed in the insect is gained. Some of the wierd creatures are truly hideous, variable nightmare creations that deserve a place beside the pink rabbits, purple cats and scotch plaid elephants made famous in various songs concerning the cold, gray dawn of the morning after. Others are fantastic of form and eirie in the beauty of their varied and delicate tints and gossamer-like structures.

Most of the subjects are harmful bugs which, in some cases, are among the most harmful and formidable of the farmer's enemies. On the other hand, many are use-types that combat the pests. So large are the models that the tiniest insect represented is fashioned with absolutely correct, microscopic detail. Indeed, a microscope plays an important part in the work, for the object to be reproduced must be dissected and studied in detail. A working drawing is made from this microscopic study, showing the bug magnified to the size desired in the model. An absolutely true proportion of all the parts is insured by an ingenious system of Mrs. Heidemann's. In the same manner she reproduces the anatomical details.

She was a practical entomologist long before she undertook this work for Uncle Sam. She accompanied her husband, a well-known expert, on collecting tours in various parts of the country and assisted him in classifying his specimens. Several of Mr. Heidemann's investigations resulted in the study of new species which have been named after him in entomological nomenclature.

Some of the insects most harmful to man appear in most attractive form while others that are marvels of ugliness are known to be harmless and even beneficial. The coddling moth, one of Mrs. Heidemann's creations, has wings of striking opaque tints. Altogether, it is a most beautiful creature. But, as is well known, it is a veritable scourge to the fruit grower. Its larvae are especially destructive to the apple crops of the country. In Mrs. Heidemann's collection there is a huge model of half an apple with the young of the insect engaged in its work of destruction therein.

The cotton boll weevil has wrought great havoc to the crops of the South. To eradicate it the experts of the Bureau of Entomology have devoted much untiring effort and study. Mrs. Heidemann's model of this insect resembles a mammoth spider that is provided with a formidable boring apparatus projecting from its head. With this appendage the insect attacks the cotton, bores its way into the boll and deposits its eggs, which, hatching, prey upon the unformed cotton and kill it.

The average person bitten by a mosquito would, even if he got a good view of his tiny assailant, be unable to determine whether it was an anopholes, a malignant disease carrier, or merely a singing insect. But, portrayed by the models of Mrs. Heidemann, the three varieties of mosquitoes are seen to possess quite distinctive anatomical characteristics. There is the so-called singing mosquito whose nocturnal obligato is known and respected by nearly all men. This type, the general "peskiness" of which is the worst point that has been urged against it by the scientist, is the ugliest of the mosquito family, with its unsightly body and spotted legs. Compared to it, the dread anopholes, which is credited with the spread of all malarial and kindred fevers, is really pleasant-looking. Any insect as large as these mosquito models would, indeed, be alarming, for they are as large as the little snookums in your home.

The lady bug, on the other hand, has an honorable place in the collection. The entomologists of the department have taken the lady bug under their protection and are explaining to the agriculturists throughout the country that it is a most effective enemy to the San José scale. This modest lady bug exterminates the dread scale bug without mercy by eating them alive and has saved many orange groves and peach trees in various States.

The model of the lady bug resembles a turtle with a highly-colored and curved shell. Its mouth, which can scarcely be seen without a microscope in the original, is so large in the model that it might easily bite off a man's finger. It is not unlike the mouth of a snapping turtle. Its source of food supply, the scale, on the other hand, is a beautiful, delicate creature with gossimer-like wings of irridescent hues. Mrs. Heidemann experienced much difficulty in depicting the strangely-formed spines on the larvae of the lady bug and nearly as much in fashioning the wings of the scale.

The making of a model of the plant louse, frequently seen in large numbers in the insides of leaves, was quite easy. But the importance to agricultural colleges is great, indeed, for it is one of the farmer's most pernicious enemies. Its minute size and the special apparatus with which it is provided—and which is plainly visible in the model—enables it to force its way into the kernels of grain, arresting the moisture and nourishment of the growing cereals and eventually causing their dstruction. The Bureau of Entomology estimates the depredations of this minute creature at a loss of more than $10,000,000 to the cereal crop in a year.

PERFECT ORANGE LAND

"In the Valley of Success"

Yorba Linda

Yorba Linda Orange Land is simply perfect. Chemists pronounce it ideal for orange growing. Not a trace of frost has been seen this year? There is a generous rainfall and plenty of water for irrigation. This land is now selling for $250 per acre and up. Two-year-old groves are held at $1200 per acre. Can you imagine a better investment? Send for our free Booklet on Yorba Linda.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN—I hereby certify that I am completely cured by Dr. Toy Kee from a severe attack of tuberculosis. I used all kinds of medicine without results and gave it up until I heard of this Chinese doctor. I gave him a trial and found I had at last obtained the only physician capable of doing what no other doctor could do. I was coughing day and night, expectorating blood, losing sleep and hardly able to work. After being treated by Dr. Toy Kee a few months I was entirely well and will answer any communications sent me regarding my cure.

OLD GAME.

FOR CORNERING LABOR SUPPLY.

The McCarthyite Scheme in San Francisco.

Members of Unions Ordered to Keep Away.

Oakland and Los Angeles Slaves Under Lash.

"Don't come to San Francisco."

"Stay away from San Francisco."

Directions to this effect are daily sent out from the headquarters of various labor union officials in San Francisco to representatives of other blatherskite agitators of the same stripe in other cities throughout the country.

"Keep away from San Francisco" is practically an order from the chief paid-up men of the labor union trust, who see rich pickings ahead in the northern metropolis during the reign of Pinhead the First. With the biggest tyrant of them all on the Pacific Coast in the Mayor's chair, the totemite chiefs foresee almost unlimited possibilities for greed, gain and graft. For this reason they are not desirous, nor do they intend to permit, the San Francisco labor market to have a normal supply of workmen of any sort within the city's boundaries to meet the ordinary demands of the business men in the course of the ordinary growth of the city, not to speak of the natural ambition of successful business concerns to expand as their requirements call for.

Instead of fair field and equal opportunity being offered to even union men in San Francisco during the next two years, the selfish bosses of the unions there propose to have a most thorough and absolute control of the city's labor supply. The word has gone forth to members of all other labor unions that San Francisco is to be considered the legitimate prey of the 'Frisco labor monopolists and they alone.

To better foster this extraordinary plan, efforts have been directed to the unionites across the bay so that Oakland unions may realize that their members also must remain at home, except under any exceptional stress of circumstances that may arise, and then only when "Pinhead" and his lieutenants grant gracious permission.

As a step toward the consummation of what may be the greatest combination of labor ever formed, union rules and regulations are to be enforced, and are already being enforced against members who have been dilatory in the payment of dues or attendance at meetings. A system of fines has been introduced so that men who are not considered tractable or willing enough to obey any and all orders issued to them, are being forced to either resign from their unions or move away.

This method of eliminating "undesirables" is proving most effective in getting rid of such individuals, for the simple reason that all of them move away from the city, which is considered safer than quitting the union and fighting for an equal chance to earn an honest living among union thugs.

By availing themselves of the system of union labor in sending reports to official publications depicting local conditions from the union point of view, the McCarthyites find it easy to give their command to "stay away from 'Frisco" by misrepresenting the actual facts. The easily deceived union dupe who may have many good and sufficient reasons for wishing to move to San Francisco, is convinced (or cowed) into remaining away. Such men are beginning to realize to what extremes their leaders mean to go whenever they find themselves with the power to do as they wish.

If the plan of the union bosses is successful in San Francisco, the world will see an army of workingmen in absolute slavery.

In furtherance of this scheme, certain Los Angeles union leaders have been called into consultation by King Pinhead's "men-who-take-orders." It will be expected of these agitators, as in the case with the Oakland bosses, that they keep their union slaves at home. This can be accomplished by various methods, one of which will be to have Arthur Hay, the chief pensioner of the Typographical Union; little Rosenthal, who does what he is told to do in the Building Trades Council, and Blatherskite McManus, a man after "Pinhead's" own heart and pocketbook. In return for their services in this direction, there will be an occasional dividend ordered by the San Francisco labor magnates.

MR. GOMPERS AND THE LABOR VOTE.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

Mr. Gompers is saying some strange things at Toronto. For example:

"We know that at least 6,000,000 votes were cast for the principles espoused by labor, particularly in reference to the remedy from the abuse of the writ of injunction, to trial by jury, and to the full and free legal right of existence of the workers' organizations. That all these citizens had the injunction in mind when they cast their votes is conceded, even by our opponents. I have had statements from some of the leaders of the political party which, for the time being at least, made our cause its own, that the votes of the workers saved that party from utter, crushing oblivion. It is my belief that at least 80 per cent. of the organized labor forces voted in accordance with the recommendations of our federation."

The leaders of the federation, it will be remembered, told their followers to vote against the Republican ticket, and one of those leaders now says 80 per cent. of them did vote against the Republicans. When Mr. Gompers was doing his talking, he forgot that his words would be printed in the American newspapers, and their absurdity be exposed. And the absurdity lurks in every sentence. He pretends that the 6,000,000 persons who voted for Bryan had the Gompers injunction plank in mind when doing so. Neither Mr. Bryan nor any of the leaders of his party will feel complimented by that pretense, even though they weakly submitted to accepting that plank, after the Republicans threw it and its authors out of the Chicago convention. The effrontery of the assertion that 80 per cent. of the organized labor forces in the United States voted against the Republican ticket in 1908 may not be detected in Toronto, where the words were uttered, but it is plain to the people of the country which elected that ticket. While the organized labor forces of the country comprise only about one-twentieth of the country's wage workers, Mr. Gompers is not empowered to speak for all of even that small element.

FIGHT IS WITH LEADERS.

The fight against union-labor wrongs is as much in the interest of the members of these organizations as of any other class of men. Indeed, these members have more interest in the struggle than those outside. The fate of all organized labor depends on suppressing the evil practices of the unions and on curbing the rapacity and the tyranny of the leaders on whom rests nearly all the wrong-doing of these associations. Members get the worst of the malpractice of their leaders.

The great mistake made by rank and file of the unions is that they put at the head unfit men and then allow themselves to be led wrong by fellows of no wisdom, of small intelligence, and worst of all, of criminal intent. They are boss-ridden beyond any other great mass of men in the world.

Note a few conspicuous examples. The United Mine Workers of North America met in annual convention at Indianapolis during the current month. The president, Thomas Lewis, had been making a campaign to hold his place. He was distasteful to a large number of the members. His administration did not commend itself to them. The convention was the scene of disgraceful disorder. The anti-Lewis men charged and proved that the president had kept a large number of the organizers of the society, who drew pay out of the treasury, doing politics for him and had them in the convention in his behalf while their pay was going on and their expenses paid by the local unions to which they belonged. The convention prevented these political organizers from drawing their pay and expenses, yet re-elected Lewis president. The man is conspicuously unfit to hold such a position, and the convention had ample proof of this, yet they again placed him at their head. No organization can command the confidence and respect of the public which is led by unscrupulous, scheming, selfish men. No organization is safe for the general public, and less so for the members, which is led by such unscrupulous and selfish men.

This is not an exception but a rule. A conspicuous leader of labor-union men is P. H. McCarthy. Not only these societies but a majority of the voters of San Francisco have made this man Mayor of the city. That he is a shrewd politician is conceded. That he has any grasp of business is denied and the denial sustained. He would hardly set up in his own defense that he has any remnant of a conscience left, and there are some who doubt if he ever had such a restraint in his soul. As Mayor of a great city one of his early acts of the rank demagogue he is was to withdraw the city funds from the banks where they were not only safe but where they were earning interest for the taxpayers. These loans were made to the banks under due authority of the law. Not a taxpayer in ten thousand objected to this policy. But McCarthy must play politics for the satisfaction of the loafers, spendthrifts, do-nothings and have-nothings to whom he owes his place.

Go to the head of the organized labor people of the country and you find the places of power and distinction held by three men under sentence by the courts for direct violation of the laws of the United States. John Mitchell, Samuel Gompers and their fellow felon, Morrison, are malefactors in the eyes of the law and in the judgment of the court. It is because judges are lenient that they are not behind prison bars. These men openly boast of their defiance of the law. They are brazenly shameless of their malefactions. Such men bring the organizations they represent into contempt, and set before the eyes of all reasonable persons the danger existing in societies who condone, yes, boast of, this contempt of law. At some point this immunity for breaking the law must stop, or this republic must sink in ruin under the tyranny of a small portion of the citizens. That this conduct will be halted promptly we cannot doubt. Each breach of the law on the part of the leaders of these organizations brings them into suspicion and contempt among the most of the people, and makes them an object of dread for the rest.

Take a plunge from the top to the bottom and we find the other day in Los Angeles a "leader" in one of these organizations running away with a considerable sum of money belonging to his union. This is a recent case and a local one among thousands that have taken place all over the country. An immense boodle brought here during the last twenty years to "down The Times" has been "easy money" for the "leaders," who still lead, who also probably still steal anything cooler than a red-hot stove or lighter than a ton-weight of steel ingot.

Then there is the brutal cruelty of these "leaders," a matter of almost daily occurrence. McCarthy in his quality of Mayor of San Francisco had made one of his right-hand men out of Mike Casey, the notorious leader of the Teamsters' Union when that body of thugs were out on strike and committed not only brutal assaults but murder as foul as ever stained the earth.

Not a week ago in Seattle one of these labor-union "leaders" found a man peaceably working at his trade on a Methodist church and because the man could not show a union card, the thug fell upon him and almost beat his life out. It is in behalf of such working men as this that we demand the suppression of such leaders as this walking delegate. The delegate is not a laborer. His activities in the world result in no good to any person nor to the community. He should be sent promptly to the chain gang and forced to earn the bread he now steals. This, too, would be a step from which would come great good to all workingmen, to those organized most of all, and the benefits would spread out and bless the whole community.

INDEMNITY.

EMPLOYERS TO STOP LOSSES.

GERMAN FIRMS INAUGURATE INSURANCE PROTECTION.

During a Strike the Workman Loses Only His Time, But the Employer Suffers from Depreciation of His Plant and by Loss of His Markets to Business Rivals.

The numerous strikes in Germany have caused the employers of that country to inaugurate an industrial insurance movement which may prove suggestive to operators in the United States. Strikes in Germany have been so frequent that employers of labor have had to use all means for self-protection and self-preservation, writes Consul Talbot J. Albert of Brunswick. While the workmen must suffer deprivation during a strike, they have nothing to lose. When the funds of the union are exhausted, the striker is supported by contributions from other labor organizations.

Severe material damage is done the employer by a strike. The factory lies idle and suffers depreciation from want of use. Production ceases and the employer in these days of keen competition is exposed to the danger of being driven out of the market, which he has with difficulty acquired. As the stoppage of work generally takes place at times of greatest prosperity when orders are most numerous, he is likely to lose all his custom to competitors.

This unfavorable position of industry as compared with labor, which is supported by its system of organization, has brought about industrial insurance against loss by strikes. The extent to which it prevails may be judged from official statistics just published. According to the Bureau of Statistics, there are in all forty-eight companies, namely thirteen strike indemnity insurance companies, twenty-six employers' associations for strike insurance, and nine in which indemnity is from occasion to occasion granted.

The company of United German Employers' Association for Indemnity for Loss by Strikes (Der Verein Deutscher Arbeitgeber-verbande zur Entschaedigung bei Arbeitseinstellungen) is a reinsurance company and comprised twenty membership companies in 1908. The number of workmen announced as employed in the industries insured was 411,028, and the sum of the yearly wages amounted to 466,765,995 marks ($111,090,307.) During the year reported, claims to the amount of 525,218 men's days were presented, chiefly from the metal industry. The amount of the indemnities paid in 1908 was 153,457 marks ($36,522.) The indemnity funds amounted to 233,579 marks ($55,591,) so that the association closed the year with a surplus of 80,122 marks ($19,069.)

The company of the United Association of German Metal Industries for Indemnity Against Loss by Strikes reports for the year 1908 164,803 workmen. The sum insured for that year amounts to 205,882,645 marks ($48,904,870.) The number of unemployed days by strikes and lockouts reached 321,754, of which 52,362 were due to strikes and 269,392 to lockouts. The entire amount of indemnity paid in 1908 was 282,031 marks ($67,123.) The association closed the year with a surplus of 321,514 marks ($76,520.)

In the case of the Employers' Union "Unter-Elbe" for Indemnity for Losses by Strikes, the number of workmen announced in the industries in 1908 was 45,135, and the wage sum insured was 57,484,780 marks ($13,666,000.) In that year damages were paid for 41,454 work days, amounting to 27,839 marks ($6625.)

The conditions under which a strike indemnity paid are different in the several companies. Assistance is granted in case of strikes and generally in lockouts. But this is subject to fixed conditions, the most important of which is that the stoppage of work has not been produced by the fault of the employer himself. The obligations of the companies or associations to their members begin after a fixed interval, in most cases three months, but may vary up to one year.

EQUAL RIGHTS.

NINE-HOUR LAW DOESN'T HOLD.

WHEN IT PROVIDES TIME FOR WOMEN ONLY.

This Is the Conclusion of the Higher Courts Which See a Discrimination Between Men and Women Laborers Working at the Same Industrial Establishments.

[Kansas City Star:] The law enacted by the last Legislature provides that women shall not be employed in laundries, factories and department stores at an earlier hour than 6 o'clock in the morning, or later than 10:30 o'clock at night. It also provides that women shall not be employed in such places to exceed fifty-four hours a week, or nine hours a day.

Practically the same law was declared unconstitutional in New York and the Supreme Court of the United States declared it unconstitutional. Recently the Circuit Court in St. Louis decided the law passed by the last Legislature providing that women shall not be employed in laundries and factories longer than nine hours a day is unconstitutional.

"It has been held in other States and by the United States Supreme Court that a law which attempts to discriminate between men and women laborer is unconstitutional," Henry Jost, first assistant county prosecutor, said this morning. "When men and women go out to earn their living at daily labor the law permits no discrimination. Under these decisions the 9-hour law which is made to apply to women alone, employed in factories and laundries, undoubtedly is unconstitutional."

"An effort was made to enforce the 9-hour law as it applies to women employed in laundries and factories, in St. Louis recently," Ruby D. Garrett, assistant county prosecutor, said this morning. "The Circuit Court declared the law unconstitutional and those arrested for its violation were discharged, I am informed by the State labor commissioner and factory inspector.

"I collected evidence here against several laundries and other places which violate this law and was preparing to begin prosecutions when I was informed that the St. Louis Circuit had declared the law unconstitutional. I am making further investigation, because the law is being openly violated in Kansas City, in the laundries and other places. If the circuit court of St. Louis, following the decisions of the New York courts and the United States Supreme Court, has declared the law unconstitutional it would be useless for us to proceed here. It is held to be class legislation. If the law had been made to apply to men as well as women, it doubtless would have stood the test."

Mountains of iron ore at one of the ports of Lake Erie.

VICTORY.

WON THE FIGHT FOR OPEN SHOP.

STUBBORN CONTEST BY OWNERS OF LAKE CARRIERS.

Through a Hard Year Wages Were Not Reduced by the Lake Carriers' Association, and no Concessions Were Made to the Demands of the Unionites.

"Great credit is due to our members for the resolute manner in which they stood together to protect their right to conduct their business without interference from outside influences," said President William Livingstone, of the Lake Carriers' Association, in discussing the marine strike which prevailed on the lakes last year, at the first session of the annual meeting in Detroit last week.

"The welfare plan which had been in operation at the opening of navigation was the ostensible object of attack, although it was apparent that the real object of the opposition was the policy of the open shop. When the time arrived for the fitting out of vessels, blank forms of contract were sent out by the members of our association to their chief and assistant engineers.

"Notwithstanding that the officers of the Marine Engineers' Benevolent Association took a positive stand in opposition to the signing of these contracts, a large number were executed by the men to whom they were sent.

COMPLAINS OF UNIONS.

"The union policy of interference and annoyance was continued in various ways throughout the season. Engineers who signed were threatened with expulsion from their organization unless they repudiated these contracts, and in fact many were tried and suspended by their unions. Pickets were established by the unions at all ports to interfere with engineers employed on the vessels going to their ships to take up their duties. In many cases where argument failed of effect violence was resorted to, and throughout the season assaults were committed upon engineers in the service of the vessels.

"The arbitration boards of the States in the lake district attempted to bring about arbitration of the differences between our association and the labor organizations. They met in Detroit on May 18, I was invited to attend the meeting, but as our association was defending a fundamental principle which did not permit of arbitration, I declined to be present. The National Civic Federation then attempted to bring about arbitration, but I refused to be present for a similar reason. Conciliatory efforts were then abandoned.

FIGHT ABOUT LICENSES.

"The Engineers' Association, in order to place difficulties in the way of its members who desired work, required that they deposit their licenses with their officers or a special committee appointed for the purpose of holding the licenses in trust. This action was declared by the United States steamboat inspectors to be illegal, and their decision was sustained by the supervising inspector-general.

"The question of open shop was taken up by the Seamen's Union and submitted to a referendum vote, with the result that a general strike of the unlicensed men was declared against the L. C. A. This strike was waged throughout the season and was carried on by the means of a guerrilla warfare against men who shipped on our vessels under the open shop policy, and instances of slugging and assault upon men employed on our vessels were of frequent occurrence in all ports. In every case where proof could be obtained the offenders were prosecuted.

VESSELS MANNED EASILY.

"Vessels were manned without difficulty as soon as they were put in commission and but little trouble was experienced by this strike other than the annoyance to which men who entered the service of the vessels were subjected to by picketing and assaults."

In speaking of business conditions of the great lakes last year Mr. Livingstone said:

"The business depression of 1908 continued until after the opening of last season. The prospect at that time was far from encouraging. With a threatened reduction in the price of iron ore, and the revision of the tariff under Congressional consideration, the outlook was discouraging. Wages were being cut in many industries in all parts of the country. Our association had declared in December, 1908, that there would be no reduction in the wages of men we employed.

"When the adjustment of the tariff by Congress in July was accomplished and the uncertainty which prevailed in all classes of business ended, the whole country began to respond to the confidence which followed, with but a few exceptions. Unfortunately, our vessel business was one of the exceptions. All the expenses connected with the running of our fleet remained at the highest ratio."

A modern ore bucket operated by electricity.

Fifty Million Tons of Iron Ore.

ENORMOUS QUANTITY OF IRON-MAKING MATERIAL IS SHIPPED FROM PORTS ON THE GREAT LAKES.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

IF ALL the iron ore which was brought down our inland seas during the year just closed was made into a roadway twenty-eight feet wide and a half-foot deep, it would reach from New York to Los Angeles, with still some to spare. If placed in two-horse wagons and the procession started in one direction, it would reach nearly five times around the world at the Equator.

Few industries are better indexes to America's prosperity than her traffic in iron ore. With this traffic at a standstill for any length of time, hundreds of industries become paralyzed, not only along the Great Lakes, but in every part of the country, while even the men directly interested in the handling of this heavy product number some 50,000.

The year just closed has been a remarkable one, exceeding even the phenomenal season of 1907, when many claimed that the ore traffic had reached its zenith. The exact amount of ore carried in that year was 41,197,939 tons, and that of this year was about 400,000 tons more than in 1907. The prophesy for 1910 is 50,000,000 tons, and this will be easily accomplished with the millions of dollars that are just now going into great railroad and dock facilities.

It will be news to many sections of the country to know that the tonnage of Duluth-Superior harbor on the upper lakes is greater than that of Boston or Philadelphia, it being last year 38,000,000 tons, as against 25,000,000 at Philadelphia and 22,000,000 at Boston. The greater portion of the Duluth-Superior commerce is, of course, iron ore.

As to ships, there are but a very few on the ocean routes which exceed in length the great leviathans of the Great Lakes, some of which are 605 feet long, and nearly all of which are now being built of steel. The fleet is growing rapidly. As early as last September, orders had been placed for thirteen great new ships for the coming season, and in addition to the present vast shipyards of these bodies of water, one of the largest shipyards in the world is to be built at Ashtabula harbor, beginning within the next few months.

The story of iron ore is an interesting one. The mines are located chiefly in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, and are in different shapes, some veins of ore being easily uncovered near the surface and others being deep in the ground. The greater part of surface mining is done only during the season of Great Lake navigation, which extends over eight to nine months.

The ore from these mines is brought in cars to the shipping ports, where it goes into pockets, which, in turn, discharge their contents into the huge vessels which are constantly plying between the upper and lower lakes, the chief receiving ports being on Lake Erie. Duluth-Superior, Ashland, Marquette and Two Harbors are among the great shipping ports, the latter two being on Lake Michigan.

Sixty separate companies, owning one to a hundred vessels each, in the commerce of the Great Lakes, have their headquarters in the city of Cleveland. In fact, 80 per cent. of the bulk freight tonnage of the lakes is either owned or managed here. It is, therefore, from Cleveland chiefly that the movements of the ships from the mines to the lower lakes are directed. Some one has rightly said that lake commerce has lined the avenues of Cleveland with the homes of millionaires.

In all there are more than 1400 vessels on the Great Lakes, and connected with their operation there are 30,000 seamen. As soon as the ice is broken in the spring and navigation is safe, the smoke begins to curl from the smokestacks of the steamers at nearly all the lake ports, and there is soon a general exodus in the direction of the shipping ports heretofore referred to. The loading of an ore steamer in this day is not a long job. One day in October of the past fall, more than 10,000 tons were discharged from the pockets at Two Harbors into the steamer Corey in thirty-nine minutes. This breaks all former records, however. This amount of ore is equivalent to the capacity of 200 of the biggest ore cars extant, or two 100-car trains.

If the steamer loads at the upper lake ports, it must be locked through the canals of Sault Ste. Marie or the "Soo," as it is commonly called, en route down. This is one of the busiest and most interesting places on the chain of lakes. Grain cargoes are also locked through these canals, and upbound vessels carrying coal to the upper lakes. One month of the past year alone, the total commerce through these canals—American and Canadian—aggregated more than 9,000,000 tons. Some one has figured that in the busy season 100 tons a minute pass through these locks every minute of the day and night without ceasing.

The greater part of all the ore, not only that which comes through the "Soo" but that which comes from Lake Michigan as well, is taken to eleven ports on Lake Erie. More than 33,000,000 tons of the 41,000,000 of the past year came to these ports. The greatest of these ore-receiving harbors is Ashtabula, where the past year nearly 8,000,000 tons were unloaded. Conneaut harbor, then Cleveland and then Buffalo come next in volume of the ore business.

The amount of ore received at Ashtabula during one month of the past year would, if placed in the cars of one long train, reach from Pittsburgh to Buffalo. Forty-four great ore steamers entered this port in a period of five days in September, bringing the heavy product of the mines. Some idea of what such a fleet means to a harbor can be gained from the fact that two of the largest vessels, when at the docks lying end to end, occupy a space nearly a quarter mile in length.

At the present depth of water afforded at the lake ports the biggest vessels carry about 13,000 tons of ore, but when the depth of the harbors is deepened to twenty-three feet, as it will be ere long they will increase this to at least 15,000 tons. These same vessels when late in the season engaged in the wheat trade carry more than 400,000 bushels. One load carried from Duluth to Buffalo amounted to 460,000 bushels.

The interiors of these great ships are built with special reference to ore-carrying. All possible obstructions to the free working of automatic machinery for unloading are eliminated. The machinery must reach every nook and corner of the great cavity so to speak in removing the ore. Few men are required in the operation nowadays. A recent move in the construction of ship bottoms is to make them of concrete.

The buckets which have just been installed on the docks of the greatest ore port have a capacity of fifteen tons each. It is possible already to take out of one vessel more than 3000 tons of ore in an hour and still better records are looked for. Some vessels are already so built that it is said it would be practical to use even thirty-ton buckets in unloading them. At Ashtabula, $3,000,000 are being expended in dock improvements and the evolution which is coming in ore handling is marvelous.

As the ore is unloaded it is either placed in cars direct, on storage piles, or in a great cement storage trough from which it is later reloaded into cars as needed. There are more than a hundred distinct kinds of iron ore and some of these, not needed immediately at the furnaces, are stored on the docks for winter shipment.

The past year witnessed the loading of the biggest train which has probably ever been sent out loaded with ore for the furnace districts. The train consisted of 100 loaded cars and leaving a point five miles south of the greatest ore port, was run to the Mahoning Valley steel center in five hours and fifteen minutes. The total weight of the ore on this train was 7,433 tons. One hundred-car trains have before been hauled, but not with a load in every car. The distance over which this train traveled is about sixty miles. The locomotives which are used for such hauls, as might be surmised, are about the largest to be found in the world.

To handle this vast traffic in ore the steel industries, big as they now are, continue to increase in size. It is said that the Carnegie Steel Company is to spend $10,000,000 in improvements and new mills. At Lorain, O., it is reported $7,000,000 is to be expended in increasing the capacity of some of the plants there, until 4000 more men will be employed. At Gary, Ind., on the shores of Lake Michigan, the plant of the United States Steel Company, already employing 7000 men, it is said will, when fully completed, employ 20,000.

BUSINESS DISTURBED.

STRIKE MANIA IS WIDESPREAD.

MASSACHUSETTS OPERATIVES CAUGHT BY THEIR NEW LAW.

Asked Legislature to Reduce Factory Hours and the Companies Reduced Wages in Proportion to Production, Which Was Not Agreeable to the Reformers.

Dispatches from Fall River, Mass., and other industrial centers of the same State indicate that the new law reducing the hours of labor in industrial establishments has cut two ways. When the unionists petitioned the Legislature to amend the law the expectation undoubtedly was that the workmen would has his working time reduced but not his wages. It was an attempt to squeeze employers, as the hours of labor were not more onerous than in other States. When the law went into effect, however, it was found that production was reduced proportionately and wages were made pro rata with the result that there have been a large number of petty strikes among the mill operatives. As fast as possible readjustments have been made, but the event has caused a serious interference with business.

The passion for striking seems to have taken deep root in the female breast within the last few months. The shirt-waist makers of New York set the example, 9000 of them striking for better conditions and a living wage. This was the first time that women had had a strike all to themselves, and it seems to have inspired other women to do the same. The shirt-waist makers in Philadelphia immediately followed the example of their New York sisters. The last addition to the striking numbers are the women cigar makers in Cincinnati.

There are rumors of strikes among the railroad workmen, and also among the miners of Pennsylvania. When business appears to have a trend up grade the strike spirit seems to manifest itself even before conditions warrant the change of wages demanded.

Last week Sheriff Amerine, of St. Clairsville, O., arrested twenty-nine strikers, all members of the Amalgamated Association, for being implicated in the riots which took place at the Aetna Standard plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, and resulted in 1500 Ohio National Guardsmen being called out.

Ten of the men were indicted for shooting with intent to kill, and the others for rioting. Included in those arrested for the more serious offense was L. Lewellyn Lewis, national vice-president of the Amalgamated; Walter Larkins, formerly vice-president; Ike Lewis, who was Mayor of Martins Ferry, O., during the riots, and John Fretter, who aws Socialistic candidate for Mayor.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

The Winnsboro Granite Corporation of Rion, S. C., has recently shipped to Aberdeen, Scotland, 331 pieces of rough granite weighing 320 tons, to be used for monumental purposes. Other large orders are expected to follow.

At Cleveland, O., during 1909 an average of seventy-six pounds of grease per ton was extracted from the green garbage collected about the city and taken to the reduction works.

The 1910 onion crop of Southwest Texas is expected to reach 2,200,000 crates.

The National Cartridge Company, with a capital of $100,000, has been formed for the establishment of a cartridge manufactory at Napa. Both rifle and pistol cartridges will be made.

As a result of experiments made at Port Arthur, Tex., by John W. Gates, the Southern Fiber Company of Portsmouth, Va., is receiving rice straw from Texas for the manufacture of paper pulp. Heretofore the straw has been burned.

The lumber business of Houston, Tex., amounts to $37,000,000 a year. The cotton oil mills of the city annually turn out products valued at more than $4,000,000.

Dr. Joseph Hollenbauer, general manager of the Lauchhammer Company of Germany, now in New York, says American tools are far more up to date than German tools, and Americans use their brains more than do German workmen.

The American Chicle Company, by obtaining control of the Sen Sen Chiclet Company, now handles over 85 per cent. of the chewing gum produced in this country.

Herbert E. Law of Seattle announces that a merger has been formed of some of the most valuable coal and iron property on the Pacific Coast, and the Western Steel Corporation will begin, in March, the manufacture of the first steel ever made on this coast. The plant is now ready for operations at Irondale, within four miles of Port Townsend, on Puget Sound.

Work is to be resumed in the arsenic mines of Floyd, Va., the entire product for the present to be used for the manufacture of Paris green.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK—Lots, Lands and Building Developments.

TIP-TOP VALUES.

BIG PRICE FOR GROVE TRACT.

Ontario Lemon Land Brings Two Thousand an Acre.

British Officer Buys Southern California Home.

Continued Activity in All the Country Towns.

ONTARIO, Jan. 29.—The highest price recorded since last winter for the sale of an orange or lemon grove has been paid for ten acres of lemons at the corner of Eight street and Mountain avenue, which has been sold by the owner, William Gossau, to W. W. Phipps, for $20,000. This is at the rate of $2000 per acre. Several sales at the same figures were made here some months ago. The Gossau lemon grove is one of the finest in this section.

George R. Holbrook last week sold a bungalow on East D street to W. G. H. Bates, an officer in the British army stationed in Northern India. Stone & Bybee report the sales of the following city lots: Three lots for George A. McBibbon to A. G. Cooper, $450; one lot for N. R. Richardson to Thomas White, $800; two lots for George McKibbon to Lulu Stone, $300; Villa lots for Thomas White to N. R. Richardson, $1800.

Harry Kelly, manager of the Ontario Realty Company, reports the following sales: Twenty acres of grapes in the Blackburn Addition for R. Mason Smith to Dr. C. L. Mullins, $2275; one acre lot on East Maitland street, improved with a small house, for William Kampson to Henry Long, $750; two lots in the Home View tract for George McKibbon to George Cooper, $300; twenty acres in the Chino Ranch district for Carrie E. Morse to Imogene W. Huey, $4050; one-acre lot in the Blackburn Addition for R. Mason Smith to R. H. Hannah, $300; two lots at the corner of A street and Vine avenue, for George M. Bealey to H. B. Hockett, $1600; one lot in the Home Villa tract for George McKibbon to Ben Fink, $275.

SALES IN SOUTH PASADENA.

GOOD LOTS CHANGE HANDS.

SOUTH PASADENA, Jan. 29.—A number of important deals in South Pasadena real estate have been completed within the past month, and in some instances the investments of considerable outside capital is represented.

P. J. Dolan & Co. of Mission and Fair Oaks report the following sale.

H. Jevne of Los Angeles to Edwin T. Potter of Cleveland, O., lot 120x204, at the southwest corner of Grevalia street and Fair Oaks avenue, for $6000. Mr. Potter is secretary and general manager of the Cleveland Directory Company. He will improve this lot with a handsome residence to cost $20,000.

Oneonta Realty Company also report the following recent sales:

N. S. Walker of Rutland, Vt., to T. L. Roberts, lot 100x145, on Electric avenue between Oak and Huntington Drive, improved with a twelve-room modern two-story residence, the grounds with shrubbery and orange trees, consideration $9500. Mr. Roberts, who has recently moved here from the East, buys for a home.

B. F. Wilkie to J. H. Haun of Chicago, lot 50x170, improved with a six-room modern bungalow, on Elm avenue, between Mission and Oxley streets, for $3500. This place was also bought for a home.

Gilbert & Co. of Mission street:

J. S. Torrance to Benjamin S. Coppock, two lots, 60x160, on Lyndon street between Fremont and Fair Oaks avenue, consideration $1500 each. Mr. Coppock will improve each lot with a modern up-to-date bungalow.

E. P. Cummings to W. N. Carter of Cincinnati, lot 88x200, improved with a handsome twelve-room home, consideration $17,000.

Henry G. Hull to Mrs. Lilie D. Lukota, lot 220x318, on Huntington Drive near San Marino, for $6150. This lot to be improved with a handsome residence.

A. F. Schult to J. Tutton of Columbus, Kan., lot 57x130, on Fairview avenue between Oxley streets and Monterey Road, consideration $4500. This lot is improved with a modern seven-room bungalow.

BETTER SPIRIT PREVAILS.

GREAT INFLUX OF VISITORS.

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 29.—A better spirit now prevails among realty brokers because of the large influx of winter visitors. Inquiries for home properties have increased tenfold from those of the ante-holiday period.

Dealers say where there are so many inquiries there are bound to be sales. In anticipation of early spring buying by the late comers who have grown tired of the eastern winters, several syndicates are being formed for the purpose of acquiring and laying out undeveloped tracts into building lots. These deals are still hanging fire and may not be consummated for several weeks.

A tract purchased by a syndicate last week, and to be known as Carrita Park, was sold through A. L. Ross and others to a corporation. It consists of about ten acres in the East Redlands addition. The price paid was $11,000. The tract is to be converted into a high-class residence district.

Another tract developing into a rapidly built-up section of the city is Frary Heights, where every lot sold is for building purposes. Luce & Chalmers have sold for Robert Dick to E. W. Pelton four lots in this piece for $1000. Pelton intends to build a fine home at once. The sale involves 100x125 feet at the corner of Thirty-first and Thorn streets.

The same firm has sold for the Title Guaranty and Trust Company two lots in the same tract to C. C. Watson for $800. In the Park Villa tract Minda J. Keck has sold to W. F. Christopher of Escondido two for $800.

Another newcomer, A. H. Stevens, has bought a handsome home on Hillcrest. The seller was John W. Smith and the purchase price was $6500.

A LIVELY SEASON.

HOMESEEKERS BUY TRACTS.

BEAUMONT, Jan. 29.—The midwinter season is proving to be a good one and homeseekers are coming in from many Eastern and Northern States and securing tracts. The Beaumont Land and Water Company reports the sale of nine acres in the Edgar Vineyard tract to Mrs. Nancy Ann Lizer for $450. Mrs. Oscar T. Lizer has bought from the same company eight and a half acres in Cherry Valley for $925.

Mr. and Mrs. James Boyd of Fullerton have purchased a business building on Fifth street and will establish a furniture store, making the second one in the town. R. M. Logan has acquired a lot 26x120 feet on Fifth street, near the Beaumont Bank, and has commenced the erection of a store building which he will occupy with a stock of merchandise.

C. C. Crowell of Riverside has bought a twenty-acre orchard in Edgar Cañon, just north of the Mellen ranch. Poole & Williams were the grantors, and although the purchase price was not made known, it is said to be about $500 an acre for the planted part. McJohnston & Huckins have opened a plumbing establishment on Egan avenue, and Lee Bros. another on D street.

IMPORTANT DEALS.

RANCHES AND GROVES SOLD.

WHITTIER, Jan. 19.—The present week has seen the consummation of several important real estate deals in both city and country property. S. W. Barton & Co. report the sale of the ten-acre H. C. Baldwin orange ranch on South Painter avenue to Oris Reese, recently from Indiana, for $30,000. This ranch consists of six-year-old Valencias and full-bearing navels, and is among the best of the Whittier groves. The ranch is close in, has a good city residence, and is otherwise improved in the best manner.

The same firm also reports other sales as follows: Nine acres of young oranges near the Leffingwell ranch, for $7500, to W. I. Palmer of Newcastle, Ind. Emory Albertson is the seller. W. I. Palmer has also purchased a residence lot on South Painter avenue, in the Landrum Smith addition, and will erect a residence thereon soon.

T. M. Reese, also of Indiana, has purchased five acres of orange and walnut groves in East Whittier from the O. L. Baldwin ranch for $6000; O. T. Sutton, a five-room bungalow on South Comstock avenue, to W. D. Cooper, for $2600.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS.

LOT SITES ARE IN DEMAND.

AZUSA, Jan. 29.—W. C. Barnes reports the following recent sales: Lot on San Gabriel avenue for W. H. and Frank Dovies to Miss Hannah J. Wilkerson, $300 cash. The buyers will built at once. Lot on Soldano avenue for Joseph Alba to D. W. McDarmond, $450. Mr. McDarmond will build. Five lots for W. A. Harris to Mrs. Minnie A. Long, $2300.

Lot in the Orange Land tract, with a new four-room cottage, for Clifton J. Platt to William Dearmond, $1000. Mr. Dearmond buys for a home. Two lots, with an eight-room house, for Mrs. Mary M. Weigand to James Rogers, $2100. A lot and five-room bungalow in the Azusa Heights tract for Clifton J. Platt of Pasadena to Howard R. Siddall, $1400. A twenty-five-foot lot on Azusa avenue for O. A. Damon to A. B. Griffith, $150.

Mrs. Mary M. Weigand is having a residence built by Contractor W. H. Kishbaugh at the corner of Dalton avenue and Ninth street. It is to cost $1500.

GREAT ANIMATION.

GLENDALE GROWING STEADILY.

GLENDALE, Jan. 29.—The past few weeks have been lively ones for Glendale.

Parker & Sternberg report the following sales: Five room bungalow, lot 50x142 feet, on Mary street, from the Bungalow Construction Company, to William Pratt; two corner lots on Sixth street, 95x150 feet, to Mrs. M. M. Noble; a cottage and lot 50x170 feet on Milford street to Mrs. Ada Atkinson; the corner of Fifth and Orange streets, 95x150 feet, to Stanley S. Frentz, who will build at once for a home; Fred Wilkinson, corner Central avenue and Salem, 75x150 feet; Mrs. S. J. Mosher, lot on Central avenue, 50x150 feet.

A lot 50x150 feet on Central avenue, adjoining the home of Louis J. Hodge; twelve acres in the foothills of North Glendale to Dan Campbell.

BELT ESCAPES FROST.

MUCH INQUIRY REPORTED.

MONROVIA, Jan. 29.—Homeseekers and intending home builders are the principal buyers. The testing of the district by frost and its escape without serious damage when other sections suffered so severely incited much inquiry for ranch property, but the inclination of both prospective buyer and seller is to wait until the crop is off the trees. Sales reported for the week ending January 27 are:

Blythe & Beeman, acting for E. Bradford, to Miss J. Reynolds, house and lot on Linnwood avenue near Magnolia, $2700; same firm acting for Mrs. Cora E. Graves, to Thomas S. Harkness, lot at Magnolia and Oaks, $1200. H. J. Evans, acting for Mrs. A. M. Shrode, to E. D. Walton, five-room house and lot on Encinitas avenue, $2000. Bunker & Wade, acting for L. C. Cavelry, to Tiffel Bros., lot on Lemon avenue east of California, $850. Paul Bachert, acting for Boyd & Neville, to Frank H. Porter, lot on North Primrose avenue, $1250.

GROVES IN DEMAND.

ORANGE ACREAGE INCREASING.

HEMET, Jan. 29.—The past week has shown a remarkable number of land sales in and about Hemet, several fine pieces of orange land having been sold. Forty-one acres belonging to A. E. Cox, has been purchased through the Hemet Realty Association by L. B. Turner. Henry Herman has bought the Samuel Minnich orange grove, and has purchased the adjoining ten acres from W. H. Fricker.

The Realty Association announces the sale of lot 4 in block 250, Whittier's addition, for H. C. Leffingwell to M. W. McCrea. This is also orange land. Through William Kingham's office a sale has been made of an improved eighty-acre ranch, from Katie W. Thrall, to Henry J. Young.

A REAL BARGAIN.

A deal which was in many ways one of the most noteworthy of recent realty transactions, was the transfer last week by the University of Southern California to the Third Church of Christ Scientist of the Simpson Auditorium building at No. 734 South Hope street. The consideration of $130,000 called for in the option which the purchasers are exercising in the sale is at the rate of $1000 a front foot. At such a figure the property is quite generally regarded by real estate men as a rare bargain. The temple cost $80,000 sixteen years ago, and is considered to have almost perfect acoustic properties. The site is 134 feet frontage by 165 feet in depth.

ASK FOR PAVING.

A petition representing a majority of the frontage owners of Vermont avenue from Santa Monica avenue to Slauson avenue, a distance of two miles, is now ready to be presented to the City Council. Those petitioning desire connection with the present paving on Vermont avenue, which extends from Washington street to Santa Monica avenue, a distance of eight miles, making the longest single stretch of paving in the city. The desired street improvement would pass through Vermont Square, and the newer southwest, connecting with the good roads system to Redondo by way of Hyde Park and Inglewood

THE MARKET.

BY OWNERS AND DEALERS.

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN REAL ESTATE CIRCLES.

Dealers Report Good Inquiry for All Classes of Lot and Residence Properties—Great Subdivision Activity Results from City's Growth Through Annexation.

The owners and dealers of the city report much inquiry for all classes of lot and residence property in and about Los Angeles, and every indication points to busy weeks ahead. The prospect of annexation to the city is inspiring great interest in many of the close-in subdivisions and many home sites are being purchased in newly-laid-out tracts. The following reports tell part of the story of the week's business in realty circles:

Delano Actitivies.

The S. F. B. Morse Development Company reports sales of its Delano lands for the past week, aggregating $16,500, as follows: Ten acres to H. W. Frost, Jr., of Charleston, S. C., for $7000; ten acres to Peter Bellone of Chino, $2000; twenty acres to J. M. Neff of Long Beach, $4000; twenty acres to Milton Bros. of Dayton, O., $3500. The water development of the Morse Company is said to be on a gigantic scale, and to be rapidly transforming the Delano section from a grain raising country into an area of intensive farming.

Buy Building Sites.

Ben F. Field & Co. report the following sales: Six-room bungalow at No. 1021 Normandie street, lot 45x140 feet, C. F. Miller to Mrs. L. Luc, $3000. Six-room cottage at No. 1949 Norwood street, lot 35x140 feet, Josef Rubo to Herman Brandt, $3000. Eight-room residence at No. 707 West Eighteenth street, lot 48x170 feet, from F. C. Armstrong to Louise G. Beach, $6500. Mr. Armstrong received $4000 and a seven-room furnished cottage at No. 124 Hart avenue, Santa Monica. A lot in the University Park tract, 27x112 feet, at the southeast corner of Thirty-ninth and Wisconsin streets, Aaron Barnes to C. W. Osterhout, $2500. A lot at the northwest corner of Harvard boulevard and Forty-seventh street, 50x130 feet, Southwestern Land Company to C. W. Osterhout, $1200. A lot 26x128 feet on the east side of Central avenue, opposite Fifty-sixth street, Mrs. A. S. Crickmore to C. W. Osterhout, $2600. Mr. Osterhout will join with Ben F. Field in erecting a store building on the last-described lot and modern bungalows on the Vermont Square and Agricultural Park lots.

Belle Vernon Sales.

Emil Firth reports the sale of eight lots in Belle Vernon to the following purchasers: George W. Miller, two lots on Euclid avenue, east of Long Beach boulevard, $950; Oscar Kruuse, 75x276 feet at the corner of Long Beach boulevard and Carlin avenue, $600; George W. Chapman, two lots on Burton avenue, $1300; H. C. Bond, 114x300 feet on Carlin avenue, east of Long Beach boulevard, $650; John H. Cady, 72x300 feet on Carlin avenue, $325; Harry Hansen, 75x276 feet at the corner of Long Beach boulevard and Carlin avenue, $610. Belle Vernon is situated on the Long Beach electric line, about twenty minutes' ride from Sixth and Main streets.

West Adams Park Sales.

The McKenzie-Carter Company reports the following sales in the West Adams Park Place and West Adams Terrace tracts: Lot 75x180 feet in the West Adams Park Place tract, on West Adams between Eighth and Ninth, to A. E. Castellano, $6500; two lots, 120x175, in the same tract, on Twenty-seventh east of Tenth avenue, to Curt Waldenfels, $5000; two lots, same size, in the same tract, to W. Wuesthoff, $5000; lot 50x140 feet in the West Adams Terrace tract, on Twelfth avenue north of Twenty-fifth street, to Arthur Frese and James Apffel, $1500; lot 60x198 feet in the same tract, on West Adams west of Thirteenth avenue, to S. Shields, $1500; lot 50x145 feet in the same tract, on Thirteenth avenue north of West Adams, to H. H. Shrader, $700; two lots, 150x200 feet, in the Grand View Heights tract, on Twenty-fourth west of Western, to F. A. Getze, $6500.

Sell Lankershim Tracts.

The James H. Fulcher Company has sold for George Campbell to Frank F. Adams a lot 41x160 feet on the north side of Temple eighty feet west of Brent street, for a consideration of $1600. Mr. Adams, a new arrival from Kansas, has plans drawn for a two-story house and garage. The same firm has sold for Frank Miller to Earle Osburn thirty acres on Eighth street near Fernando avenue, in Lankershim, for $4000. James H. Fulcher has purchased of S. A. Gage twenty acres on Ninth street just west of Fernando avenue, Lankershim, for $2000.

Eagle Rock Developments.

The Edwards & Wildey Company reports the following sales in Eagle Rock: To a local investor, represented by McKelvey & Unger of Highland Park two lots 90x140 feet in the Eagle Rock Central tract, northwest corner of Central and Colorado, $3000; Lydia S. Dodge, a lot 117x152 feet, Artesian Heights, on Lawrence avenue near Glenmore, $800; George B. Cliff, lot 50x150 feet, same tract, $500; Frances R. Foote, lot 60x130 feet, of Artesian Heights Park, $550; Alma R. Dodge, lot 50x150 feet, same tract, $500; Carrie B. Mason, two lots 100x145 feet, in Artesian Heights, $1000; George D. Mason, lot 50x140 feet, northwest corner Lawrence and Valley Drive, $550; G. A. Ganahl, lot 63x125 feet, $500; Miss A. N. Hart, two lots, each 55x125 feet, Ellenwood Oval, $1000; John W. Van Alstine, lot 104x198 feet, Ellenwood Heights, $650; A. E. Kilpatrick, lot 50x150 feet, of the same tract, $700; Hanson Puthuff, lot in Occidental Heights, $750; Carrie B. Mason, lot in same tract 50x150 feet, $500; Rachel I. Patterson, lot in same tract, $450; William Wendt two lots 100x150 feet, same tract, $1000; Julia Bracken Wendt, lot of the same tract, 50x150 feet, $500; A. W. Kroen, lot of the same tract, 50x150 feet, $450; Mary A. Brown, lot in Windermere Heights, 50x140 feet, $500; for C. M. Doyle to Charles R. Bradley, two lots in the Los Flores tract, 100x175, $1300; for Carl Laux to the same purchaser, a lot of the same tract, 50x175 feet, $700.

Vermont Square Activities.

The Southwest Land Company, owners of Vermont Square, report the following sales:

August Roberti, lot on the north side of Forty-fifth street, between Halldale and Denker, $1000; John R. Lind, lot on the south side of Forty-seventh, between Halldale and Denker, $1350; Andrew J. THE ARCHITECTS.

The following items are from the Southwest Contractor and Manufacturer:

A. B. Benton has completed plans for a mission-style reinforced concrete building, 151x212 feet, to be erected at Cucamonga by the Mission Vineyard Company.

Plans have been prepared for a three-story Class C brick warehouse, 50x167 feet, to be erected as an addition to the present warehouse of the J. R. Newberry Company at First and Vignes streets.

Paul A. Needham is completing plans for a two-story frame residence, 51x40 feet, to be built at Prospect and Western avenues, Hollywood, by W. W. Paden. It will have a rustic and plastered exterior, and will cost about $7000.

A. S. Heineman has prepared plans for an eight-room frame residence to cost about $6000, to be built for Wint B. Ross on Marengo avenue, near Bellevue, Pasadena, and for a seven-room frame bungalow to be erected in Country Club Park for Mrs. C. E. Bell at a cost of $4000.

Garrett & Bixby have prepared plans for a three-story and basement frame apartment-house, 64x42 feet, to be built for Minnie C. Hull of Long Beach, on Pico street, between Magnolia avenue and Arapahoe. The front will be mission style. The cost is $12,000.

J. William Roberts has prepared plans for a nine-room residence on Twenty-fifth street, between First and Second avenues, for Andrew Joughins. The exterior will be blue brick veneer and shingles. It will cost $7000.

B. M. Morris has completed plans for a seven-room frame residence at Hollywood for Mrs. Maude Mills.

Train & Williams are preparing plans for a one-story frame schoolhouse, 40x70 feet, to be built at Taft, in the Conley school district. Plans are also under way for a seven-room bungalow on Union avenue, between First and Court streets, for Dr. H. G. McNeil, and for three frame bungalows at Delano for the Tyler Timber Company.

B. Cooper Corbett has prepared plans for a two-story twelve-room frame residence for James P. Burns on Wilshire boulevard, near Ardmore.

Myron Hunt and Elmer Gray have completed plans for a seven-room frame residence at South Pasadena for James Briggs.

The Milwaukee Building Company has plans for a nine-room frame residence, designed in Swiss chalet style, to be erected at Manhattan Place and Fifth avenue for E. B. Drake, to cost $7000, and for a two-story Mission-style residence at Mt. Washington for Dr. C. C. Warden, to cost about $10,000.

The Coöperative Building Company has prepared plans for a ten-room frame residence for J. W. Croner on Delaware avenue, near Pico street, and for three bungalows in East Hollywood for Z. L. Parmelee.

PLANS ACCEPTED.

The plans submitted by A. C. S of Los Angeles for the proposed public school building at Las Vegas, Nev., have been accepted by the school trustees of that place. The structure, which will cost about $22,500, will be of reinforced concrete and a story and a half in height. It will contain eight classrooms, in addition to the rooms of the principal and domestic science and manual training departments. Harrison Albright, another local architect, also comes in for a share of the out-of-state building contracts. Mr. Albright was recently chosen as the architect for the handsome $70,000 High School building at Phoenix, Ariz. Last week he was requested by the school board of the Arizona capital to begin the preparation of designs for two grammar school structures, to cost $8000 and $12,000, respectively.

LEASE APARTMENTS.

The Hi Jerome Toy Hotel Br Company reports the leasing of the Burlington Apartments, at Ninth and Burlington streets, to Mrs. Church of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Luton of this city, for a term of years. The total rental will amount to $156,000. The Burlington contains rooms, and is the largest apartment house west of Figueroa street. It is owned by J. L. Murphey.

BRONCOS ARE DAY'S FEATURE.

Bucking Nags Enliven Card of Driving Club.

Stage Hold-up Is Realistic Bit of Business.

Harness Races Are Above the Ordinary in Class.

With a mixture of "early-day" and up-to-date sports, richly spiced with the flavor of the life of the West a generation ago, the Los Angeles Driving Club presented its midwinter matinée yesterday afternoon at Agricultural Park to a crowd that almost entirely filled the big grand stand, and it is safe to say that the club never gave a programme that was more thoroughly enjoyed by the spectators.

It had a dash of freedom in it that made one forget narrow, dusty city streets, banging electric cars, and high meat prices, for there were fast harness races; a realistic stage hold-up; supposed "bucking" horses that were really not very anxious to "buck;" an exciting relay race by cowboys; two riders dumped over the fence by plunging animals; and roping and "ringing" exhibitions that were satisfactory in every way.

Back of these strange scenes was a setting of a hundred cowboys and cowgirls in fantastic costumes made more noticeable by the fact that 100 feet away behind the track fence was a row of automobiles and a handsome black tandem team, dressed in gold-plated harness as an illustration of what the present offers to the past.

The long programme was a joint affair conducted by the Driving Club and the Out West Club, each organization contributing one-half of the card. While the harness races were the best the driving club has shown for some months, the Out West features were the most interesting on account of their novelty. One cannot see cowboys and hold-ups and bucking horses every day and this is why the crowd remained until the end of the programme, for the stage hold-up was practically the last thing shown and it was not finished until long after sundown.

This stage coach business was very realistic in a way for there was much galloping of horses, flapping of handkerchiefs, shooting of pistols and several men killed in revolver duels that added realism to the scene. The coach loaded with passengers tooled away gaily from the grand stand and before it had traveled a quarter of a mile it was held up by a number of road agents and robbed. One woman passenger jumped on a bandit's horse and galloped back to "civilization" to give the alarm and fifty cowboys and cowgirls, yelling and firing their pistols chased the robbers on their galloping horses.

One of the robbers galloped back in front of the grand stand with the express box, shot off the lock and was appropriating the contents of the box when he was fired upon by a cowboy and in the duel the robber was "killed." The other robbers were pursued back in front of the grand stand and there one was "killed" and two were lassoed and the entire bunch of dead and captured robbers was loaded into the stage coach and driven away. One great feature of this was that the "dead" robbers remained dead and did not come out and bow as actors do in the theaters, after dying.

Sandwiched in between the heats of the four harness races the seventy-five or 100 members of the Out West Club gave exhibitions of roping running horses, riding bucking broncoes, running a relay race to the seven-eighths pole and back twice and doing a mounted quadrille, with three sets. This was one of the cutest things on the card and was very prettily executed, the old familiar figures of the quadrille being gone through with by the mounted "dancers."

The only real excitement of the bucking horse line came with the opening events of the programme. W. W. Padgett was the first to get aboard a bronco and after this thing had buck-jumping down the track for about 200 feet, it leaped against the three-foot fence along the inside of the track and fell over the fence. Padgett's leg was caught under the bronco and he lay there until pulled out unhurt, by other cowboys.

Five minutes later Mrs. Dell

Hanson Party, Wealthy Tourists, Reach San Antonio on Jaunt to Pacific Coast—Report Road Conditions Fair and a Good Time All the Way—Few Troubles.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Walter H. Hanson, a wealthy broker of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., traveling overland in a powerful Stearns touring car from New Orleans to Los Angeles, is tonight at the Menger Hotel, San Antonio, Tex. He is accompanied by his wife and son, Walter Hanson, Jr., and his chauffeur.

The party is recuperating for a few days before tackling the desert run across Arizona and New Mexico into Southern California.

"We have had a delightful trip," declared Hanson tonight. "Our difficulties have been few and our pleasures many. We have had little trouble since leaving New Orleans. We expect to greet our friends in Los Angeles soon."

Leaving New Orleans on January 4 Hanson had a fine run out through the famous Louisiana sugar bowl into the rice belt, and thence through the virgin pine forests of Calcasieu parish to the Sabine River, in Texas. His big touring car has attracted the attention of the natives all along the route.

Mrs. Hanson is a niece of Mrs. Leland Stanford, and has lived in California for many years. She is planning to tour with the Stearns in Southern California, and says she also intends to make the run to San Francisco, visiting Stanford University on the way.

The Stearns, that is carrying the Hanson party, is the first automobile to be sent over the route from New Orleans to Los Angeles. It is a 30-60 horse power model. Some of the route is uncharted, and it will be necessary for the Hansons to pick their way carefully from now until they reach their destination.

ST. YVES ARRIVES.

Champion Marathon Runner to Start Training at Agricultural Park Today.

Henri St. Yves, champion Marathon runner of the world, arrived from San Francisco yesterday afternoon, and is to commence training today at Agricultural Park for the Marathon race to be held at Chutes Park next Sunday afternoon, under the promotion of Charlie Eyton.

John D. Marsh, the Canadian champion, who forced St. Yves into setting a new record for the Marathon distance at the Seattle Exposition, is due to arrive in this city tomorrow and is to start training immediately. Miller, Lowe and Schonstein, the local entries, are to begin daily workouts tomorrow at Agricultural Park.

The long-distance race promises to be the most interesting event of its kind ever held in Southern California.

The officials selected yesterday by Manager Eyton are: Starter, Hen Berry; judges, C. B. Ilhitt, J. B. Franklin, G. L. Mosell; timers, Cliff Reuman, George Adair, Joe Lawton, Chester Lawrence.

BIG BUSINESS.

AUTOS AND AIRSHIPS TO SHARE NEW HOME.

CONSTRUCTION has begun on the motordrome near Playa del Rey and world's records are expected to be broken on the mile pie-pan track to be built.

The plant is to be completed by March 25 and racing is to begin April 8 and continue until April 17.

Strang, Robertson, De Palma and other world-famous drivers have promised to take part in the races being arranged.

Manager F. C. Moskevics and a committee of the Aero Club of California are negotiating to construct a permanent aerodrome with the motordrome as a centerpiece.

The track, when completed, will be the first of its kind in the world and is expected to revolutionize present methods of automobile racing.

Ground has been broken for the big Motordrome near Playa Del Rey and within twenty-five days from the time the first piece of lumber is nailed into place the pie-pan track must be finished. Gangs of men will be put to work rushing to completion the big track. At least a month must be given the drivers for practice.

Already the opening date, April 8, has been announced for the opening of the seven days of auto racing, and the track must be ready thirty days before the opening. Designer Jack Prince is on the ground mapping out the construction plans. The contract for the carpenter work has been let, and work has begun.

Spur tracks are already in and cars of the Los Angeles Pacific Railway Company will run to the motordrome entrance. The Los Angeles Pacific officials promise to move 40,000 people an hour during the race days.

Seven days of racing will open the track. The course is unlike any ever attempted. Other cities are talking of a motordrome but Los Angeles is the first to get the mile track. All speed records should be smashed to smithereens on this course.

Moskevics, who is a member of the Aëro Club of America, is greatly interested in the aviation game and early in December started negotiations with the Aëro Club of California for establishing a permanent home for the club at his motordrome. He promises to build sheds and furnish facilities for building and equipment.

Contracts are being made with eastern aviators for exhibitions this summer and next winter, and it is likely the next annual mid-winter aviation meet will be held in the new aërodrome. In addition, Southern California inventors and builders are to be given the opportunity for fully testing their machines. No public exhibition will be given until the inventors actually fly.

Moskevics and members of the Aëro Club say that this can be made the greatest aëro field in the world and that future records will be broken there. No aëroplane exhibitions will be given until after the auto meets are out of the way.

The races in April are expected to prove the greatest auto contests ever held in the world, because they will involve an entirely new principle in auto speeding, and will do away in great measure with the dangers of flat circular tracks, and the turns of road racing. On the pie-pan track all the driver has to do is to set his steering gear and open the throttle, and he will have to vary his course only when he desires to pass a contestant.

Moskevics and Prince interviewed many of the big drivers last summer and fall, and the men were of the opinion that the new tracks should be fast enough to break world's records. They expressed themselves as anxious to try out such a track and agreed with Moskevics to come out in April and race on the pie-pan.

Moskevics claims to have Robertson, De Palma, Strang and other stars engaged for the opening meet, and this means that they will bring the best racing machines in the world to the Los Angeles track for the initial trial

Green and White Color to Be Attractive.

Motordom's Best to Be on Dress Parade Soon.

More than 100 of the late model motor cars, placed in a setting of green and white, are to form the centerpieces of the Automobile Show of Southern California, which opens a week from tomorrow in the Grand-avenue rink. Thousands of vari-colored electric lights, with tons of greenery and many potted plants are to adorn the interior of the rink, which is being transformed.

Unlike anything ever before attempted is the plan for the auto show to be held in the rink building. This week the finishing touches are to be given to a display which is to be well worth seeing. That the light effect may be adequate the contract has been let for 5000 globes. This means that the cars are to be seen in a flood of light that will turn the interior into the brightness of noonday.

Trellis work in the roof and at the entrance, with a number of artistic pillars, are to lend the effect of a Roman amphitheater to the big hall. Pillars are to set off each exhibit as well as mark each aisle. Pillars also are to form a colonnade in the center of the big hall. This is to lead to the stand where the orchestra is to be seated behind immense palms.

New cars never before seen in this city are to be exhibited. The rink is certain to be the paradise of the motorist who is looking for new designs. Some of the cars which were features of the New York shows are to be exhibited.

Giant trucks, exhibited for the first time in any show in the West, are to be a feature. Some of these trucks are of five ton capacity and could almost move a house. The commercial vehicle is to be given large space at the show.

W. K. Cowan, chairman of the Show Committee, is working hard to make the exhibit the success it promises to be. He is assisted by L. H. Johnson and Volney S. Beardsley. This trio of motorists have left no stone unturned in their efforts to make the show one of the finest ever held.

BRIGHT LIGHTS.

Manager Walter Hempel expects to have every exhibit in place Monday in time for the opening at 8 o'clock Monday evening, February 7. Each exhibitor has been given a copy of the rules and the cars are to be in the booths when the Mayor flashes on the bright lights and the show is formally opened.

There is to be a lighting effect at the entrance on Grand avenue that is certain to call attention to the show. Clusters of arc lights and a brilliant display of incandescents are to lend an effect that will be pleasing as the front is to be heavily decked in the show colors, green and white.

Everything will tend to enhance the beauty of the motor cars. The exhibit is to show these to advantage and the entire decorative scheme will only bring into prominence the gems

LICENSED SHOW PLANS MATURE.

Fiesta Park Soon to House Monster Exhibit.

Seven Score Latest Models Ready to Exhibit.

Brilliant Light Effect for Interior of Tent.

Floor space in the Licensed Automobile Show is soon to be at a premium from the way the exhibitors are flocking to the headquarters of Manager Conwell. When it was announced that there is 80,000 feet of show room it was thought that this would be adequate. Every foot is certain to be taken this week.

The Licensed Automobile Show will be the largest ever held west of Chicago. The immense expanse of floor and the high ceiling help the decorative scheme of the show. The details have not yet been perfected. An office has been established at the Maxwell-Briscoe Company branch by Manager Conwell and the show committee, consisting of Fred W. Flint, A. M. Young, H. I. Fennimore, P. H. Greer and W. E. Bush are to hold conferences each day this week.

Fiesta will resemble a great circus tent. Huge poles are to be erected at once and when the 90,000 square feet of canvas is stretched the work of decorating the interior will be begun. Twenty thousand electric light globes, with five scores of large arc lights are to be strung around the interior, most of them being placed in the ceiling space with large reflectors to enhance the glow.

MANY MODELS.

More than 150 of the latest model motor cars, all licensed under the Selden patent, are to be shown at Fiesta. This means the largest display of licensed cars ever held. Everything about the show is to be done on a massive scale. The exhibit will rival in magnitude the Madison Square Garden Show in New York.

Accessory dealers are to be given a chance this week to take space. It is intended to show all the extras possible to place on a motor car, such as glass fronts, speedometers, tops, tires and horns.

The entrance to the big amphitheater is to be from the Pico street side. A colonade is to be built to the sidewalk and a Roman effect is to be given to the threshold of the show. Here again many lights will be used so as to make the entrance particularly attractive.

On entering, the aisles will all lead to the right. The crowds will move almost mechanically from right to left of the exhibit. The space has been arranged similar to the Garden show in New York, one of the most beautiful ever held.

On an ornamental band stand in the center of the interior a stringed orchestra, one of the largest that could be gathered, is to play each afternoon and evening. Other entertainment is also to be arranged by the committee. A sixteen-foot aisle is to run around the band stand.

On each side of the center spaces will be booths with double aisle frontage. These are to be thirty feet deep. At each of the far corners are 1600-foot spaces. Divisions at the entrance are to be given to concessionaires.

There is to be no extortion on the part of any one receiving a concession for the show. Manager Conwell promises to keep a tight rein on the desires and aspirations of those who would sell. He says there is to be no "holdups."

Norman W. Church has secured the largest space in the show, 26[illegible]0 feet. The Stoddard-Dayton and Baker electric models are to be exhibited in an attractive manner. This booth will be elaborately decked in the show colors, and a full line of all cars handled by the Stoddard people are to be shown.

BIG SPACE.

The Western Motor Car Company, with 2277 square feet of space, is a close second to Church. The Western will show Packards, Chalmers-Detroits and Hudsons. This display is to contain the Chalmers cars shown at the Madison Square Garden exhibit. There will be a polished steel Chalmers chassis, and a Chalmers "thirty" motor in section, working under glass with the motor operated by electricity.

H. O. Harrison has 2000 square feet in which to exhibit his Peerless and Everitt lines. Harrison is to show the Everitt for the first time on the Coast. The car had created a sensation in the East and will be here in time for the Licensed Show.

Two other companies also have taken 1000 square feet each; Don Lee of the Lee Motor Car Company needs that much room to show his line of Cadillacs, and D. B. Rose of the Elmore Motor Car Company was obliged to sign for that amount of space in order to show his Elmore and Stearns cars to advantage.

Three firms have taken 1500 square feet each. The Lord Motor Car Company, showing the Studebaker, E.M.F. and the Flanders lines. The Flanders is being shown here for the first time. It is an interesting one of the new cars in the low-priced line.

The Woolwine Motor Car Company will use 1500 feet for the Oldsmobile, Cartercar and Rapid truck lines. Wilson & Buffington will use the same sized space for the Thomas and Moline lines.

For the display of the air-cooled Franklin, the only air-cooled car to be shown, Ralph Hamlin needs 1440 feet of space. The feature of this exhibit will be the toy tonneau Franklin and the Franklin "gunboat," one of the latest radical models turned out by the factory this year.

P. A. Renton with the Matheson and Overland lines, the Maxwell cars and the Locomobiles are in the 1200-foot division. Bireley & Young are to show four models of the Columbia. One of the most interesting of the Columbia line will be the Columbia "Torpedo" with every part polished. This is to be one of the handsome cars of the show.

W. E. Bush will show three models of the Pierce-Arrow; the Big Four Auto Company three models of the Regal; H. T. Brown the Haynes and the Knox; Four Stevens-Duryeas will be shown with also a line of Palmer-Singer cars. W. D. Howard will exhibit a full line of Winton and Chadwick cars.

DON LEE HOME.

Cadillac Man Returns from Visit to Shows and Factory—Going Again.

D. M. Lee, local Cadillac agent, returned from the East last week, where he attended the Madison Square Garden Automobile Show. He also visited the Cadillac factory at Detroit. He was there only one day, however, as he was obliged to return to Los Angeles because of the illness of Mrs. Lee. He will return for the Chicago Show.

"Business conditions in the East were never better," said Lee yesterday. "Among the makers of licensed cars I found the greatest activity. Our own factory output this season will be 12,000 cars. This has taxed the Cadillac factory to its fullest capacity. A seven-story addition is now in course of construction in order to build the necessary number of Cadillacs.

"From all parts of the country there is a great demand for Cadillacs. The factory has shifts working night and day. When the parts shortage was felt the most keenly this year the Cadillac factory was well supplied, and as a consequence made early deliveries. The factory makes 95 per cent. of all parts of the car."

PIERCE ARROW BOOST.

Bush Receives Splendid Report of Cars at Garden Show and Plans Fine Local Exhibit.

William E. Bush, agent for the Pierce-Arrow, is to make a handsome display at the coming automobile show, judging from an article in a New York paper. Bush plans to exhibit a complete line of his handsome high-priced cars, and the latest models of the Pierce factory are to be shipped here by express.

Here is what one New York paper says of the Pierce-Arrow exhibit:

"We believe that the 1910 Pierce-Arrow cars now on exhibition at the Garden show are the most consistently good achievements in motor car building that the world has yet seen. The 1910 output for the factory is all sold and orders are being taken for 1911 goods."

Bush is justly proud of this report, and says he is to have several of these cars for the local show.

"My exhibit here is also to be first-class," said Bush yesterday. "I'm all sold out, but the factory is to make a special effort to give me cars for my exhibit. The Pierce is making good all over the country. This is the best year I have ever had."

SHETTLER OFF TO SHOW.

Reo and Apperson Agent to Visit Chicago and the Factories on Ten Days Spin.

Leon T. Shettler is to leave for the East on Tuesday to visit the Chicago show. He will remain away for ten days, and on his return must make a flying visit to his branches. He also will visit the Reo and Apperson factories. It is possible that Edgar Apperson will return with the local Apperson agent.

Crowded with orders that keep him constantly on the jump, Shettler has not had a minute to spare. He is shipping his Reos all over Southern California and is doing a wonderful business with his long list of agents. He is also selling a number of Apperson cars and several Woods electrics.

"I will not exhibit at either automobile show," said Shettler yesterday. "It would be impossible for me to hold my cars, in the first place, as I must make deliveries. Then again I am opposed to a show, and for that reason would have nothing to do with either exhibit. I'm too busy selling cars to keep my machines idle for even a week. I'm doing the greatest business ever."

R. C. Hamlin received a shipment of Franklins on Thursday.

Bosbyshell in New Toy-Tonneau Four-Cylinder Model Turns Clever Stunt for Edification of Afternoon Throng Which Gathers to Watch Antics of Automobiles.

Topping the back of Second street on the high gear at sixteen miles an hour in a Dorris touring car, William P. Bosbyshell yesterday surprised the usual afternoon crowd that gathers to watch the antics of the autoists. The Dorris is the first four-cylinder car to make the ascent. Ever since the six-cylinder Matheson carried off the honors so readily, Bosbyshell has yearned to show what his car can do.

Taking the car three blocks beyond Figueroa street the Dorris was let out for the run up the steep hill, which in places is more than a 30 per cent. grade. With the throttle wide open, the Dorris was sent at the first incline, which it rounded readily with speed to spare. For the final climb the car seemed to gain momentum.

At the bottom of the hill the auto was making forty miles an hour and without a thought of touching his lever, Bosbyshell kept the car pointed toward the crown. The Dorris made the ascent and when the top of the hill was rounded the speedometer was registering sixteen miles an hour. The car showed plenty of speed and could possibly have been driven faster.

West Second street is a favorite place for demonstrators. Every afternoon a score of cars are sent at the hill. It offers a splendid chance to show the work of the gears. A driver who can handle a car skilfully can show the machine off to advantage.

Should a prospect ask Bosbyshell to strap his gear lever into the "high" and try the ascent the Dorris agent says he would be willing to take the car over the hill again. He was forced to make a demonstration much like this, recently. A "live customer" offered to buy the Dorris if Bosbyshell could take the car over Second street on the high gear. Bill made good and has a cash sale to report.

The Dorris used on the novel hill-climbing stunt is one of the new toy-tonneau nineteen-ten models recently received from the factory. The car has a wheel base of 110 inches. The bore of the engine is 4¼ inches and the stroke 5 inches.

The motor shows plenty of power and in order to demonstrate its flexibility Bosbyshell backed the car up the grade. The Dorris engine pulls steadily at a stiff climb and the car is easy riding.

GREER AIMS HIGH.

Mitchell Man Asks Factory for Shipment of Carload of Cars a Day for Month.

P. H. Greer, of the Greer-Robbins Company, agents for the Mitchell car, is after a record. His factory has promised him a carload of Mitchells a day for the next thirty days. Swamped with advance orders the local concern has been unable to keep its prospects interested. Now Greer is promising every one a chance to see a new Mitchell.

Two carloads were received last week and snapped up so quickly that Greer's breath was almost taken. The demand is heavy and as the deliveries are necessarily slow customers have become clamorous. In a characteristic telegram to his factory Greer asked for a shipment a day. Imagine his surprise when his request was granted.

It is Greer's plan to have at least ten cars constantly on hand. He says this is almost too much to hope for, but states that he is only able to serve the most urgent ones at present. If the Mitchell man could have his way he would keep the railroad companies busy handling his cars.

Mitchell deliveries last week were made to N. E. Kay, of Pasadena; McKenzie & Bellows of Long Beach; Osbun Iron Works, Redlands; George Leahy, Skinner & Dickenson, P. P. Bonham, Anaheim; F. A. C. Drew, Ontario; and the Board of Public Works. This car is to be used on the Owens River aqueduct.

"The demand for cars is stronger now than ever before in the history of our firm," said Greer, yesterday. "We are eighty-five orders behind, but with a carload a day this condition should be relieved ere long. When we expected a lull there was a decided rush. Everything points to the greatest year ever and with the auto shows coming on many more cars are certain to be sold."

WINGED PESTS.

STODDARD PLOWS ITS WAY THROUGH TONS OF HOPPERS.

Tourists are flocking to Los Angeles again and as a result there are more eastern owned automobiles here than ever before. C. J. Comstock is one of several prominent Chicagoans who has shipped Stoddard-Dayton touring cars to this city. Comstock is planning to make several long tours through Southern California.

The visitor owns a fifty-horse-power Stoddard with which he made a long tour last summer. One of his varied experiences was a journey through Kansas when the grasshoppers were thick, so thick in fact that trains were stalled by their bodies being smashed on the rails. The Stoddard was driven over miles of road literally covered by the pests, which were eating every green herb in sight. At the end of the tour, 526 grasshoppers had lodged in the radiator.

M. A. McLaughlin, a Denverite, has shipped his Stoddard-Dayton touring car to Los Angeles for the winter. J. W. Commie, of Des Moines and H. S. Brackett of Chicago, are also touring Southern California in Stoddards. C. D. Howell, of Chicago, has shipped a Stoddard roadster here.

Fred S. Flint, manager of the local branch of the Stoddard-Dayton Motor Car Company has been obliged to add to his sales force because of the rush of business incident to the arrival of the new 1910 Stoddard. These include the handsome inside-operated coupe, one of the finest cars in its class now on the market.

This car has all the refinements of the latest town car model. It can be entirely inclosed but also is adaptable for summer weather as the top can be thrown back, making a handsome touring car Victoria. The Stoddard has made a hit and is to be one of the gems of the exhibit Norman W. Church plans to make at the Licensed Show.

Harry L. Olive, who has been associated with the Stoddard-Dayton agency for years, but who recently has been in business for himself, has returned to the local force. Olive has sold his interest in the Miller carbuetor and is to devote his time to selling Stoddards.

At one time Olive was agent for Peerless cars. He was managing the Stoddard agency when the first car of that make arrived in Los Angeles. He has made hundreds of Stoddard sales and is a firm believer in the classy car. Harry knows an automobile.

STANFORD'S AERO CLUB.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 28.—Stanford is to have an aëro club. A meeting is to be held Tuesday night, at which all students interested in aëronautics will be invited to become charter members of the organization. The University of Pennsylvania established the precedent among American colleges, and it is believed here that Stanford is the second university to get into line. Few plans for the club have been made, but at the first meeting full arrangements for progressive work are to be formulated.

The Jackson Auto Company reports the following sales for the week: J. F. Lewis of Camarillo, a seven-passenger Jackson and a fifty-horse-power tourabout; J. W. Booth of Portland, Or., two forty tourabouts; H. A. Miller, a forty tourabout; Thomas Alford and John Kynder of San Diego, a forty tourabout each.

SPEEDY RUN TO REDLANDS AND RETURN MADE BY

Four hours and fifty-five minutes for the round trip to Redlands is the record set by a four-cylinder Ford. The car was driven by E. Roger Stearns, manager of the Standard Motor Car Company, on Wednesday, and was a new model just received from the factory, and was driven without special tuning.

Leaving First and Broadway at 10:30 o'clock, the little Ford tourer was sent out along the foothills boulevard to San Bernardino, making a wonderful run without a stop. Often the handsome little car reached forty and forty-five miles an hour on the rough road with four people in the car.

When Claremont was reached, and there seemed a prospect of making specially good time, the Ford was let out, and after passing Uplands the level stretch across the valley through Cucamonga and on to San Bernardino was passed quickly.

Steadily the motor chugged over rough and smooth roads. The little car was making good every step of the way, and was doing record-breaking work for mile after mile. The road was covered quickly and towns were passed in rapid succession.

At the San Gabriel River the bridge, recently repaired, was found to be in good shape, and Stearns opened the car up after crossing the stream, and was away for Azusa without the delay he had anticipated. The car shot through the foothills city at slackened speed, and then increased its momentum on the run to Claremont.

ANTHONY SAW THE BIG SHOW.

Packard and Chalmers Plants Were Also Visited.

Standardization Is the Keynote of Motordom.

Licensed Association Plans Drastic Action.

Earle C. Anthony, manager of the Western Motor Car Company, returned from the East yesterday after a month's absence. He says the Licensed Manufacturers' Association is planning to take immediate action against all factories operating without the Selden patent. He found New York motorists greatly interests in what is being done in Los Angeles.

The organization of a Licensed Automobile Association in this city, Anthony says, has been a source of increasing interest to eastern motorists. He was asked many questions concerning the organization by those in New York who have recently formed a similar body.

Business conditions in the East were never better, according to Anthony. He found the Packard factory working forces night and day to turn out cars. They had built 1400 cars in the three months before the arrival of the local agent. Their output for this year is to be 2100 cars.

The Chalmers factory is rushed to keep up with the demand. The Chalmers people have recently completed an addition to their plant which is as large as the original buildings. Here Anthony found men working night and day on motor cars.

Standardization is sure to come in the motor car industry, says Anthony. He visited the Madison Square Garden show and was struck with the tendency toward the same type, as shown in the many models exhibited at the Garden.

THE KEYNOTE.

"The most striking faeature of the the exhibit," he said, "was the standardization of models. All of the manufacturers are working toward an ideal car which is sure to come. Then we will have almost reached perfection as we will have embodied in one car all the good features of many.

"There is no reason why we cannot have cars that give no trouble. We can make a motor that is almost perfect. We know how to transmit the power so as to reserve every unit of energy, and we are making axles and springs that stand the severest strains. Unite all these features in one car, as I believe certain factories have, and you eliminate trouble.

"One of the things that struck me forcibly while at the show was the interest in the licensed cars. Every one of the dealers in New York that I talked with wanted to know something about the licensed situation in Los Angeles. They asked me about our association here. They have just formed a like body in New York, and in Philadelphia, and are planning to form others in Detroit and Indianapolis.

"Of course, I was most interested in the Packard booth. The Packard people exhibited a yellow-brown Packard phaeton, with gold-plated trimming, that was the handsomest thing in its line I have ever seen. The car is a dream. They also showed a landaulet, eighteen horse power, finished in light brown with the trimmings.

"They showed a Packard "thirty" limousine finished in white with a light blue stripe two inches wide, with a fleur de lis in blue. The lamps on each Packard were enameled the same color as the car.

"The Chalmers people spread themselves with a display that eclipsed anything else in size. They showed a toy-tonneau Chalmers "Forty," and a toy-tonneau "Thirty;" also a pony tonneau runabout. Two of the Chalmers chassis were shown in the cutaway with the interior workings exposed. The exhibit is to be brought to Los Angeles for the show here.

"The Hudson people showed a new touring car, with 110-inch wheel base, and a Hudson roadster. The new Hudson runabout has a larger steering post and a large steering wheel. It is a dandy.

"The show was beautiful, but I believe we have a better chance here in Los Angeles to hold an exhibit than they had in New York, because we can use Fiesta Park one of the finest display places ever chosen."

BIG SUCCESS.

PORTLAND AUTO SHOW CLOSES.

TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS GIVEN FOR GOOD ROADS.

Curtiss Biplane Attracts Considerable Attention as It Is First of Kind Shown in Northwest—Many Motor Cars Are Disposed of During Big Show Week.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Portland's second annual automobile show closed at midnight after a most successful week. Attendance for the week was about 50,000.

Clear of all expenses the receipts were about $10,000, all of which will go to the good roads fund of the Portland Automobile Club. A considerable portion of money is to be expended on signs and sign posts along the various automobile roads adjacent to Portland.

Several hundred dollars were realized from the exhibition at the automobile show by E. Henry Wemme, president of the Automobile Club, of the Curtiss biplane, which he bought at Los Angeles, and which is the first aeroplane seen here. The proceeds of this exhibit will be turned over intact to the road fund.

Sales of automobiles were good at the show throughout the week. It is said nearly 200 cars were disposed of by the various dealers.

A special feature of the closing day was a boy's afternoon. Boys who are taking manual training in various branches of the public schools were specially invited to attend and the mechanical make-up of automobiles was explained to them by skilled mechanicians.

The automobile dealers, as well as good roads advocates, say the automobile show has given great impetus to the trade and to the good roads movement in Oregon.

s. It was very acrobatic furniture before the Hershenstein brothers and the reporters got through with it.

The Globe in its review of the Garden show stated that it would be glad to give any reader a possible purchaser of an automobile the benefit of its motoring writer's advice on the purchase of a car, independent of any advertiser or advertising. A host of letters have been received, but the letter from a Wall Street man and The Globe's reply will suffice as an example of the service asked and given free. Mr. H. S. Clark, whose business is at 55 Wall street, writes as follows:

"Referring to your article in to-night's Globe in regard to the automobiles which are being shown at the Garden, would ask if you could give me any information about the Mercer car. I understand that this car has only been built for about a year, and therefore I am a little skeptical about how it may stand up after being used for a while.

"The Mercer people claim that the Roeblings of Trenton are back of the car, and if this is the case I should imagine the material and construction is all that could be asked for in a medium priced car. Awaiting your reply, I am, yours very truly, H. S. Clark."

The motoring department sent the following reply:

H. S. Clark, 55 Wall street, New York City:

Dear Sir—Your letter of yesterday duly received. It is with great pleasure that The Globe can recommend the Mercer automobile. The writer is in a position to tell you something from his own knowledge of the Mercer, having used it last summer in a great day's run over a variety of roads in New Jersey for a Globe's week end tour. Since then I have tried it out around the Fort Lee Hill district, and proved that its climbing ability was greater than many a higher priced car. I also visited the factory at Trenton where it is made and found that the material that goes in it and the workmen engaged in making it were of the highest quality.

It is true as you say that the famous bridge builders, Roeblings, are heavily interested financially in the Mercer factory, which is sufficient guarantee the car will be well made and well backed in a guarantee way.

Further, an old friend of many years' standing, John C. Spiers, who built the great Autocar factory addition for the Clarks, and was superintendent of the factory for several years, is now superintendent and designer for the Mercer factory. You can safely buy the Mercer car, and its reasonable price is bound to make it sell well. Yours very truly,

SAHLAND WITH SHETTLER.

Prominent Automobile Salesman and Local Agent Join Forces to Boost Accessories Business.

Walter H. Sahland has purchased the interest of Al Worthington in the firm of Worthington & Shettler. The new concern is to enlarge the present business, by several thousands of dollars worth more stock and enter more actively into the automobile accessory field. Sahland is a live number.

There is perhaps no local autoist who is better known in Southern California than Sahland. He is a veteran salesman who knows a car perfectly. His long association with the Auto Vehicle Company and later his connection with the Durocar people also brought him into prominence.

Several times Sahland has handled automobile agencies successfully. He is an acomplished salesman and has always made good. For the Tourist people he built up a large outside business.

His desire is to enter business for himself again; hence his connection with Shettler. The two live wires are to conduct the business carefully. They are to spend penty of money in order to make good. The firm is capitalized for a large amount and is prepared to handle its share of the local trade.

REGATTA SCHEDULE.

Rowing Dates for Six Years Set by Committee on Basis of Flow of Tides.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association have announced the date for the intercollegiate regattas for the six years from 1910 to 1915.

These dates have been figured out on a tide basis so that the 'varsity eight-oar contest will be started each time at the lowest point of the ebb tide. The list is as follows:

1910—Saturday, June 25.
1911—Tuesday, June 27.
1912—Saturday, June 29.
1913—Saturday, June 21.

GOODYEAR

Tires have exclusive features which insure long life and practically eliminate tire trouble and expense.

Goodyear Tires were the pioneer and leader in oversize.

36 per cent. of the entire 1910 automobile output will be equipped with Goodyear Tires.

At the New York automobile show Goodyear Tires equipped more cars than any other make.

INNOVATION.

AUTO SLEIGH IS LATEST VEHICLE.

MAY SOLVE PROBLEM OF ALASKAN WINTER TRANSIT.

New Machine Has Capacity for Eighteen Passengers—Mounted on Runners of Steel and Specially-Constructed Wheels to Insure Traction in Snow.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Several Alaskans working together have invented an auto-sleigh which they believe will solve the problem of Alaskan winter transit from White Horse Bend and Valdez to Dawson, Fairbanks and Iditarod.

They have spent $4000 building the first auto-sleigh, which was completed here yesterday and will be shipped to Valdez this week. The machine is fifteen feet long, painted black and somewhat coffin shaped. It will seat eighteen passengers.

Every part of the machinery is enclosed. Should it became stalled in an Alaskan blizzard, passengers will be as secure as if at home. The machine now has front wheels of steel. In Alaska these will be changed for sleigh runners. Rear wheels will be exchanged for specially constructed steel wheels with corrugated tires. The gear is cogged inside the rear wheels under a new patent of the machine's constructors.

It is claimed that power applied to the rear wheels will propel the machine, the front runners adding both speed and ease of motion. The engine has sixty horse power. If the machine proves entirely satisfactory three more will be built.

GOSSIP ALONG GASOLINE ROW.

The Lee Motor Car Company shipped two Cadillac cars to Bakersfield and two to San Diego, last week.

The Greer-Robbins Company delivered a Mitchell "thirty" with a sixty-inch tread to the Owens River Aqueduct department for use on the Owens River contract.

The Stoddard-Dayton Motor Car Company received a shipment of Stoddard "thirties" last week. One of the cars was finished in red, another in green, and two in sage green.

The local Baker electric agents report a strong demand for electrics. Court Brown is in receipt of daily inquiries from towns in Southern California. The Stoddard-Dayton Motor Car Company expects a banner year.

For the first time this season the Stoddard-Dayton Motor Car Company has a forty-horse-power car on the floor. This is the toy-tonneau model, finished in blue. The car is handsomely finished.

D. E. Barclay, a business man of Los Angeles, is associated with H. G. Carter of the Speedwell Motor Company. Mr. Barclay is a high degree Mason.

The Burkhard-Crippen Motor Car Company is to remove to its handsome new garage at Pico street and Grand avenue this week. The salesroom will not be completed for a week or two. Meantime the entrance will be on Grand avenue.

Three cars of the seven-passenger Lexington models will reach the city tomorrow. These have been sold.

The San Francisco house of the Burkhard-Crippen Motor Car Company has shipped to the local house one of the fifty-horse-power Lexington semi-tonneau cars. This is finished in gray.

The W. D. Howard Motor Car Company received from the Winton Motor Carriage factory last Wednesday, a handsome Winton-Six of the seven-passenger type, finished in French gray, with dark red chassis, and red leather upholstering and top. The car was ordered for Charles A. Cooper and wife of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Cooper, who are passing the winter at the Hotel Maryland, left last week for San Diego in their new Winton-Six.

S. S. Boothe, of the firm of Boothe, Boylson and Company, has purchased of the W. D. Howard Motor Car Company, a Winton-Six touring car. J. H. W. Myers, who is of the United Oil Refineries, is now driving a new Winton-Six, which he purchased of the W. D. Howard Motor Car Company last week. S. J. Chapman of the firm of Chapman Brothers Company, purchased a new Winton-Six touring car this week. The same company delivered to E. W. Britt, of the firm of Hunsaker, Britt & Fleming, last week, a seven-passenger Great Chadwick-Six touring car.

The California Electric Garage Company of Los Angeles and Pasadena, agent for Detroit and Columbus electrics, reports the following deliveries of new 1910 models: Mrs. J. T. Jones, Portland street, Los Angeles, four-passenger Detroit coupe; Mrs. I. H. Stratton, Pasadena, four-passenger, Detroit coupe; Mrs. Holt, Pasadena, Detroit runabout; C. P. Currier, Pasadena, Detroit runabout; Mr. Lowell, Pasadena, Detroit runabout; T. W. Mather, Pasadena, Detroit Victoria; Mrs. Mary E. Squires, San José, Detroit Victoria; C. W. Lifingwell, San Rafael Heights, four-passenger Detroit runabout; John A. Cole, Pasadena, Detroit runabout; R. R. Blacker, Oak Knoll, Detroit Victoria; A. H. Curtis, Pasadena, Detroit Victoria; Mrs. F. G. Cruickshank, Pasadena, Detroit Victoria; Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, Hotel Hollywood, Columbus Victoria.

HANDBALL TOURNAMENT.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 28.—The annual handball tournament for the championship of the university is to be held next week. An unusually large number of men have signed up for the meeting. J. W. Wiggins, '10, the present champion, will have to defend his title against several former champions and many other strong players.

Not for Mollycoddles.

Football is a rough game. It always will be rough. The sport was not invented for and is not intended to be played by mollycoddles or students at a female seminary. Rules have been amended and all dangerous plays "eliminated" several times; for example, the murderous flying wedge was abolished. Still, the death list grew longer. And now the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association has resolved that the Rules Committee "shall endeavor to bring about such modification . . . as shall reduce to a minimum the danger of physical injury," which means nothing and insures nothing until twenty-two strong, fighting, never-say-die young Americans test the theory on the gridiron.

Oldsmobile with 42 inch wheels

"Olds" Reliability

The greatest of all the reasons, why the OLDSMOBILE is the car YOU should own is this: It is absolutely and permanently reliable and run at a minimum operating expense. Being constructed under the most rigid factory supervision by day labor entirely, (no hurried or slipshod piecework allowed in Olds-construction,) it is preeminently an example of careful, of reliable motor building. Every detail is wrought with that exactness which accompanies superior skill and up-to-date equipment. This is why the OLDSMOBILE stands ahead of all other high-class cars for its perfect dependability and economy of maintenance.

Rapid POWER WAGON

"Rapid" Economy

RAPID POWERWAGONS are built for business and do the business. It is not merely a question of advertising yourself as being an up-to-date merchant or manufacturer. It is not merely a question of convenience in giving yourself as well as also in giving your customers, better delivery-service. It is a vital Dollar-and-cent question. We are ready to prove to you, that some man in your own line of business is operating a RAPID POWERWAGON at less expense than three horse delivery wagons. Rapids are in use in more than fifty different lines of business, there being altogether more RAPIDS in use than all other commercial powerwagons put together. Our ALL-NIGTH-AND-DAY MAINTENANCE SERVICE at nominal expense insures you. See us about Rapid Powerwagons and their record.

"Cartercars"—Good Cars

The right car at the right price is a CARTERCAR. We have five different models, covering the entire range from coupe, runabout, taxicab to touring car. Prices range from $1250 to $1750 f. o. b. Los Angeles, and at each of these very moderate prices, there isn't a better car to be found anywhere. The chassis is strong, the lines are graceful, the finish is right, the engine is powerful, the mechanism is simple, the control is in one lever, the chain runs in oil, and so we could go on telling you point after point, but descriptive statements here can't begin to prove, what an examination of the CARTERCAR at our premises or a demonstration will readily convince you of. We'll gladly prove that Cartercars are supreme in the range of medium-priced automobiles. The Right Car for YOU at the Right Price.

Scenes at the New Motordrome Building Near Del Rey.

NEW HOME FOR FLYERS

at the world's records. If the meet is successful there will be a wholesale building of tracks, in the opinions of Moskevics and Prince.

Prince claims that a mile is sufficient to get all the speed out of the machines possible at present, and moreover gives spectators the opportunity to get in close touch with the race. There is to be a large grand stand, and the bleachers are to encircle the whole course, as at Fiesta Park.

The first thing done by Prince was to aid the railroad to put in the spur track. This is to be extended clear around the motordrome, but at present it is built in several hundred feet only for unloading materials. Several cars of lumber have already been unloaded. The timbers came from the State of Washington aboard the steamer Shasta and were unloaded on the long wharf at Santa Monica, and thence taken to Del Rey by trolley. Other steamers are to bring the remainder of the lumber within the next two weeks.

Bishops and Yeoman.

The Bishop baseball team is scheduled to play the Brotherhood of American Yeomen nine at Agricultural Park this afternoon. The Yeoman team was formerly known as the Southern Pacific nine, but has recently been taken over. J. C. Wilson is managing the team.

St. Vincent's is getting into the athletic funeral procession and resolving never to play with outside teams any more. It's quite a popular move just now, this giving up all hope of future athletic supremacy for the sake of study or health or individuality. But it's a noticeable fact that after the seclusion act has been tried for a reasonable length of time, there is a tendency to work back into the land of the living athlete. At least that seems to be the experience of leading institutions like Columbia University and Polytechnic High School.

THE LITTLE ONES.

FOUR DORIES TO RACE TODAY BEFORE SOUTH COAST CLUB.

FOUR dories will race at San Pedro Bay this afternoon in the one-design class of the South Coast Yacht Club. The two races scheduled for the day are the fifth and sixth in the second winter series of ten.

As the Merrily, which won the first series of races with straight firsts, is in second place for the four races already sailed in the present series, today's contests will probably prove the most exciting of any yet sailed. Of the first four races the Merrily has won only one, while Walter Folsom's Little Mischief captured three. If the Merrily gets even one of the races this afternoon, she will still have a good fighting chance to pull out first place in the series, while if she wins both of today's contests she will be on an even footing with the Little Mischief. On the other hand, by winning both races today, Folsom will practically cinch his grip on first place in the series.

Besides the Little Mischief and the Merrily, the Chili Pepper and the Blue Fin will probably cross the starting line this afternoon. Neither the Doris nor the Kitty are expected to enter, though there is a possibility that both will be on hand for the events. The Chili Pepper and the Kitty have shown winning form in streaks, and are at any time liable to pull through a race with the leaders, so that all the races are sure to be fought to the finish.

On account of the comparative ease with which the Merrily won the first series, she was picked as the winner of the second round also, and the fact that the Little Mischief has so far been able to beat her out in the run for first honors has aroused unusual interest in the present series. Since the winner of the series will probably be practically decided this afternoon, the largest gallery of the season is expected.

SHARK HOOKED.

How Little Eleven-Year-Old Boy Won Some Easy Money for His Trustful Father.

"An incident that I always recall with amusement took place in a western town at a time when I was but eleven years of age," says Willie Hoppe. "I was traveling about with my father, giving exhibitions, and while waiting in the hotel billiard-room, a man, who we were informed was a "shark," proposed a game with my father for a $50 wager, 50 points straight rail. The challenge was accepted, and after father, who won the bank, had made a few shots, a bell boy told him he was wanted at the telephone. This had been arranged for in advance.

"Rather than keep you waiting," said father, "I will let my little boy shoot for me while I am gone."

The "shark" consented, and I took the cue and ran out, the "shark" not getting a shot.

Lockwood Wins Pennant.

The boys' basketball team of the Lockwood grammar school won the Cahuenga Valley League championship Friday by defeating the Ramona team by the score of 26 to 8. The Lockwood team has won nine games out of ten played, with the following players: Earl Williams, Edmund Grieve, Ted McCarthy, Oscar Lawrence, Clarence Kellar and Harry Noggle.

DRIVING CLUB MATINEE

Blanchett, heralded as the only woman bronco buster in the world, stepped aboard a little measly cayuse in front of the grand stand and this thing charged across the track to the inside fence and fell over it. Mrs. Blanchett was thrown to the ground in front of the beast, but was helped up, unhurt, by a cowboy almost as soon as she had landed in the dirt. The horse managed to kick a couple of boards off the fence before he was jerked to his feet by the cowboys.

One bronco that Blanchett essayed to ride fell backwards when the blind was taken from his eyes and broke the saddle. Undismayed, Blanchett then mounted the beast bare-back and rode him in a finished manner. Wild Horse Mike also rode several plungers.

In the pony express relay race Mike Brahm was first; W. W. Padgett, second; Ed Gibson, third; H. H. Steelman, fourth, the finish between Mike and Padgett being very close. Brahm won because he had the better horse.

A. P. Richardson was field master of ceremonies for the Out West Club, assisted by B. K. Richardson. For the Driving Club, Secretary E. J. Delorey was starter and John W. Snowden, announcer.

The harness races were above the average, for the time made was good and the majority of the events showing close finishes. The best time of the afternoon was made in the 2:25 class for pacers and in the 2:20 class for trotters, miles being marked in 2:18 and 2:19, which is extra good for the winter season. The closest finish of the day was in the 2:20 trot, but all of the heats were interesting.

MORE FOR YOUR MONEY!

The Lion 40 H.P. $1600

See the Lion At the Chicago Show

THE LION WILL BE EXHIBITED IN SPACE 57, THE COLISEUM BASEMENT.

More for your money than any car selling up to $2000. That's the Lion

See for yourself at the Show. Examine the Lion's mighty power plant—cylinders 4½-inch bore, 5-inch stroke, actually giving 40 horse-power on the road.

Notice the Lion's perfect unit system. Did you ever see one so complete, even on the high priced cars? Aluminum Crank and Transmission Cases bolted together, forming a complete and continuous housing for all parts, including the flywheel. Yet the whole "works" can be instantly opened to your inspection.

Notice the heavy one-piece beam, drop forged steel axles—identically the same as used on $5000 cars—the dual ignition system—the $150 Splitdorf Magneto—the battery that will also run your lamps full power.

Observe the Lion's big 36-inch wheels—the roominess of the tonneaus—five-passenger touring or two-seat and rumble runabout.

The Lion's style is that of the newest smart French models for the coming season. It is not excelled in this respect by cars selling for twice the price. Ask for our illustrated book telling you about the Lion, the King of them all. If you do not attend the show, mail us attached coupon, and the book will be sent to you.

GREATEST OPPORTUNITY OF THE YEAR FOR AGENTS!

We especially invite motor car agents to inspect the Lion at the Chicago Show.

Let us take you out in the Lion and demonstrate it to you. Nothing like it is offered this year at anywhere near the price. It has the "class" that at once wins the enthusiasm of the critical buyer of a moderately priced car. Our best territories are still open for first-class selling connections. Write us at once or mail us the coupon indicating that you are interested as an agent. You won't have another chance like this.

There are sixteen separate against the walls, all having on the aisles. Corner exhibits have frontage on two aisles. entering the auditorium, the of exhibits fronts on the en- aisle. There are two aisles down the center of the exhibition. additional aisles afford frontage for the list of cars. accessory dealers have been given space in the southwest corner of the big room, the space formerly allotted to those who were learning to skate. All kinds of patent attachments which are of benefit to the user of a motor car are to be displayed here. Special inner casings and tire fillers are to be shown.

Oil firms and motorcycle dealers are to be represented in the show room. The latest models in the two-wheeled speedsters are to be given space in order that the public may be able to note the advance made in the bike industry.

There is to be a large variety of models for the admiration of the throngs. The popular small runabouts are shown in every conceivable style and model. These are the lowest-priced cars in the show.

The "Gunboat Roadster," to be shown by the Fiat Company, is one of the largest cars to be exhibited. This car closely resembles a big gunboat in dry dock. The car has been the sensation in the East. Manager Watson of the Fiat Company promises to send a full shipment of Fiat cars, including a forty-five-horse-power roadster, to the show.

L. H. Johnson has received his National cars. All of the 1910 models are to be shown by this company. The stylish National "Forty," one of the show cars of the year, is to have a prominent place in the National exhibit. This car is finished with a toy-tonneau body. This same type is also shown in the touring car body and the roadster.

The Speedwell "Forty" and the Croxton-Keeton are two of the newcomers to make their first appearance at this show. The cars are attracting much attention in the East this year, and are to become more familiar here if the agents have their way. The Speedwell is to be seen in the forty-horse-power type, and the Croxton-Keeton, a new car, built this year, is to be shown in the German and French types.

The smallest car in the show, the Hupmobile, is to be exhibited by the Tri-State Motor Car Company, of which Rene A. Brassey is president. The little "Hup," with top, glass front and other accessories, is to be one of the nobby attractions of this show. The car has proved a wonderful seller.

W. J. Burt is to exhibit a full line of Auburns. The display of the Burt Motor Car Company is to be particularly attractive. Two and four-cylinder cars are to be exhibited in the Burt booth. In the forty-horse-power model, the toy-tonneau and touring car are to be shown.

The Sterling racing car is to be an attraction in the Sterling booth, where a touring car and roadster will also be exhibited. The Lexington is to be shown by the Burkhard-Crippen Company in three different models, one of which is a seven-passenger, the other a demi-tonneau touring car.

In the electric line, the Waverley people will show the Waverley electric in all models. The Columbus-Detroit and the R. & L. electric is also to be shown in the latest models of the year. The Great Western touring car and the Paterson "Thirty" each have secured space. The feature of the Royal exhibit will be the close-coupled touring car. A Midland will also be shown.

The Westcott "Forty" and the Westcott "Twenty" are two cars being shown here for the first time. There will be three types of Lane Steamers. The Lane is the only steamer concern showing a torpedo body type this year.

The Badger is to be shown in a touring car and a roadster model. This is a new arrival, being exhibited at the show for the first time. The Grabowsky and the Reliance trucks are to be shown in complete lines.

E. Roger Stearns has taken 800 square feet of space to show his Ford and Velie lines. The inside-drive Ford is one of the handsomest of the low-priced coupés on the market. This stylish and nobby car sells for a price within the reach of the masses, and is ideal for muddy weather. The car also makes an ideal doctor's gig. There is also a Ford roadster and a touring car ready for the booth in which the Standard Motor Car Company's display is to be housed.

W. K. Cowan also has a large space for his Rambler exhibit. It was necessary for Cowan to have his cars shipped from the factory in order to bring the Ramblers here in time for the show. He is to make a complete exhibit.

Freddie Welsh has made many friends by his fine fighting record, but he has lost almost as many by standing for the awful slosh his press agent sends out.

LOZIER

Constantly Climbing

Driven by Merit

A Brief Word For the Year—

A year ago a few Lozier cars were in Los Angeles—cars brought here by their owners.

One of these Lozier cars has more than 38,000 miles to its credit and today is mechanically perfect—not even a worn gear tooth to show for the work done.

Paint and varnish not considered, that Lozier car today is as strong, as speedy, as safe and as free from wear as a new car.

This Is the Week of Our First Anniversary

Today you see a great many Lozier cars upon the streets of this city. Both 1909 and 1910 models—Briarcliff and Touring cars.

Among all those owners of Lozier cars, there is not one who has had to pay a five-cent piece for replacement or repairs.

The Lozier way is our way.

We will exhibit only at the Licensed Show.

CLASSINESS.

LANGFORD TO FIGHT AGAIN.

Classy Black Pug to Perform in Ten Days.

Local Scrapper Flynn May Surprise Bugs.

Lang Seems to Be Only Man Left for Sam.

Jim Flynn and Sam Langford are to furnish the next card for the Pacific Athletic Club on the night of Tuesday, February 8, and it goes without saying that this scrap will be worth traveling to see. What the outcome will be cannot be guessed with accuracy, for prize fights, like ball games, are very uncertain things.

The chances are, however, that Langford will win easily by a knockout, for he not only beat Flynn with a punch some months ago, but is one of the few top-notch scrappers in the world. He bars no one but Jim Jeffries, and the only reason he does this is because he says he does not desire to be killed so early in life. He has been after Jack Johnson for some time, but Johnson having met him once, has no particular desire to try him again. It is said that Johnson had the fight of his life in getting a fifteen-round decision over Langford, and all the other pugs have shown that they do not want Langford's game.

Flynn is equally well known, for he has fought all the best men in the country, with the exception of Jeffries. He has been knocked out by Johnson, Kaufman, Burns and Langford, and, in turn, has put out Bill Squires and beaten Jack Twin Sullivan and George Gardner among others. He is a rough-and-ready fighter, who is always wading in for more, and can take a beating from any of them. He is just the kind of a fighter that Langford can beat quickly, for the black likes a man who rushes, and the faster he rushes the harder the rusher is liable to fall.

Judging from past performances, Flynn is no match for Langford, and Manager McCarey has merely brought the black here to show him to the local bugs as one of the great fighters of the age. Flynn is used because he is on the ground, and is probably satisfied with a smaller guarantee than Jim Barry, who would give Langford a better fight, would ask.

Just what Langford will do after his Flynn fight is unknown, for there is no one on the Coast that can give him a battle. Lang is expected here from Australia within two weeks, and if he shows any inclination to try himself out, Langford can be induced to stay on the Coast for a time. Papke has gone to Paris for some easy money; Ketchel is talking a tour of the world, and Kaufman says he has some "theatrical" contracts that must be fulfilled, which is a good excuse for not tackling Langford. The way seems dark and dreary for Sam just at present, and it would appear that his only chance is to go to Paris, where negro pugs seem to be in favor and where there is easy money ordinarily.

RACQUETS.

TENNIS STARS ARE TO SHINE.

CORONADO TOURNEY TO OPEN TENNIS SEASON.

McLoughlin Expected to Defend Cup in Challenge Cup, While May Sutton is to Meet Hazel Hotchkiss in Singles Match—Strong Players Already Entered.

Maurice McLoughlin will probably meet Tom Bundy, while Miss May Sutton will have to defend her title of club champion against Miss Hazel Hotchkiss of San Francisco, in the challenge singles matches of the annual tournament of the Coronado Country club, to be contested February 9, 10, 11, 12.

"McLoughlin is to defend the Coronado Country club championship challenge trophy, which he won last year. Tom Bundy of Los Angeles has already won the cup twice, and will try hard to get away with the men's singles in order to meet McLoughlin in the challenge match.

The trophy becomes the permanent property of the player winning it three times, and Bundy is the only man who has yet been able to get two legs on it.

Miss Hotchkiss, national singles champion, expects to enter the ladies' singles, and will probably challenge May Sutton for the club championship title in the ladies' challenge match. Aside from the expected Bundy-McLoughlin match, no single feature will excite more interest than tht Hotchkiss-Sutton combination.

Among the prominent California players who have signified their intention of competing in the tournament are Dr. Sumner Hardy of San Francisco, formerly the Pacific Coast champion, "Rube" Hunt, J. E. Code, E. P. Finegan and Miss Golda Myer, all from San Francisco. Besides Bundy, Hal Braly, S. M. Sinsabaugh, A. V. Duncan, A. E. Bell, Winnie Mace, F. R. Feitshans, and A. H. MacFarland will go to Coronado from Los Angeles to take part in the play. Florence Sutton, Mrs. B. O. Bruce, "Bunny" Ryan and Alice Ryan all expect to be on hand to enter the ladies' singles, while May Sutton will be present to defend her championship title.

The events of the tournament will be men's singles and doubles, ladies' singles and ladies' special, consolation single and mixed doubles. The winner of the men's and ladies' open tournaments will challenge the Coronado Club title holders for the championship honors in the concluding events of the tournament, the challenge singles matches. Winners of all singles tournaments will receive cups, and the runners-up in the main men's and ladies' events will win medals.

The championship trophy, which was won in 1909 by McLoughlin, was captured in 1907 by Tom Bundy, and successfully defended by him in 1908, giving him the leading place on the club record with two wins. McLoughlin, if he succeeds in defending the cup safely in the coming tournament, will be on an equal footing with Bundy. The only other player who has been able to get his name on the trophy is Grant Smith of San Francisco, who won it in 1906.

The ladies' singles special will be open only to ladies who have never won a tournament, and is expected to develop some fast play among the younger players. No ladies' doubles will be played.

Play is scheduled to begin daily at 9:30 a.m., and again at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. These hours will be kept each day of the tournament, with 12:30 as the closing time for the morning play, and with the afternoon closing time varied by weather conditions and darkness.

Entries for the singles events will close Monday, February 7. Closing dates for the other entry lists have not yet been decided upon. The Tournament Committee consists of William Clayton of San Diego, S. M. Sinsabaugh and T. C. Bundy of Los Angeles, G. Riette of Coronado, A. V. Duncan of Los Angeles and Paul H. Schmidt of San Diego.

HOOD IS NOT RAISED.

Hum in Mercer Hums Over Kite Course on Novel Sealed-Bonnet Motor Test.

J. K. Hum is claiming a record for novices. In a toy-tonneau Mercer, which he purchased recently from the F. W. Force Automobile Company, Hum drove to Pomona, Riverside and Redlands, making the round trip without raising the hood. The engine did not miss a shot and the car made as high as fifty miles an hour on some of the rough stretches.

The run was a test for the Mercer as the owner was not certain just how his new car would act. He was told the machine would be all right provided he stocked up with oil and gasoline. The motor worked well and when Redlands was reached it had not been touched and the carburetor had needed no adjustments.

Then Hum decided to try to run back on sealed bonnet test. Los Angeles was reached on the return trip without the hood being raised. This stunt is considered remarkable in that the Mercer was making its first long run after its arrival from the factory. The machine averaged eighteen miles to the gallon for the trip.

The local Mercer agents are looking for three carloads of Mercer machines shipped from the factory which are lost en route. The shipment is sold and Force is anxious to get his cars here in time to make as early deliveries as possible.

Mark Twain Hedges.

"That was a poker game in which Maj. Gonter got all I had; now he comes back at me and wants all I have left," said Mark Twain, when told of the invitation of Maj. Gonter of St. Louis to play off at his home a euchre game that began in 1865 and lasted four years, says a New York paper. Mr. Clemens settled himself back in his steamer chair on the steamer Bermudian, which had arrived from Bermuda, and added reflectively: "Now Maj. Gonter is mistaken in his dates. It seems to me I was in jail about the time he has reference to." Matthias Dougherty, the third surviving member of the St. Louis Euchre Club, has been invited to join in the euchre game. Mr. Clemens did not indicate whether he would accept Maj. Gonter's invitation.

1/1000 OF AN INCH
Is The Standard of Measurement In The Cadillac
"Thirty"

It may surprise you to know that even the costliest cars fall short of that fineness of measurement in the component parts upon which the operation and the life of a motor car are wholly dependent.

What is the peculiar quality in any motor car for which you pay $5000 or $6000?

It is not reputation—no matter how fine that reputation may be; because no reputation could be worth $2000 or $3000 to each purchaser.

It is not mere external elegance.

It is a definite, concrete excellence; for which the maker is justified, in a sense, in charging.

You pay $5000 or $6000 for running qualities—and an element of longevity which no car of lesser price, save the Cadillac, will give.

Those running qualities and that longevity are in turn directly dependent upon the accuracy with which more than 100 essential parts are made and the perfect alignment resulting therefrom.

Your $5000 car (or your Cadillac) runs more smoothly and lasts longer, because of the time, the care, the money and the expert workmanship expended in eliminating friction by producing between those hundred or more vital parts, a fineness of fit which no eye can measure and no words describe.

And this leads to a disclosure of the utmost concern to every automobile owner.

In the production of more than ten thousand Cadillac "Thirtys" in the past fifteen months it has been demonstrated beyond peradventure that in this element of synchronization, harmony, fit, and elimination of friction, the Cadillac standard has not been attained by any other plant or any other car.

Thus, the one element which justifies a $5000 or $6000 price is present to a higher degree in the Cadillac than in any other car in the world.

In the Cadillac there are 112 parts which are accurate to the one-thousandth of an inch.

Thus—as a single illustration—the Cadillac "Thirty" piston is made to work perfectly within the cylinder bore, which is 4¼ inches. To gauge the accuracy of the piston diameter, two snap gauges are used. These snap gauges are shaped similar to the letter "U." The distance across the opening of one snap gauge is 4.248 (four inches and 248 one-thousandths of an inch) and is marked "Go." The other is 4.247 (one one-thousandth of an inch less) and is marked "Not Go."

The "4.248 Go" gauge must slip over the lower end of the piston, but the "4.247 Not Go" gauge must not. If the piston is so large that the "Go" gauge will not slip over it, the piston is ground down until it does. If the piston is small enough to permit the "Not Go" gauge to slip over, it is discarded as imperfect.

Crank shafts, cylinders, pistons, gears—scores of essential Cadillac "Thirty" parts—are rigidly subjected to the scrupulous test of 1-1000 of an inch accuracy.

Not $5000 or $6000 can buy you the magnificent assurance of smooth, velvety operation and long life obtained in every Cadillac at $1700.

Mezger Automatic Windshield

Up or down with one hand without slackening speed. You don't have to stop your car. No dust. No goggles. No wind. No rattle. Keeps off cold winds, dust, rain and snow. Gives you solid comfort whatever season you ride. No set-screws to tinker with. You simply lift it up and it locks itself upright. A slight pull with one hand puts it down against the rubber bumpers, where it rests—firm, noiseless. It is always ready and always works. The Mezger Automatic is made of finest polished French plate glass and brass tubing. The glass rests against heavy piano felt inside a bronze channel—free from the vibrating and jolting of the car. We want you to see this shield at the Show. One glance will convince you of its many superior qualities. A demonstration of the ease and convenience with which the Mezger Automatic Windshield is operated will immediately prove to you why it is a necessary portion of the Standard Equipment for your car. If you're not coming to the Show, write for illustrated descriptive booklet, which we will gladly mail. At any rate, learn more about the handsomest, most convenient and practical windshield on the market. Once you see the Mezger Automatic you will throw your goggles away for good.

Soot-Proof Spark Plug

A rain-proof coat doesn't stop the rain, but it keeps it away from your clothes. Soot-Proof Spark Plugs don't prevent the accumulation of soot, but they put the soot where it can't and won't do any harm. No other plug does this. Every other plug short-circuits the current and stops your engine. You can't short-circuit a Soot-Proof. When we say this plug is the best ever conceived or produced, we are prepared to prove it. If you will call at the United Manufacturers' accessory show, we will "show you" just why it is best. We will explain the construction and design, and prove to your full satisfaction that it is simply impossible for this plug to short-circuit. Buy a set of Soot-Proof Plugs to-day. Put 'em in your cylinders — test them and be convinced. The Soot-Proof has been standard since 1902. Since then dozens of spark plugs have been put on the market, but not one has equalled the Soot-Proof. Don't leave the Show without seeing these remarkable plugs. Don't leave your garage without them in your cylinders. Learn to leave plug troubles at home.

THIS IS THE STANDARD EQUIPMENT

FOR YOUR AUTOMOBILE

You will never know the real pleasures of motoring until your car carries Standard Equipment. These famous accessories make the perfect car. They are the essential factors that eliminate danger—that develop speed—that insure economy and comfort. Look over this page. Note carefully the accessories we make. Surely there is something here that you need. Our dealers show this sign. It protects you against the shoddy substituter and the shoddy service price cutter. It's our trade mark and your guarantee that you are getting genuine Standard Equipment.

Don't fail to see our Exhibition. It will surely interest you.

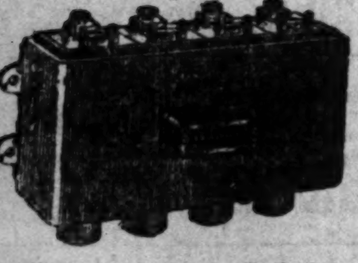
CONNECTICUT

Ignition Specialties

You can get everything for ignition if you ask for "Connecticut." We make the famous Connecticut automobile coils, which bear our name, Shock Absorbers, Terminals, Timers, Currrent Indicators, Distributors, Marine Coils, Motorcyle Coils, Steering Wheel Switches, Volt-Ammeters, and—here's the good news—we have now completed the finest magneto ever devised and a shock absorber that will demonstrate its superiority over everything else on the market. See the new Connecticut Magneto. Like all Connecticut products, it contains the finest material and workmanship. Its design, we know, cannot be improved. We've put it through every possible test, and it has done more than we asked. It's just exactly what you want.



Connecticut Type X Coil

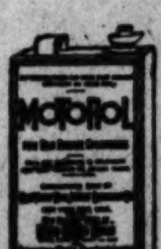
"You make that coil too good," said a prominent car manufacturer of our new Type X Dash Coil. It's a beauty! Just what you want for your car. Good enough for the best, yet reasonable in price. Connecticut Type X has been produced for the purpose of filling the requirements for a less expensive coil than our Standard make, more particularly where coils are used as a secondary system, for starting or emergency purposes, depending upon a magneto for the primary ignition. It is made in the very best possible manner, but is considerably smaller than our Standard coil. We will guarantee it superior to any other make of coil. It is built on the unit principle with removable units, as shown, and is fitted with either type "L," type "P" or magneto switch, if desired.

NON FLUID OILS

The use of Non-Fluid Oils for lubricating transmission and bearings is an insurance policy against wear. Your gears will last longer and work better if you use Non-Fluid Oils. This is a positive, proven fact. There is no doubt about it. Here's the proof:—In a recent test by the Sharp Arrow Auto Company a car lubricated with Non Fluid Oils ran 20,000 miles without showing any sign of wear in the transmission and bearings. Can you beat that? Can you or any other motorist ask for a greater test? Just think. 20,000 miles means about five years' average service! Is your car insured against wear for five years to come? Buy Non-Fluid Oils. Use them; note the difference in the action of your car. Non-Fluid Oil is cheaper than a new set of gears—and besides it won't run away. Once it's inside the gear case it's there to stay—no dripping or spattering. Gears wear out quickly if not properly lubricated. Non-Fluid Oil will wear out eventually, but in the meantime it has provided for your gears the best possible lubrication. It contains no harmful ingredients. It won't thicken. It won't thin out. Ordinary grease won't do—can't do for you what Non-Fluid Oil accomplishes without effort. Because of its lasting qualities it is by far the most economical lubricant on the market. If you've never tried it you ought to. At any rate come and see the "wheels go round" at our Exhibition. It will prove to you just why the other fellow keeps ahead on the road—he uses Non-Fluid—most every one does. Get the orange-colored can bearing our trade mark.

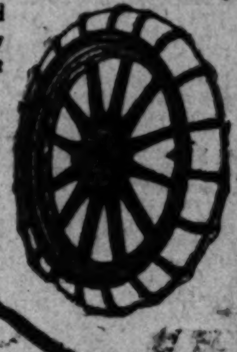
MoToRoL

Two and one-half gallons of MoToRoL perfectly lubricated a Locomobile in a recent run of 2,600 miles. The cylinders were found in excellent condition at the end of the run. That's 130 miles to the pint. Can you get that much service out of the oil you are using? All we ask is a trial. Just use MoToRoL once. You'll never be satisfied with anything else. Remember—everything depends on the quality of your cylinder oil. Poor, cheap and inferior lubricants will ruin the best engine ever built. Don't take chances. Use MoToRoL—"the orange colored can with the engines on it." Of course, you use Non-Fluid Oils—therefore you ought to use MoToRoL—made by the same people and equally as good. Try MoToRoL at our suggestion. Prove to your own satisfaction that it is positively the best oil on the market. It is used by all motorists who prefer the best—who value their engines — who want conomy, and if a pint of MoToRoL will run a car 130 miles it demonstrates beyond the shadow of a doubt that it is far away superior to any other cylinder lubricant in the market—certainly the most economical—do not accept anything else.



Weed Anti-Skid Chains

You simply cannot get along without Weed Anti-Skid Chains. They are positively "as necessary as gasolene." Your very safety depends on the precautions you take to avoid skidding. Weed chains are the only practical anti-skidding device on the market. They prevent skidding—thereby protecting you, your car, your family and friends against accident. Here's proof that Weed Chains eliminate danger. The Ocean Insurance Company attach a warning to each policy stating that while they assume all civil liability they cannot protect a policy-holder against the criminal prosecution that may result from a fatality occasioned by skidding, because anti-skid chains were not used. They wouldn't do this unless they knew. Sad experience has taught them that Weed Chains are absolutely necessary to your safety. Don't think of leaving your garage without Weed Chains. But—they do more than act as a safeguard. They enable you to negotiate mud-covered roads and highways deep in snow. They prevent slipping and sliding on wet, "greasy" or icy pavements. They secure instant and positive traction. They are vitally essential to every automobile. This is Weed Weather. Buy 'em to-day. But remember this important fact:—There are fraudulent imitations of Weed Chains. The Genuine have Brass Plated Cross Chains and the word "Weed is stamped in the hooks. Do not accept anything but Weed Chains with Brass Plated Cross Chains. See them at the Show. After you have examined the new Weed Chains you will detect the imitation immediately—there's a difference. The Cross Chains do the actual work and receive the wear. It is therefore necessary that the Cross Chains be extremely hard and strong. All Weed Cross Chains are specially hardened—electrically welded by a new process used exclusively by us. This process insures homogeneous construction and long wearing life. If you want full value—safety—comfort—use nothing but Weed Chains. They are constantly "creeping" and do not injure tires.



Jones Speedometer

The only speed-indicator that is positively and unerringly "GEARED TO THE TRUTH." Be sure your speed-indicator is "geared to the truth." Is 20 miles an hour on your speedometer always 20? The Jones Speedometer has a direct Drive. The hand of the Jones Speedometer feels the road—feels the speed—measures it mechanically. The Jones hand is connected with the road by a metal-to metal, shaft-and-gear connection. The Jones Speedometer is the only speedometer that is mechanically "geared to the truth." In all other speedometers direct transmission is broken. The hand feels no gripping speed connection. There is a gap. The feeble pull of a magnet or the pressure of air tries to bridge the gap. Across the gap there is only the feeble drag of a hair spring. Hair springs and magnets grow weaker and weaker all the time. Hair springs and air vary with temperature and altitude. Twenty miles an hour drops to seventeen. Direct Drive never weakens, never varies. The Jones has the invaluable Maximum Speed Hand—one of the greatest improvements in speedometer construction ever devised. Be sure your 1910 speedometer has the Maximum Speed Hand— it's an exclusive feature of the Jones. All speedometer refinements are found in the Jones. For 1910 we have the new Stem-Wind Jones Clock in our combination sets. This does away with the inconvenience of carrying a key, and keeps clock free from dust and dirt. The Jones also has the Instantaneous Odometer Reset—an exclusive feature—don't accept an imitation. Prices range from $25 to $85. Combination sets with Jones Auto Clock from $60 to $130. See our 1910 line of instruments at the Show.

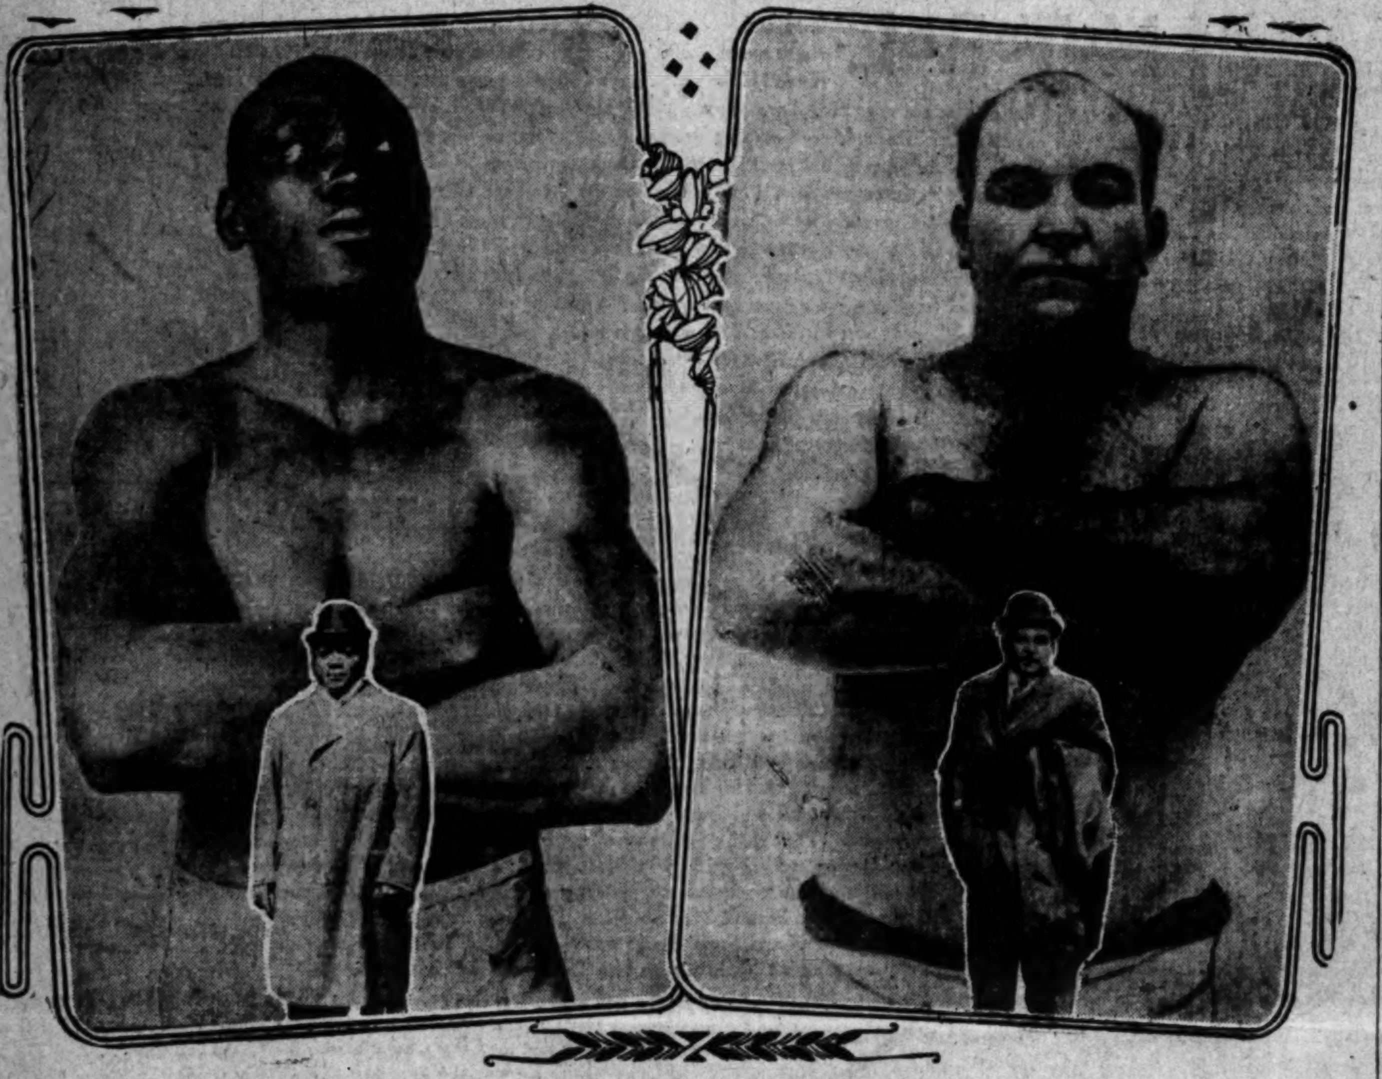
KEEN PSYCHOLOGICAL STUDIES OF JEFFRIES AND JACK JOHNSON.

Pregnant Racial Event, the Coming Struggle Between the Anglo-Saxon and the Negro—The Fighting Heart and the Supreme Test.

BY HARRY C. CARR.



Jack Johnson and Jim Jeffries, the Men of the Hour in Pugilism, who are scheduled to fight in Salt Lake City some time in July for the world's pugilistic championship.

WILLIAM T. HORNADAY, the naturalist, says that two tigers, put into the same cage for the first time, seldom actually fight. They bristle up their hair and hiss and snarl. One of them perceives that his snarl isn't the real thing and sulkily surrenders.

Thus animals test that subtle and almost mysterious quality, called the "fighting heart."

It is not exactly the same as courage: it is altogether different from the mere self-confidence; something more than consciousness of power.

It is something inside which tells you that you can't be beaten. Something that makes you feel yourself a victor when your ship is sinking. Because of it, John Paul Jones captured the Serapis with a wretched sinking old tub. Some nations and some races are filled with it to a marked degree.

There is about to be a most interesting test of the extent to which the negro race has it. This test is to be a prize fight between Jim Jeffries, a white man of almost pure Anglo Saxon type, and Jack Johnson, a negro, for the championship of the world.

It is very curiously true that the Jeffries-Johnson fight will be quite as interesting to the psychologist and the ethnologist as to the sport.

The mere courage of the negro race has been tested on a hundred battle fields. One of the most desperate exhibitions of valor in the history of modern warfare was the charge of the negro troops before Petersburg. The colored troops stood like rock at San Juan Hill when some of the white troops faltered. In the days of our Indian wars on the plains, the Ninth and Tenth Cavalry and the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Infantry showed that negro troops will endure any hardship and face any danger, however horrible. But they had officers and their officers were white men and the very highest type of white men.

"Psha," says one of the characters in George Bernard Shaw's play, "Arms and the Man," "the courage to rage and kill is cheap. I have an English bull terrier who has as much of that sort of courage as the whole Bulgarian nation and the whole Russian nation at its back. But he lets my groom thrash him just the same. That's your soldier all over."

NOT BEHIND HIM.

When Jack Johnson faces Jim Jeffries in the prize ring, he will not have behind him a white officer whom he has learned to trust and obey as a child trusts its mother.

He will be alone on his own resources with the champion of the world in front of him and a hostile, crowd bawling behind him.

That the crowd will be hostile, without question, is not the least interesting phase. Thoughtful men are convinced that this fight will increase race hatred. Many even predict a pronounced increase in race rioting if Johnson should win. The most casual perusal of the sporting papers cannot fail to impress any one with the feeling of racial bitterness that already colors this fight. Jefferies is spoken of as "the hope of the white race."

This coming ethnological test, to ignore the sporting side, is particularly significant because the men are so evenly matched, physically. You may say that it is solely a question of the "fighting heart" of the negro.

"These" as the prestidigitator says, rolling up his sleeves, "is the apparatus with which the experamunt is proformed."

First, Jefferies:

Jim Jefferies, the white man, is not the natural fighting type. He is an amiable bull, goaded to combat, rather than a bulldog.

Some prize fighters, notably Battling Nelson, the light weight champion, are as naturally fighting animals as are short haired dogs. They fight because they love fighting. They fight on the slightest provocation. They fight from pure blood lust.

Jefferies, on the other hand, is not in the least pugnacoius. Fighting, with him, is not instinctive.

Just before his retirement, he confided to a newspaper friend in this city that he cordially detested prize fighting and never would have stepped into a ring if he could have made as much money any other way.

LOGY JIM.

Temperamentally, he is slow and logy and rather dull; slow of speech; slow of decision, but sound of decision, with a fund of practical common sense. He talks very little; is peculiarly unresponsive and, luckily for himself, is hard to influence.

Possibly race has much to do with it. Most professional fighting men are Celts, although Bat Nelson is a pure Dane and many of the later crop of fighters, now coming to the front, are Jews and Italians with a strain of Irish.

Jefferies is of English descent with a side-line of Portugese.

He is best judged and best understood as a Britisher. He has a Britisher's respect for authority; a British horror of making a "show" of himself; English shyness that is hidden under an aloofness and a mind-your-own business air.

As a boy at school, Jefferies was a different, obedient plodder who struggled doggedly and without inspiration over his lessons; seldom got into school boy fights and made no trouble for the teachers.

With some 250 pounds of solid muscle developed at the forges of an iron foundry, Jefferies simply had to become a prize fighter. He was too big not to be a prize fighter.

It was uphill business for him. It was hard for him to learn to box. He was hopelessly slow. But, unskilled as he was, he fought with dogged pertinacy and a strength that was simply prodigious.

A RING TRADITION.

It is a tradition of the prize ring that Jeffries has never dared to hit a man with his full strength for fear of killing him.

In time, and by painstaking effort, Jeffries finally learned to box well, with a sort of heavy bovine skill of execution.

It must be confessed, however, that most of his fights were won more by his overpowering gigantic strength than by any other quality.

One of his fiercest fights was with Tom Sharkey, a rough, ignorant sailor. It resembled a collision of two locomotives; Jeffries was the stronger locomotive. Bob Fitzsimmons lashed him with blows over the eyes until Jeffries was almost blind; but became exhausted by the effort of pounding this mountain of strength. At the end of his last fight with Jim Corbett, the latter said as they were carrying him to his corner: "It's no use; he's too big and strong." Strength has always been his big asset.

In all these fights, Jeffries showed ability to endure punishment—but no such sublime indifference to blows as is shown by natural-born fighters like Nelson.

The truth is, Jeffries never developed any remarkable talent for fighting. If Young Corbett or Bat Nelson or Terry McGovern had been Jim Jeffries's size, any one of them could have whipped a whole regiment of Jeffries.

Jeffries was not a sport. He had no talent for heroics. His instincts were cautious and respectable. He was afraid of being a hero. Newspaper reports at first terrified him; then bored him. They tried to make him an actor; and the result was something strange and wonderful. Jeffries realized it. Every time he came off the stage into the wings, he would complain bitterly that they were making a fool of him.

For the same reason, he never would be interviewed. Reporters never get anything out of him but monosyllables.

When he had fought every one who presented himself, Jeffries retired; got married; became a rancher; loaned his name to a saloon, and became a staid, well-behaved man of business.

His return to the ring was brought about solely by the chance to make a great deal of easy money. Perhaps, also, a little, on account of the prejudice, born of his iron-worker days, against a negro, and his secret respect for the championship.

Any fighter with theatrical instincts would have burst back into the ring with a blast of defiance; but, in his slow, earnest way, Jeffries would not at first give an answer, because he said (unheroically) he was not sure he could win!

That's the sort of man upon whom the "fighting heart" of the negro race is to be tried. In a word, Jeffries is a commonplace, uninteresting mechanic, with enormous strength and a full supply of Anglo-Saxon determination of spirit.

NOW FOR 'JACK.

Jack Johnson:

Whatever Jeffries lacks in picturesqueness, is made up by Johnson, the negro.

Johnson is the kind of sporty "coon" you read about in comic papers. He is a minstrel joke—a scream—a cake walk.

A logician could see Johnson and deduct (or rather "induct") the jungles of South Africa. Seeing Johnson arayed in his diamonds the day after winning a prize fight, the thoughtful visitor from Mars would know that, somewhere on this earth, there must be savages who hang rings through their noses, and, dancing naked by the light of the jungle moon, answer the howl of the gorilla with their yells.

Johnson is not very far removed from the original Fuzzy Wuzzy whom Kipling conceded to be a "big, black, boundin', beggar; but a first-class fightin' man."

Like Jeffries, however, the negro is not instinctively a fighter. That is to say, he is not of the fighting type of animal. He is instinctively a boxer. Jeffries is a bull; Johnson is some kind of fastidious jungle cat.

Plainsmen say that one of the most remarkable sights in the world is to see a cat fight a snake. Pussy sits placidly, apparently paying not the slightest attention to the snake as the latter coils and gets ready to strike. But as the long, sinuous head darts out to the attack, she stops him with a biff in mid air, digging her claws in behind the head; then she resumes her thoughtful attitude of complacency.

ADROITNESS.

That's very much the way Johnson fights in a prize ring. His flashes of motion are a most extraordinary spectacle. There is no room to doubt that he has never had a superior as a boxer.

Not to go into a description of punches and jabs, this remarkable skill is interesting as illustrating a phase of Johnson's character.

When you see him box in his training quarters, or even in the ring, you are impressed with two facts, that he never seems to be really in earnest about it; and that he fights very much after the manner of a rapier fencer.

He has the easy fastidiousness of the foil fencer. His defense seems to be without the slightest effort. During his fight with the dangerous Tommy Burns, the negro carried on a careless conversation with the ringside spectators. While Burns was making his most furious, if futile, assault, Johnson asked the referee about the climate of Australia and chatted about the size of the audience, as though Burns were merely a little child playing about his knees.

His defense was so fine and adroit that he seemed only to be gently pushing away the vicious, little fight champion with his hands. Burns futilely pounded the air, like an angry baby.

Occasionally, as Burns started a blow, Johnson would shoot his brown arm across and land like a catapault on the white man's face before Burns's fist could reach him.

These fight details are related for the purpose of laying a foundation for this question:

Where does this ridiculous negro get the brain power to direct this remarkable art of fighting? With him it is an art.

To land a "counter" blow, the following thoughts must flash through the brain of the fighter:

This man is in the act of striking me with his right hand. I can see his fist coming.

I will strike him with my left hand and break the force of his blow by hitting him before he hits me. Here goes!

Almost all Johnson's blows are counter blows. He almost never leads. It is obvious that the negro has not the brain to actually think with the rapidity and accuracy that this style of fighting implies. What then?

Johnson is a very large Texas negro about the color of a well-worn pigskin saddle. Like most mulattos, he is built heavily about the arms and shoulders, but with slender and not very strong legs. The recent experiments in the Yale gymnasium showed that, with the exception of his arms, he was not as strong as the athletes on the Yale teams.

He has the mind of a child, or a barbarian.

Most of his early fights were in Los Angeles. He was practically the slave of his manager, at that period.

The manager supported him and thus acquired the right to nearly all his winnings. After each fight his "master" would hand him a few dollars and Johnson would burst upon the "rialto," blazing with paste diamonds, broad-soled shoes and the most astounding striped shirts.

His wife would appear in new furs, no matter what the season, and imitation diamonds as big as saucers. Thus attired, they would tread up and down Spring street with hautuer and the elegance that only a dressed-up darkey can assume.

In a week they would be broke and hanging pathetically upon the favor of the white manager again for po'k chops.

Johnson still has the same tendencies; only now his diamonds are real and he substitutes fast-going automobiles for his majestic cake walk up and down the actors' promenade.

As soon as he had become champion, he discarded his negro wife for the more elegant white variety.

The ambition of his life is to rush through the streets at break-neck speed in a racing automobile and be stared at. Being arrested for speeding and paying his fine from a pocket bulging with money is his idea of being impressive.

He likes to use big words that mean nothing in particular. He is delighted to accept invitations to deliver lectures before associations of colored people. Having been around so much with men of affairs, and having been in the public eye for so long, Johnson has picked up a sort of "patter" and an etiquette, both of which he practices with excruciating elegance. Result: In the art of being interviewed, he makes Jeffries look like a dub.

THE ANIMAL.

Is it not perfectly obvious that a simple child of the jungle like this darkey with his "coon" diamonds and his striped shirts could not direct his marvelous fighting defense by conscious thought?

It follows that Johnson is more nearly the perfect animal than Jeffries. He has the advantage of being the more primitive brute.

Jeffries, the prize fighter, is the product of painful, conscious effort; Johnson of an agility that is unthought and purely instinctive.

In the Darwinian days, Jeffries was a big old water buffalo and Johnson was a panther; but it is evident that, after Jeffries left the jungle, Johnson stuck around and practiced for a few million years. Neither you will observe, is the fighting type of animal, in the sense of being pugnacious. The buffalo and the panther fight when they have to.

THE CONTEST.

When Jeffries, the sedate mechanic, meets this amusing but adroit barbarian, the general opinion is that Johnson will be overawed and generally scared to death.

It is a mistake, however, to suppose that Johnson is actually afraid of Jeffries. The danger that he faces is more subtle: it is Jeff's Anglo-Saxon will power.

It has been observed that the weakness of colored prize fighters is their imagination and their susceptibility to impressions.

It is imagination that makes an Irishman a terror in a fight; but it

MANY ENTERED IN MARATHON.

Twenty-eight Athletes to Run Holiday Race.

Contest to Start at Venice and Finish Here.

Trainers on Bicycles to Follow Runners.

Twenty-eight long-distance runners, some representing various athletic organizations, and others being unattached, are enetred to compete in the third annual Marathon race from Venice to Los Angeles, to be held under the ausyices of the Los Angeles Athletic Club on Washington's Birthday.

The entry list is open till February 15, on which date all the contestants are to meet at the Los Angeles Athletic Club and receive instructions for the race. It is expected the entry list will be swelled by the additions of several more athletes who have signified their intentions of competing.

The course of the runners will be reversed this year, and the race is to start from the Venice Annex of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, and will finish in front of the main club building on Spring, between Fifth and Sixth streets. The change in the direction of running should be of advantage to the runners, especially if a strong sea breeze is blowing from the coast.

After leaving the Venice annex the runners are to follow a course on Windward avenue to the Midway, thence east on the auto road to Fredericks to Washington street, thence on Adams to Main street, north on Main and Spring to the Athletic Club entrance. Each runner will be allowed to have a trainer follow him on a bicycle. According to the rules, the attendant can give stimulants to the runner but cannot assist him in any other way. Violations of this rule will disqualify the runner.

The officials selected are: Judges of finish, Charlie Eyton, George Reeves, Charlie Fox; judges of course, Cliff Reuman, Al Treloar, Webb Branne; timers, Harry Williams, Ed O'Malley, N. B. Byram.

The entries to date and the numbers under which they will run are: J. A. Shepp, Pasadena (Y.M.C.A.,) No. 1; Sam Dane (unattached,) No. 2; W. Tokina (unattached,) No. 3; Teofilo Arrigoni (unattached,) No. 4; Lester W. Murray (unattached,) No. 5; John W. Zorraquinos (unattached,) No. 6; C. V. Reilly (unattached,) No. 7; James Hunter (Des Moines Athletic Club,) No. 8; Vernon Ross (unattached,) No. 9; F. Bessolo (unattached,) No. 10; Grover J. Braden (unattached,) No. 11; A. H. Arond (Los Angeles Y.M.C.A.,) No. 12; W. Wiesendanger (Los Angeles Y.M.C.A.,) No. 13; C. Leah (unattached,) No. 14; P. Blanchard (Los Angeles Y.M.C.A.,) No. 15; C. Crockett (Los Angeles Y.M.C.A.,) No. 16; L. Kohn (unattached,) No. 17; G. W. Isaacs (L.A.A.C.,) No. 18; W. G. Coe (L.A.A.C.,) No. 19; Beryl Hatton (Newsboys' A.C.,) No. 20; W. Pakina (unattached,) No. 21; Ray Raynor (unattached,) No. 22; R. E. Baker (unattached,) No. 23; Jay Wilton (L.A.A.C.,) No. 24; H. Davidson (Bakersfield A.C.,) No. 25; H. Hanson (unattached,) No. 26; Harry Harrison (unattached,) No. 27; J. Lawson (unattached,) No. 28.

A majority of the runners entered to date are inexperienced athletes who have not competed in long-distance events and whose ability is a matter of conjecture. The men are training at different places and are making a brave attempt to be in good condition for the race. With so many entries who are new to the game, many will undoubtedly fail to finish, and picking the winner is difficult at this stage of the training.

SWIMMERS TO QUALIFY.

Final Elimination Races for Y.M.C.A. Championship to Be Held This Week.

The second elimination swimming contests for the championship of the Y.M.C.A. is to be held at the association tank Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock. The card of events includes the preliminary heats of the 100-yard race, finals of the 220-yard race and an interesting programme of aquatic sports including high and fansey diving by Clifford Bowes and others.

The final championship programme is to be given next Saturday night when the finals in the 100 and 880-yard events will be concluded. An underwater race for distance will also be held. Among the entries received to date are W. H. Barker, Tom Homlett, M. Lee, Howard Taylor, H. J. Harrell. With both Lee and Taylor entered an exciting card is assured.

Following the championship events a team is to be picked from the contestants to represent the Y.M.C.A. in the Southern California championships to be held in March. It is almost certain that Taylor, 440 champion, and Lee, 220 and 880 champion, will be members of the association squad, and the Y.M.C.A. should carry off a majority of the southern championships.

The association championships in progress have developed several crack swimmers who have forced Lee and Taylor to their best efforts to win the honors in the short-distance events. Tom Howlett finished second in the 100-yard sprint, and third in the 880-yard event to Lee and Taylor and made an excellent showing in both races. He is a strong swimmer, and shows promise of championship performances in another year.

Barker and Harrell are each clever swimmers, who may be expected to develop championship caliber in their respective events with another six months' training. Barker is an L. A. High student, who is an expert gymnast, and clever mat performer. Under the coaching of Fleming the youngsters have shown marked improvement. The association boasts at present probably the strongest aggregation of swimmers in Southern California.

SURPRISING.

RHEINE SEEKS NEW POSITION.

APPLIES FOR COACHING JOB AT UNIVERSITY.

Reform Policy of Saints Lets Rheinschild Out—Due, It Is Asserted, to Refusal of Conference Colleges to Recognize Grand Avenue School, Cromwell Undisturbed.

Walter Rheinschild who coached the St. Vincent's football team last season, and who was supposed to have the same berth engaged for next year, yesterday turned in an application for coach of the athletic teams of the University of Southern California next year.

Tom Clay, manager of university athletics received Rheine's supplication, and the matter is to be considered in secret session of the athletic board of control, with President Bovard. Clay could not predict a definite answer to the offer.

The recent action of the Saints in excluding intercollegiate relations hereafter, and in confining athletic participation to the Catholic student body, is responsible directly for Rheinschild's sudden quest for a coaching position with the university.

Indirectly the failure of Rheine to secure amicable relations between the Saints and the conference colleges is claimed to be the reason for the reform in the Saints' policy and the subsequent release of Rheinschild. The Saints' athletic authorities have hoped all year to be admitted to conference, but have failed.

Rheinschild tried hard to secure baseball games with Occidental, Pomona and U.S.C. He asserted he had a game practically clinched with the Highlanders when presenting his plea to Manager Clay of the university. California also refused to meet the Saints again in baseball owing to the alleged rowdy tactics of the southern rooters.

Rheinschild's principal recommendation when given the coaching position at St. Vincent's last fall was his promise to aid the school authorities in cleaning up the Grand avenue athletics. To all appearances Rheine made good, and his players were said to be all bona fide students, whose scholarship grades were creditable. Yet in spite of his reform Rheine was not given a very cordial reception by the conference managers.

It is hardly probable Rheinschild's offer will be considered very strongly at U.S.C. Rheine offered to coach the football squad for about the same terms upon which he worked for the Saints, and further agreed to coach all the athletic teams for an extra hundred dollars. Apparently Rheine would plan to make a big noise during football season, and give but comparatively little time on track and baseball teams.

Dean Cromwell has done well at the university, and in spite of a good deal of friction generated by selfish fraternity athletics, together with the lack of good material, has satisfied the majority of the students and the ahletic authorities.

SEEMS TO BE GROWING.

SOCCER FOOTBALL ATTRACTS ATTENTION OF SUBURBANITES.

FOUR new men will figure in the Thistle line-up in the soccer game with the Ranger eleven this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. On account of the work on the Fiesta Park grounds in preparation for the February auto show, the usual battleground for the two teams cannot be obtained, and the elevens will fight it out at Prager Park.

H. Evans, A. Finley, J. Lough and H. Brown form the quartette of new Thistles. Evans, who will tend goal, comes from Toronto whede he played with the Toronto Thistles. Like most the other new men here, he is new only in this locality, having played the game for years. Finley will go in at right half, and is expected to put up a star game, as he has figured in big contests abroad. He was formerly a first division man at Patrick, Scotland.

Lough is another Canadian, and will play at the right end of the Thistle forward line. He comes from Vancouver where he played on still another Thistle team, the Vancouver Thistles. Harold Brown will also play in the forward line, at inside left. Before coming to Los Angeles he was a member of the Aston Manor eleven of Birmingham, Eng.

Both Lough and Brown have tried out with the Thistles in a single practice game, and each showed up well on the strong team. Evans, Finley and Lough are to play their first game in Los Angeles this afternoon.

On the Ranger line-up one new man will probably be tried out at right back. Except for this single newcomer, J. Derrington, the usual Ranger line-up will be used. Jarvis will go back to his position in goal.

With both teams in good condition a close game is confidently expected. No admission will be charged, as the open field at Prager Park makes any system of collecting a gate troublesome.

As Fiesta Park will not be available for football again until March, the soccer teams will have to do their kicking on other krounds during all of February. Prager Park will usually be available as a substitute ground, and it is likely that attempts will be made to secure the Chutes field for some of the coming matches.

A game between Scotchmen and Englishmen is the next soccer event in line, and is being actively worked up by delegates from the different teams. Lincoln of the Rangers and Kitchen of the Victorias, who are looking out for the interests of the English side, promise to have an all-star team for the game, and expect to win easily, unless the Scotch enthusiasts also manage to get together an unusually brilliant aggregation of soccer lights.

Never in the history of Southern California soccer has there been as great a demand for exhibition games, in cities outside Los Angeles, as during this season. Last fall the Riverside Exiles organized the first eleven that has ever been formed outside the city. Both Rangers and Thistles of Los Angeles have found that they can secure more men and better material for their clubs than ever before, and on this account there are many predictions that next winter will find seven or more, instead of three or four, Southern California soccer teams competing for championship honors.

From all the present signs of interest, soccer adherents feel that it is only a question of time before the association game comes to be generally accepted throughout this end of the State.

So prosperous is the condition of the Ranger club in respect to the number of available players that the Ranger second team recently formed, the Emeralds, proposes to break off from the parent organization and form a separate club. With a few more strong players added to their already classy list, the Emeralds ought to be able to play the older teams on an even footing, after a few games.

The line-up at Prager Park this afternoon will be:

STANFORD CREW TRAINING.

Sixty-five Men Enrolled in Water Sports Club and Prospects for Winner Are Bright.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 28.—Active training among the crew candidates is in full swing under the direction of J. C. Huston, '10; J. W. Roberts, '10; F. L. Guerena, '11, and J. W. Howell, '12, who form the Coaching Committee. Cross-country running, calisthenics, work on the rowing machines and in the boats are indulged in every afternoon.

About sixty-five men are enrolled in the rowing club and before the season formally opens it is believed that the number will be increased to more than 100.

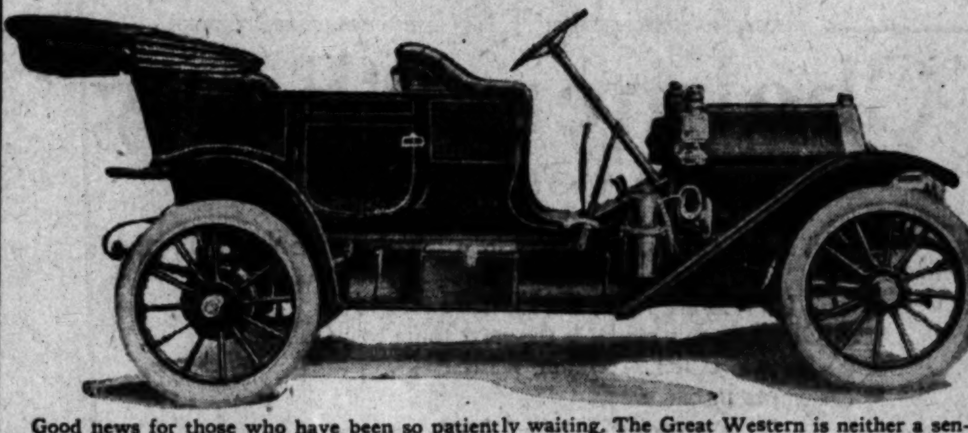
Negotiations are under way for a regatta with the rowing club at California. If the contest is arranged, the same interest will be manifested in it as in the races when the sport was under control of the respective studen. bodies.

☞ "A1" CAR

—THE—

Great Western

IS HERE



Good news for those who have been so patiently waiting. The Great Western is neither a sensationally cheap car nor a high-priced one. Cheap cars promise too much; high-priced cars deliver too little for the prices asked.

The Great Western is a combination of mechanical merit and art in design. It is a car for service—a car that never lays down.

Don't overlook the fact that in buying a Great Western 30 you are paying for actual material which will stand up under every test. No cast iron crank cases. The only cast iron used in these cars is a special formula of gray iron used in the cylinder, the piston and the fly wheel. The elimination of cast iron from the other parts has enabled us to reduce the weight of the Great Western 30 to 2200 pounds, which, in a 30-horse-power car, is a most remarkable achievement. Every part of a car made of cast iron adds to its weight from 30 to 50 per cent. and weakens those parts in a like measure.

Price $1700, F. O. B. Los Angeles

FOR COMPARISON ONLY:

JEFF AND JOHNSON.

seems to run in the other direction with Africans.

A peculiar trait of all negro prize fighters, for instance, is that they always listen to the shouts of the crowd about the ringside. White prize fighters assert that they never hear the crowd after the fight once begins. Taking advantage of this trait of colored men, their white opponents call them vile names and station men about the ring to yell ribald abuse in the hope of driving them into futile, wild fits of negro wrath.

However, this is of small importance. Johnson's danger is the negro susceptibility to an altogether different sort of impression; that of being attacked by sudden discouragement. Loss of morale, army men call it.

Joe Gans would have beaten Battling Nelson with ease at Goldfield, but for the fact that he could not beat down the white boy's belief in himself. Two or three times, Gans saw the chance for the knockout blow and hammered in with all his might. When the white boy did not drop, but bored in for more, something seemed to ooze out of the colored fighter.

Johnson has fought tough, hard fighters; but they have always dropped when he got ready to drop them.

THE CRUCIAL MOMENT.

It will be interesting to watch the effect upon his fighting spirit when he lashes in with the knockout blow upon an enormous bulk that, perhaps, will not drop.

That will be the crucial moment for Johnson and, in a way, for the fighting spark in the negro race.

It will be the test whether a negro, without moral support, can fight when the fight is going against him.

In that moment, when Johnson delivers the blow that fails, all the superstitious awe in which he has held the champion, and all the backs of his race that have bent before the white men, will come to him in a flash. Then we will see if Johnson can brush aside that feeling and fight on with the exalted conviction that HE can't lose either.

Many of Johnson's adherents point back to the black man's career and show that he has never worked hard to win. Like so many elements of this meeting of the white and black, this is tempermental.

Johnson can't work hard and continuously in a prize fight. He hasn't the concentration. The same trait that makes him hear the shouts of the crowd makes him appear to be "fooling round" in the ring.

He fights by flashes.

James J. Jeffries can look out for the "flashes" because, as the side-show barker announces, "the sting of death is in every blow."

The buffalo bull can look out for the sudden leap of the lazy-looking panther.

DANNY ACCEPTS OFFER.

SAYS HE WILL BEAT MONTE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND, Jan. 29.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Danny Webster received word from Tom McCarey today that his demand for a guarantee was acceded to, whereupon Webster wired his acceptance of McCarey's offer for a finish fight with Monte Attell at Vernon, February 22.

Webster has been giving extra care to his training here, in anticipation of a probable early finish fight with Attell, and tonight declared he is in the best condition of his career.

Immediately after his fight here with Frankie Conley next Thursday night Webster will start for Los Angeles.

"It will be a hard fight," said Webster tonight, "but it will not go forty-five rounds. I think I can beat Attell in fifteen rounds. I know I can put him out in twenty-two or twenty-three rounds at the outside."

Conley meanwhile is training faithfully for his coming fight with Webster, and his friends declare the showing he will make here will put him also in line to meet Attell.

SAN PEDRO FIGHT CARD.

Cappelle and Cleveland to Meet in First Event of Harbor City Athletic Club.

Billy Cappelle and Kid Cleveland are to fight fifteen rounds in the main event of the opening fight card of the Harbor City Athletic Club, which has its "house warming" at Peck's Pavilion, San Pedro, Saturday night, February 4.

Two six-round preliminaries are to be added to the programme. Arrangements have been made with the Pacific Electric Railroad Company to run a special car to the pavilion, which is to leave Los Angeles at 6:30 o'clock. Preparations are being made to entertain a large crowd of fans.

Cappelle is a product of San Pedro, and is ranked with Cleveland as one of the cleverest bantamweights on the Coast. Cappelle is heavier than his dusky opponent, but the Kid is probably faster on his feet and can hit about as hard, so the match appears to have the "making" of a lively bout.

SUNDAY BASEBALL.

Picked Team of White Players to Clash With Trilby Team Today at Chutes Park.

The Trilby baseball team is to go against a club made up of white professionals at Chutes Park this afternoon and as the black players in this end of the State have been generally successful against the white ones, it remains to be seen today if the men that Orendorff has clubbed together can win.

The chances are that the white men will capture the game today, for they have a strong line-up. There are seven of the Los Angeles Coast Leaguers on the picked team in addition to Kid Mohler and they should play some real ball. Sam Langford, the black fighter, is announced as the umpire and the game is to be called at 2:30 o'clock.

The line-up is announced as follows:

Angels.		Trilbys.
Nagle-Briswalter	pitcher	Langford
Orendorff	catcher	Bolden
Adams	first base	B. Webb
Mohler	second base	J. Webb
Smith	third base	"Black Cat"
Wheeler	shortstop	Donal
Goodman	left field	Clark
Daley	center field	Hubert
Bernard	right field	Banks

COMPTON GIRLS WIN.

Miss Cone Rings Eleven Baskets in Fast Game With Burbank High Team.

Eleven goals were thrown by Miss Cone, one of the star Compton forwards, in a game won from the Burbank High School girls' basketball team by the score of 28 to 11, yesterday afternoon. Five of Miss Cone's goals were thrown in succession at the beginning of the game.

The only point at which the Compton girls seemed unable to show form was when attempting free throws. Out of fourteen tries the Compton forwards were unable to cage a single basket.

For Burbank, Miss Pomeroy netted four goals from the field, and Miss Burton one. The Burbank guards were unable to stop the fast Compton girls, woh scored almost at will. Line-up:

Burbank.		Compton.
Burton	forward	Cone
Pomeroy		Dimon
Barnett	center	Lee
Edna Burton		Wininger
Butterfield	guard	Renfree
Prince		Vaughan

Referee, Miss Mae Darling; goals from field, Cone 11, Pomeroy 4, Dimon 2, Burton 1; goals from fouls, Pomeroy 1; fouls, Burbank 14, Compton 4.

In a baseball game played on the Compton grounds, just before the basketball game, the Compton nine beat the U.S.C. Dental School team by the score of 9 to 8, in a ten-inning contest.
